is required, a subpoena without a duces tecum clause, must also be served upon him.<sup>7</sup> The statutory provision permitting an order for production of corporate books on examination of a corporation through its officers is not intended to replace the statute permitting discovery of books and the order should, therefore, only direct production of such books as appear from the papers to be necessary for the proper examination of the party in question.<sup>8</sup> It is not sufficient to thwart an otherwise rightful demand for discovery of a corporation adversary's papers, etc., that its officer swears he believes the discovery is only a scheme to devise technical defenses to avoid an honest liability.<sup>9</sup> “. . . a corporation ought not to be required to produce its books upon the examination of one of its officers before trial, to enable him to refresh his memory therefrom while on the stand, unless he requires their assistance in order to testify concerning the matters in regard to which he is to be examined.”<sup>10</sup> One claiming as a litigant and not in the right of a stockholder to examine a corporation's books must show what specific books contain entries necessary for him to see before he can proceed to trial.<sup>11</sup> A plaintiff who states that he intends to begin an action and serve a summons, cannot, by moving for the examination of a defendant corporation's president, who knows nothing of the facts involved, under the guise of such an examination, obtain an inspection of the defendant's books.<sup>12</sup> A stockholder cannot have discovery and inspection of his corporation's books in an action pending by him against it and one of its directors and officers for an account and repayment of corporate property wasted, in which he has only served a summons, for the purpose of framing his complaint, if all the specific charges of waste are on information and belief save one occurring while he himself was a director, and the only specific information sought is the money received by the corporation from advertisers and the money kept by the individual defendant, and he does not aver any more than that he

§ 451. Corporate Existence and Change, Existence; In General.—A stock corporation's certificate of incorporation must contain its duration.<sup>1</sup> Every corporation has power, though not specified in the law under which it is incorporated, to have succession for the period specified in its by-laws or certificate of incorporation; and perpetually when no period is specified.<sup>2</sup> "Corporate charters are not forfeited in fragments, or annulled as damages for the violation of private contracts. . . . the corporate life and power, once fully granted and completely existing, may be lost in two ways: sometimes because the charter itself provides for self-executing causes of forfeiture which, whenever established, effect at once the corporate death; and sometimes where no such provisions exist, the forfeiture comes and can only come from a judicial decree at the suit of the state."<sup>3</sup> Corporate existence is not lost through mere corporate inaction or transfer of property; and its dissolution is not effected by a failure to elect officers, a sale and assignment of all its corporate property or a cessation of all corporate acts: a corporation by virtue of proceedings against it or by reason of its pecuniary condition may cease to exist for all practical purposes for which it was created or for which a corporation may exist, but cannot be held to be actually dissolved till so adjudged and determined either by judicial sentence or the sovereign power.<sup>4</sup> The trustees or directors of a corporation cannot, even with the consent of the majority of the stockholders, so dispose of its property to a foreign corporation organized for the purpose as to end its existence and put the foreign corporation in its place: "A corporation cannot cease to exist of its own will. Its life continues until either the charter period has expired or the court has decreed a dissolution. . . . While a corporation may sell its property to pay debts, or to carry on its business, it cannot sell its property in order to deprive itself of existence. It cannot sell all its property to a foreign corporation organized through its procurement, with a majority of non-resident trustees, for the express purpose of stepping into its shoes, taking all its assets and carrying on its business."<sup>5</sup> Delivery of a deed to a mortgagee, of the property mortgaged to it by a corporation with the consent of its stockholders, pursuant to an agreement by which the mortgagee delayed foreclosure and agreed to accept less than the amount due on the mortgage if payment were made within the time delayed provided such deed were given if such payment were not made at the deferred date, will not be enjoined at the instance of a stockholder on the ground that it amounts to a cessation of the corporation's life by its own act.<sup>6</sup> The corporate liability of one of several constituent companies out of which an association was to be formed which was, however, held to have no legal capacity to exist as a corporation, remains.<sup>7</sup> One who participates in the organization of a corporation, delivers his note for the purpose of perfecting such organization, and receives the benefit from such note on the theory that the corporation had a legal existence, cannot evade liability on the note by pleading that the corporation never was a legal organization.<sup>8</sup> In a suit to distribute the assets of a defunct corporation among its creditors neither the taxable costs nor the fees of counsel of intervening creditors will be charged upon the fund.<sup>9</sup>

§ 452. Id.: Proof of.— This subject is considered at greater length in a preceding section dealing with the averment and proof of a corporation's existence in actions by and against it.<sup>10</sup> A corporation having in form a proper charter and exercising its corporate powers as to third persons need only prove, to establish its existence, such facts.<sup>11</sup> "To make proof of the existence of a de facto corporation, it is necessary to show not only that there is a law under which the corporation might be organized and an attempt to organize it, but that corporate powers have been exercised. That is, that the corporation has exercised its particular franchise by doing business under it."<sup>12</sup>

§ 453. Id.: Expiration and Extension, By Charter Time-Limit.—The certificate of incorporation of a stock corporation must set forth its duration.<sup>13</sup> The certificate of incorporation of any corporation the duration of which is limited by such certificate or by law may require that the consent of the stockholders owning a greater percentage than two-thirds of the stock shall be requisite to effect an extension of corporate existence beyond the time specified in such certificate or by-law, or in any certificate of extension of corporate existence.<sup>14</sup> Any domestic stock corporation at any time before the expiration thereof may extend the term of its existence beyond the time specified in its original certificate of incorporation or by law or in any certificate of extension of corporate existence by the consent of the stockholders owning two-thirds in amount of its capital stock given either in writing or by vote at a special meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose upon the same notice as that required for the annual meetings of the corporation; and a certificate under the seal of the corporation that such consent was given by the stockholders in writing or by vote at such a meeting must be subscribed and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president, and by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation and filed in the office of the Secretary of State and be by him duly recorded and indexed in a book specially provided therefor, and a certified copy of such certificate, with a certificate of the Secretary of State of such filing and record, or a duplicate original of such certificate must be filed and similarly recorded and indexed in the office of the clerk of the county wherein the corporation has its principal place of business and be noted in the margin of the record of the original certificates of such corporation, if any, in such offices; and thereafter the term of the existence of such corporation is extended as designated in such certificate.<sup>15</sup> The Secretary of State collects a fee of twenty-five dollars for filing a certificate of extension or revival of corporate existence.<sup>16</sup> At the end of the term for which a corporation is incorporated the corporation ceases to exist and no adjudication of a court is necessary to terminate the corporate life.<sup>17</sup> “ . . . a corporation at the end of the term for which it is incorporated ceases to exist by virtue of the expiration of its term merely. No adjudication of a court is necessary to terminate its corporate life."<sup>18</sup> A corporation with life limited by its charter to a stated number of years cannot reincorporate under the Business Corporations Law so as to extend its life, alter and extend its business and increase the number of shares of its stock, which could not otherwise be accomplished except by complying with provisions of the General Corporation Law and the Stock Corporation Law.<sup>19</sup> An action in the name of the People, on the relation of persons directly interested to obtain the relief sought, may be brought to restrain persons made individual defendants from acting as a corporation or exercising corporate rights, on the theory that the corporation's term of life has expired, whether the public have any interest in the relief sought or not.<sup>20</sup> When those who have been stockholders in a corporation which has become extinct by the expiration of the time limited for its existence by its charter agree among themselves to continue the business, appoint an agent to continue it and furnish money pro rata to their holdings, it is obvious that they are to participate in the profits in the same proportion; and the agreement constitutes a partnership, as to third persons, irrespective of any particular agreement between the partners themselves limiting the right of each to make contracts binding on the firm and of the ignorance of the third persons that they are no longer dealing with a corporation.<sup>1</sup> A corporation is not a proper party defendant to an action by the People on the relation of a stockholder to restrain individual persons defendant from acting as a corporation without being incorporated, or from exercising corporate rights, privileges or franchises not granted to them by law, on the theory that the corporation's term of life has expired.<sup>2</sup> It is no ground for granting an application by the Attorney-General to start proceedings for dissolution of a corporation that its charter has expired if it be a legal amalgamation of constituent companies having perpetual life.<sup>3</sup> An action against a corporation for a tort may be revived against its directors as statutory trustees if its charter expires by its own limitation while the action is at issue and untried.<sup>4</sup>

§ 454. Id.: By Failure for Two Years to Organize or Undertake Duties.—If any corporation except a railroad, turnpike, plankroad or bridge corporation does not organize and commence the transaction of its business, or undertake the discharge of its corporate duties within two years from the date of its incorporation, its corporate powers cease.<sup>5</sup> The statutory forfeiture of the powers of any corporation which does not organize and commence to transact business or to discharge its duties within two years from the date of its incorporation is self-executory, requires no action to complete the loss of its corporate powers and applies to all corporations, whether created under general or special laws (save those companies excepted in the statute itself.)<sup>6</sup> A corporation incorporated under a special act containing nothing inconsistent with the general statute putting an end to the powers of a corporation not commencing business within two years of its incorporation per se terminates on failure to comply with such statute; and the Attorney-General may bring suit against the incorporators and their successors.<sup>7</sup> It seems that the true construction of a statute enacting that the powers of a corporation not organizing and commencing business within a year of incorporation shall cease is that business which it might lawfully do is referred to; so that if it has never done any such business — though it has done unauthorized business — the statute applies.<sup>8</sup> An action cannot be maintained to effect a forfeiture of a corporate charter for non-user within a year, under a statutory provision forfeiting it if not organized in a year; and such an action should, it seems, in any event not be brought by a stockholder but by the Attorney-General.<sup>9</sup> A clause in a legislative enactment incorporating a company that it and all rights and privileges granted by it should be null and void unless the work contemplated should be begun within two years of its passage does not disclose a legislative intent that the clause shall be self-executing, but the word "void" should be held to mean "voidable," so that the corporation could be dissolved only after action by the Attorney-General.<sup>10</sup>

§ 455. Id.: Vacation, Annulment, and Injunction, Governing Statutes.—An action may be brought by the Attorney-General against a domestic corporation to procure a judgment (1) vacating the act of incorporation, or charter, (2) annulling the act of incorporation or the existence of the corporation or any act renewing the corporation or continuing its corporate existence; but only under certain circumstances which differ according to the relief to be sought.<sup>11</sup> The Attorney-General may maintain an action upon his own information or upon the complaint of a private person against and enjoin one or more persons who act as a corporation within New York State without being duly incorporated or exercise within New York State any corporate rights, privileges or franchises not granted to them by the law of New York State.<sup>12</sup>

§ 456. Id.: In General.—This subject has been generally considered in the four hundred and fifty-first section of this book. The statute authorizing an action "to procure a judgment vacating the charter or annulling the existence" of a corporation does not permit an action to forfeit or take away from it any of its rights or property.<sup>13</sup> The discretion of a court applied to by the Attorney-General for the dissolution of a corporation in the public interest that leave should be granted him to bring the action for dissolution is not review-able in the Court of Appeals.<sup>14</sup> An action by the Attorney-General to dissolve a corporation in the public interest as distinguished from an action by him to protect the interest of an individual is one simply between the People and the corporation, involving no person's interests, in which no relator is needed and in which it is of no legal consequence that the corporate officers or stockholders have misconducted themselves in any way.<sup>15</sup> In an action by the Attorney-General to have a corporation's existence annulled it is "incumbent upon the State to show upon the trial of the action that a cause of forfeiture had not only been incurred by the defendant, but that it continued to exist, and that its existence involved some public interest, and also that the court had authorized the bringing of the action. An action thus commenced is, even then, necessarily always within the control of the State, as the sole party interested, to prosecute or abandon;" and a law passed making a certificate filed by a commission determinative of the public interest to have the action continued or dropped, instead of the discretion of the Attorney-General, followed by the filing of a certificate against continuance, compels abandonment of the action.<sup>16</sup> When the State asks the court to end the life of a corporation created under its laws two questions must be answered affirmatively to permit the judgment of death to be entered: "first, has the defendant corporation exceeded or abused its powers, and, second, does that excess or abuse threaten or harm the public welfare."<sup>17</sup> "The general principle is not disputed that a corporation, by omitting to perform a duty imposed by its charter or to comply with its provisions does not ipso facto lose its corporate character or cease to be a corporation, but simply exposes itself to the hazard of being deprived of its corporate character and franchises by the judgment of the court in an action instituted for that purpose by the Attorney-General in behalf

The action to vacate the charter or annul the existence of the corporation must be brought (1) upon the ground that it has either (a) offended against some provision of an act by or under which it was created, altered or renewed, or an act amending such act, and applicable to the corporation, or (b) violated some provision of law, whereby it has forfeited its charter, or become liable to be dissolved, by the abuse of its powers, or (c) forfeited its privileges or franchises by a

The Attorney-General, with leave of the court obtained, may sue for a forfeiture in five enumerated cases. First, where the corporation has 'offended against' the law of its creation; what constitutes such an offense the section does not declare or affirm, but leaves us to look elsewhere for the proper and lawful test. Second, when the corporation 'has violated any provision of law whereby it has forfeited its charter or become liable to be dissolved by an abuse of its powers.' Here again the violation must be one whereby forfeiture follows, and we must go outside of the section to ascertain what violations will produce the result and what acts constitute an abuse of powers conferred. Third, 'where it has forfeited its privileges or franchises by a failure to exercise its powers.' When such failure works a liability to forfeiture the section does not undertake to determine. Fourth, where the corporation has 'done or omitted any act which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rights, privileges and franchises,' but what acts do amount to such a surrender, we must go beyond the section itself to ascertain. Fifth, where the corporation has 'exercised a privilege or franchise not conferred upon it by law.' Here again what acts, or how long continued or how material or important, shall bring the penalty of dissolution we are not told. . . . the section does not establish or pretend to establish any rule of liability, but simply to fix and enumerate the classes of cases in which, if liability does exist, the Attorney-General may move, having first obtained the assent of the court. § 469. Id.: Creditors.—In an action brought to procure a judgment sequestering the property of a corporation and providing for distribution thereof, the court may in its discretion on the application of either party at any stage of the action before or after final judgment and with or without security grant an injunction order restraining the creditors of the corporation from bringing actions against the defendants or any of them for the recovery of a sum of money, or from taking any further proceedings in such actions theretofore commenced, and such an injunction has the same effect and is subject to the same provisions of law as if each creditor upon whom it is served was named therein and was a party to the action in which it is granted.<sup>5</sup> In an action brought to procure a judgment sequestering the property of a corporation and providing for distribution thereof, the court may at any stage of the action, before or after final judgment, make an order requiring all the creditors of the corporation to exhibit and prove their claims, and thereby make themselves parties to the action, in such manner and in such a reasonable time, not less than six months from the first publication of notice of the order, as the court directs; and that the creditors who make default in so doing shall be precluded from all benefit of the judgment and from any distribution which may be made thereunder, except that, notwithstanding such order, any such creditor who may exhibit and prove his claim in the manner directed by the order, with proof by affidavit or otherwise that he has had no notice or knowledge thereof in time to comply therewith is entitled at any time before an order is made directing a final distribution of the assets of such corporation to have his claim received, and has the same rights and benefits thereon, so far as the assets of such corporation then remaining undistributed may render possible, as if his claim had been duly exhibited and proved within the

—When the action is brought by a creditor and the stockholders, directors, trustees or other officers, or any of them are made liable by law, in any event or contingency, for the payment of the creditor's debt, they may be made parties defendant by the original or a supplemental complaint and their liability declared and enforced by the judgment in the action, and if they are not made parties defendant, the plaintiff may maintain a separate action against them to procure a judgment declaring, apportioning and enforcing their liability; and the court must when it is necessary cause an account to be taken of the property and debts of the corporation and thereupon the defendants' liability must be apportioned accordingly, but if it affirmatively appears that the corporation is insolvent and has no property to satisfy its creditors the court may without taking such an account ascertain and determine the amount of each defendant's liability and enforce the same accordingly.<sup>9</sup> The final judgment in the action, whether brought against a corporation separately or in conjunction with its stockholders, directors, trustees or other officers, must provide for a just and fair distribution of its property and the proceeds thereof among its fair and honest creditors in the order and in the proportions prescribed by law in case of the voluntary dissolution of a corporation.<sup>10</sup> When the stockholders are parties to the action, if the corporate property is not sufficient to discharge its debts the interlocutory or final judgment, as the case requires, must adjudge that each stockholder pay into court the amount due and remaining unpaid on the shares of stock held by him or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the corporate debts, and if it appears that the corporate property and the sums collected or collectible from the stockholders upon their stock

Dissolution and Forfeiture, In General.—"At common law, a corporation aggregate might be dissolved within the time limited by the charter: First, by act of parliament; second, by the loss of all its members, or of an integral part, by death or otherwise; third, by surrender of its franchises; and, fourth, by forfeiture of its charter through negligence or abuse of the privileges conferred by it."<sup>13</sup> The power of the court to dissolve a corporation depends entirely upon statute, and unless the complaint shows the jurisdictional facts it cannot act and any decree it makes is void.<sup>14</sup> " . . . the method of effecting corporate dissolution, when prescribed by statute as in this state, is exclusive, and must be substantially followed . . . The statute now regulating the subject consists of sections 2419 to 2432 of the Code of Civil Procedure . . . in the opinion of the legislature dissension as to the management, especially when it might result in a deadlock, so that business could not be done efficiently, was sufficient to authorize action by the courts. . . . when the interests of the stockholders of a corporation are so discordant as to prevent efficient management and a large majority of both trustees and members wish to wind up its affairs, a dissolution thereof will be beneficial to the interests of the stockholders, because the object of its corporate existence cannot be attained."<sup>15</sup> The statutory provisions, on dissolution of a corporation, have for their object, as they say, to secure "a just and fair distribution of the property of the corporation, and of the proceeds thereof, among its fair and honest creditors;" and mean "not a distribution among those whose diligence has given direction to the conduct of the proceeding,

On an order to show cause why an order should not be made vacating an order dissolving a corporation, stockholders and creditors need not be served or heard if the Attorney-General, the corporate receiver and the only stockholder who appeared in the dissolution proceeding are before the court.<sup>10</sup>

The papers must be presented at a special term of the Supreme Court held within the judicial district embracing the county wherein the principal office of the corporation is located and the court may in its discretion entertain or dismiss the application, and if it entertains it, or the cause for the dissolution is either that the corporation's stock, effects and other property are insufficient to pay all just demands for which it is liable or to afford a reasonable security to those who may deal with it, or that the directors deem it beneficial to the interests of the stockholders that it should be dissolved, the court must make an order requiring all persons interested in the corporation to show cause before it or a referee designated in the order at a time and place therein specified not less than six weeks after the granting of the order, why the corporation should not be dissolved.<sup>11</sup> A copy of the order must be published as prescribed therein at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding the time fixed therein for showing cause, in one or more newspapers specified in the order and published in the city or county wherein the order is entered; and a copy of the order must also be served upon each of the persons specified in the schedule as a creditor or stockholder of the corporation or as a person to whom an engagement of the corporation is to be performed, other than a person whose residence is stated to be unknown or to be without the United States, and such service must be made either personally at least ten days before the time appointed for the hearing or by depositing a copy of the order at least twenty days before the time so appointed in the post-office enclosed in a post-paid wrapper, addressed to the person to be served at his residence as stated in the schedule.<sup>12</sup> The order must be entered and the papers filed within ten days after the order is made with the Clerk of the County where the principal office of the corporation is located.<sup>13</sup> An order to show cause returnable in more than eight days based on a petition for it and for voluntary dissolution of a corporation instead of an affidavit is sufficient.<sup>14</sup> An order published and served pursuant to statute in a proceeding for voluntary dissolution of a corporation which simply requires those interested to show cause "why the prayer of the petitioners should not be granted" is legally insufficient; because no copy of the petition is served in such a proceeding and those interested would, therefore, not get the information it is intended they should get.<sup>15</sup>

The statute also permits and provides for the appointment of temporary receivers and permanent receivers; but these points are hereinafter discussed in the chapter of this work on "Receivers."<sup>16</sup> If a temporary receiver be appointed, the court may in its discretion, on notice to the Attorney-General or on his motion on notice to the corporation, with or without security, at any stage of the proceeding before the final order, grant an injunction restraining the creditors of the corporation from beginning any action against the corporation for the recovery of a sum of money or from taking any further proceedings in such an action theretofore commenced, and such injunction has the same effect and is subject to the same provisions of law as if each creditor upon whom it is served was named therein.<sup>17</sup> If a referee was not designated in the order to show cause the court may in its discretion appoint a referee when or after the order is returnable.<sup>18</sup> The court or the referee must hear the allegations and proofs of the parties at the time and place specified in the order or at the time and place to which the hearing is adjourned; must determine the facts; must in writing make its decision or report, as the case may be, which must contain a statement of the effects, credits and other property, and of the debts and other engagements of the corporation, and of all other matters pertaining to its affairs; and must file such decision or report with all convenient speed.<sup>19</sup> The court or the referee is entitled to use upon the hearing the original petition and the schedules annexed thereto, and the clerk must transmit them accordingly upon the written order of the judge or of

§ 477. Id.: In General.—The interests of the minority as well as of the majority stockholders are entitled to be considered on the question of whether it is beneficial to the interests of the stockholders that the corporation should be dissolved in a voluntary proceeding therefor, as such benefit must be shown to permit dissolution.<sup>3</sup> A petition by the majority of the directors of a corporation for its dissolution will be denied if certain creditors appear and oppose it and it is plain that the corporation has at least an apparent cause of action against some of its officers and directors for maladministration of its affairs.<sup>4</sup> Proceedings looking to the dissolution of a corporation and instituted by three of its seven directors will be discountenanced by the court when it appears that when begun a stockholders' meeting had been

But where in a proceeding to dissolve a corporation the petitioner, after a referee has been appointed, neglects or refuses to proceed, . . . it is competent for the court on special application of any person interested, to direct the petitioner to move, so that the interests of all may be protected. So, also . . . if all the parties appear before the court for the purpose of procuring a final order, the court would be authorized to dispose of the matter, although no formal notice had been given by the petitioner."<sup>6</sup> On presentation to it of a petition by all the directors of a corporation for its voluntary dissolution the court may appoint a referee to hear and report on the conflicting claims of stockholders which the petition recites have arisen on a controversy between them, as an incident to the court's statutory power to provide by final order for the distribution of the corporate assets.<sup>7</sup> The Supreme Court cannot in a proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation by order restrain the prosecution by a trustee of its mortgage of an action to foreclose or grant an extra allowance to the petitioners in such proceeding.<sup>8</sup> In a proceeding for voluntary corporate dissolution on petition of the majority of the corporation's directors the court cannot make any binding adjudication as to the existence or extent of a liability of corporate officers and directors for maladministration alleged by objecting creditors to exist.<sup>9</sup> A final order dissolving a corporation in voluntary proceedings for its dissolution is void if the referee appointed to take proof does not in his report give, in the words of the statute, "a statement of the effects, credits and other property, and of the debts and other engagements of the corporation and of other matters pertaining to its affairs."<sup>10</sup> In a proceeding voluntarily to dissolve a corporation a report by the referee which contains no statement of the corporation's debts but simply states generally that the schedules annexed to the petition were correct is not a compliance with the state.<sup>11</sup> A sale, assignment, mortgage, conveyance or other transfer of any property of a corporation made after the filing of a petition for its voluntary dissolution in payment of or as security for an existing or prior debt or for any other consideration; or a judgment thereafter rendered against the corporation by confession or upon the acceptance of an offer is absolutely void as against the receiver appointed in the special proceeding and as against the creditors of the corporation.<sup>12</sup>

§ 480. Id.: Grounds.—An action to procure a judgment dissolving a domestic corporation and forfeiting its corporate rights, privileges and franchises may be maintained (1) when it has remained insolvent for at least one year; (2) when it has neglected or refused for at least one year to pay and discharge its notes or other evidences of debt; (3) when it has suspended its ordinary and lawful business for at least one year.<sup>16</sup> “It is a general principle that a cause of forfeiture can not be taken advantage of, or enforced against a corporation collaterally, or incidentally, or in any other mode than by a direct proceeding for that purpose against the corporation so that it may have an opportunity to answer.”<sup>17</sup> The statute providing that whenever a corporation for one year has remained insolvent or has refused to pay its evidences of debt or has suspended its ordinary business it shall be deemed to have surrendered its franchise is not a substitute for the common law rule that a virtual surrender of its franchise may be inferred from its condition and its manner of conducting its affairs, but is merely cumulative thereto, adding a rule by which circumstances are made equivalent to a surrender, which before had no such effect.<sup>18</sup> “A surrender of corporate franchises cannot be inferred even from insolvency and suspension of business for a less period than that designated by statute to consummate it, unless the circumstances are such as to make it appear that the corporation has not power to continue or resume its business.”<sup>19</sup> A statute that a corporation shall be dissolved which for one year has suspended its ordinary business “proceeds upon the idea that it has once been in the exercise of its ordinary (authorized) business; for it can scarcely be said to have suspended such business unless it has at some time exercised it.”<sup>20</sup> The statute permitting the Attorney-General to bring an action against a corporation when it has failed to exercise its powers and vacate its charter is available only when it has violated the statute permitting an action to dissolve it for suspension of its ordinary and lawful business for at least one year; “it is to that section the Attorney-General must look for a declaration as to what constitutes a forfeiture of a franchise by a

trustees or other officers, or any of them, are made by law liable, in any event or contingency, for the payment of the creditor's debt, the persons so made liable may be made parties defendant by the original or by a supplemental complaint and their liability may be declared and enforced by the judgment in the action; and if they are not made parties defendant, the plaintiff may maintain a separate action against them to procure a judgment declaring, apportioning and enforcing their liability; and in either case the court, when it is necessary, must cause an account to be taken of the property and of the debts of the corporation, and thereupon the defendants' liability must be apportioned accordingly; but if it affirmatively appears that the corporation is insolvent and has no property to satisfy its creditors the court may without taking such an account ascertain and determine the amount of each defendant's liability and enforce the same accordingly.<sup>20</sup>

§ 485. Id.: Creditors.—In an action brought to procure a judgment dissolving a corporation and forfeiting its franchises because for one year it has been insolvent, or refused or neglected to discharge its evidences of debt, or has suspended its business, the court may at any stage of the action, before or after final judgment, make an order requiring all the creditors of the corporation to exhibit and prove their claims, and thereby make themselves parties to the action, in such manner and in such a reasonable time, not less than six months, from the first publication of notice of the order, as the court directs; and that the creditors who make default in so doing shall be precluded from all benefit of the judgment and from any distribution which may be made thereunder; except that, notwithstanding such order any such creditor who may exhibit and prove his claim in the manner directed by the order, with proof by affidavit or otherwise that he has had no notice or knowledge thereof in time to comply therewith, is entitled at any time before an order is made directing a final distribution of the assets of such corporation to have his claim received, and has the same rights and benefits thereon, so far as the assets of such corporation then remaining undistributed may render possible, as if his claim had been exhibited and proved within the time limited by such order.<sup>1</sup> Notice of the order must be given by publication in such newspapers and for such length of time as the court directs.<sup>2</sup> "In an action brought by the People to dissolve an insolvent corporation and distribute its assets among its creditors, the distribution is to take place first among the creditors whose claims represent a fixed liability at the time of the commencement of the action and the order of sequestration. A contingent claim, where the liability is not fixed and certain at that time, but depends upon the happening thereafter of an uncertain event, can only share in the surplus remaining after the fixed liabilities and the expenses of administration have been paid."<sup>3</sup> A creditor of a corporation being dissolved by action cannot prove against it both its obligations and coupon notes held as collateral security for such obligations, unless, possibly, such notes carry some lien on the corporation's property.<sup>4</sup> In decreeing ratable division of a fund on dissolution of a corporation among all unpreferred creditors before the court, those whose claims have been admitted in the dissolution proceeding but who are not represented by their own attorneys, are included on the theory that the receiver represents them.<sup>5a</sup> "When a corporation has been legally organized its existence may continue after an event which would be a sufficient cause for its dissolution by the court; and when dissolved for violating the laws under which it exists, the rights of the creditors, who have become such since the time when it had, by some act of commission or omission, forfeited its right to exist, cannot be ignored, and the assets, which have been seized by the court, must be distributed among the creditors (in the absence of statutory directions) according to the principle of equity."<sup>5</sup>

§ 486. Id.: Judgment; Distribution, and Subsequent Practice.

—A final judgment in the action against the corporation separately or in conjunction with its stockholders, directors, trustees or other officers, must provide for a just and fair distribution of the property of the corporation and of the proceeds thereof among its fair and honest creditors in the order and in the proportions prescribed by law in case of the voluntary dissolution of a corporation; and the interlocutory or final judgment, as the case requires, must, if the stockholders are parties to the action and the property of the corporation is not sufficient to discharge its debts, adjudge that each stockholder pay into court the amount due and remaining unpaid on the shares of the stock held by him, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the debts of the corporation; and the court must, if the property of the corporation and the sums collected or collectible from the stockholders upon their unpaid stock subscriptions are or will be insufficient to pay the corporate debts, ascertain the several sums for which the directors, trustees, or other officers, or the stockholders, being parties to the action, are liable, and adjudge that the same be paid into court to be applied in such proportions and in such order as justice requires to the payment of the debts of the corporation.<sup>6</sup> The final judgment in an action to dissolve a corporation must be entered in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal business office or the principal place of business of the corporation is located, and if it is adjudged that such corporation be dissolved, a certified copy of such judgment must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State.<sup>7</sup> A judgment entered on a referee's report in an uncontested proceeding by the Attorney-General to dissolve a corporation that certain stockholders pay a stated amount as the value of assets of the corporation in their hands, though not entered upon proper legal proceedings will nevertheless bind the stockholders if they made no objection to the course followed and had full opportunity to, and did present their side of the claim against them.<sup>8</sup> While a court may, on dissolution of a corporation, decree distribution of its funds among those entitled thereto, it may not take away from a trustee funds placed with it for a specific purpose by the dissolved corporation and itself distribute them, but can only require its receiver who has accepted such funds to pay them back to the trustee.<sup>9</sup> Under a statute providing that on dissolution of a corporation the residue of its assets left after paying the expenses of the receivership and its debts and liabilities shall be distributed among the stockholders in proportion to their several interests therein, "if the distribution can be properly made without a sale, then it should not be made; but when a sale

§ 487. Id.: Effect of Dissolution, In General.—The only effect of a resolution by a corporation’s board of directors that it “be and the same is hereby dissolved, to take effect upon the sale and transfer of its property, the settling of its business and the division of its capital stock” is “to deprive the corporation of the power of engaging in new business, and to leave it clothed with full power, so far as necessary to close up all its affairs, pay off its debts and distribute its property, and it . . . continued to have authority to fill any vacancy occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise.”<sup>11</sup> The Supreme Court has the same power over its order dissolving a corporation as it has over any other order made by it and may, therefore, resuscitate a corporation it has by order dissolved.<sup>12</sup> The court has power to set aside its final order of dissolution of a corporation made on application of a majority of its board of directors on the request of a stockholder; and it will exercise this power if the merits of the request appeal to it and the applicant give a sufficient and approved bond to pay creditors the amounts to which they may be entitled.<sup>13</sup> Once a petition for voluntary dissolution of a corporation is made the court acquires jurisdiction and may appoint a receiver, restrain proceedings against the corporation, etc.<sup>14</sup> The common law rule that real estate held by a corporation at the time of dissolution reverts to the grantor does not prevail in this State in respect to stock corporations, as under the statute, “upon the dissolution of a corporation, the directors or managers at that time become trustees of its property (unless some other custodian is appointed), for the purpose of paying the debts of the corporation and dividing its property among its stockholders.”<sup>15</sup>

After judgment has been entered dissolving a corporation and appointing a receiver, stockholders should be permitted to examine and take abstracts from its books to get information as to its condition; but they are not entitled to a court order requiring notice to them of any application to the court or action by the court or receiver.<sup>16</sup> Though the persons appealing from an order dissolving a corporation did not themselves object to the proceeding on the ground that the order therein for publication of notice was improper under the statute they may nevertheless raise the point on appeal, if they are not the only ones on whom the order published had to be served.<sup>17</sup>

§ 488. Id.: On Actions.—A cause of action for damages for negligent injury by a stock corporation should after its voluntary dissolution be brought against it and not its directors.<sup>18</sup> An action for damages for death from negligence of a corporation survives its dissolution and may be contained against its receiver, who may even appeal from the judgment therein.<sup>19</sup> The dissolution of a corporation puts an end to an action against it; and a receiver for it, in authority when judgment is rendered against the corporation, but who has not been made party to the action, cannot be affected by it unless by direction of the court he has interfered and made himself responsible for its final result, and a mere direction to argue the case on appeal does not make him responsible.<sup>20</sup> The principle that creditors may proceed against a corporation by its corporate name until it is declared dissolved by judicial decree is applicable to a dissolution in consequence of insolvency or non-user or mis-user of the corporate franchises, or some other cause of forfeiture, and not to a dissolution by expiration of the charter, in which event the corporation is de facto dead and no judgment can be rendered against it.<sup>1</sup> “To effect a dissolution of a corporation there must be the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction declaring it dissolved; and until such judgment creditors may proceed by

A corporation may by virtue of proceedings against it, or by reason of its pecuniary condition, cease to exist for all practical purposes, all the purposes for which it was created or for which a corporation may exist, but it cannot be held to be actually dissolved till so adjudged and determined, either by judicial sentence or the sovereign power."<sup>2</sup> On dissolution of a corporation, action for an admitted debt of the corporation should be against the directors as trustees, but for a contested claim which can be established and liquidated only by a judgment the action should be against the corporation.<sup>3</sup>

§ 489. Id.: On Creditors.—Creditors of a dissolved corporation have a lien on its assets for the payment of their debts, whether they are in the hands of one who came by them fairly or by fraud or force, unless such one has acquired a higher or better equity thereto than the creditors.<sup>4</sup> "Under the statutes of this State, on the dissolution of a corporation, its assets become a trust fund for the payment of its debts, and these include debts to mature as well as accrued indebtedness, and all engagements entered into by the corporation, which have not been fully satisfied or canceled."<sup>5</sup> In order to maintain the lien of a creditor of a corporation upon its assets after its dissolution by judgment enjoining further proceedings against it it must be shown that the lien was valid and existed before entry of the judgment.<sup>6</sup>

§ 490. Id.: On Judgments.—A judgment against a corporation which was a lien on its realty when suit to dissolve the corporation was begun, but was later reduced by the Appellate Division, is a lien which holds good for the reduced amount even though such realty be sold by the receiver appointed in the dissolution proceedings under a final decree ordering the sale subject only to certain liens mentioned of which this judgment was not one.<sup>7</sup> A judgment obtained in a foreign state against a corporation after a temporary receiver had been appointed in this State for it in proceedings for its dissolution is good and entitles the judgment creditor to share in its property sequestered in this State on introduction in evidence of an exemplified copy of the judgment and records of the foreign court showing the appearance of the corporation by attorney, unless the order appointing the temporary receiver restrained creditors from proceeding by action against the corporation and the creditor in question was served with such order.<sup>8</sup> A decree of corporate dissolution does not contemplate that the sale of the corporate realty shall be free and clear of all judgment liens unless specially reserved in the decree; and until any particular judgment is satisfied from the moneys in the hands of the receiver, it is the right of the owner of the judgment to proceed to execution and sell subject to the order of the court.<sup>9</sup> “. . . there can be no valid judgment against a dissolved corporation, unless one founded on a pending suit which the order of dissolution itself preserves from abatement, or in some manner saved. . . . But to . . . insist that by force of the foreign judgment and through the comity of the states the corporation, in its own jurisdiction is . . . dead as to our own citizens, but alive as to foreign creditors—is to . . . make a complete dissolution . . . impossible. . . . § 491. Id.: On Contracts.—"There is nothing in the statute [providing for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation] . . . authorizing the court to restrain the creditors of the corporation from disposing of its bonds held as collateral to loans under lawful contracts empowering them to sell."<sup>13</sup> When an agreement between competing ship lines provides for their combination into a corporation and division of its stock, and one interest, given control of the corporation's management, guarantees payment of stated dividends to the other for a certain term prior to the expiration of which the corporation is dissolved at the suit of the State on the instigation of the guaranteed interest, the obligation of the contract of guarantee terminates prima facie with the dissolution of the corporation.<sup>14</sup> A corporation guaranteeing to pay to holders of certificates of another corporation, so long as the latter's certificates should be outstanding, but not longer than the then unexpired term of the period for which the latter was incorporated, a stated dividend, is not liable on the guaranty, per se, after such other corporation's legal dissolution.<sup>15</sup>

§ 492. Id.: On Liabilities of Directors, Officers and Stockholders.—The liability of directors and officers of a corporation on its dissolution has already been discussed.<sup>16</sup> The last sentence of section five of the Business Corporations Law, that “the dissolution of any such corporation for any cause shall not take away or impair any remedy against it, its stockholders or officers, for any liabilities incurred previous to its dissolution,” inartificial as may be its insertion in a clause providing for dissolution on failure of payment of a corporation’s capital stock, cannot be qualified by what precedes; and it reaches beyond the contingency of the particular dissolution previously referred to and applies to any, that is to say every, case of corporate dissolution.<sup>17</sup> When there is no action by a corporation with a view to the discontinuance of its business or the abandonment of its franchise and no acquiescence in such a course by its trustees or stockholders, the mere fact of an application by the attorney-general at the instance of two and in spite of the opposition of half of the trustees for its dissolution upon grounds undisclosed does not relieve them from the duty of making and filing the statutory annual report so as to relieve them from individual liability under the then statute.<sup>18</sup>

§ 493. Id.: Voluntary Sale of Property and Franchise, In General.—The legislation permitting voluntary sale of a corporation’s franchise and property was designed to meet two evils: “(1) The injustice to the bulk of the stockholders from want of power in a corporation to sell its business or an essential part thereof to another corporation organized for the purpose, frequently from its own membership, on terms deemed advantageous by the holders of a large majority of the stock, (2) the injustice to minority stockholders of requiring them to abandon, change or limit their business if the majority should have the power to direct such a sale. An incidental evil was the power of a dissenting stockholder to compel the majority to buy him out on his own terms in order to secure unanimous consent with no one left to question the

§ 494. Id.: To What Corporation, and of What.—A domestic stock corporation is permitted by statute to sell its property, rights, privileges and franchises to another domestic corporation, or its property outside New York State, not including its franchises, to a corporation organized under the laws of an adjoining state in which the selling corporation carries on its principal business and in which its principle tangible property is located.<sup>4</sup> If the sale is to a domestic corporation the latter must be engaged in a business of the same general character as the selling corporation, or engaged in a business which might be included in the certificate of incorporation of a corporation organizing under any general law of New York State for a business of the same general character as the selling corporation; and if to a foreign corporation the latter must be organized under the laws of an adjoining state to the selling corporation in which the seller carries on its principal business and in which the seller's principal tangible property is located.<sup>5</sup> If the sale is to a domestic corporation it may be of any interest in or part of the property, rights, privileges and franchises of the selling corporation.<sup>6</sup> On dissolution of a stock corporation before the time limited in its certificate of incorporation by voluntary action of its directors and stockholders, the former, after paying or adequately providing for the debts and obligations of the corporation, may with the written consent of the holders of two-thirds in amount of the capital stock sell the remaining assets or any part thereof to a corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state and engaged in a business of the same general character, and take in payment therefor the stock or bonds or both of such corporation, and distribute them among the stockholders in lieu of money in proportion to their interest therein, but no such sale is valid as against any stockholder who within sixty days after the mailing of notice to him of such sale applies to the Supreme Court in the manner provided by the seventeenth section of the Stock Corporation Law for an appraisal of the value of his interest in the assets so sold; unless within thirty days after such appraisal the stockholders consenting to such sale or some of them pay to such objecting stockholder or deposit for his account in the manner directed by the court the amount of such appraisal, and upon such payment or deposit the interest of such objecting stockholder vests in the person or persons making such payment or deposit.<sup>7</sup>

Id.: Stockholders' Consent.—If the sale is of both property and rights, privileges and franchises to a domestic corporation, it must be with the consent of two-thirds of the selling corporation's stock; and if of only property situate outside New York, to a foreign corporation, it must be with the consent of the holders of ninety-five per centum of the selling corporation's capital stock.<sup>8</sup> Before a sale or conveyance can be made either to a domestic or foreign corporation the consent of the two-thirds of stock or ninety-five per centum of the holders of the stock, respectively, must be obtained at a meeting of the stockholders called upon like notice as that required for an annual meeting.<sup>9</sup>

§ 496. Id.: Stockholders' Dissent and Procedure Thereon.—A stockholder may within sixty days after the meeting held to authorize sale to a domestic or foreign corporation apply to the Supreme Court for the appointment of three persons to appraise the value of his stock if (1) he did not vote in favor of the proposed sale at such meeting, or (2) within twenty days after such meeting objected to such sale and demanded payment for his stock.<sup>10</sup> The statutory provision that a stockholder objecting to sale of his corporation's franchise and property to another corporation by consent of two-thirds of its stockholders may apply to the court "within sixty days" after the stockholders' meeting for the appointment of appraisers of his stock means that the notice of application must be served within sixty days—not that the court hearing must be had within the sixty days.<sup>11</sup> The application may be made at any special term held in the district in which the principal place of business of the corporation is situated and upon eight days' notice to the corporation.<sup>12</sup> The court must appoint three appraisers as asked and designate the time and place of their proceedings as is deemed proper and also direct the manner in which payment for such stock is to be made to the applying stockholders.<sup>13</sup> The court may fill any vacancy in the board of appraisers occurring by refusal or neglect to serve or otherwise.<sup>14</sup> The appraisers must meet at the time and place designated and they or any

§ 497. Id.: Effect of Sale Pursuant to Statute.—The sale and conveyance, in the case of a sale to a domestic corporation, vest the rights, property and franchises thereby transferred, and in the case of a sale to a foreign corporation, vests the property sold, in the transferee-corporation for the term of its corporate existence, subject to the provisions and restrictions applicable to the corporation conveying.<sup>16</sup> When the corporation has paid the amount of such appraisal, as directed by the court, such stockholders cease to have any interest in such stock and in the corporate property of such corporation and such stock may be held or disposed of by such corporation.<sup>17</sup> The duty of a corporation having a dissenting stockholder to pay the value of his holdings within thirty days of its appraisal involves the performance of a condition subsequent to the sale of its assets, and the sale itself is effectual, so far as the buyer is concerned, until invalidated by failure to pay.<sup>18</sup>

any other stock corporation organized for or engaged in business similar or incidental to that of the possessor corporation, may merge such other corporation.<sup>20</sup> The possessor corporation accomplishes the merger by filing in the office of the Secretary of State a certificate — which must be under its common seal — (1) of its ownership of all the other corporation's stock, and (2) of the resolution of its (the possessor-corporation's) board of directors to merge such other corporation.<sup>1</sup> Thereupon the possessor-corporation acquires, becomes and is possessed of all the estate, property, rights, privileges and franchises of such other corporation, and they vest in and are held and enjoyed by it as fully and entirely, and without change or diminution, as they were before held and enjoyed by such other corporation; and the latter is managed and controlled by the board of directors of such possessor-corporation and in its name, but without prejudice to any liabilities of such other corporation or the rights of any creditors thereof.<sup>2</sup> The Secretary of State collects a fee of twenty-five dollars for filing a certificate of merger pursuant to section fifteen of the Stock Corporation Law.<sup>3</sup> A creditor of a corporation merged into another, rather than consolidated, must hold not the possessor-corporation, but the merged corporation for the debt, as the statute retains the merged corporation's existence for the one purpose of carrying out in good faith the reservation in the statute of the rights of creditors thereof. If the merged corporation's property is not of such nature that it can be reached directly by execution or otherwise, it constitutes a trust fund for benefit of such creditors and can be reached as such precisely as if a merger had not taken place.<sup>4</sup> One suing a corporation which becomes merged in another is entitled to have the latter substituted for the former.<sup>5</sup> A plaintiff, by accepting an answer from a successor corporation to the one originally sued into which the latter has been merged since the suit was begun, waives any objection to its having been made by a party not named in the summons, and cannot move at the trial to have the case stricken from the calendar.<sup>6</sup> Solely by virtue of the

§ 500. Id.: Consolidation, In General.—Consolidation pursuant to statute is permitted to corporations; but not transfer by one of all its assets to another, insofar as creditors are concerned, even though the transferee-corporation assume the other's debts, because a creditor cannot be forced to change his debtor against his will.<sup>8</sup> Corporations cannot consolidate without legislative authority.<sup>9</sup> The courts cannot legalize a consolidation of corporations for which there is no legislative sanction.<sup>10</sup> There can be no corporate consolidation except as provided by the legislature; and any agreement to consolidate in any other way is void and ineffective to transfer any of the property of the constituent corporations to the consolidated company.<sup>11</sup> When a revision of existing laws provides that its repeal clauses shall not affect or impair any act done and right accrued before a certain date, it does not invalidate proceedings for a consolidation of corporations in which the directors' meeting was held and the stockholders' meeting was called before the repeal of the laws empowering such consolidation, even though the stockholders' meeting was not held till after the repeal.<sup>12</sup> “. . . in this State there can be no partnerships of separate and independent corporations, whether directly, or indirectly, through the medium of a trust; no substantial consolidations which avoid and disregard the statutory permissions and restraints, but . . . manufacturing corporations must be and remain several as they were created, or one under the statute.”<sup>13</sup>

§ 501. Id.: What Corporations May Consolidate.—Any two or more corporations organized under the law of New York State for the purpose of carrying on any kind of business of the same or of a similar nature, which a corporation organized under the Business Corporations Law might carry on, may consolidate such two or more corporations into a single corporation.<sup>14</sup>

§ 502. Id.: The Agreement of Consolidation.—The consolidation is accomplished by the respective corporations entering into and making an agreement for the consolidation of such corporations (1) signed by a majority of the respective boards of directors and (2) under their respective corporate seals, (3) prescribing (a) the terms and conditions of the consolidation, (b) the mode of carrying it into effect, (c) the name of the new corporation, (d) the number of directors who are to manage its affairs (not less than three), (e) the names and postoffice addresses of the directors for the first year, (f) the term of its existence (not exceeding fifty years), (g) the name of the town or towns, county or counties, in which its operations are to be carried on, (h) the name of the town or city and county in New York State in which its principal place of business is to be situated, (i) the amount of its capital stock (which must not be larger in amount than the fair aggregate value of the property, franchises and rights of such corporations), (j) the number of shares into which such capital stock is to be divided, (k) the manner of distributing such capital stock among the holders thereof, (l) if such corporations or any or either of them have been organized for the purpose of carrying on any part of its business in any place outside of New York State, such fact, and (m) such other particulars as they may deem necessary.<sup>15</sup>

§ 503. Id.: Stockholders' Consent.—The consolidation agreement must be submitted to the stockholders of each consolidating corporation at a meeting thereof to be called (1) upon notice of (a) at least two weeks, specifying (b) the time, (c) place and (d) object thereof, and (e) addressed to each by one corporation of the indebtedness of another, upon consolidation, merger, or absorption, see note in 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1101.

Id.: Filing and Evidentiary Value of Consolidation Agreement and Proceedings.—A sworn copy of the proceedings of the stockholders' meetings of several corporations which consolidate, made by their respective secretaries, and attached to the consolidation agreement, is presumptive evidence of the holding and action of such meetings.<sup>8</sup> The agreement and a verified copy of the proceedings of each meeting of the stockholders of the various consolidating companies must be made in duplicate, one of which must be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and the other in the office of the clerk of the county where the principal business office of the new corporation is to be situated in New York State.<sup>9</sup> Upon filing of the consolidation agreement and verified copy of proceedings of stockholders' meetings in the office both of the Secretary of State and county clerk the consolidating corporations are merged or consolidated into the new corporation specified in the agreement, to be known by the corporate name therein mentioned; and the provisions of such agreement must be carried into effect as therein provided.<sup>10</sup> The Secretary of State collects a fee of twenty-five dollars for filing an agreement for the consolidation of two or more corporations other than railroad corporations.<sup>11</sup> The Secretary of State collects a fee of twenty-five dollars for a certificate under subdivision three of section nine of the General Corporation Law, viz.: a certificate stating the name, etc., of corporations consolidating and merging into a new corporation.<sup>12</sup> parties to it, and all the real, personal and mixed property, and all the debts due on whatever account to either or any of them, as well as all stock subscriptions and other things in action belonging to either or any of them, are taken and deemed to be transferred to and vested in such new corporation without further act or deed; and all claims, demands, property and every other interest is as effectually the property of the new corporation as they were of the former corporations which were parties to such agreement and act; and the title to all real estate, taken by deed or otherwise, under the laws of New York State, vested in either or any of the corporate parties to the consolidation agreement and act, is not deemed to revert or to be in any way impaired by reason of the law pertaining to corporate consolidation or any thing done by virtue thereof, but is vested in the new corporation by virtue of such act of consolidation.<sup>14</sup> The rights of creditors of any corporation which is consolidated into a new one are not in any manner impaired, nor is any liability or obligation for the payment of any money due or to become due to any person or persons, or any claim or demand for any cause existing against any such corporation or against any stockholder thereof, released or impaired by any such consolidation; but such new corporation succeeds to and is held liable to pay and discharge all such debts and liabilities of each of the corporations consolidated in the same manner as if such new corporation had itself incurred the obligation or liability to pay such debt or damages; and the stockholders of the respective corporations consolidated continue subject to all the liabilities, claims and demands existing against them as such at or before the consolidation; and no action or proceeding then pending before any court or tribunal in which any corporation that is so consolidated is a party, or in which any such stockholder is a party, abates or is discontinued by reason of such consolidation, but it may be prosecuted to final judgment as though no consolidation had been entered into, or such new corporation may be substituted as a party in place of any corporation so consolidated, by order of the court in which such action or proceeding may be pending.<sup>15</sup> “In the consolidation of corporations, pursuant to the provisions of the statute, the new corporation starts upon its existence freighted with the liabilities of the old companies and subject to the terms and conditions of the consolidation agreement, so far as they are not in conflict with the law. While it is not competent to do anything which would impair the rights of outside creditors, there is no reason why the parties to the consolidation agreement may not bind themselves to something deemed for the benefit of the new corporation, and that is what seems to have been done in the present case. The manifest intention of the stockholders of the old companies, who united in making and signing the consolidation agreement, seems to have been to represent that their corporate properties and franchises vested in the new company freed from any burden of indebtedness. As to creditors not assenting to any such arrangement, this was quite unavailing; but as to themselves, it should, and would, operate to bar their claims, while the other creditors were seeking payment from the assets of the corporation since become insolvent."<sup>16</sup>

" . . . statutes for the consolidation of domestic corporations are to be treated as acts of incorporation, and . . . on consolidation being effected under their provisions, the constituent companies, unless such an intention is excluded by the language of the statute, are deemed to be dissolved, and their powers and faculties to the extent authorized become vested in the consolidated company as a new corporation created by the act of consolidation."<sup>17</sup> A statute authorizing the consolidation of corporations which provides that all liabilities incurred by either corporation, except mortgages, shall attach to the new corporation does not relieve the new company from the obligation of one of the old companies on bonds secured by mortgages on its property.<sup>18</sup> While a new corporation formed by consolidation of old corporations is not, in the absence of fraud, liable upon the contracts of the old corporation, yet it is liable, if it is organized out of the officers, directors and stockholders of the old and appropriates all of the assets of the latter in consideration solely of the issue of its stock to the holders of stock in the old corporation, for any debt owing by the old companies at the time of the consolidation, as there is no consideration moving to the old companies as legal entities from which its creditors may agreement between individuals contemplating the formation of a new corporation to take over the business of an old one in which they were interested and for the surrender and return of certain securities alleged to have been illegally issued to some of such individuals must be brought by the complaining individual as such and not as a stockholder.<sup>6</sup> In a stockholder's action against members of a corporate reorganization committee a demurrer by a corporate defendant that no cause of action is alleged against it will be held bad if it appears that it is the depository of and received securities under the agreement of reorganization, though superseded later, and delivered all securities to its successor, if it be alleged on information and belief that it assisted individual members of the reorganization committee in misappropriating and wasting the corporate property.<sup>7</sup>

§ 507-a. Id.: Under Business Corporations Law.—Any stock corporation (excepting a moneyed, transportation, banking or insurance corporation) may reincorporate under the Business Corporations Law in the following manner: (1) The directors must call a meeting of stockholders by (a) publishing a notice stating the time, place and object of the meeting, signed by at least a majority of them, in a newspaper of the county in which the corporation's principal business office is situated, once a week for at least three weeks, and by (b) serving upon each stockholder, at least three weeks before the meeting, a copy of such notice, either personally, or by depositing it in the post-office, postage prepaid, addressed to him at his last known post-office address; (2) the stockholders must (a) meet at the time and place specified in the notice and (b) organize by choosing one of the directors chairman and a suitable secretary, and (c) take a vote of those present in person or by proxy upon the proposition to reincorporate under the Business Corporations Law, and, if votes representing a majority of all the stock of the corporation are cast in favor of the proposition, (3) the officers of the meeting must (a) execute and (b) acknowledge a certificate of the proceedings, containing also the statements required by statute in a corporation could maintain an action against it on an indebtedness due from the company to him; that the corporate business was not terminated by its ceasing to do business. The fact that the plaintiff was a stockholder did not deprive him of the right to bring an action, the certificate of incorporation, and (4) this certificate must be filed in the offices where certificates of incorporation under the Business Corporations Law are required to be filed; and from the time of such filing such corporation is deemed to be a corporation organized under the Business Corporations Law, and, if originally organized or incorporated under a general law of New York State, it has and exercises all such rights and franchises as it had and exercised under the laws pursuant to which it was originally incorporated, and such reorganization does not in any way affect, change or diminish the existing liabilities of the corporation.<sup>7a</sup>

§ 507-b. Id.: To Provide for Stock Without Nominal or Par Value.—Any stock corporation other than a moneyed corporation or a corporation under the jurisdiction of any public service commission may be reorganized so that it, as well as its officers, directors and stockholders, may acquire and enjoy all the rights, privileges, powers and exemptions, and become subject to all of the liabilities and obligations imposed on corporations organized with shares of capital stock without par value, by filing and recording a certificate in form prescribed by statute, and by obtaining the approval of the State Comptroller if the amount of capital named in such certificate is less than the par value of its previously outstanding stock; but no corporation so reorganized can incur any debts subsequent to the filing of such certificate until it has assets of an actual value at least equal to the amount of the capital stated in such certificate as that with which it will carry on business, and the liability of the corporation, as well as its officers, directors and stockholders, for corporate debts contracted or obligations incurred prior to the filing of such certificate is unaffected by such filing, and for the purpose of enforcing and recovering upon such claims creditors have the same right of recourse against the corporation, or its officers, directors and stockholders individually, that they would have had if the corporation had not been reorganized, and all of the rights and benefits conferred by the statutes imposing liability upon stockholders to corporate creditors for the amount unpaid on their stockholdings, to corporate laborers, servants or employees other than contractors for services performed by them for the corporation, subject, however to the conditions, limitations and restrictions imposed by such statutes, such as relate to persons holding stock as collateral or as trustee, or to the necessity of the creditor obtaining a judgment against the corporation before seeking to hold the stockholders.<sup>7b</sup> This matter has already been treated and reference is made to such treatment.<sup>7c</sup>

§ 508. Id.: Reorganization Agreement, Construction Of.—

A reorganization agreement prepared by a committee and wholly in its language, in the preparation of which bondholders of the corporation, to be affected by it, had no part, though compelled to accept it as it stood or not at all, should be construed most favorably to the bondholders.<sup>8</sup> The fact that a reorganization agreement provides that the reorganization committee has the right to construe it and that its construction is final does not empower it to make a new contract or subvert the agreement by construing a vital provision into or out of it: "no one can be made, by contract, the final judge of his own acts, for the law writes 'good faith' into such agreements. . . . the power to construe and the engagement that the construction shall be final mean that it shall be final if the members of the committee act in good faith, but not otherwise."<sup>9</sup> When persons have the option to present their stock in an old company for exchange for bonds of a new corporation, and no limitation is put by the agreement of time for the exercise of the option, it must be acted upon or abandoned within a reasonable time.<sup>10</sup>

In order to create an effective rescission of a corporate reorganization agreement there must be a lawful right to rescind, due notice of an intention to rescind and the restoration of benefits received by the party attempting to rescind, so that the other party may be placed in statu quo; even if the most complete right of rescission exists it cannot be exercised without a return or offer to return such benefits.<sup>11</sup> No ratification of a modification of a corporate reorganization agreement can be found when "there was no consideration, intent, misleading conduct, change of position or mutual understanding from which a waiver or estoppel could properly be inferred."<sup>12</sup> A corporation cannot escape its liability to an attorney to deliver him

§ 510. Id.: Rights, Powers and Liabilities of Parties: of Bondholders.—When the relations between a bondholder and a reorganization committee of a corporation rest in contract and are defined by the reorganization agreement, his action against it for failure to proceed properly lies in contract and not in tort.<sup>14</sup> Although a reorganization agreement of a corporation contains no express provision for the preparation and adoption of a plan for reorganization at any particular time, nor for the performance of the duties imposed upon the reorganization committee in any categorical order, yet if the very purpose of the agreement and the sequence of its arrangement compel the implication that there was to be no binding agreement until the depositing bondholders had been given the opportunity to decide whether they would abide by the plan adopted by the members of the committee and others or withdraw therefrom, and this decision could not be made until the plan had been prepared, adopted and promulgated, the agreement will be held not binding until such plan has been made, adopted and notice of it given, unless waived.<sup>15</sup> Although there be no express provision in an agreement for the reorganization of a corporation that the reorganization committee prepare a plan and submit it to the bondholders before the corporate property is sold under foreclosure, yet if the construction of the agreement be such that the bondholders cannot withdraw their bonds from participation in the reorganization until after a plan of reorganization had been prepared and notice of it given or breach of duty by the committee, an implied covenant exists that such a plan be submitted before the corporate property was sold.<sup>16</sup> When the plan sent bondholders of a corporation by a reorganization committee provides that, prior to the conveyance of any of the corporation's property purchased by the committee to a new, contemplated company, the committee should submit to those it represented, i. e., the bondholders, "a detailed plan of reorganization," to be binding on all bondholders unless a majority dissent within a stated time, the word "detail" means minor particulars necessary to complete a reorganization, but consistent with the original plan, and lawful and honest, so that nothing in matters of substance may be done under the detailed plan that could not have been done under the original agreement; and the provision binding all bondholders unless dissent were registered by a majority does not embrace anything except details of the plan included in the original agreement.<sup>17</sup>

in full payment for withdrawing specified suits and for help rendered or to be rendered in reorganizing a corporation, subject to ratification of the reorganization committee, is the personal agreement of the signer.<sup>2</sup> A creditor of a corporation may properly secure an accounting in equity from persons who acted as a creditors' committee to reorganize the corporation and transfer its business and assets to a new company, of amounts paid by him to such persons at their request for the purpose of the reorganization; and it is proper for the complaint to make them the sole defendants — though both individually and as a committee — without joining either of the corporations.<sup>3</sup> It seems that allegations of fraud and mismanagement on the part of a corporate reorganization committee, with averments of possession by it of the property of the corporation as a reorganization committee for over a year, warrant the committee's being called to account.<sup>4</sup> In the absence of fraud, acts of a reorganization committee performed under an agreement which bondholders have approved will not be nullified at the instance of a minority of them because the plan followed was unwise and of poor business judgment.<sup>5</sup> A fiduciary relation exists between depositors of claims of various kinds against a corporation and members of a committee vested with its control for purposes of reorganization with which such claims are deposited, and the members of the committee must act in the utmost good faith.<sup>6</sup> Members of a reorganization committee cannot be compelled to distribute stock they hold as such, before the expiration of the time set in the reorganization agreement during which they may hold it in their discretion, unless an abuse of such discretion is shown.<sup>7</sup> In order to avoid a contract by a committee, made pursuant to a corporate reorganization agreement and within the scope of such agreement, on the ground of fraud, the contractors seeking to avoid must show a fraud on the part of the committee or the contractors as distinguished from conduct by the committee which might amount as between them and the bondholders to a violation of their trust duties.<sup>8</sup> When under a railroad reorganization agreement on foreclosure the committee is to issue to the bondholders the stock of a new company formed to operate the road what is meant is the old road or the property bought on foreclosure by the committee, and whether the new road is capitalized at a large or small amount is immaterial so long as each bondholder receives his pro rata share of its stock; so that if the amount of stock provided by the charter of new road to be issued to bondholders of the old was the result of an honest construction by the committee of its powers under the reorganization agreement and under the laws of the state where the corporation was to be created, it would be unjust to hold the committee liable upon some narrow or technical construction of the agreement or the meaning of the law that it was obliged to act under.<sup>9</sup>

§ 512. Id.: Of Old and New Corporation.—The fact that any relief which the courts may grant to remedy a wrong springing from violation of a corporate reorganization agreement will prove of slight value is no reason for not doing what can be done.<sup>10</sup> A corporation issuing bonds, under the terms of a reorganization agreement, to be delivered to creditors to the amount of their claims, has such an interest in an action by a creditor against the reorganization committee to compel delivery of such bonds as to be entitled to be made a party in order to contest the validity of the full amount of the creditor's claim.<sup>11</sup> When a new company is formed to effect the reorganization of an insolvent old one and agrees to assume all the debts, obligations and liabilities of the latter in addition to its bonds, it will be held, in view of the evident object of the reorganization, that the new company assumes the old company's bond as stated in the reorganization agreement, i. e. by issuing new bonds and stock in their place; and not that it agrees to pay off the bondholders of the old company.<sup>12</sup> Proof that the stockholders of an old corporation organized another corporation in another state, turned over the assets of the old company to the new one, managed the new one in the name of and by the same persons who managed the old, carried on the same business in the same place, without any intent to hinder, delay or defraud the creditors of the old company, will not warrant an inference that the new company adopted a contract with the old company which did not call for the rendition of any services for the old company and by virtue of which no services were performed for the new company and no benefits received by it.<sup>13</sup> A corporation formed to succeed another which has been dissolved for the purpose is liable for an indebtedness of the old assumed for it by its president though the assumption was ultra vires, if it has received and retained the benefits of the contract of which such assumption was a part.<sup>14</sup> In seeking to hold a new corporation for a judgment debt against an old, it must be alleged that the new knew of the claim, that there was fraud in the joint reorganization of the new and the dissolution of the old, and that there are facts (which must be given) making the new responsible for the claim against the old; it is not sufficient simply to allege a transfer of all assets of the old to the new corporation after the cause of action on the claim accrued, a sufficiency of assets of the old to pay the claim, the dissolution of the old, the incorporation of the new and issue of its stock to holders of stock in the old, and knowledge by the old's officers of the claim.<sup>15</sup> A new corporation taking over property once held by a receiver of another corporation under a covenant to assume all liabilities incurred by the receiver and to take care of all sums which the receiver ought to pay, is liable for a judgment against such receiver for damages arising from his corporation's negligence recovered while he acted as receiver but finally affirmed on appeal after the transfer of all the original corporation's property to the new corporation.<sup>16</sup> It seems that the general rule is that the liability of a new corporation for the debts of an old one does not result from operation of law, but must follow from the contract relationship based upon the assumption of the debts of the old corporation by the new.<sup>17</sup>

§ 513. Receivers: Definitions and Kinds.—A receiver appointed before final judgment by the court in an action to dissolve or sequester the property of a corporation is a temporary receiver until final judgment is entered.<sup>1</sup> A permanent receiver in an action to dissolve a corporation or to sequester its property is one appointed by or pursuant to a final judgment in the action, or a temporary receiver who is continued by the final judgment.<sup>2</sup>

§ 514. Id.: Appointment, in General.—A reference cannot be made of course upon the consent of the parties in an action against a corporation to obtain the appointment of a receiver of its property, unless it is brought of the Attorney-General; and if the parties consent to a reference the court may in its discretion grant or refuse a reference, and if a reference is granted the court must designate the referee and if the referee refuses to serve or a new trial of the action is granted the court must upon the application of either party appoint another referee.<sup>3</sup> A receiver of a corporation can be appointed only as an incident to some other relief sought and not when such appointment is the whole purpose of the suit.<sup>4</sup> “The theory of the law providing for a temporary receiver is, that until the final judgment is entered in the action declaring the corporation to be insolvent and that its affairs are to be wound up and its assets distributed, the temporary receiver may have to be discharged, and that he should only interfere with the assets pending the litigation just so far as is necessary to preserve them, and that he should not be allowed to sell or dispose of them except from necessity, and then upon application to the court.”<sup>5</sup> An order appointing a temporary receiver of an insolvent corporation may be made before an order to show cause in proceedings for its voluntary dissolution why it should not be dissolved; and the receiver may likewise be authorized to issue temporary certificates.<sup>6</sup> No receiver may be appointed pending and as a proceeding in an action save “on the application of a party who establishes an apparent right to or interest in the property where it is in the possession of an adverse party and there is danger that it will be removed beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or lost, materially injured, or destroyed.”<sup>7</sup> It seems that the Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of a corporation simply upon a bill filed by a creditor-at-large.<sup>8</sup> “The court has no power to appoint a receiver of a corporation upon the filing of a bill by a creditor-at-large, nor until he has a judgment and an execution returned unsatisfied;” but the corporation may waive the fact that the plaintiff has not exhausted his remedy at law.<sup>9</sup> An order entered on a petition for voluntary dissolution of a corporation is not a nullity because in some respects irregular, imperfect and informal; but is effectual to appoint the receiver and may be perfected nunc pro tunc.<sup>10</sup> An order appointing a receiver of a corporation’s assets in proceedings for its voluntary dissolution which in its title shows the character of the proceeding and requires cause to be shown why the prayer of the petition should not be granted complies with the statute that such an order shall require all persons interested to show cause “why the corporation should not be dissolved.”<sup>11</sup> To

—A receiver of the property of a corporation can be appointed only by the court, and only (1) in an action brought against one or more trustees, directors, managers or other officers of a corporation to procure a judgment compelling them to account for their official conduct; or to pay over what they have acquired to themselves or transferred to others or lost or wasted through neglect of their duties; or to suspend from office for abuse of trust; or to remove from office and direct a new election; or to set aside or restrain an alienation of property by them; (2) in an action to procure a judgment sequestering the corporate property and distributing it; (3) in an action to procure a judgment dissolving a corporation and forfeiting its franchises for a year-long period in which it has been insolvent, or in which it has neglected to discharge its evidences of debt, or in which it has suspended its business; or (4) in an action by the Attorney-General to procure a judgment vacating or annulling the act of incorporation or the act renewing or continuing its existence for fraudulent concealment or suggestion of a material fact, or for offense against such an act, or for violation of a law, whereby it has forfeited its charter or become liable to dissolution by abuse of its powers, or has forfeited its franchises by failure to exercise its powers, or has done or omitted any act amounting to a surrender of its franchises, or has exercised a franchise not conferred upon it by law; (5) in an action brought for the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the property, of which the receiver is appointed, when the mortgage debt or the interest upon it has remained unpaid at least thirty days after it was payable and after payment thereof was duly demanded of the proper officer of the corporation, and when either the income of the property is specially mortgaged or the property itself is probably insufficient to pay the mortgaged debt; (6) in an action brought by the Attorney-General or by a stockholder to preserve the assets of a corporation

A receiver of the property of a domestic corporation cannot be appointed in proceedings supplementary to execution, because the policy of this State favors a pro rata distribution of the assets of an insolvent domestic corporation and not a receivership for the benefit of a specific creditor.<sup>2</sup>

If the charter of a domestic corporation is forfeited on proceedings taken by the State Commissioner of Health, on the ground that it conducts its business without New York State so as to make it a nuisance to a considerable number of people within New York State, the Attorney-General must forthwith apply to the Supreme Court for the appointment of a receiver of its property, who has all the powers and duties, so far as practicable, prescribed by articles ten-a and eleven of the General Corporation Law.<sup>3</sup>

Id.: On Sequestration and Dissolution.—In an action for sequestration of a corporation's property or for its dissolution the court may at any stage appoint one or more receivers of its property.<sup>5</sup> "It has long been the settled law of this state that the jurisdiction of Chancery does not extend to the sequestration of the property of a corporation by means of a receiver (citations). It follows that the authority of the court in this proceeding must be found in the statute and not in its general equitable powers."<sup>6</sup> When a judgment creditor's execution against a corporation has been returned unsatisfied and he then, by later action for sequestration of its property has receivers appointed, if the court opens up the original judgment and allows the defendant to appear and serve an answer, it must also at its request, vacate the appointment of the temporary receivers, because sequestration can only be had on final judgment, and such no longer existed after the court allowed the defendant to appear and answer.<sup>7</sup> In an action for sequestration of a corporation's property and appointment of a receiver the corporation will not be permitted to delay matters by interposing an answer alleging it has no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the entry of a judgment and the issue thereon of execution returned unsatisfied alleged in the complaint or alleging the commencement of dissolution proceedings not concluded; as such an answer will be stricken out on motion as frivolous.<sup>8</sup> In an action for sequestration and distribution of the property of a domestic corporation and the appointment of a receiver, not brought by the Attorney-General, an order of reference and the report of the referee must be set aside on motion of the corporation's attorney, even though not made till after notice of motion for judgment on the report has been served.<sup>9</sup> An order appointing a temporary receiver in an action for sequestration of the property of a domestic corporation should not be made on a complaint alone, unsupported by any affidavit or other evidence.<sup>10</sup> A receiver of a domestic corporation will not be appointed in an action to sequester its

§ 521. Id.: Effect of Appointment.—The appointment of a common-law receiver, not of a corporation but of its property, does not take title to the property from the corporation or the right to recover any indebtedness due it; so that the right to maintain proceedings supplementary to execution and to examine a third party still remains in the judgment creditor of the corporation.<sup>11</sup> “It is obvious that every lien upon the property of a corporation resting upon valid agreement or process before the appointment of a receiver, the lienor being lawfully in possession, must be preserved with the right of enforcement, unless courts and legislatures are to override the vested rights of creditors.”<sup>12</sup> An agreement under which one owning the majority stock in a corporation sold so much thereof to the minority stockholders as to make them majority stockholders, upon condition that he be paid a stated salary for a certain number of years, as vice-president or consulting engineer of the corporation, binds the individuals signing it to an employment of such one for the stated time and salary, and is not terminated on the appointment of a receiver for the corporation in an action by them against it alleging its insolvency.<sup>13</sup> The appointment of a receiver for a corporation and an injunction against it from exercising its franchises do not relieve its stockholders from their liability to suit for its judgment debts on which execution has been returned unsatisfied.<sup>14</sup> A Federal Court which has appointed receivers of the property of a State corporation on motion of a general creditor should direct them to turn over such property to the receivers of the same corporation later appointed by the State Court in dissolution proceedings instigated by the Attorney-General.<sup>15</sup> One injured through alleged fraudulent diversion of assets of a corporation by others while acting as its officers is not precluded from himself suing them by the appointment of a receiver, unless he be a permanent receiver.<sup>16</sup> A judgment creditor of a corporation

A receiver appointed in a proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation takes title to its property on the mere making of the order appointing him, even though he does not take possession; so that an attachment thereof by creditors cannot be made against such property after such order without leave of court in spite of the fact that the dissolving company had no true title thereto as against such creditors.<sup>4</sup> A final judgment dissolving a corporation at the instance of the Attorney-General, adjudging it insolvent and its capital stock impaired, relates back to the date when the temporary receiver was appointed and took possession of its assets.<sup>5</sup> The title of receivers of a corporation does not relate back to the time at which the order appointing them was signed by a judge as a court order, as distinguished from the time it was entered, so as to defeat intervening rights of a creditor of the corporation actually acquired before the perfection of the order by entry.<sup>6</sup>

§ 522. Id.: Qualification.—All receivers appointed in sequestration or dissolution proceedings must take and subscribe an oath before proceeding to the discharge of any of their duties, which must be that they will well and truly execute the trust by their appointment reposed in them, according to the best of their skill and understanding, and which must be filed with the officer or court that appointed them.<sup>7</sup> Before entering upon the duties of their appointment such receivers must give such security to the People of the State, and in such penalty, as the court directs, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of their appointment and for the due accounting for all moneys received by them.<sup>8</sup> A receiver appointed in an action or special proceeding must before entering upon his duties execute and file with the proper clerk a bond to the People with at least two sufficient sureties in a penalty fixed by the court, judge or referee making the appointment, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver; and the execution of any such bond by any fidelity or surety company authorized by the laws of New York State to transact business is equivalent to the execution of such bond by two sureties; but if special provision is made by law for the security to be given by a receiver in any particular case or for increasing such security, such special provision prevails over the general requirement just stated.<sup>9</sup> The court, or the judge making the order if it was made out of court, by or pursuant to which the receiver was appointed, or his successor in office, may at any time remove the receiver or direct him to give a new bond with new sureties with the condition that he will faithfully discharge his duties as receiver; but if special provision is made by law for the security to be given by a receiver or for increasing it or for removing him, in any particular case, such special provision prevails over the general rule just stated.<sup>10</sup> A temporary receiver appointed of the property of a corporation on dissolution or on sequestration of its property must qualify as prescribed by law for the qualification of a permanent receiver.<sup>11</sup> A permanent receiver appointed by or pursuant

Id.: When Appointed on Application of Attorney-General.—In all cases in which receivers are appointed for any domestic corporation on application by the Attorney-General, all property, real and personal, and all securities of any kind and nature belonging to such corporation, no matter where located or by whom held, must be transferred to, vested in and held by such receivers, if and when directed by order of the Supreme Court on due notice of application for the order given to the Attorney-General and the custodian of the funds, securities or property.<sup>20</sup>

It is essential to the complete and proper administration of the system established by the statute, that all questions respecting the claims of creditors upon the fund in the hands of the receiver; and its distribution, and the accounting by the receiver should be determined upon an application to the court in the action in which the receiver is appointed. Each creditor has the right to be heard in respect to his own demand, and to contest the demands of others."<sup>5</sup> A receiver appointed of a corporation in proceedings to dissolve it is not required to pay a creditor the sum received by the corporation on disposing of goods delivered to it by such creditor under an agreement that it was to pay out of the proceeds of such goods but with the option to it to buy such goods itself, if it was liable under such agreement to pay for such goods whether it sold such goods or bought them itself and if it mixed the proceeds in with all its other moneys.<sup>6</sup> A receiver of a corporation appointed in proceedings for its dissolution may not enforce any action against its directors which is vested by law in its creditors or stockholders as such, but only a cause of action that had vested in the corporation.<sup>7</sup>

A receiver of a corporation appointed on foreclosure of a mortgage of all its property has placed in his possession all the corporate property and is authorized to operate the business of the company, protect his title, defend all suits against the mortgager-corporation, etc.; but he does not represent the corporation or supersede it in the exercise of his powers otherwise, as the corporation still exists and acts for itself except as to the mortgaged property; so that the receiver is not a proper party to an action against the corporation to recover for a trespass committed by it before the receiver's appointment.<sup>19</sup> A court of equity has jurisdiction, when it has possession through its receiver in a foreclosure action of the property of a railroad company, to authorize the creation of debts for rolling stock and other purposes, if in its opinion it is necessary so to do to secure the continued and successful operation of the road; and to charge the debts so created as a first lien on the mortgaged property.<sup>20</sup>

It is equally well settled that if a receiver, although authorized by the court to contract as such, assumes to contract in his individual capacity, although for the benefit of his trust, or if he assumes to contract as receiver without authority so to do, he will be held personally liable. . . . Such want of authority may arise because of the omission from the order or decree of the court of language suitable to confer the same, or because the

§ 534. Id.: Recovery of Assets and Penalties.—Actions by and against receivers are treated generally in the five hundred and sixtieth, sixty-first and sixty-second sections of this book. In all cases in which receivers are appointed for any domestic corporation on application of the Attorney-General, all property, real and personal, and all securities of any kind and nature belonging to such corporation, no matter where located or by whom held, must be transferred to, vested in and held by such receivers, if and when directed by order of the Supreme Court on due notice of application for the order given to the Attorney-General and the custodian of the funds, securities or property.<sup>7</sup>

Receivers for sequestration and dissolution have power: (1) to sue in their own names or otherwise and recover all the property, debts and things in action belonging or due or to become due to such corporation, whether accruing or maturing before or after the dissolution thereof, and whether vested or contingent at the time of such dissolution, in the same manner and with the like effect as such corporation might or

A receiver in an action to sequester and distribute the property of a judgment-debtor corporation, or to dissolve it and forfeit its corporate rights, privileges and franchises, or in a proceeding to dissolve it, or in an action by the Attorney-General to vacate or annul the corporation or its charter or any act renewing the corporation or continuing its corporate existence, or in an action to preserve the corporation's assets, appointed and qualified either before, upon, or after final judgment in the action or special proceeding in which such appointment was made, is entitled to a court order to help him to recover assets of the corporation.<sup>12</sup> The receiver must show (1) by his own verified petition, affidavit or other competent proof (2) to the Supreme Court at a special term thereof held within the judicial district wherein such appointment was made that he has good reason to believe (a) that any officer, stockholder, agent or employee of such corporation, or any other person whomsoever, has embezzled or concealed or withholds or has in his possession or under his control, or has wrongfully disposed of any property of such corporation

All penalties which are recovered by any receivers pursuant to the eleventh article of the General Corporation Law are deemed part of the property of the corporation and must be distributed as such among its creditors.<sup>1</sup>

A receiver permanently appointed for a corporation after judgment for its dissolution is not entitled to property generally assigned by it to an assignee while insolvent, without preferences and before the receiver was appointed.<sup>2</sup>

§ 535. Id.: Appraisal of Property.—Whenever it becomes necessary by reason of the provisions of any law of New York State to appraise in whole or in part the property of any corporation in the hands of a receiver or otherwise, the persons whose duty it is to make such appraisal must value the real estate at its full and true value, taking into consideration actual sales of neighboring real estate similarly situated during the year immediately preceding the date of such appraisal, if any; and must value all such property, stocks, bonds or securities as are customarily bought or sold in the open markets in the City of New York or elsewhere for the day on which such appraisal or report may be required by ascertain-

§ 536. Id.: Holding Real Property in Trust.—A receiver appointed by or pursuant to an order or a judgment in an action in (a) the Supreme Court or (b) a County Court, or (c) in a special proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation may take and hold real property upon such trusts and for such purposes as the court directs, subject to the direction of the court from time to time respecting the disposition thereof.<sup>4</sup>

§ 537. Id.: As to Selling and Converting Property.—The receivers appointed for sequestration, dissolution, annulment, foreclosure or preservation of assets must convert the property of the corporation, real and personal, into money as speedily as possible.<sup>5</sup> Receivers on sequestration or dissolution have power to sell at public auction from time to time all the property, real and personal, vested in them which comes into their hands, after giving at least fourteen days' public notice of the time and place of sale, and after also publishing the same for two weeks in a newspaper, if any, printed in the county where the sale is to be made; and to allow such credit on the sale of real property by them as they deem reasonable for not more than three-fourths of the purchase money, which credit must be secured by a bond of the purchaser and a mortgage on the property sold; and on such sales to execute the necessary conveyances and bills of sale; and to redeem all mortgages and conditional contracts and all pledges of personal property, and to satisfy any judgments, which may be an incumbrance on any property so sold by them; or to sell such property subject to such mortgages, contracts, pledges or judgments.<sup>6</sup> A receiver duly appointed in New York State by and pursuant to (1) a judgment in an action or (2) an order in a special proceeding may be authorized by the court by which such judgment was rendered or order made to sell or convey the property, whether real or personal, of the corporation of which he is the receiver at private sale and upon such terms and conditions as the court may direct (a) upon application to such court and (b) upon notice to such parties as may be entitled to notice of applications made in such action or special proceeding.<sup>7</sup> An order allowing sale by a receiver to a corporation of assets for various considerations, one of which was the release from personal liability of the individuals who formed and backed such corporation and became its directors so that it might make the purchase, will not be modified so as to prevent such release.<sup>8</sup> While a receiver who takes property belonging to a third person in the belief that it belongs to a trust is nevertheless liable for conversion, without permission from the court to sue him, yet, if upon his accounting as temporary receiver such third party makes himself a party and demands such property and the court orders such property to be retained by the permanent receiver, the latter is protected from attack without the court's permission.<sup>9</sup> The court will not, in a proceeding for voluntary dissolution of a corporation, give temporary receivers appointed by it leave to sell all the corporate property upon facts shown only in affidavits, but will wait till the hearing provided by statute has been had before the court or referee.<sup>10</sup> Receivers appointed of a corporation in proceedings for its voluntary dissolution may give good title to its property by sale under order of the court of which notice was given the creditors and stockholders but not the Attorney-General if the latter was notified on the confirmation of the sale and did not object, even though the creditors and stockholders received no notice of the confirmation.<sup>11</sup> Assuming that a trust of corporations would not be entitled to the proceeds of a contract by one of its constituents because the trust is illegal and void, yet the trust's receiver is entitled to such proceeds; because, whether the proceeds belong to the trust or the constituent, he "unites in himself the right of the trust combination, and also the right of creditors."<sup>12</sup>

§ 538. Id.: As to Debts and Credits.—Payment of claims of creditors of a corporation and distribution of its assets by receivers are considered in the five hundred and fiftieth section and following sections of this work. The notice which receivers are required by statute to publish of their appointment must require: (1) All persons indebted to the corporation, by a day and at a place specified in the notice, to render an account of all debts and sums of money owing by them respectively, to such receivers, and to pay the same; (2) all persons having in their possession any property or effects of such corporation to deliver the same to such receivers by the day so appointed; (3) all the creditors of such corporation to deliver their respective accounts and demands to the receivers or one of them by a day specified in such notice which must be not less than forty days from the first publication of such notice; and (4) all persons holding any open or subsisting contract of the corporation to present the same in writing and in detail to such receivers at the time and place specified in such notice.<sup>13</sup> Every person having possession of any property belonging to a corporation as to which a receiver is had on sequestration, dissolution, annulment, foreclosure, or preservation of assets, and every person indebted to it must, after the first publication of the notice of the appointment of receivers, account and answer for the amount of such debt and for the value of such property to such receivers.<sup>14</sup> Every person indebted to the corporation or having the possession or custody of any property or thing in action belonging to it who conceals the same and does not deliver either a just and true account of such indebtedness or such property or thing in action to the receivers or one of them by the day for that purpose appointed in the notice of their appointment forfeits double the amount of such debt or double the value of such property so concealed — and such penalties may be recovered by the receivers.<sup>15</sup>

Receivers for sequestration or dissolution have power (5) to settle all matters and accounts between such corporation and its debtors or creditors, and to examine any person touching such matters and accounts on oath, to be administered by either of them.<sup>16</sup> Such receivers have power (6) to compound, under the order of the court appointing them, with any person indebted to such corporation, and thereupon to discharge all demands against such person.<sup>17</sup> Receivers for sequestration, dissolution, annulment, foreclosure or preservation of assets may settle controversies arising between them and any other person in regard to any demands against the corporation or debts due to it in two ways: (1) They may be referred

The receivers may cancel and discharge any open and subsisting engagements or contracts of such corporation which are in the nature of insurances or contingent engagements of any kind, with the consent of the party holding such engagement, by refunding to such party the premium or consideration paid thereon by such corporation or so much thereof as is in the same proportion to the time remaining of any risk assumed by such engagement as the whole premium bore to the whole term of such risk; and upon such amount being paid by such receivers to the person holding or being the legal owner of such engagement it must be deemed canceled and discharged as against such receivers.<sup>5</sup> The receivers must retain out of the moneys in their hands a sufficient amount to pay the sums which they are authorized to pay for the purpose of canceling and discharging any open or subsisting engagements.<sup>6</sup>

The receivers may retain from moneys in their hands the proportion which would belong to any demand, if established, on which any suit is pending against the corporation or themselves, together with the necessary costs and proceedings, to be applied according to the event of such suit, or to be distributed in a second or other dividend.<sup>7</sup> Every person to whom a corporation is indebted on a valuable consideration for any sum of money not due at the time of such distribution but payable afterwards must receive his proportion with other creditors after deducting a rebate of legal interest upon the sum distributed for the time unexpired of such credit.<sup>8</sup>

The receivers may set off credits or debts when mutual credit has been given by any corporation and any other person or mutual debts have subsisted between such corporation and any other person, and may pay the proportion or receive the balance due; but no set off can be allowed of any claim or debt which would not have been entitled to a dividend as provided by statute; and no set off must be allowed by such receivers of any claim or debt which has been purchased by or

The receivers must call a general meeting of the creditors of such corporation (1) within four months from the time of their appointment, (2) by a notice specifying (a) the place and (b) the time of such meeting (not more than three months nor less than two months after the first publication of such notice), (3) by publishing such notice at least once in each week for three weeks until the time of such meeting in a newspaper printed in the county where the principal place of conducting the business of such corporation has been situated.<sup>10</sup> At such creditors' meeting, or other adjourned meeting, thereafter, all accounts and demands for and against such corporation and all its open and subsisting contracts must be ascertained and adjusted as far as may be, and the amount of moneys in the hands of the receivers declared.<sup>11</sup>

"The statute authorizing proceedings for the voluntary dissolution of corporations prescribes a method for ascertaining the claims of creditors and for a reference in case claims are disputed. But this method is not . . . exclusive. The court may, nevertheless, when in its judgment it is proper so to do, authorize an action to be brought against the receiver who disputes the validity of a claim, so that the matter may be more deliberately examined and determined than in the summary method authorized by the statute. But whether the validity of a claim is ascertained by a summary reference or by action, the purpose of each proceeding is the same, to procure an adjudication for the guidance of the receiver in administering the estate of the corporation."<sup>12</sup> The Attorney-General must be given notice of an application for an order of reference of a claim presented to and rejected by a receiver of a corporation appointed in an action for its dissolution.<sup>13</sup>

General to apply for an order that the receiver show cause why an accounting and distribution should not be had after the expiration of eighteen months from the time the receiver enters upon his duties if the receiver has not applied for a final settlement of his accounts; and notice of such application must be given the receiver.

The Attorney-General may, at any time he deems that the interests of the stockholders, creditors, policy-holders, depositors or other beneficiaries interested in the proper and speedy distribution of the assets of any insolvent corporation will be subserved thereby, make a motion in the Supreme Court, at a special term thereof, in any judicial district, to compel him to account, or for such other additional order or orders as to him may seem proper to facilitate the closing up of the affairs of such receivership.<sup>5</sup> Any appeal from any order made upon any motion under such statute must be made to the Appellate Division of the department in which such motion is made.<sup>6</sup> In case of such application by a party other than the receiver the court must direct the receiver to take steps to account with all convenient speed.<sup>7</sup> The receiver is not required or authorized to file any account except as provided by statute unless by special order of the court.<sup>8</sup> The receivers, previous to rendering their account, must insert a notice of their intention to present it in a newspaper of the county in which notices of dividends are by statute required to be inserted, once in each week for three weeks, specifying the time and place at which such account will be rendered.<sup>9</sup> The receivers must give notice to the sureties on their official bonds of their intention to render their account, not less than eight days before the day set for the hearing of such accounting.<sup>10</sup> A receiver who has executed and filed a bond must before presenting his accounts as receiver give notice to the surety or sureties on his official bond of his intention to present his accounts not less than eight days before the day set for the hearing on such accounting, and the same notice must be given when the accounting is ordered on the petition of a person or persons other than the receiver; and in no case can the receiver's accounts be passed, settled or allowed unless such notice has first been given to the surety or sureties on the receiver's official bond.<sup>11</sup> Upon the coming in of the receivers' report the court must hear the allegations of all concerned therein and allow or disallow the account; and decree it to be final and conclusive upon all the creditors of the corporation, upon all persons who have claims against it, upon any open or subsisting engagement, and upon all the stockholders of the corporation.<sup>12</sup> The referee to whom the account is referred must hear and examine the proofs, vouchers and documents offered for or against the account and report thereon fully to the court.<sup>13</sup> The receivers must also account from time to time in the same manner and with the like effect for all moneys which shall come to their hands after the rendering of such account, and for all moneys which have been retained by them for any of the purposes specified in the statute and must also pay into court all unclaimed dividends.<sup>14</sup> The discretion of a court summarily to grant a petition to compel a receiver to pay over money may properly be exercised when the facts are simple or only legal questions are involved while conflicting claims of third parties are not in issue; but when the contest involves an issue of fraud ordinarily triable by jury, the better practice is for the court to decline jurisdiction.<sup>15</sup> An accounting in a proceeding for voluntary dissolution of a corporation by one appointed temporary receiver, of which the Attorney-General alone receives notice, is not binding upon the creditors of the corporation, who are notified of the accounting of the permanent receiver, if the permanent and temporary receiver be the same person.<sup>16</sup> Decrees settling accounts of receivers of a corporation in other jurisdictions, if valid, protect them in this jurisdiction and halt any investigation in transactions validated thereby.<sup>17</sup> "It accords with the long-established practice of the court to subject the accounts of receivers to the scrutiny of a referee before passing upon them, when . . . large sums have to be accounted for."<sup>18</sup> When objections have been filed by a judgment

§ 542. Id.: Compensation and Expenses, in General.—The receivers for sequestration, dissolution, annulment, foreclosure or preservation of assets may first deduct all the necessary disbursements made by them in the discharge of their duty, together with such commissions as may be allowed by law, out of the moneys in their hands.<sup>20</sup> On an application by a corporation to be allowed to resume business in which all parties are before the court it is proper for the court, without any independent proceeding, to fix the compensation of the temporary receivers who have been in charge of the corporation and whose accounts are before the court, as well as of their counsel; and if the amounts allowed below and not objected to by anyone are excessive, the appellate court should reduce them.<sup>1</sup>

§ 543. Id.: Expenses.—“ The jurisdiction of the court to appoint receivers of property has for its primary object the care and custody of the property which is the subject of the receivership, pending the determination of the questions involved in the litigation, and to enable the court, by placing the property under the control of its officer, to preserve it to answer the final decree which may be made in the action. But the receiver cannot of his own motion contract debts chargeable upon the fund in litigation. The court must authorize expenditures on account of the property before they can be charged thereon; and while it may, and does in its discretion, allow expenses incurred by a receiver strictly for preservation to be charged upon the fund, although incurred without the prior sanction of the court, it is, nevertheless, the order of the court and not the act of the receiver which creates the charge and upon which its validity depends.”<sup>2</sup>

Expenses of dissolution proceedings by a corporation, consisting of printing, advertising, attorneys' fees, referee's and stenographers' fees and disbursements, are properly payable out of the funds in the hands of the receiver before all other liens.<sup>3</sup> A receiver may incur expenses for the preservation of the property of the corporation for which he is appointed, but whether he should absolutely be held individually liable for such expenses as he contracts without court authority on his individual liability should be determined as a question of fact on the circumstances of each case, is a moot point.<sup>4</sup> A receiver of a corporation defending an action instituted against it before his appointment will be required to pay, from the funds in his hands as such, the costs of the action, if his answer was a general denial of allegations of the complaint proven on the trial from entries in the corporate books produced by him on subpoena, and copies of which were annexed to the complaint.<sup>5</sup> If a receiver appointed in proceedings for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation completes without any objection a contract by it which it had assigned to another concern, he can charge the expense to such assignee.<sup>6</sup>

The court will not allow counsel fees incurred in attempting to repel an appointment of a receiver for the corporation-client if the client knew it was insolvent and acted in bad faith, however good may have been the faith and however ignorant the mind of the counsel.<sup>7</sup> An order for payment of fees to counsel of a corporate receiver, made upon the latter's petition is valid; but such an order on the petition of the counsel himself, he himself appearing also as attorney for the receiver, may be assailed collaterally by anyone affected by it, especially if the counsel is the receiver's law partner.<sup>8</sup>

§ 545. § 548. Id.: In General.—A continuing corporate receiver is entitled to commissions as to the fund which had been collected or received by the late receiver, his predecessor, for paying it out only, and not for receiving it.<sup>15</sup> A referee in a proceeding to fix the compensation of a removed receiver of a corporation cannot have an order that the new receiver pay the compensation.<sup>16</sup> The statutory provision entitling a receiver to such commissions not exceeding five per cent as the court by which he is appointed allows does not prohibit the General Term from reviewing the discretion of the Special Term in regard to the amount allowed.<sup>17</sup> “Receivers are supposed to earn the compensation provided for them by law, and their commissions are for services rendered, and it is not to be presumed, in the absence of a clear intention expressed in the statute, that the legislature meant [by enacting a new law affecting receivers’ compensation] to interfere with compensation that had already been earned.”<sup>18</sup> It cannot be said as matter of law that receivers are entitled to no compensation because the order appointing them has been vacated.<sup>19</sup> A receiver appointed because of disagreements as to the management of a corporation’s affairs cannot receive commissions allowed by a statute for moneys received and paid out

Knowledge is imputed to all who deal with it that when it suspends business the law takes charge of its affairs, liquidates its debts, converts its assets and distributes the proceeds among its creditors. Those who contract with it do so ‘with the knowledge of the statutory conditions, and these must be deemed to have permeated the agreement and constituted elements of the obligation’ (citations). The process of administration provided by law is through a receiver, as the executive arm of the court. He is appointed for the benefit of all the creditors, both preferred and unpreferred, and holds the assets under the direction of the court, in trust primarily for them and finally for the corporation or its stockholders. Thereupon by operation of law the creditors become the equitable owners of the assets and the administration of affairs is for their benefit as such. The claims of creditors against the defunct corporation differ from their claims against its assets in sequestration, for they are not proved against the insolvent and dissolved nonentity, but against the fund in the receiver’s hands. In the distribution of that fund the general rule applicable to insolvent estates, that equality is equity, should prevail so far as the statute, when reasonably construed, will permit.”<sup>17</sup> The general assets of a corporation are to be administered at the home of the corporation in case of its insolvency for the benefit of all creditors wherever residing and the courts of one state have no right to favor domestic creditors on distribution; and

When a corporation gave for sums due its laborers orders on itself payable to the order of merchants which were delivered by the laborers to the payees for goods purchased, this amounted to a payment of the laborers' wages, so that on appointment of a receiver for the corporation there is no preference of such wages to be taken advantage of by anyone.<sup>12</sup>

The distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation involves the payment of taxes before creditors.<sup>13</sup> When a receiver appointed in proceedings for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation is directed by the court to take possession of two classes of its property, first, that on which the sheriff had levied under attachment by some of its creditors, and, second, that on which no attachment or levy had been made, on sale of both classes by the receiver, he must pay from the proceeds, first the administration expenses and his fees, second the claims of the attaching creditors, third, taxes due municipal and state authorities, and fourth, the general creditors.<sup>14</sup> Claimants against a corporation, who had recovered judgment against it after the appointment of a receiver for it in an action by a stockholder because of its insolvency, but where action was begun before the stockholder's proceeding was instituted, cannot have a preference on the grounds that at the time of their recovery the company owned realty on which their judgment was a lien and that the appointment of the receiver was void, if the company was represented on the appointment, as, in whatever action he was designated, the receiver was the court in holding the property, and it will be considered held for the benefit of all creditors.<sup>15</sup> "An officer of a corporation, with knowledge of its insolvency, cannot by a bookkeeping entry appropriate property of the corporation to pay a debt due to him."<sup>16</sup> A lawyer whose claim against a temporary receiver of a corporation for services rendered him is by agreement between them and its directors made a lien upon its then assets which were about to be turned over to it and the receiver discharged, may recover on the basis of an equitable lien, in preference to

§ 554. Id.: Who Are Laborers, and Employees.—Upon the appointment of a receiver of a corporation (other than a moneyed corporation) organized under the laws of and doing business in New York State, the wages of its employees—defined by statute to be mechanics, workmen or laborers who work for another for hire—are preferred to every other debt or claim.<sup>1</sup> When a corporation refuses to pay its notes or other obligations when due or is insolvent or its insolvency is imminent, however invalid other preferences may be, yet laborers' wages for services are preferred claims and are entitled to payment before any other creditors out of the corporation assets in excess of valid prior liens or incumbrances.<sup>2</sup> Wages earned by laborers prior to the passage of an act preferring them in payment on the appointment of a receiver for their corporate employer are not entitled to a preference.<sup>3</sup> The important word in the statute preferring to other claims against a corporation for which a receiver has been appointed the wages of the employees, operatives and laborers thereof is the word “wages,” which “is applied in common

To employ is to engage or use another as an agent or substitute in transacting business, or the performance of some service; it may be skilled labor or the service of the scientist or professional man as well as servile or unskilled manual labor."<sup>6</sup> The word "employee" is of "more comprehensive signification than laborers and operatives;" and if not used in a statute to be strictly construed should be given a liberal interpretation.<sup>7</sup> A bookkeeper is an "employee" to be paid his wages as a preferred claim by a receiver of an insolvent corporation.<sup>8</sup>

§ 560. Id.: Court Proceedings, In General.—An action for the determination of a claim to real property may be maintained as prescribed by statute by or against the receiver or other successor to any corporation.<sup>5</sup> All actions or other legal proceedings, and appeals therefrom or therein, brought by or against a receiver of any insolvent corporation referred to in the statute have a preference upon the calendars of all courts next in order to actions or proceedings brought by the People of the State of New York.<sup>6</sup> A receiver of a corporation who has been directed by the court to make a final accounting as such receiver by a certain date should be granted a preference in the trial of an action being brought by him if its final disposition before such accounting is necessary, even though if the plaintiff were a private individual the preference would be denied him because of laches in failing promptly to commence the action and notice the case for trial.<sup>7</sup> A receiver of a corporation appointed by the court in proceedings to dissolve it "represents the corporation, its creditors, and its stockholders (citation), and, hence, the receiver's appearance in all matters relating to the liquidation of the corporate affairs must be deemed an appearance for all concerned, except when there is a conflict between the receiver and those interested, in which event, of course, they appear for themselves."<sup>8</sup> At common law, a judgment obtained against a corporation after its dissolution, though begun before such dissolution, is not binding on a receiver appointed after the action was begun.<sup>9</sup> A receiver of a corporation appointed by order which vested in him the corporate assets may move to vacate a judgment entered against it in an action begun by service of process on one who was not its officer when served.<sup>10</sup> A receiver who is also party as trustee to the same proceeding in which he acts as receiver cannot appeal as receiver from an order made while he was

The duty of tax assessment boards to report exempt property is prescribed by statute, hereinafter quoted.<sup>3</sup> Every domestic stock corporation must pay an organization tax to the State on its incorporation or on changing its capital or character of its stock or consolidating.<sup>4</sup> Every domestic stock corporation must pay a real property tax on its real property.<sup>5</sup> Every domestic stock mercantile or manufacturing corporation must pay an income tax to the State for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchise,<sup>6</sup> while every other domestic stock corporation, instead of such income tax, must pay the State a personal property,<sup>7</sup> or a capital stock tax<sup>8</sup> and a franchise tax.<sup>9</sup> In addition, the corporation may have to pay United States income or other taxes. Both the State and the United States impose a tax on transfers of its shares of stock. The State also imposes a mortgage tax. All these taxes are perennial except the organization, stock transfer and mortgage taxes. Manufacturing and mercantile domestic corporations pay an income tax for the privilege of exercising their corporate franchises in New York, and by so doing are relieved (1) from being assessed on any personal property, (2) from being assessed or taxed upon their capital stock, and (3) from paying the franchise tax, or making a capital stock or franchise tax report.<sup>10</sup> Corporations wholly engaged in the purchase, sale and holding of real estate for themselves; holding corporations whose principal income is derived from holding the stocks and bonds of other corporations; corporations formed for steam surface railroad, canal, steamboat, ferry, express, navigation, pipe-line, transfer, baggage-express, telegraph, telephone, palace car or sleeping car purposes; corporations owning or operating elevated railroads or surface railroads not operated by steam; corporations formed for supplying water or gas or for electric or steam heating, lighting or power purposes; insurance corporations; trust companies; savings banks; and banks, title guaranty, insurance or surety companies, are, generally speaking, exempt from the State income tax.<sup>12</sup> Other domestic corporations than manufacturing or mercantile ones, instead of an income tax, pay a franchise tax;<sup>13</sup> and a personal property<sup>14</sup> or capital-stock tax.<sup>15</sup> "The system of taxation in this State is so complicated as to involve mistakes on the part of those who are called upon to enforce the law. In some instances the tax is laid upon property and in others upon rights and privileges connected with property. . . . There is, first, an organization tax, payable to the State, which is imposed but once and is exacted for the privilege of becoming a corporation (statute). Next, there is a tax upon the real estate owned by the corporation in this State, which is assessed the same as if it were owned by an individual (statute). The personal property of the corporation is not directly taxed, but its capital stock and surplus, after deducting the assessed value of its real estate and making some other deductions, is assessed at its actual value (statute). Finally, there is a franchise tax on corporations which is payable annually to the State, 'computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock employed within this State' (statute). This is not a tax upon property, although it is measured by the value of property, but upon the right of a corporation to exist and exercise the powers granted by its charter. These forms of taxation do not all rest upon the same principle. The organization tax is in the nature of a license fee for the right to become a corporation. The tax upon real estate is a direct tax upon real property, and the tax upon capital stock is an indirect tax upon personal property, while the franchise tax is not laid upon property at all, but is imposed upon the corporation for the privilege of carrying on business in this State and exercising the corporate franchises granted by the State."<sup>16</sup> "If we examine the scheme of the Tax Law we shall discover that it recognizes two characters of franchises which are to be taxed upon different theories: There is the franchise to be a corporation . . . and then there is the franchise to do the business . . . ."<sup>17</sup>

The statute was not aimed at and did not contemplate the exercise by a corporation of powers ultra vires. If a manufacturing corporation is engaged in business outside of its corporate powers, in connection with its manufacturing business, it does not cease to be 'wholly engaged' in the business of manufacture; that is to say, its only legal and authorized business was that of manufacture. Id.: What Are Manufacturing Corporations.—The term “manufacturing corporation,” as used in the statute, is not defined thereby.<sup>19</sup> The decisions now given were rendered under other statutes than the one prescribing the income-franchise tax, and should be considered with this in mind. They are given to aid the reader in deciding what are to be considered manufacturing corporations under the State Income Tax Law by referring him to the decisions of the courts as to what were to be considered manufacturing corporations under former statutes affecting that class of companies. A corporation must be held a manufacturing corporation within the meaning of a statute excepting such from taxation on their capital stock if it is such within the meaning of the words “manufacturing corporation” in its usual and ordinary sense, whatever the law may be under which the corporation is organized and by whatever general name, so long as its chief and principal business is the manufacture and sale of artificial products.<sup>20</sup> “According to Webster a manufacturer is one who works raw materials into wares suitable for use. bonds, notes, credits or evidences of an interest in property and evidences of debt. The 1918 amendment of Tax Law, § 208, omitted such third and fourth subdivisions.

§ 574. Id.: What Are Mercantile Corporations.—The term “mercantile corporation,” as used in the statute imposing a tax on the income of a mercantile corporation, is not defined by the statute.<sup>19</sup>

§ 575. Id.: How to Ascertain Net Income to Be Taxed.—Whether the tax is on the corporation’s entire net income or only upon a proportion thereof depends upon whether or not the entire business of the corporation be transacted within New York State: if it is, the tax is based upon the entire net income of such corporation as returned to the United States treasury department for such fiscal or calendar year; if it is not, the tax is based upon a proportion only of the net income.<sup>20</sup> To determine such proportion add together (1) the average monthly actual value where located of the real property and the tangible personal property, such as machinery tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise (not money, deposits in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits or evidences of an interest in property and evidences of debt) within New York State; (2) the average monthly value of bills and accounts receivable for (a) personal property sold by the corporation from merchandise manufactured by it within New York State, (b) personal property sold by the corporation from merchandise owned by it and located within New York State at the time of the acceptance of the order, but not manufactured by it within New York State, and (c) services performed within the State, excluding bills and ing the corporation’s franchise tax; though it must be considered, for such purpose, as capital of the corporation, in spite of the fact that it employs its whole capital stock in its business and has a large surplus in which it would seem that such land, not being used in its business, should logically be included. *People ex rel. The 1917 Law (Tax L. § 208, subds. 2, 3, L. 1917, c. 726), did define a mercantile corporation as one principally engaged in the business of buying or selling tangible personal property for itself or for others, and it also defined “tangible personal property” as corporeal personal property, such as machinery, tools, implements, goods, wares and merchandise not including money, deposits in bank, shares of stock, bonds, notes, credits or evidences of an interest in property and evidences of debt.

§ 577. Id.: Reports, Who to Make, When and to Whom.—Every corporation subject to the State income tax (as well as foreign corporations having officers, agents or representatives within New York State) must annually on or before July first, or within thirty days after the making of its report on net income to the United States Treasury Department for any fiscal or calendar year, transmit to the Tax Commission a report of its income.<sup>6</sup> If any corporation takes over by merger or consolidation the assets or franchise of another corporation doing business in New York State during the year ending with the thirty-first day of October, such corporation must make a consolidated report for all the corporations so merged or consolidated, as though the merged or consolidated corporation had existed and done business as an entity throughout the year for which the report is made, and must be taxed for the year to ensue upon the basis of such report and as provided by statute.<sup>6a</sup> The Tax Commission may for good cause shown extend the time within which any corporation is required to report by statute.<sup>7</sup>

§ 578. The Tax Commission must thereupon reaudit and restate the account of such corporation for taxes based upon the net income for such fiscal or calendar year, such reaudit to be according to the net income so ascertained by the Tax Commission. The proceedings and determination of the Tax Commission in the making of such reassessment may be revised and readjusted and reviewed in the manner provided by sections two hundred and eighteen and two hundred and nineteen of the Tax Law, as in the case of an original assessment of the tax. If from such reassessment it appears that such corporation has paid an excess State Income Tax for the year for which such reassessment is made, the Tax Commission must return a statement of the amount of such excess to the Comptroller, who must credit such corporation with such amount. If from such reassessment it appears that an additional tax is due from such corporation for such year, it must within thirty days after notice has been given by the Commission pay such additional tax.<sup>18</sup> of the annual value of the franchise upon which the tax is to be annually paid.”<sup>1</sup> All the data used in fixing a franchise tax must be of past transactions as the tax is not on property or on business to be done but upon business done.<sup>2</sup> The franchise tax of a corporation organized for less than a year when the tax becomes due should be determined at such a part of the full year’s tax as the time since its organization bears to one year.<sup>3</sup> “An annual tax is a tax reckoned by the year the same as annual rent or annual interest. § 590. Id.: Capital Stock Employed in State.—The cases discussed in the next succeeding section should also be considered in determining whether or not a corporation's capital stock is employed in the State. "The franchise tax is imposed upon that part of the capital stock of the corporation which is employed within the State. It is the stock and not the dividend which is taxable. Where a corporation pays no dividend the stock is appraised and the tax is computed upon the appraised value. Where a dividend is paid it is an indication of the value of the stock, and the tax upon the stock is determined by the amount of such dividend."<sup>18</sup> "It is apparent, of course, that this section [182, Corporation Tax Law] applies to two classes of corporations. The tax upon corporations in the first class is 'to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock employed within this State,' while the tax upon corporations in the second class is 'upon such portion of the capital stock at par as the amount of capital employed within this State bears to the entire capital of the corporation.' takes into consideration its property in shares of corporations outside the State is erroneous.<sup>9</sup> An amount carried on a corporation's books as "Bills receivable," made up of its expenditures on railroad lines leased by it, for which no direct return is expected and for which the corporation holds no obligation for reimbursement, constitutes no part of its property within the State for the purpose of the franchise tax.<sup>10</sup> The determination of whether or not a corporation's average bank balance for a year ending October thirty-first is capital employed in the State for franchise tax purposes depends on the facts.<sup>11</sup> Bonds, for example of railroads, a newspaper company and the United States, held by a corporation within this State, are to be treated as capital employed within this State and therefore as a part of the basis upon which the corporation's franchise tax is to be computed, if purchased with its capital as distinguished from its surplus, but not if bought with surplus; and the fact that the corporation has more assets than share stock raises no presumption that capital would be invested in properties relating to its business, while surplus would be invested in safe interest-bearing securities.<sup>12</sup> The rolling stock of a domestic corporation used upon its lines in this State, though transferred to other roads and run outside the State to facilitate transportation of goods and persons, if always returned to this State after such temporary use without it, is to be considered as capital employed in this State in assessing the corporation's franchise tax.<sup>13</sup>

“ To render a corporation liable to the imposition of a franchise tax under that section [the one hundred and eighty-second] it must be doing business or exercising its corporate franchise in this State and must have capital stock employed within the State during the year for which the tax is assessed.”<sup>14</sup> That a corporation does an ultra vires business is no ground for relieving it from payment of a franchise tax.<sup>15</sup> Only a corporation (whether domestic or foreign) which is doing business in this State need pay the annual statutory, franchise tax; a corporation, the sole activity of which is to maintain its corporate existence is not doing business in this State.<sup>16</sup> A corporation doing a trust company’s business is not relieved from payment of a franchise tax on the ground that it is not exercising its franchise simply because the State Superintendent of Banks notifies it that he would take legal action if it continued to receive deposits in its then condition.<sup>17</sup> A corporation is liable to a franchise tax as doing business in this State if it takes care of its plant, keeps its organization, principal office, secretary and superintendent; rents houses on property owned by it; borrows money; pays rent; and makes its annual State franchise tax report, though it do none of the business for which it was mainly formed.<sup>18</sup> “. . . corporations organized for the purpose of buying, selling, leasing, renting and owning real estate, and of erecting buildings or other structures thereon

The direction that the tax shall be 'upon such portion of the capital stock at par as the amount of capital employed within this State bears to the entire capital of the corporation' was not intended to establish or fix the rate at which such capital stock was to be assessed, but a rule for the computation of the amount of capital stock on which assessment was to be made. . . . declare that the money represented by its certificates of stock constitutes a part of its capital stock is estopped from asserting to the contrary in a proceeding to determine their liability to the franchise tax when the construction of the certificates is clearly debatable.<sup>15</sup>

In determining the franchise tax the Comptroller should levy on the average capital employed during the year and that average may be accurately found by multiplying the amount of capital employed during any period of days by the number of days, adding together the products so obtained and dividing by the number of days in the year.<sup>16</sup> As a corporate franchise tax is an annual one, the capital stock appraised should be apportioned throughout the entire year; so that if the company have for seven months, say, but five hundred dollars derived from the sale of . . . shares needed to effect its incorporation, and employed no capital and did no business for such period; but during the other five months had large assets employed, five-twelfths only of such assets should be assumed as carried by the company through the entire year.<sup>17</sup> The law requiring payment of an annual franchise tax "to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock, employed during the preceding year within this State, and upon each dollar of such amount" does not mean that all such capital stock must be employed during the entire year but that capital stock employed during the preceding year is taxable: the statute does not necessarily contemplate computing the tax upon the amount of the capital stock outstanding on October 31st.<sup>18</sup> When a trust company increases its capital stock in the course of the tax year, it is proper to assess the tax on the basis of the whole outstanding stock at the end of the tax year, even though the increased stock was outstanding during only a part of the year and it might therefore well be argued that the assessment should be made on the average amount of stock during the year.<sup>19</sup>

“ . . . the surplus of the corporation has been defined to be ‘ the accumulations of the company of moneys or property in excess of the par value of the stock issued by it.’ ”<sup>20</sup> Because the surplus of a corporation constitutes no part of its capital stock in determining the tax thereon, it does not follow that the surplus escapes taxation, as the surplus exercises a controlling influence in fixing the amount of the tax by swelling the dividends declared or increasing the valuation of the capital stock.<sup>1</sup> “ . . . while it may be conceded that the words ‘ par value ’ ordinarily are to be given the same meaning as face value when applied to bonds and stocks having a face value, yet when used as applying to the surplus and undivided earnings and not limited to bonds and stocks, the meaning may be very different,” e. g., in determining the surplus and undivided earnings of a savings bank, on which a franchise tax is imposed, its interest-paying stocks and bonds must not be estimated above their par value or above their market value if below par.<sup>2</sup> An amount accumulated by a domestic corporation, by passing dividends in order to pay for stock and bonds of another company nearly the entire business of which consisted in transporting the purchasing corporation’s goods to its mines and the products from the mines, is surplus, even though placed in such railway securities as an independent investment; and it cannot be regarded as part of the corporation’s capital stock employed in this State for taxation purposes.<sup>3</sup>

The courts are not interested in the form of a transaction in determining if it results in a dividend so as to subject the corporation profiting by it to a franchise tax, but if it results in the receipt or earning by the corporation of money otherwise than by contribution from stockholders the substance of its division among them is a dividend and will be so considered.<sup>19</sup> A sum returned by directors of a corporation to its stockholders as part of their cash contribution to its surplus, made prior to its merger with another corporation, and for which no additional stock was issued, cannot be regarded as paid from surplus profits so as to be considered a dividend in computing the corporation's franchise tax.<sup>20</sup> A corporation the stock of which was issued for real estate, which it held and leased till it was taken in condemnation proceedings, after which it did nothing save what was incidental to its corporate organization and the condemnation proceedings; and which has never declared a dividend, cannot be held to have done business after the award in the condemnation proceedings was made, and the surplus above the par value of its capital stock resulting on payment of such award cannot be considered in the nature of a dividend made and declared, for taxation purposes.<sup>1</sup> In determining a corporation's franchise tax, an amount paid in on cancellation of a lease under which it was lessee over the value at which it had carried it, which is divided among its stockholders, represents not capital but the product of capital, being derived from an increase in value of the company's assets, and is therefore a dividend from surplus profits.<sup>2</sup> The State Comptroller is justified in assessing a corporation at the sum paid by it for a building in which its

The distinction made between share stock and capital stock in other cases in the construction of other statutes is in this statute fully recognized. Capital stock on its par value is known in other cases as share stock, while appraised capital is known as capital stock."<sup>17</sup> The rule enunciated by the Legislature for determining the rate of tax on a corporation's capital stock, according as its dividends are less or more than six per cent, is legal and proper, even though it result in taxing a corporation declaring a dividend of less than six per cent but the stock of which is worth more than par at a greater rate than if a corporation had declared a dividend of more than six per cent.<sup>18</sup> Under the statutory provision that the rate of the annual corporate franchise tax is one-fourth of a mill for each one per cent of dividends on the par value of stock employed during the year if a dividend in excess of six per cent has been declared, and three-quarters of a mill on the amount of capital employed in the State if dividends of less than six per cent or no dividend have been declared, when the stock is doubled in the middle of the year by declaration of a dividend of one hundred per cent in stock but no dividend is declared on such stock dividend during the remainder of the year, the corporation is assessable upon half of its corporate stock at its par value at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per cent of dividend and upon the other half at the rate of three-quarters of one mill.<sup>19</sup> law substantially directs that if a corporation has more than one kind of stock and on the different kinds of stock the dividends vary, the tax should be computed for each kind of stock separately. This provision evidently contemplates the ordinary case of preferred and common stock. It has no application to a condition such as is presented " by a corporation increasing its capital stock during the course of the tax year, and paying six per cent dividends on all stock outstanding at the time of the dividends, but declaring the dividends quarterly so that those paid on the new stock necessarily aggregated less than six per cent, if all this stock is still of one kind, i. e., common."<sup>11</sup>

§ 597. Id.: When Stock Has No Par Value.—The rate of tax upon a corporation the capital stock of which has no par value is determined by the same process as is prescribed for a corporation the capital stock of which has a par value, with this preliminary step to be borne in mind: that the rate of dividends must be computed by dividing the total amount of dividends which has been paid during the year by the amount of the net assets of the corporation upon the first day of such year.<sup>12</sup>

§ 598. Id.: In All Other Cases.—All other corporations must be taxed in an amount not less than would be produced by an assessment of one and one-half mills on each one dollar of the actual value of its capital stock, determined to be employed in New York State as provided by the statutes hereinbefore discussed, or one and one-half mills upon each dollar of such capital stock at the average price at which such stock sold during such year.<sup>13</sup>

§ 599. Id.: Review.—Review by certiorari of a franchise tax is discussed in the six hundred and sixtieth and succeeding sections of this work. A corporation assessed for franchise tax has the right to make application to the Comptroller for resettlement and readjustment of the account on which he assessed the tax upon the same evidence, papers, proofs and proceedings as were had upon the original statement of the account when the corporate officers were examined; and unless further evidence is actually offered on such proceeding it is his duty to resettle and readjust the account if it is clearly made to appear that it is erroneous or illegal, and if it is not so clearly made to appear, then an order should be entered

vide a formula for arriving at the actual value of corporation stock, viz., to ascertain the value of all the corporate real and personal property, and from the aggregate deduct the value of the real estate and the corporate indebtedness.”<sup>4</sup> “The law does not prescribe how the actual value of the capital stock of a corporation is to be ascertained [in assessing it for taxation]. That is left to the judgment of the assessors, and in appraising the actual value they have a right to resort to all the tests and measures of value which men ordinarily adopt for business purposes in estimating and measuring values of property. They may take into account the business of the corporation, its property, the value of its actual assets, the amount and nature of its present and contingent liabilities, the amount of its dividends and the market value of its shares of stock in the hands of individuals. They may resort to any or all of these as to them seems best, and they are not confined to one of them. They may take that test which they think will be most likely to give them the actual value of the stock, and they may disregard the others.”<sup>5</sup> “One mode of arriving at the actual value of the capital stock of a corporation [for the purpose of assessing the tax thereon] is to take what is sometimes called the book value, which is reached by estimating all the assets as they appear upon the corporate books, and deducting all the liabilities and other matters required to be deducted by law, and taking the balance as the measure of value for assessment. This seems to be a proper method for arriving at the value of the capital stock in the case of a corporation which is about to discontinue business, wind up its affairs and distribute its assets among its shareholders. But it cannot always, or usually, be a fair or correct method of assessment in the case of a going corporation whose assets are to remain at the risk of its business. In the case of an insurance company, the actual value of its capital stock must usually be less than the book value, and the same must frequently be true of other corporations which are engaged in business attended with many hazards and fluctuations. In the case of a corporation the value of whose capital stock is largely made up of its franchise, good will and business advantages, the book value of its capital stock will be less than the actual value.”<sup>6</sup> In assessing the tax upon a corporation's capital stock "the earnings of a corporation may be considered by the assessors, and where they are such as to enable the company to pay its running expenses, necessary repairs, interest upon its indebtedness and declare a dividend of six per cent and still have a surplus, it may be assumed that its capital stock remains unimpaired and that there are assets over and above sufficient to pay its outstanding indebtedness (citation). This method, however, may include the value of the franchises, which should be deducted in order to determine the amount of property liable for assessment."<sup>7</sup> In determining the value of leases in which a corporation is lessee in a proceeding to assess for taxation its capital stock and surplus profits, the commissioners cannot estimate the value of the real and personal property leased and include that value in the amount of the corporation's property, but must find the actual value of the lease.<sup>8</sup> In assessing a corporation-lessee for its capital and surplus the value of the lease, deducting therefrom the value of the right to use the franchises of the leased corporations, should be ascertained and added to the value of the corporation's real estate and personal property, and from this total the deductions made which are allowed by the statute.<sup>9</sup> essential part of the shareholder's capital stock. While the nominal or par value of the capital stock and of the share stock are the same, the actual value is often widely different. The capital stock of the company may be wholly in cash or in property, or both, which may be counted and valued. It may have in addition a surplus, consisting of some accumulated and reserved funds, or of undivided profits, or both, but that surplus is no part of the company's capital stock, and, therefore, is not itself capital stock. The capital cannot be divided and distributed; the surplus may be. But that surplus does enter into and form part of the share stock, for that represents and absorbs into its own value surplus as well as capital, and the franchise in addition. So that the property of every company may consist of three separate and distinct things, which are its capital stock, its surplus, its franchise; but these three things, several in the ownership of the company, are united in the ownership of the shareholders."<sup>10</sup> The "capital stock" of a corporation which is subjected by statute to taxation means "actual tangible property of the company, and not its share stock, which is to be assessed at its actual value."<sup>11</sup> "Capital stock, as that term is used in the Tax Law . . . , does not mean share stock; it is limited to the actual money or property paid in and possessed by the corporation as such."<sup>12</sup> "First, the subject of valuation and assessment is never the share stock, but always the company's capital and surplus. Second, such capital and surplus must be assessed at its own value, and when that is correctly known and ascertained, no other value can be substituted for it. Third, where its amount and value are undisclosed and unknown the assessors may consider the market value of the share stock and the general condition of the company as indicative of surplus or deficiency and of the probable amount of either. Fourth, they may further resort to such means of information when the amount of capital and surplus is disclosed, but the assessors have sufficient reason to disbelieve the statement and such reason is founded upon facts established by competent proof."<sup>13</sup> The manner of ascertaining the value of the capital stock of a corporation for taxation purposes is not to take the value of its share stock but its capital and surplus at their actual value.<sup>14</sup>

§ 609. Id.: At Actual Value, In General.—"The term 'actual value' [in a statute requiring assessment of corporate capital stock at its actual value], is evidently used in distinction to the nominal value or amount. The direction to assess it at the actual value, therefore, required that it should be estimated above or below the par amount, according to the fact, and as the particular case might require. . . . There is doubtless, an incongruity in including the accumulated profits above ten per cent in the assessment, where the capital is assessed at its market value. It does not seem to have occurred to the law-makers that the existence of a surplus enters into the market value of the stock, and that this surplus is never the subject of an ownership or disposition distinct from the stock, and that their whole object was accomplished when they directed the stock to be assessed at its actual value. . . . in a case where a surplus exists, which must be included in the amount of the assessment, justice will be attained by deducting its amount from the sum at which the stock would be estimated if the surplus was considered as embraced in the valuation."<sup>15</sup> "It is the actual value of its capital stock and not the market value of its share stock that is to be assessed; in other words, it is its actual tangible personal property and not its franchises. Other statutes provide for the taxing of its real estate and franchises. . . . The value of property is determined by what it can be bought and sold for, and there can be no doubt but that these various expressions used in the statutes all are intended to mean the actual value of the property."<sup>16</sup>

But the market value of any stock which is listed at the stock exchange in New York, and largely dealt in from day to day for a series of months will usually furnish the best measure of value for all purposes. . . . But there is no law which compels assessors to resort to market value to find the actual value of capital stock."<sup>18</sup> "The value of the share stock, however, is not conclusive evidence of the value of the capital stock and surplus of a corporation. The selling price of the share stock is some and in many cases, where better evidence is not obtainable, may be satisfactory evidence of the value of the assets of a corporation, but it has never been held to be conclusive. . . ."<sup>19</sup> The capital and surplus of a corporation must be assessed at their own value in determining the tax on its capital stock; and the market value of the shares of capital stock is only to be considered by the assessors when either the value of the capital and surplus is not disclosed and cannot be ascertained, or, being disclosed, the assessors have reasons based upon facts established by competent proof to disbelieve the statement.<sup>20</sup> The proper basis for determining the amount of the capital of a corporation liable to taxation is not the market value of the shares in the hands of individual holders, but the corporate assets constituting the capital.<sup>1</sup>

§ 614. Id.: Stock In Other Corporations.—The statute requires taxation of the capital stock of a corporation after deduction, among other things, of “all shares of stock in other corporations actually owned by such company which are taxable upon their capital stock under the laws of New York.”<sup>20</sup>

§ 615. Id.: Debts and Liabilities.—Although nothing is said in the statute imposing a tax upon a corporation’s “capital stock” about the deduction of debts, yet nothing is said against doing so; and debts may be deducted because the value of the capital stock of necessity must largely depend upon the amount of the company’s indebtedness.<sup>1</sup> A corporation is “entitled to have its indebtedness deducted from the value of its corporate assets which constituted its capital stock, or capital, as distinguished from its actual share stock” in determining the tax upon its capital stock.<sup>2</sup> In determining the tax payable by a corporation on its capital stock, “while . . . [the] indebtedness [of the company] is a proper subject for consideration in estimating the value of the stock there is no authority for its deduction from the value of the stock after an estimate of the same has been made.”<sup>3</sup> “Debts are deductible in ascertaining the assessable value of the capital of a corporation;” but if its capital is unimpaired the commissioners are not bound to deduct debts, because they are presumably offset by assets above the capital which otherwise would be liable to taxation.<sup>4</sup> Assessors are not precluded from assessing for taxation the capital stock of a corporation according to their best judgment and information or bound to find it not subject to any tax because of an affidavit that its debts exceeded the value of all its personalty.<sup>5</sup> When the evidence before the commissioners of taxes and assessments of New York City is full and uncontradicted as to all necessary facts about its assets and liabilities, they cannot, because its capital is unimpaired, assume it to be possessed of undis-

the assessed value of the real estate in assessing the corporate stock of a corporation, see note in 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 704.

Assessors may assess an owner for the whole amount of his personal property and then allow him deductions on account of his liabilities when he appears and claims it, or they may allow him the deductions when they make the assessment, and then he has no grievances to complain of."<sup>7</sup> In assessing the tax upon a corporation's capital stock no presumption can be indulged that its indebtedness represents property to the amount of such indebtedness in addition to that represented by its capital stock.<sup>8</sup> The capital stock of a corporation cannot be assessed as of any value for purposes of taxation when its entire assets are insufficient to pay bonds for which it is liable.<sup>9</sup> In determining the value of the capital stock and surplus of a domestic corporation for assessment purposes the commissioners may not consider as part thereof bonds of another corporation payment of the principal and interest of which has been guaranteed by the assessed corporation.<sup>10</sup> A guarantee and bonding company cannot deduct from the assessed value of its capital stock an amount called "unearned premiums held as reinsurance reserve, as required by law, being amount necessary to reinsure outstanding risks" when the only ground for the deduction is that before the next year should roll around it might be required to pay a considerable sum on account of contracts then outstanding for which it had received premiums.<sup>11</sup> A corporation assessed for taxation on its personal property which has given its notes for stock in another corporation and has been taxed on the money which is evidenced by such notes is entitled to deduct from

§ 618. Id.: Good-Will.—"Good-will, like a franchise, is a privilege which the courts will protect as a right of value. As such it is property, though intangible. Under the Franchise Tax Law of corporations it is taxable with the franchises as forming a part of the value of the share stock (citations). But good-will, as such, is not taxable for general town, county or municipal purposes. It is not real estate, nor is it personal property as defined by the provisions of the Tax Law . . . . It consequently follows that good-will is not taxable property for town, county and municipal purposes, and that debts or liabilities contracted in the purchase of such property should not be deducted from the value of the taxable personal property."<sup>19</sup> "The good-will of a corporation, though of an intangible nature, is taxable with the franchise, as forming a part of the value of the share stock."<sup>20</sup> In determining whether or not the capital stock of a corporation is fully paid it is proper to permit a witness thoroughly conversant with the business, the good-will of which formed part of the consideration for the issue of the corporation's stock, and with its management, to give his opinion of the value of the good-will.<sup>1</sup> ". . . the value of good-will may be fairly arrived at by multiplying the average net profits by a number of years, such number being suitable and proper, having reference to the nature and character of the particular business under consideration, and the determination of such proper number of years should be submitted to and determined by the jury as a question of fact, dependent upon the evidence before them in each action."<sup>2</sup>

§ 621. Id.: Procedure of Assessing Real and Personal Property (Including Capital Stock) Taxes; Ascertainment of Property Exempt.—By September first each year the boards of assessors of the several towns and the boards or officials charged with assessing property for taxation of the several cities must furnish the clerks of the boards of supervisors of their respective counties (or the city clerk of the city in the case of New York City) a full and complete list and statement of all property situated in their respective districts which is exempt or partially exempt from taxation under the laws of New York; and such clerks of the boards of supervisors (or city clerk in the case of New York City) must by October first transmit such completed lists or statements to the tax commission of the State, which, in turn must tabulate the statements and publish such tabulation in its annual report to the Legislature.<sup>15</sup>

§ 622. Id.: Ascertainment of Property and Corporations Taxable.—Between January first and July first the assessors in each tax district must ascertain by diligent inquiry all the property and the names of all the persons taxable therein.<sup>16</sup> Between June first and fifteenth the county clerks in every county, except those counties which contain a city of the second class or which are wholly situate within the corporate limits of a city, must give to each town clerk in his county a statement of the name and names and addresses of the directorate of every stock corporation, certificate of incorporation of which has been filed with him in the past year, which has its principal business office or chief place of business — according to its certificate of incorporation — in such town clerk's town, village or hamlet; and each such town clerk must then mail a notice that he has filed such statement in his office to each of the assessors of his town.<sup>17</sup>

§ 623. Id.: Assessment on the Rolls.—The State Tax Commission must adopt regulations and rules for the preparation and use of assessment-rolls and advise with and instruct boards of assessors and other officers as to their duties in respect thereto; and the assessors must prepare the assessment-rolls in form prescribed and approved by the Tax Commission.<sup>18</sup> Assessment-rolls must be sufficiently classified and arranged with respect to number of parts, and columns in each part, as to identify (1) each separately assessed parcel or portion of real estate, with the approximate quantity of the square feet, square rods or acres contained therein, or a statement of the linear dimensions thereof; (2) each special franchise; (3) the name of each corporation taxable on personal property; (4) the name of each corporation taxable on capital stock; and assessments of real property—other than special franchises—must be carried in a separate part of the roll from the assessments of personal property. In addition, the form of assessment-roll must indicate in appropriate columns the district in which is situated (1) each parcel or portion of real property, (2) each special franchise, (3) each corporation subject to taxation for personal property, and provide for the entry of assessments of real property, personal property and special franchises.<sup>19</sup> More particularly, the assessors must assess corporations liable to taxation in their respective districts upon their assessment-rolls in five columns: (1) In the first column (a) the name of each corporation; under the name (b) the amount of its capital stock paid in and secured to be paid in, (c) the amount paid by it for real property then owned by it wherever situated, (d) the amount of all surplus profits or reserve funds exceeding ten per centum of its capital after deducting therefrom the amount of such real property, and the amount of its stock if any belonging to the State and to incorporated literary and charitable institutions; (2) In the second column, the quantity of real estate (except special franchises) owned by such corporation and situated within their tax district; (3) In the third column, the actual value of such real property (except special franchises); (4) In the fourth column, the amount of the capital stock paid in and secured to be paid in and of all of such surplus profits or reserve funds as aforesaid, after deducting the sums paid out for all the real estate of the company then belonging to it, wherever such real estate may be situated, and the amount of stock if any belonging to the People of the State and to incorporated literary and charitable institutions; and (5) In the fifth column, the value of any special franchise owned by it as fixed by the State Board of Tax Commissioners.<sup>20</sup> The assessors of any tax district must either on their own motion or upon the application of any taxpayer therein enter in the assessment-roll of the current year any property shown to have been omitted from the assessment-roll of the preceding year, at the valuation of that year, or, if not then valued, at such valuation as the assessors may determine for the preceding year; but assessments of special franchises that were omitted must be entered at the valuation fixed and equalized by the tax commission.<sup>1</sup> On failure, through mistaken belief in its exemption, to assess a corporation's property for taxation one year, it may be assessed next year for the omitted year if notice is given of such assessment.<sup>2</sup> The assessment-roll directed by law to be made up by assessors of corporate capital stock may be made up substantially as follows: "In the first column insert the name of the corporation; in the second the quantity of real estate, in the town or ward; in the third column the assessed value of the real estate, and in the fourth column the value of the capital stock after making the exemptions and deductions required . . ."<sup>3</sup> "There is nothing in any of these provisions of the statute which requires that the roll, as originally completed for review, shall be made out in a single volume or upon sheets of paper attached together, or which forbids that it should be made out in parts or upon detached sheets, which when brought together constitute the roll, completed for purposes of review; least of all is there anything to forbid the re-engrossment of the roll after the corrections of the review-day."<sup>4</sup>

§ 624. Id.: Statements and Reports By Corporations, Governing Statutes.—On or before June first every moneyed or stock corporation deriving an income or profit from its capital or otherwise must make a written statement, through its president or other proper officer, in the form prescribed by the State Tax Commission, and deliver it to one of the assessors of the tax district in which the company is liable to be taxed; and such statement must be verified by an officer of the corporation making the report to the effect that it is in all respects just and true.<sup>5</sup> The statement must specify: (1) The real property, if any, owned by such company and (a) the tax district in which such realty is situated and (unless a railroad corporation) (b) the sums actually paid therefor; (2) the capital stock actually paid in and secured to be paid in, excepting therefrom (a) the sums paid for real property and (b) the amount of such capital stock held by the state and by any incorporated literary or charitable institution; and (3) the tax district in which the principal office of the company is situated, or, in case it has no principal office, the tax district in which its operations are carried on.<sup>6</sup> If such statement is not made within twenty days after the first day of June or is insufficient, evasive or defective, the assessors may compel the corporation by mandamus to make a proper statement.<sup>7</sup> A statute requiring every corporation within twenty days from the first day of January to make a report, which must be published and filed, requires that it must be made within twenty days following (and not preceding) the first of January, although it may be filed and published within a reasonable time thereafter.<sup>8</sup> In case of neglect to furnish such statements within thirty days after the time above provided the company so neglecting forfeits to the People of New York State for each statement so omitted to be furnished the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, and it is the duty of the Attorney-General to prosecute for such penalty upon information which must be furnished him by the Tax Commission; but the Tax Commission may in its discretion discontinue such suit upon such statement being furnished and the costs of the suit being paid, if it is satisfied that such omission was not wilful.<sup>9</sup>

§ 625. Id.: How Far Binding On Taxing Authorities.—

“The reports of corporations should receive a reasonable interpretation and excessive nicety or exactness should not be exercised in bringing them to the test of the statutes.”<sup>10</sup>

“In defining the powers and duties of the department of taxes the Court of Appeals has established certain principles: (1) The action of the commissioners must be based upon facts and evidence before them, and must not be capricious, arbitrary or fanciful. (2) The commissioners must return the information and evidence upon which they acted. (3) Where nothing is returned beyond the statements filed by the relator, these statements must be regarded as the basis of their action and as containing the only facts upon which the assessment was made. (4) Statements which are not denied, or as to which the return is silent, must be regarded as true.”<sup>11</sup> The commissioners of taxes have the right to rely on a statement of assets of a corporation made by it.<sup>12</sup> The inquiry in taxing a corporation's capital and surplus is their actual value; and if the information asked is given the commissioners in reasonably plain and full form, is uncontradicted, not objected to as insufficient, and not subject to reasonable doubt, they cannot question it or assess in disbelief of it.<sup>13</sup> It is the value of a corporation's capital stock, and not its share stock, which assessors are to ascertain; and if the commissioners do not require an examination of the corporate officers and books they are bound by the statement of the value of the gross assets given them.<sup>14</sup> A sworn statement by a corporation to tax commissioners must be accepted as the basis for their assessment unless it be otherwise contradicted; and such contradiction does not follow from an assessment by them based on the market value of the stock or the dividends declared thereon.<sup>15</sup> The commissioners cannot disregard a statement made for them under oath by a corporation's officer for taxation purposes, if they make no further inquiry; and the relator may cancel the tax they impose if they adopt a method of assessment erroneous on the statement's face.<sup>16</sup> When there is nothing before commissioners of assessment, on an application and hearing for correction of their assessment of a corporation, to contradict its statement and testimony, they are bound to consider them true; and if they reject them and their act is challenged by certiorari they must not only in the return set forth their conclusion but the evidence as well so that the court may review it.<sup>17</sup> Commissioners of taxes "are not bound by statements [by a corporation seeking correction of its tax assessment] which are contradicted and which they disbelieve where good reasons exist for such disbelief (citation), but where a statement is made, the truth of which is not disputed, a mere surmise that it may not be true does not justify assessing officers in rejecting such statement or acting otherwise than in accordance therewith."<sup>18</sup> particular year should be canceled for the reason that the property was not subject to assessment, is [not] conclusive upon succeeding officers against assessments for subsequent years upon the same property or franchise."<sup>13</sup> A statute permitting application by a corporation for "correction" of the local assessment against its personal property does not permit an increase thereof by the assessors on its application for correction.<sup>14</sup> In determining the question of inequality of assessment under the Tax Law, as distinguished from the charter of New York City, comparison must be made with property in the borough or county, as distinguished from property in the same ward or section or other part of the city; and with personal as well as with real property.<sup>15</sup> Substantial performance only of the provisions of the tax laws is to be required; and, therefore, when a warrant is made to a tax collector to collect a tax which requires him to collect six instead of five per cent additional, it will not be defective, especially if the corporation taxed objected not on that ground but only on the ground that the tax was excessive, and this after its time to raise this objection had passed.<sup>16</sup> An application to have an action by the city to collect a personal tax from a company dismissed on the statutory ground that the assessment under which the tax was levied was erroneous because the company's just indebtedness was greater than the value of its personal property is improper, as review of the acts of the tax commissioners can be had, in the absence of fraud, only as provided by statute, viz. application to them during the grievance days from January to April for correction of the erroneous assessment, and failing in that, review of their action by writ of certiorari; and the reasons which, under the statute, make it appear to the court just that the tax imposed within the jurisdiction of the taxing officers should not be paid must be reasons other than those which may be considered in certiorari.<sup>17</sup>

That is its general franchise, which can be repealed at the will of the Legislature. A special franchise is the right, granted by the public, to use public property for a public use, but with private profit, such as the right to build and operate a railroad in the streets of a city. Such a franchise, when acted upon, becomes property and cannot be repealed, unless power to do so is reserved in the grant, although it may be condemned upon making compensation.”<sup>1</sup> The special franchise tax act is constitutional.<sup>2</sup> The act conferring on the State Tax Commissioners the power to assess, for the purpose of taxation, the value of “Special Franchises” is constitutional.<sup>3</sup> “The object of an assessment is not necessarily to produce a tax upon the intangible rights but is to determine what the special franchise is

§ 631. Id.: What Is Taxable as Special Franchise.—What is known, for the purpose of taxation, as a special franchise includes the value of: (1) The right to collect wharfage, crannage or dockage on wharves and piers; (2) the franchise, right or permission to construct, maintain or operate surface, under-ground or elevated railroads, in, under, above, on or through streets, highways or public places; (3) the franchise, right, authority or permission to construct, maintain or operate, in, under, above, upon or through any streets, highways or public places, any mains, pipes, tanks, conduits or wires, with their appurtenances, for conducting water, steam, heat, light, power, gas, oil or other substance, or electricity for telegraphic, telephonic, or other purposes; and (4) the tangible property of a corporation situated in, upon, under or above any street, highway, public place or public waters in connection with the special franchise, and the tangible property as included must be taxed as a part of the special franchise.<sup>5</sup> The term “Special Franchise” is not — except as to elevated railroads — deemed to include the crossing of a street, highway or public place outside the limits of a city or incorporated village where such crossing is less than two hundred and fifty feet in length, unless such crossing be the continuation of an occupancy of another street, highway or public place.<sup>6</sup> A grant from owners of the soil to a corporation through which the latter’s property runs is not a “Special Franchise” taxable by the State.<sup>7</sup> An exclusive right in the nature of an easement vested in a railroad “to use and occupy the thirty-foot strip [on a street] forever for the purpose of railroad tracks and turnouts and running locomotives and cars thereon without interruption or molestation” is not such a right as to be subject to a franchise tax.<sup>8</sup> sum of the earnings or income indicates, however, the value of the property only which produces it. In the application of the net earnings rule, the value of the tangible property used in producing those earnings upon which a fair and reasonable return is allowed should be the full and actual value of all the property essential to the operation of the enterprise or plant. But what that property is and its value are questions of fact.”<sup>5</sup> “ While no statute prescribes it, yet in ordinary cases the net earnings rule is the proper method by which to compute the value of a special franchise in order to determine the tax assessable upon it by the State Board of Tax Commissioners. This rule consists in ascertaining the sum of the gross earnings or income, and deducting from it the sum of operating expenses and other expenses necessarily paid, such as taxes and rentals, leaving a figure representing the sum of the final net income from both tangible and intangible property. If from this final sum is deducted an amount equal to six per cent of the value of the tangible property as the reasonable earnings or income therefrom and from the remainder is deducted a sum designated “ depreciation allowance,” what is left is deemed to represent the net earnings attributable to the intangible parts of the special franchises and is capitalized at six per cent to produce the sum of their assessable value for the purpose of taxation. Adding the value of the company’s tangible property, there is produced the taxable value of the special franchise.”<sup>6</sup> “ The net earnings rule contemplates a valuation upon the basis of the net earnings of the corporation which are attributable to its enjoyment of the special franchise. The method is thus applied:

- (1) Ascertain the gross earnings.
- (2) Deduct the operating expenses.
- (3) Deduct a fair and reasonable return on that portion of the capital of the corporation which is invested in tangible property.

The resulting balance gives the earnings attributable to the special franchise. If this balance be capitalized at a fair rate we have the value of the special franchise.”<sup>7</sup> “ The net earnings rule is a method of determining the value of a special franchise by ascertaining its earning capacity. It is assumed to be worth that sum which, placed at interest at a determined rate, usually six or seven per cent, will produce the amount which the franchise earns. If the gross earnings of the company, the operating expenses, other proper charges against earnings, and the value of the tangible property be given, the value of the special franchise is the result of a purely mathematical computation."<sup>8</sup> Taking the value of a company's tangible property, computing interest thereon at 6%, deducting the resulting amount from the total net earnings, makes a balance, after allowing for return on the investment in tangible property, which results from the ownership and use of the special franchise owned by the company and is the amount of net earnings attributable to enjoyment of the special franchise and taxable as part thereof.<sup>9</sup> In ascertaining the taxable value of franchises of several street railways comprising a general street railway system it is proper to adopt the net earnings rule and in applying it to treat the system as a whole and ascertain its value, including the tangible property in the streets and the intangible right to operate, and then to divide the aggregate amount among the various companies in proportion to the tangible property in the streets owned by each.<sup>10</sup> "In cases where the net earnings rule is an appropriate method for valuing a special franchise the first step is to ascertain the gross earnings of the corporation and the second step is to deduct the operating expenses. Among the operating expenses are to be included all the taxes which have accrued against and have been paid by the corporation during the period in which the net earnings are taken as the basis of the valuation. These taxes include any special franchise tax which has been assessed against the corporation for that or in that period and which the corporation has actually paid. A special franchise tax, however, which has not actually been paid is not to be deemed a part of the operating expenses and cannot properly be included in the deduction made on account of such expense."<sup>11</sup> The net earnings rule should be adopted in determining the value of a railroad company's special franchise for taxation purposes,

“The rate of return upon the value of a corporation’s tangible property must be allowed in determining its special franchise tax; and the rate upon the value of the property used constituting a fair return is inherently a question of fact to be decided upon the circumstances, conditions, facts and opinions disclosed by the evidence. The nature of the business, whether it be established or experimental, the risks natural or proven attending it, are some of the many varying circumstances which may enter into the determination of a rate of return which must as a rule be left to the good judgment of the tribunals which review the facts as proven.”<sup>13</sup> In getting at the value of a special franchise of a public service corporation by using the net earnings rule it is proper to give the corporation a return of six per cent on its property in the absence of satisfactory evidence to the contrary, as the question is what return should be allowed on the investment represented by the company’s property, tangible and intangible.<sup>14</sup> “In ascertaining a franchise tax, necessitating the preliminary determination of the value of the company’s tangible property (upon which a return of 6% should be allowed) the value of its interest in subservice or subway conduits through which its power and light cables pass should be included, even though owned by another corporation, if the corporation in question had invested therein and such investment was essential to the operation of its road. procedure which any person aggrieved by assessment of property on any assessment-roll must follow to have the assessment reviewed; and the Charter of New York City supplements this regulation of the Tax Law; so that these statutes govern certiorari proceedings to review assessments of taxation against a corporation's real and personal property (including capital stock) and special franchise.<sup>1</sup> But the Tax Law does not specifically provide the procedure for reviewing by certiorari corporate state-income and franchise taxes, referring to the Code of Civil Procedure for that procedure.<sup>2</sup> "The common-law writ [of certiorari] brings up the record for inquiry into jurisdiction and regularity, and in criminal or quasi-criminal cases, the evidence also, 'to see whether, as a matter of law, there was any proof which could warrant a conviction of the relator' (citations). The general statutory writ brings up both record and proceedings for examination, not only as to jurisdiction and method of procedure, but also to see whether there was a violation of any rule of law, or any competent proof of all the essential facts, or a preponderance of proof against the existence of any of those facts (citations). The special statutory writ now before us [L. 1880, C. 269] differs from its predecessors in one remarkable respect, in

The Tax Law, sections 290-296, both inclusive, as amended, permits a review of assessments by certiorari, and gives certain rules governing such procedure. And so far as it regulates the practice and the use of the writ in tax cases, the provisions are exclusive and override the Code provisions (citations). Where the statute is silent, the provisions of the Code are effective. . . . The provision of the Tax Law as to how the writ is to be directed, relates only to the issuing of the writ and the making of the return, but is silent upon the question as to whether the court in its discretion may allow an interested party to intervene and take a part in the proceedings. It follows that the court, in its discretion, has the power in a tax case, as in other cases of certiorari, to bring in a new party." People ex rel. New York Central R. R. Co. v. Block, 178 A. When the action of assessing officers, however, is questioned by a writ of certiorari under the Tax Law, the court is authorized by the statute to take further and additional proof as to the true value of the assessed property, and upon such proof, in addition to the evidence before the assessing officers, it must endeavor to reach a correct conclusion as to what is a proper valuation. A certiorari proceeding under the Tax Law, therefore, is very much like a revaluation of the property which is the subject of assessment."<sup>18</sup> The remedy given by the nine hundred and sixth section of the Charter of Greater New York to review a determination of the Tax Board by certiorari is to bring about a new hearing by the court in which it may review the whole subject and is not bound by the strict rules of the common law, in the admission of evidence or otherwise.<sup>19</sup> " . . . a hearing on the return, to

York—is a foreign corporation, except as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure for the purpose of construing such code.<sup>1</sup> For the purpose of the Code of Civil Procedure a foreign corporation is defined to be any other than a corporation created by or under the laws of New York State, or located in New York State and created by or under the laws of the United States, or by or pursuant to the laws, in force in the Colony of New York, before the nineteenth day of April, in the year seventeen hundred and seventy-five.<sup>2</sup>

§ 685. Id.: Rights, Powers and Liabilities Under New York Laws; In General.—The courts of this State recognize not only the legal existence of corporations created under charters from other states, but the rights and immunities conferred upon the corporators, except so far as these are cut down by our own legislation.<sup>3</sup> “. . . a corporate franchise granted by one State cannot be revoked or annulled by the courts of another, and especially in a proceeding in which the corporation is not a party.”<sup>4</sup> “This State cannot prohibit a foreign corporation from selling within the State merchandise to be manufactured without the State; nor can it impose conditions which operate directly upon such a sale, so as to be a burden (citations); nor can it deny to such a corporation the right to maintain an action upon such a contract of sale until the corporation has procured the certificate . . .”<sup>5</sup> No law of New York makes it illegal for a foreign corporation to guarantee payment of the principal and interest as due, of bonds of another corporation; and such an obligation is valid at common law.<sup>6</sup> “. . . in case a foreign corporation is engaged in business in this State, where all its property is situated, it becomes amenable to the laws of this State to the same extent as a domestic corporation.”<sup>7</sup> Foreign corporations asking the privilege of doing business under the laws of New York cannot be exempt from the obligations and liabilities which attach to domestic corporations; “and as to the business transacted here, the company must be regarded as domiciled by the residence of its general agent and its local organization.”<sup>8</sup> The statutory provisions for the examination of a corporation before trial apply to a foreign as well as to a domestic corporation.<sup>9</sup> A foreign corporation which has not obtained any license to do business in New York may nevertheless "file a lien under the Mechanics' Lien Law of this State, where the material is actually delivered in this State, and used in the construction of the building against which the lien is filed."<sup>10</sup> A contract made in the name of a foreign insurance corporation in this State by an appointee of its agent here, authorized by it to receive insurance proposals, to act as surveyor, to appoint surveyors and to attend to the duties of his agency as prescribed by the company, binds the corporation.<sup>11</sup> Although the Secretary of State seems to have authority to revoke a certificate issued to a foreign corporation to do business in New York only for failure by it to designate a person on whom process against it may be served, yet it seems that by authorizing an action by the People to redress violations by a foreign corporation of the statutes of the State, the Legislature intended to permit the court to annul the corporation's right to do business here.<sup>12</sup>

§ 686. Id.: As to Real Estate.—Any foreign corporation (1) doing business in New York State and (2) created under the laws of (a) the United States, or (b) any State or Territory of the United States, or (c) any foreign state or nation which borders on the United States of America and which by its laws confers similar privileges on corporations created by the laws of the State of New York, may acquire and hold such real property in New York State as may be necessary for its corporate purposes in the transaction of its business in this State, and may convey such realty by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation.<sup>13</sup> Any foreign corporation may purchase at a sale (1) upon the foreclosure of any mortgage held by it, or (2) upon any judgment or decree for debts due it, or (3) upon any settlement to secure such debts, any real property within New York State covered by or subject to such mortgage, judgment, decree or settlement; and may hold such realty for not exceeding five years from the date of such purchase, and convey it by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation.<sup>14</sup> Any foreign corporation may take by devise any real property situated within the State, and may hold it for not exceeding five years from the time when the right to the possession thereof vests in it as such devisee, and may convey it by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation.<sup>15</sup> The statutory permission to a foreign corporation to do business in New York and acquire realty therein like a domestic one does not confer the right of eminent domain.<sup>16</sup> "By comity we recognize the existence of a corporation in another State, and permit it to exercise the powers with which it is endowed in our own, unless such exercise is repugnant to our policy, or injurious to our interests. It is not more contrary to State policy to allow an artificial than a natural person of another State to take a testamentary gift of money from a donor residing here."<sup>17</sup> The law of this State prohibiting religious corporations from selling their real property without leave of the court does not extend to foreign corporations.<sup>18</sup> Under the laws of New York State a foreign corporation incorporated for the purpose of dealing in the purchase and sale of real property may come into this State and transact here such kind of corporate business.<sup>19</sup> A conveyance by a foreign corporation de facto, possessing some charter capacity to acquire and convey realty, of real estate in this State, is unimpeachable as ultra vires unless some statute of New York expressly or impliedly disable it from dealing in land in this State.<sup>20</sup>

§ 687. Id.: As to Proceedings Supplementary to Execution.—

“ Proceedings supplementary to execution are not authorized when based upon judgments against domestic corporations or against foreign corporations doing business in or having an agency in this State, except in proceedings brought by or against the People of the State. . . . A foreign corporation not doing business in the State, nor having any business or fiscal agency therein nor an agency for the transfer of its stock, does not come within the prohibition of the statute, and proceedings may be maintained upon a judgment against such a foreign corporation.”<sup>1</sup> The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to proceedings supplementary to execution apply to a foreign corporation doing no business and having no agency in this State.<sup>2</sup> A foreign corporation not having a place of business within this State cannot be examined as a judgment debtor in supplementary proceedings for the purpose of the appointment of a receiver of its assets to be applied upon an execution; but the creditor may seek relief in equity.<sup>3</sup>

§ 688. Id.: As to Assignments, Preferential and Otherwise.—

A foreign corporation may validly make a general assignment for the benefit of creditors under the laws of this State provided such assignment is also valid under the law of the corporation's domicile.<sup>4</sup> A general assignment in this State by a foreign corporation without preference except to employees in pursuance of New York laws will be upheld although void under the law of the corporation's home state.<sup>5</sup> “. . . the laws of New York prohibiting the transfer by a corporation of any portion of its assets to give preference to a creditor in anticipation of insolvency ” do not apply to a transfer by a foreign corporation.<sup>6</sup> The statute prohibiting preferences by a corporation in this State does not apply to foreign corporations; but a statute providing that, in all general assignments for the benefit of creditors, any preference is not valid except to the amount of one-third in value of the assigned estate left after deducting wages, etc., does apply to a foreign corporation.<sup>7</sup> A foreign corporation doing business in New York and transferring property to its officers in contemplation of insolvency is not subject to the statute in this State which would make such a transfer by a domestic corporation void.<sup>8</sup>

§ 689. Id.: As to Monopoly, Merger and Sequestration.—No foreign corporation doing business in New York State must combine with any other corporation or person for the creation of a monopoly or the unlawful restraint of trade or for the prevention of competition in any necessary of life.<sup>9</sup> Any foreign stock corporation authorized to do business in New York State lawfully owning all the stock of any other stock corporation organized for or engaged in business similar or incidental to that of the possessor corporation may file in the office of the Secretary of State, under its common seal, a certificate of such ownership and of the resolution of its board of directors to merge such other corporation; and thereupon it acquires and becomes and is possessed of all the estate, property, rights, privileges and franchises of such other corporation, and they vest in and are held and enjoyed by it as fully and entirely and without change or diminution as they were before held and enjoyed by such other corporation, and are managed and controlled by the board of directors of the possessor corporation and in its name, but without prejudice to any liabilities of such other corporation or the rights of any creditors thereof.<sup>10</sup> The statute of this State relating to sequestration proceedings against corporations applies to domestic and not to foreign corporations; and while a New York court will entertain a creditor's bill to recover property which has been fraudulently disposed of by a foreign corporation in this State, it is necessary in order that jurisdiction should attach that the fraudulent disposition of the property should be proven.<sup>11</sup>

§ 690. Id.: As to Banking and Political Contributions.—No foreign corporation other than one formed under or subject to the banking laws of New York State or of the United States, except as permitted by such laws, is by any implication or construction deemed to possess the power of carrying on the business of discounting bills, notes or other evidences of debt, of receiving deposits, of buying and selling bills of exchange, or of issuing bills, notes or other evidences of debt for circulation as money, or of engaging in any other form of banking; or of receiving for transmission or transmitting money by draft, traveler's check, money order or otherwise, except an express company having contracts with railroad companies, or a transatlantic steamship company, or a telegraph company, or a corporation incorporated prior to the year eighteen hundred and fifty to promote the welfare of emigrants.<sup>12</sup> The prohibition against political contributions by corporations is made by the statute effective on all corporations "doing business in this state," and, consequently, must be held binding on foreign corporations if they do business in New York.<sup>13</sup> The subject of political contributions by corporations is fully treated in regard to domestic corporations, and reference is made to that treatment.<sup>14</sup>

§ 691. Id.: License or Certificate to Do Business in New York, In General.—As a condition of permitting the use by a foreign corporation of its institutions the State of New York prescribes certain rules with which foreign corporations must comply. The principal point to determine in the relations between a foreign corporation and the State of New York is whether or not it does business or employs capital in this State; and this point is fully treated in the following sections.

§ 692. Id.: Papers To Be Filed Before License of Certificate Issues.—Before granting to any foreign corporation a certificate to do business in New York, the New York Secretary of State must require it to file in his office (1) a copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation (a) in the English language and (b) sworn to, and (2) a statement (a) under its corporate seal and (b) the signature of its president, vice-president or other acting head, particularly setting forth (c) the business or objects of the corporation which it is engaged in carrying on or which it proposes to carry on within New York State, and (d) a place within the State of New York which is to be its principal place of business, and designating

Secretary of State if they do business here is not intended to prohibit "all corporate transactions by foreign corporations, irrespective of their nature, or of the condition under which they occurred . . . To bring into operation the statutory provision, the facts should show more than a solitary, if not accidental, transaction . . . They should establish that the corporation was conducting a continuous business. To be 'doing business in this State' implies corporate continuity of conduct in that respect; such as might be evidenced by the investment of capital here, with the maintenance of an office for the transaction of its business, and those incidental circumstances, which attest the corporate intent to avail itself of the privilege to carry on a business."<sup>12</sup> A foreign corporation, by refraining from making any contract within this State, cannot transact any amount of business here and escape taxation while still having recourse to the New York courts to enforce its rights.<sup>13</sup> A foreign corporation not doing business in New York may sue an individual in this State though it have no license to do business in this State.<sup>14</sup> "It is only when a foreign corporation, 'doing business in this State,' in competition with domestic corporations, has made a contract within this State, that it is denied the aid of our courts in its enforcement unless it has complied with the statute, and has become, in practical effect, a domestic corporation for all purposes . . . it is demanded that in return for the privileges of suing upon local contracts in the courts of this State, the foreign corporation must place itself in a situation where it can be sued with equal convenience within this State."<sup>15</sup> A certificate of authority to do business in New York is not a condition precedent to an action by a foreign corporation in this State unless it appears that it is doing business in New York.<sup>16</sup>

§ 699. Id.: When Business Must Be Done.—Obtaining by a foreign corporation of a license to do business in New York some time before the year in which it is assessed for a personal property tax is not conclusive that it is carrying on business in this State so as to be liable to taxation.<sup>17</sup> The prohibition against a foreign corporation which does business in New York suing on a contract made here unless it has a license applies not only to a company doing business here at the time the action is commenced but doing business before getting a license.<sup>18</sup> Under a statute that no foreign corporation doing business in New York should do so after December thirty-first, eighteen hundred ninety-two, without having procured a certificate from the Secretary of State, but that any contract made prior thereto might be enforced in the State thereafter, a foreign corporation shipping goods January fourth, eighteen hundred ninety-three, pursuant to an order delivered to it in another State on November first, eighteen hundred ninety-two, is not doing business contrary to the statute.<sup>19</sup>

books, under an intermediate court's ruling that such refusal was justified in a like case, is not subject to a penalty prescribed by statute for such refusal, because the Court of Appeals later decides that in a case such as the one in question inspection was proper.<sup>9</sup> One will not be awarded by the court the statutory penalty for failure by a corporation to permit him to inspect its books when the refusal arose after he had refused to give his reasons, after he had had an hour's inspection, while two other actions by him against the same corporation were awaiting judicial decision after trial, and when, further, the object was to aid in circularizing to effect the sale of stock of other companies and the demandant had in four months brought fourteen actions against different companies to recover the same penalties.<sup>10</sup> A stockholder of a foreign corporation may recover the penalty imposed by statute when it refuses to allow him to take extracts from a book which purported to be kept according to the statute but did not contain the street and number of urban stockholders and had "unknown" written in the column provided for the amount paid on stock as to more than half the stockholders.<sup>11</sup> The penalty imposed on a foreign corporation for refusing to exhibit its stock book in this State to a stockholder is recoverable if the demand for inspection and refusal thereof is made at its or its transfer agent's office in New York; it is not necessary for the stockholder to go elsewhere.<sup>12</sup> On proof of a demand made of a corporation appointed by a foreign corporation as its transfer agent in New York for inspection of the foreign corporation's stock book by a stockholder of the latter and refusal, the stockholder may recover the statutory penalty from the corporate agent and from the principal corporation, too, if the point is not raised that the principal was relieved from such penalty on depositing the stock book with its agent; and the fact that the book does not contain every particular item required by the statute to be recorded therein is no defense.<sup>13</sup> A corporate agent cannot be subjected to the penalty imposed by statute for failure

§ 722. Id.: What Taxable.—Foreign corporations are of course taxable on their real property situated in New York State; and on capital invested in any business which they do in this State and on personal property (exclusive of money, negotiable collateral securities deposited by, or debts owing to them) having an actual situs here which does not form part of such capital.<sup>20</sup> The furniture and goods for sale kept by a foreign corporation in its New York office are taxable in this State.<sup>1</sup> A foreign corporation manufacturing in another country, maintaining a selling agency in New York City, remitting all the agency's net proceeds to the home office, and renting quarters here for the agency, is not taxable on the value of its goods on hand for sale here though it is taxable on the value of the office furniture in the agency.<sup>2</sup> A personal property tax against a foreign corporation is imposed not against the corporation but against specific property; and before it can deduct from such property, viz. the amount invested in business in this State, debts which it owes, it must show that such debts were incurred in the relation to its investments in business in New York.<sup>3</sup> Debts due a foreign corporation on open accounts for imported goods sold in original packages are taxable.<sup>4</sup> While no tax can be imposed on imported goods in the hands of the importer in the original packages, or on their sale, yet a tax may be imposed on the proceeds of their sale if they have become part of the common mass of property within the State, so as to have a situs here; and the deposits of a foreign corporation in bank in this State, invested here; and notes held by it here, and not in the course of transmission to the home office, are taxable here.<sup>5</sup> The mains, pipes and tanks for receiving and distributing natural gas, located in a municipality of this State and belonging to a foreign corporation, are taxable as real estate at their full and true value, and the privilege of laying and maintaining

§ 723. Id. Exemptions.—On personal property actually situated here and not forming part of its capital invested here on which it is taxed, a foreign corporation is taxable unless it is exempt by law or it consists of money, negotiable collateral securities, deposited by, or debts owing to it.<sup>7</sup> “The general rule is that all property within this State is liable to taxation, and when a claim of exemption is made, it must clearly appear, and the party claiming it must be able to point to some provision of law plainly giving the exemption.”<sup>8</sup> “Assuming that the personal property of an incorporation which is located abroad or outside of the State, is at all entitled to exemption, the change should be permanent, positive and unequivocal. If such an exemption can be upheld at all, it cannot be sustained where the change is only for a season, uncertain and vacillating, and merely consists in the building of vessels which are owned by an incorporation which has a location for the purpose of taxation within the State.”<sup>9</sup>

§ 724. Id.: On Sums Invested in New York Business.—A foreign corporation is taxable on its capital invested in business in this State which it does.<sup>10</sup> Foreign corporations are included within the terms of the act taxing non-residents doing business in this State on all sums invested in such business.<sup>11</sup> The act taxing non-residents doing business in this State on all sums invested in such business does not permit the deduction of debts from such sums.<sup>12</sup> Under a statute requiring all non-residents doing business in the State to be taxed “on all sums invested in any manner in said business the same as if they were residents,” if a foreign corporation buys property here and pays cash for a portion of it and promises to pay the balance at some future day it is taxable only on the sum paid, as a sum “invested,” and not on the sum promised to be paid: “The non-resident corpo-

What corporations are to be considered manufacturing and mercantile corporations has been previously discussed.<sup>17</sup> The license tax paid by a foreign manufacturing or mercantile corporation is similar to that paid by any other foreign corporation; while the franchise tax paid by it is now based on its income instead of the amount of its capital employed in New York. Every foreign corporation not paying a franchise tax based upon its income as a manufacturing or mercantile corporation must pay in advance an annual tax for the privilege of doing business in New York State, which must be computed on the basis of the amount of its capital stock employed during the preceding year within this State, unless exempt by special provision of law; and as the tax is arrived at in the same way for a foreign as for a domestic corporation, reference is made to the treatment of this subject hereinbefore in regard to domestic corporations.<sup>1</sup> "The amount of the [franchise] tax does not depend upon the precise length of time for which the corporation carries on business, or upon the amount of business done."<sup>2</sup> The franchise tax on a foreign corporation is "for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises" within this State, is based on the amount of the capital stock employed in New York, and is to be imposed notwithstanding its capital stock is used in a business which in its nature constitutes commerce between the States.<sup>3</sup> It seems that even if a foreign corporation's business is interstate or foreign commerce it is no objection per se to the imposition of a franchise tax upon it.<sup>4</sup> The tax imposed on the capital of a foreign corporation doing business in this State is not in conflict with the provisions of the Federal Constitution conferring on Congress the exclusive power to regulate commerce between the States, as "the property of a foreign corporation engaged in foreign or interstate commerce may be taxed equally with like property of a domestic corporation engaged in the same business, but a tax or other burden imposed upon the property of either corporation because it is used to carry on that commerce, or upon the transportation of persons or property, or for the navigation of the public waters, over which the transportation is made, is invalid and void, as interference with and obstruction of the power of congress in the regulation of commerce."<sup>5</sup> The State of New York cannot tax a foreign corporation upon its business carried on in this State which is exclusively the business of interstate commerce; in other words, a State cannot "tax a foreign corporation whose business in such State is exclusively that of interstate commerce, for the privilege of transacting that business here." <sup>6</sup> The State of New York does not infringe the Federal Constitutional provision giving the Congress power, to the exclusion of the States, to regulate commerce with foreign nations, by taxing the capital stock employed by a foreign corporation in this State if some, though a small part of its business is domestic, while the most of it is foreign commerce.<sup>7</sup> This State cannot tax the franchises of foreign corporations because they are derived from and are taxable by the government of their creation only; and so it is that the tax in New York on foreign corporations is computed on the basis of the capital employed by them in this State, which means only such of the capital as is represented by the value of property, whether of money, goods or other tangible things.<sup>8</sup> "If a foreign corporation or a corporation created by the laws of a sister State employs the whole or a portion of its capital here, and thus has the benefit and protection of the government and laws of the State to the extent of the capital so employed, there is no reason why it should not be subjected, to the extent of the capital so employed, to the same burdens and obligations as a domestic corporation. The tax is not imposed upon its property, but for the privilege which is extended to it by the State of doing business here as a corporation and in its corporate name."<sup>9</sup> While a foreign corporation cannot be taxed as to its property situate outside the State, as to its business not done here or as to its franchise, yet it may be taxed on its business done here; and a tax on the business of a foreign corporation will be construed to mean a tax on its business in this State.<sup>10</sup> "The jurisdiction to tax foreign corporations . . . depends upon the existence of two concurring conditions, namely, that the corporation sought to be taxed shall be 'doing business' in this State, and, second, that its capital ration employed in New York, as the license as well as the franchise tax are based on such employment of the corporate capital. In seeking to offset its indebtedness against its capital on ascertainment of its liability for a franchise tax in this State, a foreign corporation cannot deduct debts contracted for its general business throughout the country, but only debts for the use or on account of its business in New York.<sup>10</sup> It may be that in some cases the indebtedness within this State of a foreign holding corporation should be offset against capital employed within the State in determining its tax, but this is only when the indebtedness is in respect of the specific assets which are found within the State and not when the indebtedness is general, i. e., is incurred generally in the business, in which case it should be deducted from the sum of the company's assets wheresoever found and an amount offset against the value of the assets within this State as will be proportionate.<sup>11</sup>

Id.: For What Paid.—The license fee paid by a foreign corporation is paid for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises or carrying on its business in such corporate organized capacity in the State of New York.<sup>15</sup> The tax imposed upon foreign corporations under the one hundred and eighty-first section of the Tax Law, though measured by the amount of capital employed in this State, is a license tax upon corporations authorized to do business under that law.<sup>16</sup>

§ 731. Id.: Amount and Computation of Tax.—The license fee paid by a foreign corporation is one-eighth of one per centum, to be computed upon the basis of the capital stock employed by it within New York State during the first year of carrying on its business in this State, which first payment must not be less than ten dollars; and if any year thereafter any such corporation employs more than eight thousand dollars of its capital stock within New York State on which a license fee has not been paid then a license fee at the rate of one-eighth of one per centum is due and payable upon any such increase.<sup>17</sup> The measure of the amount of capital stock employed in New York State is found in this way: (1) Take the issued capital stock; (2) take the gross assets employed in any business within New York State; (3) take the gross assets wherever employed in business; (4) find what the proportion of the second item, viz., gross assets employed in this State, is to the third item, viz., gross assets employed everywhere; (5) take that proportion of the issued capital stock, and you have the measure of the amount of capital stock employed in this State.<sup>18</sup> For purposes of taxation, the capital stock of a corporation invested in the stock of another corporation is deemed to be assets located where the physical property represented by such stock is located.<sup>19</sup> “. . . the Comptroller has no right to review his own decision by arbitrarily reassessing and readjusting a license fee imposed and paid (citation); and . . . a foreign corporation should be assessed upon the amount of capital employed by it within

The statutory limitation of the jurisdiction of the courts of this State in actions by foreign corporations against foreign corporations to those in which the cause of action arose within this State is a valid exercise of the power of the State, and when the cause of action is the enforcement of a judgment rendered in a foreign jurisdiction it is not one which in the contemplation of the statute arose within the State.<sup>4</sup> In an action by a non-resident individual against a foreign corporation the jurisdiction of a New York court must depend on the fact that the cause of action arose within this State.<sup>5</sup> In determining whether a cause of action by a non-resident against a foreign corporation arose within the State so as to warrant suit on it in New York, the allegations of the complaint alone may be considered and the action may be maintained "if the breach of the contract occurred within this State," no matter where the contract was made.<sup>6</sup> An action may be maintained in New York by a non-resident against a foreign corporation in a case wherein the courts of this State have possession and jurisdiction of property and are attempting to determine its ownership, and the presence of the foreign corporation as a formal party at least is necessary to the complete disposition of the case and the accomplishment of justice.<sup>7</sup> The courts of New York have jurisdiction of actions against foreign corporations brought by non-residents to recover damages for the breach of a contract made within this State.<sup>8</sup> One foreign corporation cannot sue another foreign corporation in the courts of New York for a cause of action arising in a foreign state, wherein both have their offices, upon a contract made and wholly to be performed, and the alleged breach of which occurred, within that state.<sup>9</sup> A non-resident may sue a foreign corporation in the courts of New York under a contract for services to be performed partly in this State where plaintiff's headquarters were and most of his time was spent.<sup>10</sup> The courts of this State have jurisdiction of an action by one foreign corporation against another on a contract containing no provision as to the place of performance if demand and refusal to perform take place in New York without reason for refusal or claim that performance is to be at any other time or place, as the cause of action then arises in this State; and the fact that the decree rendered will affect realty outside this State is immaterial to the court's jurisdiction if the case involves fraud, trust or contract.<sup>11</sup> An action to recover damages for breach of a contract made in New York by a foreign corporation to deliver bonds to a copartnership composed of individuals resident in this State in consideration for work to be done by them in a foreign state may be enforced in the courts of this State by another foreign corporation to which the contract has been assigned.<sup>12</sup> A corporation incorporated in a foreign country may sue in the courts of this State to enjoin another corporation organized in the same country and individuals, residents of this State, appointed as arbitrators under an agreement between such corporations, from proceeding with the arbitration.<sup>13</sup>

It is not necessary to give the courts of this State jurisdiction of an action by non-residents against a foreign corporation that all the plaintiffs should have been citizens and clothed with right to sue when the action was commenced if after the action was commenced one intervened as party plaintiff who is a resident and the cause of action be not jointly vested in the parties plaintiff and be not one to which the resident plaintiff was a necessary party when started by the non-resident; and this is true though judgment in the action was entered before the law was passed permitting suit by a non-resident against a foreign corporation.<sup>14</sup> An action by one a non-resident when suit is brought and at the time the contract sued on was made against a foreign corporation must be dismissed at any stage of the proceeding when the facts are called to the court's attention.<sup>15</sup> A suit against a foreign corporation which could only be maintained by a resident may be instituted by a clerk in a stockbroker's office who had never had any connection with the corporation until, for the purpose of enabling him to bring the action in question, a bona fide but non-resident stockholder deposited money with the stockbroker to the clerk's credit, who drew his cheque on the stockbroker for the amount of the deposit to the order of the depositing non-resident stockholder, who thereupon handed the clerk a certificate for shares of stock in the company, endorsed in blank, which it was never attempted to have transferred.<sup>16</sup> The right of a non-resident to assign his claim

The court has power to decline jurisdiction of an action by a non-resident against a foreign corporation which the statute permits it to entertain.<sup>18</sup> The courts of New York will not entertain an action by one foreign corporation against another relating to realty in their home state.<sup>19</sup> The courts of New York have no jurisdiction of an action by one who at the time of its commencement and trial was a non-resident against a foreign corporation to affect property in a still different state.<sup>20</sup> A non-resident's cause of action not arising within this State, based upon a foreign statute, not relating to property within this State, in which the defendant is a foreign corporation, should not be entertained in the courts of this State.<sup>1</sup> The Supreme Court will retain jurisdiction of an action on contract brought in New York by one foreign corporation against another when the plaintiff through its agent, then temporarily in New York, accepted in New York City the telegram of the defendant from without the State offering the goods in question — even though the court might refuse jurisdiction.<sup>2</sup>

in consideration of an act which the laws of the State forbid a corporation or association of individuals to do, without express authority of law, provided that such prohibition does not affect the validity of a meeting of the stockholders or directors of a foreign corporation held within the State when such a meeting is authorized by the laws of the State, country or government by or under which the corporation is created; or of an act done at such a meeting which is not in conflict with the same laws or the laws of New York State.<sup>11</sup> A foreign corporation is to be barred from suing in the courts of New York only as provided by statute.<sup>12</sup> A foreign corporation may recover in this State the amount of the indebtedness to it of a domestic corporation from one who was a director thereof when the indebtedness was incurred if the domestic corporation's charter makes every director personally liable to an amount in excess of such indebtedness for all debts incurred by his corporation during his administration; and the corporate creditor need not first recover judgment against the corporate debtor.<sup>13</sup> A stockholder's interest in the capital of a domestic corporation is property situated in this State, and an action by him, who is also a stockholder in a foreign corporation owning the stock of the domestic one, in the name of the foreign corporation which has refused to sue, to compel restitution to the foreign corporation of shares of the stock of the domestic corporation which individual directors of the foreign corporation had fraudulently had transferred to themselves, may be maintained by him in New York and he may have service of process therein by publication, though himself a non-resident.<sup>14</sup>

to be carried on in this State is such as may be lawfully carried on by a corporation incorporated under the laws of New York for such or similar business, or if more than one kind of business, by two or more corporations so incorporated for such kinds of business respectively.<sup>15</sup> This prohibition also applies to any assignee of such foreign stock corporation and to any person claiming under such stock corporation or such assignee or under either of them.<sup>16</sup> No action can be maintained or recovery had in any of the courts of New York State by a foreign corporation doing business in this State after thirteen months from the time of beginning such business within the State without obtaining a receipt from the Comptroller of New York State for the payment of the license fee upon the capital stock employed by it within New York State during the first year of carrying on its business in this State.<sup>17</sup> The statutory requirement that a foreign corporation pay a license fee for the privilege of carrying on business in this State is not an express prohibition against doing business without a license but an imposition of a penalty through withholding the right to sue unless a license fee is paid, and is in the nature of a condition subsequent; while the statutory mandate that a foreign corporation do not do business in this State without first procuring a certificate from this State's Secretary is a prohibition against doing business here and is in the nature of a condition precedent; so that in order to establish a cause of action by a foreign corporation in the State compliance with the latter statute must be alleged and proven, while noncompliance with the former must be availed of by answer.<sup>18</sup> A foreign corporation not having a license to do business in New York may nevertheless sue in its courts if it does nothing in this State except in furtherance of interstate commerce.<sup>19</sup> The fact that a plaintiff foreign corporation has, at the time of making a contract in this State on which it sues, paid the franchise tax required by law of foreign corporations duly authorized to do business in this State, will not avail it if it has not prior to the making of the contract obtained a license to do business in New ing such license.<sup>5</sup> The effect of the statute forbidding any foreign stock corporation doing business in this State to maintain any action in New York on any contract made by it in this State unless prior to the making of such contract it has procured a certificate permitting it to do business in New York is solely to prevent such corporation from suing on such contract in this State; it does not invalidate the contract or prevent the other party to it from suing such corporation thereon in this State.<sup>6</sup> “. . . the statutory requirement [of obtaining a license] which is made a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action upon contract by a foreign corporation has no application to an action against such corporation for tort.”<sup>7</sup> The statute prohibiting a foreign corporation from bringing action in this State until it had procured a license from the Secretary of State “was simply declaratory of the policy of the State that foreign stock corporations should not carry on any business in this State, which similar corporations organized under its laws could not lawfully conduct. Its purpose was not to avoid contracts; but to provide for an effective supervision and control of the business proposed to be carried on here by foreign corporations. It provided no penalty, in the event of a non-compliance, other than the suspension of civil remedies.”<sup>8</sup> A foreign corporation must have obtained a license to do business in New York not only before bringing action on a contract made by it in this State but before entering into the contract, as a condition precedent to suit on the contract.<sup>9</sup> “. . . the inhibition of the statute, as touching the maintenance of an action, goes to a case only where the corporation, so doing business, also sues upon a contract made within

The penalty imposed by statute against a foreign corporation doing business in New York without obtaining within thirteen months from beginning such business a receipt for its license fee is a prohibition against maintenance by it in this State of any action.<sup>4</sup> The prohibition in the Tax Law against a foreign corporation maintaining any action unless it has paid its license fee applies only to a foreign corporation "authorized to do business under the General Corporation Law"; so that a foreign corporation not shown to need a license to do business in this State is not within the prohibition.<sup>5</sup> Neither a foreign corporation which has done business in this State for more than one year and has not a receipt for its license fee, nor its assignee has any standing to sue in a New York court.<sup>6</sup> Failure of a foreign corporation to obtain a certificate of authority does not prevent it from recovering on a counterclaim put forward by it to an action on a contract against it in this State; but its failure to pay a license tax does.<sup>7</sup>

§ 753. Id.: When No License Fee Paid.—A defendant in an action by a foreign corporation or its assignee seeking to defeat it by reason of the corporation's failure to pay its license fee to the Secretary of this State must allege in the answer that the amount of the license fee had been assessed by the comptroller and that more than thirty days had elapsed before the fee was paid.<sup>7</sup>

§ 754. Id.: When Assignee Sues.—“ . . . the defense available against the [foreign] corporation under the statute [requiring it to pay a tax or otherwise not to sue] would also be good as against the [corporation's] assignee [suing here] except as to negotiable paper taken in good faith from the corporation before maturity.”<sup>8</sup> The assignee of a foreign corporation cannot sue on a contract made by the latter in the State where it did business without alleging and proving that the assignor corporation had obtained the statutory license to do business in New York.<sup>9</sup> An individual assignee of a foreign corporation suing in this State need not allege that the assignor is a foreign corporation and that it is created under the laws of such or such a State and country; but if he did have to do so, an allegation that the assignor is e. g., “ a Pennsylvania corporation ” suffices.<sup>10</sup>

§ 755. tion plaintiff under a contract on the ground that the making of it by plaintiff was void as constituting "doing business" in this State without having obtained a certificate, etc., from the Secretary of State, must allege in his answer that the plaintiff is a foreign corporation doing business in the State if the complaint does not show these facts.<sup>20</sup> The point that a foreign corporation bringing suit has not obtained a license to do business in New York need not be covered by affirmative allegation in the complaint but must be raised as matter of defense to be taken advantage of.<sup>1</sup> The objection to the maintenance of an action by a foreign corporation that it has not complied with legal requirements permitting it to do business in New York is an affirmative defense which must be pleaded to be made available.<sup>2</sup> An objection that a foreign corporation plaintiff cannot recover in an action without showing that it had complied with the statute requiring a foreign corporation to obtain from the Secretary of State a certificate of authority to do business in New York is not tenable unless affirmatively set out as matter of defense in the answer.<sup>3</sup> It has been held that a defendant, by generally denying upon information and belief a foreign corporation's complaint, waives its right to question the plaintiff's failure to plead compliance with the laws of New York in regard to permission to do business in this State.<sup>4</sup> ". . . if the complaint in an action by a foreign corporation shows that the cause of action alleged is upon a contract made in this State by a foreign corporation which is doing business in this State, and fails to allege that the corporation had, before making the contract, procured the certificate required by section fifteen of the General Corporation Law, then, in that event, the complaint is demurrable."<sup>5</sup> ". . . if the complaint in an action, brought either by the corporation or its assignee, shows that the cause of action alleged was upon a contract made in this State by a foreign stock corporation which is doing business in this State, the complaint is demurrable if it fails to allege in addition that the corporation had before making the contract procured the certificate required by section fifteen of the General Corporation Law (citations). The prohibition by the statute of the enforcement of contracts made by a foreign corporation extends only to actions upon contracts made within this State by a foreign stock corporation (other than a moneyed corporation) doing business within this State (citation). It follows that, unless the complaint shows these facts as to the character of the corporation, and its doing business and making the contracts within the State, the complaint is not demurrable because it fails to allege that the required certificate was procured.”<sup>6</sup> An answer to a complaint by a foreign corporation should be allowed to be amended on the trial so as to permit an allegation that plaintiff was a foreign corporation doing business in New York which had not secured a license, if the pleadings failed to aver that plaintiff was doing business in this State, as such an amendment would, if established, defeat plaintiff’s right of recovery and plaintiff could not claim surprise.<sup>7</sup>

the statute.<sup>16</sup> The court should exercise its discretion in deciding if it will assume jurisdiction of an action by a non-resident against a foreign corporation doing business in New York for a tort not done in connection with such business but outside the State.<sup>17</sup> The courts of this State may well decline to exercise an equitable jurisdiction over a foreign corporation in a cause of action which arises abroad, affects only the internal management of the corporation, and the judgment in which can only be enforced by injunction against its individual members; but may send the party complaining to the State where the corporation has a legal existence.<sup>18</sup> A stockholder of a foreign corporation will not be aided by the courts of this State in the administration of its assets after its legal death by merger in another through an action to compel the consolidated corporation, also a foreign corporation, to account to the complaining stockholder and such other stockholders similarly situated as come in and contribute.<sup>19</sup> A defendant which is a foreign corporation and has no property in New York cannot be bound by a judgment rendered against it in an action in the courts of this State on a cause arising in a foreign State, enforceable whenever any of its property comes within this State.<sup>20</sup> Once a foreign corporation has appeared in an action in a New York court it is as subject to the court's jurisdiction as if it were a domestic corporation.<sup>1</sup> An appearance by a defendant foreign corporation by attorney under a notice demanding a copy of the complaint and stating that he waived no rights to contest the service of the summons or contest the court's jurisdiction is a special appearance.<sup>2</sup> A foreign corporation waives any defect in obtaining jurisdiction of it by appearing specially in the State to remove the action to the Federal court, and moving to open a judgment entered against it in the State court by default

after the action has been remanded to the State court.<sup>3</sup> Action may be brought in New York to which a foreign corporation is a defendant if it is such because it refused to maintain the action (brought by a stockholder) and if the action is to determine the ownership of property over which the court has jurisdiction and the foreign corporation is a necessary party to such determination and if the foreign corporation does not raise any objection to its being a party.<sup>4</sup> A court which has not been given jurisdiction of an action against a foreign corporation cannot obtain it by the consent of the defendant; and the objection to the jurisdiction may be raised at any time, even on appeal.<sup>5</sup> The Supreme Court in one district may, by order in a proceeding by a stockholder of a foreign corporation for the appointment of an ancillary receiver and the winding up of its affairs, enjoin an action already commenced by a creditor to enforce his claim in the Supreme Court in another district, in connection with enjoining all other actions against the corporation; the order need not be made in the creditor's action to bind him.<sup>6</sup> Stockbrokers buying and selling cotton futures for a foreign savings bank cannot recover from it a balance due when the transactions are closed; not even on the theory that the contract, though ultra vires, was executed, if the bank retained or had none of the benefits therefrom.<sup>7</sup> The failure of a foreign corporation to obtain a license to do business in this State does not permit it to take advantage of its failure to defeat an action brought against it here, as the statute requiring such a license was not enacted for the benefit of foreign corporations.<sup>8</sup> Plaintiffs in an action against a foreign corporation in which they are stockholders are bound by a judgment upon a similar cause of action in favor of a stockholder whether the latter action purported to be brought in behalf of all other stockholders or not.<sup>9</sup> An order modifying an injunction against prosecuting any suit against a foreign corporation, given on appointment of an ancillary receiver for it in New York, so as to not make it applicable to a certain creditor, cannot be legally made if the only reason for the modification alleged is the statement that the corporation was insolvent, and its directors knew it was, when it bought the goods on which such certain creditor's claim arises.<sup>10</sup> The common law rule that the dissolution of a corporation abates actions pending against it will be held in this State not to apply to a foreign corporation here sued if a statute of the State of the corporation's incorporation provides that its incorporations shall continue bodies corporate even after dissolution for the purpose of prosecuting and defending suits and of settling and closing their affairs, because such a statute, regulating as it does the corporation's existence and power, has extraterritorial operation and effect even as does the statute under which the corporation was created.<sup>11</sup> A foreign corporation, dissolved and dead by decree of dissolution in its home State, is alive in this State insofar as to permit action to be brought against it, and its assets here, with which it is doing business in New York, applied to payment of the liens of its creditors in New York.<sup>12</sup> An action against a foreign corporation for which a liquidator has been appointed by its home country on its dissolution cannot be continued against its directors as trustees, not alleged to possess any of its property.<sup>13</sup> object of the action is to affect the title to real property situated without New York State, and (4) when a foreign corporation is doing business within New York State.<sup>14</sup> The decisions given in this section relate to actions against foreign corporations by resident individuals or domestic corporations:—actions against foreign corporations by non-resident individuals and foreign corporations have previously been discussed.<sup>15</sup> “An action against a foreign corporation can be brought in the courts of this State only, 1st. § 764. Id.: In General.—" . . . a corporation has its domicile and residence alone within the bounds of the sovereignty which created it, and . . . is incapable of passing personally beyond that jurisdiction. . . . it is equally true that a foreign corporation is permitted to sue in the courts of this State, and that suits in personam may be brought against it by service of process on its officers or agents within the jurisdiction (citations). But suits by or against foreign corporations are not maintained on the theory that the corporation litigant is here in person, or that the corporate entity attends its officers in their migrations from one State to another, or that it is itself present wherever its property may be, or its business may be transacted. The jurisdiction . . . rests upon the ground that as a corporation must act by agents, it may through its agents subject itself to the jurisdiction of a foreign tribunal. . . . When a foreign corporation sends its agents into another State, or transacts its business there, availing itself of the protection of the laws of such State, there is no just reason why it should not be deemed to have subjected itself through its agents to the jurisdiction of that State, and be held to respond to an action brought against it therein; upon process served on its representatives."<sup>3</sup> "A foreign corporation can come into this State with its property, establish its business and make and enforce its contracts here only by a natural person;" and it is, therefore, "within the State in propria persona for the purpose of the jurisdiction of the courts of the State, and for the purpose of a judgment valid within the territorial limits of the State, if the legislature of the State choose so to enact," and may be served with process in this State on its agent.<sup>4</sup> "The object of all service of process for the commencement of a suit or any other legal proceeding is to give notice to the party proceeded against, and any service which reasonably accomplishes that end answers the requirements of natural justice and fundamental law (citation); and what

The fact that the corporation is conducting the principal part of its business in the State of its incorporation does not prevent it from so prosecuting its business in another State as to bring it within the character of a corporation doing business in the latter State. While it is true that the business which it is conducting in the latter State in order to give the courts thereof jurisdiction over it for the purpose now being discussed [viz. of suit against it] must be part of the business for which it was organized, it cannot be necessary in every case that the transactions in said latter State shall be the performance of those execution against a foreign corporation must be made upon an officer of the corporation, and no one else; and service upon a person designated for the purpose of receiving service of a summons is not sufficient.<sup>15</sup> Service of process upon an officer of the State appointed by a foreign corporation for that purpose may validly be made on a public holiday, in spite of the law making a holiday like Sunday for all purposes as regards the transaction of business in the public offices of the State, because such officer acts as agent of the corporation in accepting service and not as an officer of the State.<sup>16</sup>

An action against a foreign corporation by substituted service is in the nature of an action in rem, so that the courts of New York acquire no jurisdiction of the action until there is property of the corporation in the State, and it need not take any notice of the action until a warrant of attachment against such property issues and is levied.<sup>17</sup> "Before you begin your action against a foreign corporation by the service of a summons upon it by delivery of a copy or by publication, either there must be property of it in this State, or the cause of action must have arisen therein; one or the other, and either will suffice."<sup>18</sup> ". . . the requirement of section four hundred and forty-three of the Code of Civil Procedure that when service is made without the State under an order for publication 'a notice must be served with the summons in all respects like the notice required by the last section' is a requirement affecting the jurisdiction of the court, and that a failure to serve such a notice constitutes a jurisdictional defect, and is not a mere irregularity."<sup>19</sup>

" . . . when a foreign corporation is engaged in business in New York and is here represented by an officer, he is its agent to accept service though the cause of action has no relation to the business here transacted."<sup>20</sup> A body which has filed an application for a certificate permitting it to do business in this State wherein it refers to itself as a foreign corporation and secures the certificate cannot by later claiming error in the designation of itself and that it is a foreign copartnership render void service of process upon its agent designated in its application, particularly if the action against it in which service was made would be barred if the service were avoided, and there is no proof of the law of the foreign state establishing that it is not a corporation.<sup>1</sup> Service of a summons in an action in this State's courts against receivers of a railroad appointed by the Federal court is not valid if made either on the corporation's agent in this State designated under § 16 of the General Corporation Law as him on whom process against the corporation might be served or on the general agent of the receivers in this State, if it be not shown that the plaintiff could not in the exercise of due diligence make service on the receivers within this State.<sup>2</sup>

service can be made or there be neither of its officers specified in the statute who can, by the exercise of due diligence, be found within the State, and the corporation has property within the State, or the cause of action arose therein; and the proofs of these facts are a condition precedent to the validity of the service upon the managing agent.<sup>11</sup> Before service of process can be made upon a foreign corporation through its "managing agent" in this State it must appear affirmatively that plaintiff used due diligence in an attempt to serve some of the corporate officers specified in the statute.<sup>12</sup> Before summons can be served on the managing agent in this State of a foreign corporation it must affirmatively appear that plaintiff used due diligence to serve some of the officers of the corporation specified in the statute as subject to service.<sup>13</sup> "It is the settled law that service of a summons upon the managing agent of a foreign corporation in this State can only be resorted to and made effectual as the commencement of an action against the corporation in a court of this State, after diligent efforts to obtain personal service upon one of such officers therein has been made and failed."<sup>14</sup> Service upon the managing agent of a foreign corporation without proof of prior effort to serve its officers specified in the statute does not give the court jurisdiction of the corporation.<sup>15</sup> It is not necessary for one serving a foreign corporation in an action in this State through its managing agent to show affirmatively, on a motion by it to set aside the service, that no person has been designated by it upon whom service could be made and that the other officers enumerated in the statute as those upon whom process may be served cannot with due diligence be found within this State, if it appears from the papers submitted by the corporation on its motion to set aside the service that such are the facts.<sup>16</sup>

§ 773. Id.: On Managing Agent, In General.—"The Code contemplates that before service is made on the managing agent of a foreign corporation diligent efforts should be made to serve the officers of the corporation or its agent designated under the General Corporation Law."<sup>3</sup> A foreign corporation may be served in an action in a court of this State which is not a court of record in a way not permitted in an action in a court of record, e. g., by serving a managing agent in charge of one local store among a string of them stretched throughout New York.<sup>4</sup> In order to make valid service of process on a foreign corporation through its managing agent in this State it is not necessary that it do or transact business in this State.<sup>5</sup> That a foreign corporation is informed by an individual served in this State with process as its alleged "managing agent" of the service does not give the courts of New York jurisdiction of it if the individual was not in fact such managing agent.<sup>6</sup> When the grounds set forth in an application by a foreign corporation to vacate service in this State of process upon it through its alleged "managing agent" here are really objections to the court's jurisdiction of the person acquired through service of process (as distinguished from jurisdiction of the subject-matter of plaintiff's alleged cause of action), the practice is to entertain motions to vacate the attempted service.<sup>7</sup>

§ 778. Id.: Necessity and Manner of Alleging Corporate Existence, and Plaintiff's Residence.—In an action brought against a foreign corporation the complaint must state it to be such and the State, country or government by or under the laws of which it was created, but need not set forth or specially refer to any act or proceeding by or under which it was created.<sup>7</sup> The allegation in a complaint against a foreign corporation that plaintiff transacts business in New York is not equivalent to an allegation that he resides in this State and is not, therefore, sufficient to permit him to sue in New York.<sup>8</sup> A complaint in an action in the City Court against a foreign corporation should allege that at its commencement plaintiff was a resident if he could not sue if a non-resident.<sup>9</sup> A complaint against a foreign corporation is not demurrable because it does not allege the residence of the plaintiff in this State.<sup>10</sup> A complaint by an individual in an action in the City Court against a foreign corporation is not demurrable because it does not allege the residency of the plaintiff in this State.<sup>11</sup> Demurrer does not lie to a complaint against a foreign corporation on the ground that it does not allege the plaintiff's residency in the State or the place where the contract sued on was made.<sup>12</sup> Amendment, after the close of a plaintiff's case, of his complaint is proper to have it allege his residence in this State in his action against a foreign corporation which he is suing to recover damages arising from personal injuries sustained while he was a resident of the corporation's home state.<sup>13</sup> It is competent for the court on a trial to allow an amendment of a complaint so as to charge that the defendant is a foreign instead of a domestic corporation, as alleged.<sup>14</sup> defendant's behalf.<sup>15</sup> An answer to a complaint averring that the defendant is a foreign corporation incorporated under the laws of a certain foreign country which "denies, on its information and belief, that at the time mentioned in the complaint, or at any other time, the defendant was a foreign corporation as is alleged in the complaint," raises no issue; because under it the defendant can be either a foreign or domestic corporation, formed in any country except the one stated, and the only issue is one of its nationality, while the statute requires an affirmative denial of the fact that the defendant is a corporation.<sup>16</sup>

§ 780. Id.: Necessity and Manner of Proving Corporate Existence.—In an action brought against a corporation the plaintiff need not prove upon the trial the existence of the corporation unless the answer is verified and contains an affirmative allegation that the plaintiff or the defendant, as the case may be, is not a corporation.<sup>17</sup> If a complaint allege that the defendant is a foreign corporation and the answer deny this but do not affirmatively allege that it is not a corporation, the plaintiff need not prove on the trial the existence of the corporation.<sup>18</sup> Whenever by the laws of any other state or territory, or the Dominion of Canada, a copy of the certificate of organization or incorporation or any other certificate, certified or exemplified by any officer or officers in such state or territory or dominion, is or shall be prima facie evidence of the due formation, creation, existence, organization or capacity of any corporation created, organized or located in such state, territory or dominion, or claiming so to be, such certificate or certificates, duly exemplified or a duly exemplified copy thereof, must be received in all actions and proceedings in New York State, in or before all courts and officers, with the same force and effect in all respects as prima facie evidence as aforesaid, as in such other state, territory or dominion.<sup>18a</sup>

§ 783. Id.: Examination of Books.—In an action at law against a foreign corporation subject to the jurisdiction of the New York court for breach of a contract executed in this State providing, inter alia, for inspection of its books by the plaintiff, the latter is entitled not merely to an examination of the corporation before trial but to an inspection of its books.<sup>2</sup> The Appellate Division has sustained an order for the examination of the books of a foreign corporation invoking the jurisdiction of the New York courts as a plaintiff, and an order for the production of the books of a foreign corporation defendant in an action on a contract made in this State by which plaintiff was entitled to an inspection of such books; but it has not otherwise attempted to exercise its jurisdiction so as to require a foreign corporation not doing business here to bring from without the State and produce within this jurisdiction its books or records — though it might do so.<sup>3</sup>

Id.: Procedure When Corporation Not Personally Served and Does Not Appear.—When a defendant is a foreign corporation and has not appeared and the plaintiff applies for judgment when service has not been made personally the statute prescribes the papers plaintiff must produce and file.<sup>5</sup> When summons is not served personally on a defendant foreign corporation and plaintiff applies for judgment for default on failure of such defendant to demand a copy of the complaint or plead, the statute prescribes the procedure which must be followed.<sup>6</sup>

§ 786. Id.: Attachment, In General.—A warrant of attachment may be obtained against the property of a defendant foreign corporation in an action to recover a sum of money only as damages (1) for breach of any express or implied contract other than a contract to marry, (2) for wrongful conversion of personal property, (3) for an injury to person or property in consequence of negligence, fraud or other wrongful act, (4) for a wrongful act, neglect or default by which the decedent's death was caused when the action is brought by an executor or administrator and the foreign corporation would have been liable to an action in favor of the decedent by reason thereof if death had not ensued as prescribed by the nineteen hundred and second section of the Code of Civil Procedure.<sup>7</sup> No attachment against a foreign corporation should be allowed when it does not appear that the contract on which the action is brought was made, or that the cause of action arose within this State.<sup>8</sup> “. . . it is held, in respect to a corporation organized under the laws of the United States, whose charter makes no provision for the location of its main office: (1) That its main office is located at the seat of the corporation's government, i. e., at the regular meeting place of the board of directors; (2) that a corporation is located in the State of New York if its principal office or main office is there located; (3) that irrespective of what constitutes its main office, a corporation which holds its stockholders' and directors' meetings, maintains its executive offices and keeps its stock certificate books and corporate records all in the State of New York, is located in the State within the meaning of ” the statute permitting attachment

§ 808. ## GREATER NEW YORK CHARTER.

§ 71. (L. 1901, c. 466.) The rights of the city in and to its water front, ferries, wharf property, land under water, public landings, wharves, docks, streets, avenues, parks, and all other public places are hereby declared to be inalienable.

§ 72. (L. 1895, c. 629.) Every grant of or relating to a franchise of any character to any person or corporation must, unless otherwise provided in this act, be by ordinance of the board of aldermen or by resolution of the board of estimate and apportionment or a contract executed by or under the authority of the said board of estimate and apportionment, provided that every such ordinance, resolution or contract shall be subject to the provisions of this act with respect to approval by the mayor. But this section shall not apply to any franchise, right or contract authorized by the board of rapid transit railroad commissioners of The City of New York,

§ 73. (L. 1905, c. 629.) After the approval of this act no franchise or right to use the streets, avenues, waters, rivers, parkways or highways of the city shall be granted by any board or officer of The City of New York under the authority of this act to any person or corporation for a longer period than twenty-five years, except as herein provided, but such grant may, at the option of the city, provide for giving to the grantee the right on a fair revaluation or revaluations to renewals not exceeding in the aggregate twenty-five years. Nothing in the foregoing provisions of this section contained shall apply to consents granted to tunnel railroad corporations; nor shall anything in this section or in this title contained apply to grants made pursuant to the rapid transit act, chapter four of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-one or the acts amendatory thereof. The board of estimate and apportionment is hereby authorized, in its discretion to grant a franchise or right to any railroad corporation to use any of said streets, avenues, waters, rivers, parkways or highways in The City of New York for the construction and operation of a tunnel railroad underneath the surface thereof for any period not exceeding fifty years, and any such grant may at the option of the city provide for giving to the grantee the right, on a fair revaluation or revaluations, to renewals not exceeding in the aggregate twenty-five years, provided, however, that any grant to construct a tunnel railroad or renewal thereof, shall only be made after an agreement has been entered into by such a tunnel corporation to pay to The City of New York at least three per centum, of the net profits derived from the use of any tunnel which it shall construct, after there shall have been first retained by such company from such net profits a sum equal to five per centum upon the sum expended to construct such tunnel. At the termination of any franchise or right granted by the board of estimate and apportionment all the rights or property of the grantee in the streets, avenues, waters, rivers, parkways and highways shall cease without compensation. Every such grant of a franchise and every contract made by the city in pursuance thereof may provide that upon the termination of the franchise or right granted by the board of estimate and apportionment the plant of the grantee with its appurtenances, shall thereupon be and become the property of the city without further or other compensation to the grantee, or such grant and contract may provide that upon such termination there shall be a fair valuation of the plant which shall be and become the property of the city on the termination of the contract on paying the grantee such valuation. If by virtue of the grant or contract the plant is to become the city's without money payment therefor, the city shall have the option either to take and operate the said property on its own account, or to lease the same for a term not exceeding twenty years. If the original grant shall provide that the city shall make payment for the plant and property, such payment shall be at a fair valuation of the same as property, excluding any value derived from the franchise; and if the city shall make payment for such plant it shall in that event have the option either to operate the plant and property on its own account or to lease the said plant and property and the right to the use of streets and public places in connection therewith for limited periods, in the same or similar manner as it leases the ferries and docks. Every grant shall make adequate provision by way of forfeiture of the grant, or otherwise, to secure efficiency of public service at reasonable rates and the maintenance of the property in good condition throughout the full term of the grant. The grant or contract shall also specify the mode of determining the valuation and revaluations therein provided for.

§ 74, (L. 1914, c. 467. Before any grant of a franchise or right to use any street, avenue, waterway, parkway, park, bridge, dock, wharf, highway or public ground or water within or belonging to the city shall be made by the board of estimate and apportionment, public hearing shall be held upon the petition therefor, at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard. No such hearing shall be held however, until notice thereof, and the petition in full shall have been published at least ten days in the City Record, and at least twice, at the expense of the petitioner, in two daily newspapers published in the city, to be designated by the mayor. The board of estimate and apportionment shall make inquiry as to the money value of the franchise or right proposed to be granted and the adequacy of the compensation proposed to be paid therefor, and shall embody the result of such inquiry in a form of contract, with all the terms and conditions, including the provisions as to rates, fares and charges. Such proposed contract, together with the form of resolution or resolutions for the granting of the same, shall, but not until after the hearing upon the petition, be entered on the minutes of the board of estimate and apportionment, and such board shall, not less than twenty-seven days after such entry and before authorizing such contract or adopting any such resolution, hold a public hearing thereon at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard. No such hearing shall be held until after notice thereof, and the proposed contract and proposed resolution of consent thereto, in full, shall have been published for at least fifteen days, except Sundays and legal holidays, immediately prior thereto in the City Record, nor until a notice of such hearing, together with the place where copies of the proposed contract and resolution of consent thereto may be obtained by all those interested therein, shall have been published at least twice at the expense of the proposed grantee in the two daily newspapers in which the petition and notice of hearing thereof shall have been published. Every contract or resolution containing or making such grant, shall require the concurrence of members of the board of estimate and apportionment, entitled, as provided by law, to three-fourths of the total number of votes to which all the members of the said board shall be entitled, and the votes shall be shown by the ayes and noes, as recorded in the minutes of the board. The separate and additional approval of the mayor shall be necessary to the validity of every such contract or resolution.

This act shall apply to any renewal or extension of the grant or leasing of the property to the same grantee, or to others. Within five days after the final execution of any contract made pursuant to any such resolution or any such authorization, a copy of such contract, together with such resolution, duly attested by the secretary of the board of estimate and apportionment, shall be transmitted to each of the following: The comptroller, the corporation counsel, the city clerk and the public service commission for the district having jurisdiction, to be preserved by them in the archives of their departments or offices. All such certified copies shall be deemed to be public records.

§ 75. (L. 1905, c. 629.) The board of aldermen may, from time to time, with respect to any grant which that board shall, under the authority of this act, have the exclusive power to make, pass appropriate ordinances, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the state, to carry the provisions of this title into effect, but shall not part with the right and duty at all times to exercise in the interest of the public, full municipal superintendence, regulation and control in respect of all matters connected with such grant, and not inconsistent with the terms thereof, § 798. (L. 1915, c. 594.) Any corporation or association created by or organized under the laws of any government other than the states of this Union, and having assets, funds, or capital, not less in amount than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, invested in this state, shall be liable to taxation upon such assets, funds or invested capital as the same is levied or assessed yearly by law, which tax shall be paid as follows: Such an amount thereof as would be equal to two per centum upon its gross premiums received for insurance upon property, in the city of New York shall, except as otherwise in this title provided, be paid annually to the fire commissioner as treasurer of the fire department, and the residue of said tax requisite to make up the full amount of taxation upon its capital shall be paid to the City of New York, as in the case of ordinary taxation; and the payments so made as aforesaid shall exempt such corporation or association making the same from any and all further taxation upon its premiums, capital or assets; and whenever such capital shall be reduced below said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or withdrawn entirely, then, and in either event, such corporation or association shall be liable to pay the tax upon its premiums as heretofore provided in this title.

§ 889. (L. 1911, c. 455). It shall be the duty of the deputy tax commissioners, under the direction of the board of taxes and assessments, to assess all the taxable property in the several districts that may be assigned to them for that purpose by said board, and they shall furnish to the said board, under oath, a detailed statement of all such property, showing that said deputies have personally examined each and every house, building, lot, pier or other assessable property, giving the street, lot, ward, town and map number of such real estate embraced within said district, together with the name of the owner or occupant, if known; also the sum for which, in their judgment, each separately assessed parcel of real estate under ordinary circumstances would sell if it were wholly unimproved; and separately stated, the sum for which under ordinary circumstances, the same parcel of real estate would sell with the improvements, if any, thereon; with such other information in detail relative to personal property or otherwise, as the said board may, from time to time, require. Such deputies shall commence to assess real and personal estate on the first day in April in each and every year not a Sunday or a legal holiday.

§ 889-a. (L. 1913, c. 324.) A building in course of construction, commenced since the preceding first day of October and not ready for occupancy, shall not be assessed.

§ 892. (L. 1911, c. 455.) There shall be kept in the several offices established by the department of taxes and assessments books to be called "the annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estate in the borough of . . . . .," in which shall be entered in detail the assessed valuation of such property within the limits of the several boroughs of the city of New York as established by this act. In such books the assessed value of real estate shall be set down in two columns; in the first column shall be given, opposite each separately assessed parcel of real estate, the sum for which such parcel under ordinary circumstances would sell if wholly unimproved; and in the second column shall be set down the sum for which the said parcel under ordinary circumstances, would sell, with the improvements, if any, thereon. The annual record of the assessed valuation of real property shall be open for public inspection, examination and correction from the first day in October not a Sunday or a legal holiday until the sixteenth day of November in each year, and the annual record of the assessed valuation of personal estate shall be open for public inspection, examination and correction from the first day in October not a Sunday, or a legal holiday until the first day of December in each year, but on the said respective days the same shall be closed to enable the board of taxes and assessments to prepare assessment-rolls of the several boroughs for delivery to the board of aldermen. The said board, previous to and during the time the said books are open as aforesaid for inspection, shall advertise the fact in the City Record and in such other newspaper or newspapers published in the several boroughs created by this act as may be authorized by the board of city record. The taxable status of all persons and property assessable for taxation in the city of New York shall be fixed for each year on the day of October in the preceding year provided by law for the opening of the books of annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estate of that year.

§ 892-a. (L. 1911, c. 455.) When prior to the first day of February, any separately assessed parcel of real estate shall have been divided the board of taxes and assessments may apportion the assessment thereof in such manner as they shall deem to be just and equitable and forthwith cause the assessment to be cancelled and new assessments, equal in the aggregate to the canceled assessment, to be made on the proper books or rolls, and within five days thereafter shall cause written notice of the new assessments to be mailed to the owners of record of the real estate so assessed at their last known residence or business address and an affidavit of the mailing of such notice to be filed in the main office. When such notice is mailed after the twenty-fifth day of October such owners of real estate may apply for correction of such assessments within twenty days after the mailing of such notice with the same force and effect as if such application were made on or before the fifteenth day of November in any year.

§ 893. (L. 1901, c. 466.) The department of taxes and assessments shall cause to be prepared and kept in the main office of the department of taxes and assessments a book to be called "the annual record of the assessed valuations of real and personal estate of corporations," and it shall be the duty of the deputy tax commissioners in the several districts in the several boroughs which may be assigned to them for that purpose by the board of taxes and assessments, under oath at their main office, at the time that such statement is filed in any office of the department of taxes and assessments in any borough other than in the main office in the borough of Manhattan, a duplicate detailed statement of the assessable property of corporations, both real and personal, which said statements of said deputy tax commissioners shall be entered upon the books to be kept in the main office of the department of taxes and assessments, to be known as the "Annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estate of corporations."

§ 894. (L. 1911, c. 455.) The assessed valuation of all personal property shall be entered by said deputy tax commissioners, or by such other persons as may be assigned to that duty by the department of taxes and assessments in the several offices, in books, or rolls, in alphabetical order, of the names of persons and corporations subject to taxation. No tax or assessment shall be void by reason of the name of the rightful owner or owners, whether individuals or corporations, of real estate in any of the said boroughs not being inscribed in the assessment rolls or lists; but in such case no tax shall be collected except from the real estate so assessed. The assessed valuation of all real and personal property of corporations shall be entered in duplicate in the office in the borough where the same is assessed and in the main office of the department of taxes and assessments in the borough of Manhattan. If, at any time prior to the first day of January in any one year, it shall appear to the tax commissioners that a person assessed for taxation on personal estate on the books or rolls of one borough should have been assessed therefor on the books or rolls of another borough, they shall forthwith cause the assessment to be cancelled and a new assessment to be made on the proper books or rolls, and within five days thereafter shall cause written notice of the new assessment to be mailed to such person at his last known residence or business address within the city of New York, and an affidavit of the mailing of such notice to be filed in the main office. The person so notified may apply for correction of such assessment on or before the twentieth day of January with the same force and effect as if such application were made on or before the thirtieth day of November in any year.

§ 894-a. (L. 1906, c. 207.) So long as the books of annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estate of the several boroughs remain open for public inspection, examination and correction, the board of taxes and assessments, after giving at least ten days' prior personal notice to the party in interest, may add to the roll of assessment of such annual record any real estate, or the name of the owner of any personal estate, and also the assessed valuation of any such real or personal estate that may have been omitted from such rolls on the day of the opening of such books.

§ 895. (L. 1913, c. 324.) During the time that books shall be open to public inspection as aforesaid application may be made by any person or corporation claiming to be aggrieved by the assessed valuation of real or personal estate, to have the same corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of real estate, it must be made in writing, stating the ground of objection thereto. The board of taxes and assessments shall examine into the complaint, as herein provided, and if in their judgment the assessment is erroneous they shall cause the same to be corrected. If such application be made in relation to the assessed valuation of personal estate, the applicant shall be examined under oath by a commissioner of taxes and assessments or by an assistant commissioner or assistant to a commissioner, or by a deputy tax commissioner, as herein provided, who are hereby authorized to administer such oath, and if the assessment as hereinafter provided be determined by the board of taxes and assessments to be erroneous, it shall cause the same to be corrected and fix the amount of such assessment as the board of taxes and assessments may believe to be just, and declare its decision upon and (sic — any) application within the time and in the manner hereinafter provided. But the commissioners of taxes and assessments may, during the last fifteen days of the month of November and during the months of December and January in any year, act upon applications, examine applicants under oath and take other testimony thereon, for the reduction of assessments upon either real or personal property filed in their offices on or before the fifteenth day of November preceding as to real estate, and on or before the thirtieth day of November preceding as to personal estate, and cause the amount of any assessment as corrected by the board of taxes and assessments to be entered upon the assessment rolls for the year for which such correction is made.

§ 896. (L. 1911, c. 455.) The board of taxes and assessments may increase at any time before the sixteenth day of November as to real estate, and before the first day of December as to personal estate in each year or may diminish at any time before the first day of December in each year, the assessed valuation for any real or personal estate of any individual or corporation as in its judgment may be just or necessary for the equalization of taxation; but it shall not increase such valuations of the property of any individual or corporation after said books are opened for correction and review, except upon notice given to the individual or corporation affected by such increase at least ten days before the fifteenth day of December in each year.

§ 897. (L. 1915, c. 592.) The board of taxes and assessments is hereby invested with power to remit or reduce where lawful cause therefore is shown. It may remit or reduce if found excessive or erroneous a tax imposed upon real or personal property. It shall require a majority of the commissioners of taxes and assessments to remit or reduce the assessed valuation of personal property, and no tax or personal property shall be remitted, canceled or reduced, except to correct clerical errors, unless the person aggrieved shall satisfy the board of taxes and assessments that illness or absence from the city had prevented the filing of the complaint or making the application to the said board within the time allowed by law for the correction of taxes. Any remission or reduction of taxes upon the real estate of individuals or corporations must be made within one year after the delivery of the books to the receiver of taxes for the collection of such tax. After the expiration of one year from the delivery of the books to the receiver of taxes, the comptroller, with the written approval of the board of taxes and assessments, may correct any erroneous assessment, or tax due to a clerical error, or to an error of description of any parcel of real estate, contained in the annual record of assessed valuations of real estate, and, if the taxes computed on said erroneous assessment have been paid, the comptroller is authorized to refund the difference between the taxes computed on the erroneous and the corrected assessments.

§ 898. (L. 1911, c. 455.) The board of taxes and assessments from the whole number of persons appointed as deputy tax commissioners shall, for each of the boroughs wherein one of the offices of the department of taxes and assessments is established and maintained, designate one or more deputy tax commissioners, who shall, between the first day of October in each year and the sixteenth day of November following as to real estate, and the first day of December following as to personal estate, receive applications for the revision and cancellation of any assessments entered in the books of annual record of the assessed valuation of real and personal estate in that borough, take testimony on such applications and reduce the same to writing, and when so reduced to writing transmit such applications and testimony, with his recommendation, to the board of taxes and assessments at its main office in the borough of Manhattan, or to any office of the department of taxes and assessments in any borough as the board of taxes and assessments may prescribe. Such deputy tax commissioners as may be designated for the purposes and as prescribed in this section are hereby authorized between the first day of October and the first day of December to administer oaths for the purpose of taking testimony upon all applications for the revision or cancellation of assessments, and they are hereby required and directed to transmit the evidence so taken and reduced to writing within ten days after the evidence upon any application is taken, with their recommendation, as hereinbefore described. The board of taxes and assessments shall hear at its main office all applications of corporations for revision and cancellation of assessments; and as to all other applications, the said board may prescribe the time and place of hearing thereof in the several boroughs and give such public notice thereof in the City Record and in at least one newspaper in each borough as it may designate, and the board may make such rules and regulations as may be appropriate and expedient to the end that the taxpayers of each borough, other than corporations, may have a hearing in the borough in which they reside or in which their property assessed is situated. All testimony taken by the board of taxes and assessments by any commissioner or by deputy tax commissioners, as herein prescribed, shall be reduced to writing and shall constitute part of the record of the proceedings upon any assessment. The decision of the board of taxes and assessments, upon any application for the revision, reduction or cancellation of any assessment and upon the evidence taken thereunder, shall, where the evidence is taken by the board of taxes and assessments, be rendered within thirty days after the hearing upon such application is closed, and in no case later than the first day of February. And where the evidence upon any application is taken by any commissioner or a deputy tax commissioner, the determination of the board of taxes and assessments shall be rendered within thirty days after the application and the testimony thereunder shall have been filed with the board of taxes and assessments at the main office of the department in the borough of Manhattan, and in no case later than the first day of February.

§ 905. (L. 1903, c. 210.) Nothing in this chapter shall affect any existing and valid exemption from taxation heretofore created by law respecting any property, real or personal, within the limits of the city of New York, as constituted by this act, and where by pre-existing laws stocks and bonds of any of the municipalities hereby consolidated were heretofore exempt within such municipalities from local taxation, the said stocks or bonds shall be exempt from all taxation by the said city of New York except for State purposes.

§ 906. (L. 1911, c. 455.) A certiorari to review or correct on the merits any final determination of the board of taxes and assessments shall be allowed by the supreme court or any justice thereof, directed to the commissioners of taxes and assessments on the verified petition of the party aggrieved, but only on the grounds which must be specified in such petition, that the assessment is illegal, and giving the particulars of the alleged illegality, or that it is erroneous by reason of overvaluation, or in case of real estate, that the same is erroneous by reason of irregularity, in that the assessment has been made at a higher proportionate valuation than the assessment of other real estate of like character in the same ward or section or other real estate on the tax-rolls of the city for the same year, specifying the instances in which such irregularity exists, and the extent thereof, and stating that he is or will be injured thereby. Such certiorari and all proceedings thereunder may be had and taken in the judicial district where such real estate is situated, and may be begun at any time before the first day of July following the time when the determination sought to be reviewed or corrected was made.

§ 908. (L. 1901, c. 466.) Whenever any act is required or authorized to be done or any determination or decision made by the board of taxes and assessments, or any other body or board, then in the absence of express provision to the contrary, any such act, if done, or any such determination or decision, if made by a majority of the body or board shall, within the meaning of this act, be held to be the act, determination or decision of the body or board.

§ 913. (L. 1901, c. 466.) The receiver of taxes upon receiving the assessment-rolls and warrants shall immediately cause the assessment-rolls and warrants for each of the several boroughs wherein he shall have an office, to be delivered at and filed in such office, and shall thereafter proceed to collect and receive said taxes from the several individuals and corporations assessed in the said assessment-rolls in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

§ 914. (L. 1916, c. 17.) The receiver of taxes shall immediately after he shall have received the assessment-rolls give public notice, for at least five days in the City Record and in such newspaper or newspapers published in the several boroughs as may be designated by the board of city record, or in default of any newspapers being published in any borough, in such newspaper or newspapers having a general circulation in such borough as the board of city record shall direct, that said assessment-rolls have been delivered to him and that all taxes shall be due and payable at his office in the said respective boroughs as follows:

All taxes upon personal property and one-half of all taxes upon real estate shall be due and payable on the first day of May and the remaining and final one-half of taxes on real estate shall be due and payable on the first of November. All taxes shall be and become liens on the real estate affected thereby and shall be construed as and deemed to be charges thereon on the respective days when they become due and payable as hereinbefore provided and not earlier and shall remain such liens until paid.

The second half of the tax on real estate which is due as hereinbefore provided on the first day of November following the payment of the first half, may be paid on the first day of May or at any time thereafter, providing the first half shall have been paid or shall be paid at the same time, and on such payments of the second half as may be made in such manner prior to November first a discount shall be allowed from the date of payment to November first at the rate of four per centum per annum.

§ 916. (L. 1911, c. 455.) If any tax on personal estate or the first one-half of any tax on real estate shall remain unpaid on the first day of June, after it shall become due and payable, it shall be the duty of the receiver of taxes to charge, receive and collect upon such tax so remaining unpaid on that day, interest upon the amount thereof, at the rate of seven per centum per annum, to be calculated from the day on which said taxes or such part thereof became due and payable, as provided by section nine hundred and fourteen of this act, to the date of payment; and such increase of percentage shall be paid over and accounted for by such receiver from time to time, as a part of the tax collected by him. If the final half of any tax on real estate shall remain unpaid on the first day of December, after it shall be due and payable, it shall be the duty of the receiver of taxes to charge, receive and collect upon such tax so remaining unpaid on that day, interest upon the amount thereof, at the rate of seven per centum per annum, to be calculated from the day on which said final half of said tax becomes due and payable, as provided by section nine hundred and fourteen of this act, to the date of payment; and such increase of percentage shall be paid over and accounted for by such receiver from time to time, as a part of the tax collected by him.

§ 921. (L. 1901, c. 466.) The said receiver of taxes shall proceed in enforcing the collection and payment of taxes against corporations or associations and their officers and directors, or trustees, in the same manner as against individuals; such taxes shall be paid out of the funds of the company and shall be ratably deducted from the dividends of those stockholders whose stock was taxed, or shall be charged upon such stock, if no dividends be afterward declared.

CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

§ 73. Attorney not to buy claim. An attorney or counsellor shall not, directly or indirectly, buy, or be in any manner interested in buying a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, book-debt, or other thing in action, with the intent and for the purpose of bringing an action thereon.

§ 74. Certain loans prohibited. An attorney or counsellor shall not, by himself, or by or in the name of another person, either before or after action brought, promise or give, or procure to be promised or given, a valuable consideration to any person, as an inducement to placing, or in consideration of having placed, in his hands, or in the hands of another person, a demand of any kind, for the purpose of bringing an action thereon, or of representing the claimant in the pursuit of any civil remedy for the recovery thereof. But this section does not apply to an agreement between attorneys and counsellors, or either, to divide between themselves the compensation to be received.

§ 75. Penalty. An attorney or counsellor, who violates either of the last two sections, is guilty of a misdemeanor; and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished accordingly, and must be removed from office by the supreme court.

§ 76. Limitation of preceding sections. The last three sections do not prohibit the receipt, by an attorney or counsellor, of a bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, book-debt, or other thing in action, in payment for property sold, or for services actually rendered, or for a debt antecedently contracted; or from buying, or receiving a bill of exchange, draft, or other thing in action for the purposes of remittance, and without intent to violate either of those sections.

§ 77. Same rule when party prosecutes in person, or when certain corporations prosecute. The last four sections apply to a person prosecuting an action in person and to a corporation engaged in the business of conducting litigation and providing counsel therefor, who or which does an act which an attorney or counsellor is therein forbidden to do.

§ 190. The jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals in civil actions. From and after the 31st day of May, 1917, the jurisdiction of the court of appeals shall, in civil actions and proceedings, be confined to the review upon appeal of an actual determination made by an appellate division of the supreme court in either of the following cases, and no others:

1. An appeal may be taken as of right to said court from a judgment or order entered upon the decision of an appellate division of the supreme court which finally determines an action or special proceeding where is directly involved the construction of the constitution of the state or of the United States, or where one or more of the justices of the appellate division dissents from the decision of the court, or where the judgment or order is one of reversal or modification.

2. An appeal may also be taken as of right to said court from an order of the appellate division granting a new trial on exceptions, where the appellants stipulate that, upon affirmance, judgment absolute shall be rendered against them.

3. An appeal may also be taken from a determination of the appellate division of the supreme court in any department, other than from a judgment or order which finally determines an action or special proceeding, where the appellate division allows the same, and certifies that one or more questions of law have arisen which, in its opinion, ought to be reviewed by the court of appeals, in which case the appeal brings up for review the question or questions so certified, and no other; and the court of appeals shall certify to the appellate division its determination upon such questions.

4. An appeal may also be taken from a judgment or order entered upon the decision of an appellate division of the supreme court which finally determines an action or special proceeding, but which is not appealable as of right under subdivision one of this section, where the appellate division shall certify that in its opinion a question of law is involved which ought to be reviewed by the court of appeals, or where, in case of the refusal so to certify, an appeal is allowed by the court of appeals. Such an appeal shall be allowed when required in the interest of substantial justice.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to an appeal taken to the court of appeals prior to the first day of June, 1917, but an appeal so taken shall be heard and determined under existing provisions of law.

§ 315. Jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of the city court of the city of New York, extends to the following cases:

1. An action against a natural person, or against a foreign or domestic corporation, wherein the complaint demands judgment for a sum of money only, or to recover one or more chattels, with or without damages for the taking or detention thereof.

2. An action to foreclose or enforce a lien upon real property in the city of New York, created as prescribed by statute, in favor of a person, who has performed labor upon, or furnished materials to be used in the construction, alteration or repair of a building, vault, wharf, fence, or other structure; or who has graded, filled in, or otherwise improved, a lot of land, or the sidewalk or street in front of or adjoining a lot of land.

3. An action to foreclose or enforce a lien, for a sum not exceeding five thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, upon one or more chattels.

4. The taking and entry of a judgment, upon the confession of one or more defendants, where the sum, for which judgment is confessed, does not exceed five thousand dollars, exclusive of interest from the time of making the statement, upon which the judgment is entered.

§ 316. The last section limited. The jurisdiction conferred by the last section is subject to the following limitations and regulations:

1. In an action wherein the complaint demands judgment for a sum of money only, the sum, for which judgment is rendered in favor of the plaintiff cannot exceed five thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, and costs as taxed; except where it is brought upon a bond or undertaking given in an action or special proceeding in the same court, or before a justice thereof; or to recover damages for a breach of promise of marriage; or where it is a marine cause, as that expression is defined in the next section. Where the action is brought upon a bond or other contract, the judgment must be for the sum actually due, without regard to a penalty therein contained; and where the money is payable in instalments, successive actions may be brought for the instalments, as they become due.

2. In an action to recover one or more chattels, a judgment cannot be rendered in favor of the plaintiff, for a chattel or chattels, the aggregate value of which exceeds five thousand dollars.

§ 341. Domestic corporation, etc., when deemed resident, etc. For the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of a county court, in either of the cases specified in the last section, a domestic corporation or joint-stock association, whose principal place of business is established, by or pursuant to a statute, or by its articles of association, or whose principal place of business or any part of its plant or plants, shops, factories or offices is actually located within the county, or in case of a railroad corporation where any portion of the road operated by it is within the county, it is deemed a resident of the county; and personal service of a summons, made within the county, as prescribed in this act, or personal service of a mandate, whereby a special proceeding is commenced, made within the county, as prescribed in this act for personal service of a summons, is sufficient service thereof upon a domestic corporation wherever it is located. Provided, however, that a city which shall include within its boundaries more than one county shall not for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction on a county court be deemed a domestic corporation resident of any county so included.

§ 370. Adverse possession under written instrument or judgment; what constitutes it. For the purpose of constituting an adverse possession, by a person claiming a title, founded upon a written instrument, or a judgment or decree, land is deemed to have been possessed and occupied in either of the following cases:

1. Where it has been usually cultivated or improved.
2. Where it has been protected by a substantial inclosure.
3. Where, although not inclosed, it has been used for the supply of fuel, or of fencing timber, either for the purposes of husbandry, or for the ordinary use of the occupant.

Where a known farm or a single lot has been partly improved the portion of the farm or lot that has been left not cleared, or not inclosed, according to the usual course and custom of the adjoining country, is deemed to have been occupied for the same length of time, as the part improved and cultivated.

§ 382. Within six years. Within six years:

1. An action upon a contract obligation or liability, express or implied; except a judgment or sealed instrument.
2. An action to recover upon a liability created by statute; except a penalty or forfeiture.
3. An action to recover damages for an injury to property, or a personal injury; except in a case where a different period is expressly prescribed in this chapter.
4. An action to recover a chattel.
5. An action to procure a judgment, other than for a sum of money, on the ground of fraud, in a case which, on the thirty-first day of December, 1846, was cognizable by the court of chancery. The cause of action, in such a case, is not deemed to have accrued, until the discovery, by the plaintiff, or the person under whom he claims, of the facts constituting the fraud.
6. An action to establish a will. Where the will has been lost, concealed, or destroyed, the cause of action is not deemed to have accrued, until the discovery, by the plaintiff, or the person under whom he claims, of the facts upon which its validity depends.
7. An action upon a judgment or decree, rendered in a court not of record, except where a transcript shall be filed, pursuant to section 3017 of this act, and, also, except a decree heretofore rendered in a surrogate's court of the State. The cause of action, in such a case, is deemed to have accrued when final judgment was rendered.

§ 388. Actions not before provided for. An action, the limitation of which is not specially prescribed in this or the last title, must be commenced within ten years after the cause of action accrues.

§ 390. Action against a non-resident upon a demand barred by the law of his residence. Where a cause of action, which does not involve the title to or possession of real property within the State, accrues against a person, who is not then a resident of the State, an action cannot be brought thereon in a court of the State, against him or his personal representative, after the expiration of the time, limited by the laws of his residence, for bringing a like action, provided that if the limitation of the time fixed by the laws of his residence for bringing such action be less than the time fixed by the laws of this State for a like action, the limitation fixed by the laws of this State shall apply. This section shall not apply to a case in which a person is entitled, when this section as amended takes effect, to commence such action, where he commences the same before the expiration of six months after this section as amended takes effect; in which case the provisions of law applicable thereto immediately before this section as amended takes effect shall continue to be so applicable, notwithstanding the repeal thereof.

§ 393. No limitation of action on bank notes, etc. This chapter does not affect an action to enforce the payment of a bill, note, or other evidence of debt issued by a moneyed corporation, or issued or put in circulation as money.

§ 394. Action against directors, etc., of banks. This chapter does not affect an action against a director or stockholder of a moneyed corporation, or banking association, to recover a penalty or forfeiture imposed, to enforce a liability created by the common law or by statute; but such an action must be brought within three years after the cause of action has accrued.

§ 399. Attempt to commence action in a court of record. An attempt to commence an action, in a court of record, is equivalent to the commencement thereof against each defendant, within the meaning of each provision of this act which limits the time for commencing an action, when the summons is delivered, with the intent that it shall be actually served, to the sheriff, or, where the sheriff is a party, to a coroner of the county, in which that defendant, or one of two or more co-defendants, who are joint contractors, or otherwise united in interest with him, resides or last resided; or, if the defendant is a corporation, to a like officer of the county, in which it is established by law, or wherein its general business is or was last transacted, or wherein its keeps, or has kept, an office for the transaction of business. But in order to entitle a plaintiff to the benefit of this section, the delivery of the summons to an officer must be followed, within sixty days after the expiration of the time limited for the actual commencement of the action, by personal service thereof upon the defendant sought to be charged, or by the first publication of the summons, as against that defendant, pursuant to an order for service upon him in that manner.

§ 400. Id.; in a court not of record. The last section, excluding the provision requiring a publication or service of the summons within sixty days, applies to an attempt to commence an action in a court not of record, where the summons is delivered to an officer authorized to serve the same, within the city or town, wherein the person resides or the corporation is located, as specified in that section; provided that actual service thereof is made with due diligence.

§ 401. Exception, when defendant is without the State. If, when the cause of action accrues against a person, he is without the state, the action may be commenced within the time limited therefor, after his return into the state. If, after a cause of action has accrued against a person, he departs from the state, and remains continuously absent therefrom for the space of one year or more, or if, without the knowledge of the person entitled to maintain the action, he resides within the state under a false name, the time of his absence or of such residence within the state under such false name is not a part of the time, limited for the commencement of the action. But this section does not apply while a designation, made as prescribed in section 430 or in subdivision second of section 432 of this act remains in force.

§ 431. How personal service of summons made upon a domestic corporation. Personal service of the summons upon a defendant, being a domestic corporation, must be made by delivering a copy thereof, within the State, as follows:

1. If the action is against the mayor, aldermen, and commonalty of the city of New York, to the mayor, comptroller, or counsel to the corporation.

2. If the action is against any other city, to the mayor, treasurer, counsel, attorney, or clerk; or, if the city lacks either of those officers, to the officer performing corresponding functions, under another name.

3. In any other case, to the president or other head of the corporation, the secretary or clerk to the corporation, the cashier, the treasurer, or a director or managing agent.

§ 432. Id.; upon a foreign corporation. Personal service of the summons upon a defendant, being a foreign corporation, must be made by delivering a copy thereof, within the State, as follows:

1. To the president, vice-president, treasurer, assistant treasurer, secretary or assistant secretary; or, if the corporation lacks either of those officers, to the officer performing corresponding functions, under another name.

2. To a person designated for the purpose as provided in section 16 of the General Corporation Law.

3. If such a designation is not in force, or if neither the person designated, nor an officer specified in subdivision first of this section, can be found with due diligence, and the corporation has property within the State, or the cause of action arose therein; to the cashier, a director, or a managing agent of the corporation, within the State.

4. If the person designated as provided in section 16 of the General Corporation Law dies or removes from the place where the corporation has its principal place of business within the State and the corporation does not within thirty days after such death or removal designate in like manner another person upon whom process against it may be served within the State, process, against the corporation in an action upon any liability incurred within this State or if the corporation has property within the State may after such death, removal or revocation and before another designation is made be served upon the secretary of State.

§ 433. Service of process, etc., to commence a special proceeding. The provisions of this article, relating to the mode of service of a summons, apply likewise to the service of any process or other paper, whereby a special proceeding is commenced in a court or before an officer except a proceeding to punish for contempt, and except where special provision for the service thereof is otherwise made by law.

§ 435. Order for service of summons from court of record, when defendant not found, etc. Where a summons is issued in any court of record, an order for the service thereof upon a defendant, whether a domestic corporation, other than a municipal corporation, a joint-stock or other unincorporated association or a natural person, residing within the state may be made by the court, or a judge thereof, or the county judge of the county where the action is triable upon satisfactory proof, by the affidavit of a person, not a party to the action, or by the return of the sheriff of the county where such defendant resides, or has its principal office or place of business, that proper and diligent effort has been made to serve the summons upon the defendant and that none of the persons mentioned in subdivision three of section 431, nor the president or treasurer of such association, can be found, or if the defendant is a natural person, that the place of his sojourn cannot be ascertained, or if he is within the state, that he avoids service, so that personal service cannot be made.

§ 436. How service must be made. The order must direct that the service of the summons be made, by leaving a copy thereof, and of the order, if the defendant is a domestic corporation or joint-stock or other unincorporated association at its principal office or place of business, or if a natural person at the residence of the defendant, with a person of proper age, if upon reasonable application, admittance can be obtained, and such person found who will receive it; or, if admittance cannot be so obtained, nor such a person found, by affixing the same to the outer or other door of the defendant's said place of business or office, or of his residence, and by depositing another copy thereof, properly enclosed in a postpaid wrapper, addressed to the defendant at its said principal office or place of business, or to him at his place of residence, in the post-office at the place where he resides, or where said office, place of business or residence is located, or upon proof being made by affidavit that no such residence can be found, service of the summons may be made in such manner as the court may direct.

§ 438. Cases in which service of summons by publication, etc., may be ordered. An order directing the service of a summons upon a defendant, by publication, may be made in either of the following cases:

1. Where the defendant to be served is a foreign corporation; or, is an unincorporated association consisting of seven or more persons, having a president and treasurer, neither of whom is a resident of this state; or, being a domestic corporation, where after diligent effort, service cannot be made within the state upon the president or other head of the corporation, the secretary or clerk to the corporation, the cashier, the treasurer or a director or managing agent; or, being a natural person, is not a resident of the state; or where, after diligent inquiry, the defendant remains unknown to the plaintiff, or the plaintiff is unable to ascertain whether the defendant is or is not a resident of the state.

2. Where the defendant, being a resident of the state, has departed therefrom, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a summons; or keeps himself concealed therein, with like intent.

3. Where the defendant, being an adult, and a resident of the state, has been continuously without the state of New York more than six months next before the granting of the order, and has not made a designation of a person, upon whom to serve a summons in his behalf, as prescribed in section 430 of this act; or a designation so made no longer remains in force; or service upon the person so designated cannot be made within the state, after diligent effort.

4. Where the complaint demands judgment annulling a marriage, or for a divorce, or a separation.

5. Where the complaint demands judgment, that the defendant be excluded from a vested or contingent interest in or lien upon, specific real or personal property within the state; or that such an interest or lien in favor of either party be enforced, regulated, defined, or limited; or otherwise affecting the title to such property.

6. Where the defendant is a resident of the state or a domestic corporation; and an attempt was made to commence the action against the defendant, as required in chapter fourth of this act, before the expiration of the limitation applicable thereto as fixed in that chapter; and the limitation would have expired, within sixty days next preceding the application, if time had not been extended by the attempt to commence the action.

7. Where the action is against the stockholders of a corporation, or joint-stock company, and is authorized by a law of the state, and the defendant is a stockholder thereof.

When a copy of the summons is required by subdivision first or subdivision second of section 426 of this act, or by section 429 of this act, to be delivered to a person other than the defendant, an order directing the service upon such person by publication, may be made as prescribed in this section, as if such person was the defendant in the action, and upon a verified complaint and the same proof with respect to such person, as is required in the next succeeding section with respect to a defendant. And sections 440 to 444, both inclusive, apply to the proceedings in like manner as if such person was a defendant.

§ 439. Papers upon which order for publication may be made. The order must be founded upon a verified complaint, showing a sufficient cause of action against the defendant to be served, and proof by affidavit of the additional facts required by the last section; and also, where the application is made upon the ground that the defendant is a foreign corporation, or not a resident of the State, or in a case specified in subdivision fourth, fifth, or seventh of the last section, that the plaintiff has been or will be unable, with due diligence, to make personal service of the summons.

§ 440. By whom order may be made; contents of order. The order may be made by the court or by a judge thereof or the county judge of the county where the action is triable. It must direct that service of the summons, upon the defendant named or described in the order, be made by publication thereof in two newspapers, designated in the order as most likely to give notice to the defendant, for a specified time, which the judge deems reasonable, not less than once a week for six successive weeks. It must also contain, either a direction that, on or before the day of the first publication, the plaintiff deposit in a post-office, branch post-office or post-office station, one or more sets of copies of the summons, complaint and order, each contained in a securely closed post-paid wrapper, directed to the defendant, at a place specified in the order, or a statement that the court or judge, being satisfied, by the affidavits upon which the order was granted, that the plaintiff cannot, with reasonable diligence, ascertain a place or places, where the defendant would probably receive matter transmitted through the post-office, dispenses with the deposit of any papers therein.

§ 443. Service without the State.

1. Where service is made without the State under an order for publication of the summons, the papers specified in the last section must be previously filed; and a notice must be served with the summons, in all respects like the notice required by the last section, except that the words, "without the State of New York," must be substituted for the words, "by publication."

2. In all cases when publication is ordered, personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint and such notice, out of the State, is equivalent to publication and deposit in the post-office.

3. In the cases specified in subdivision five of section 438 the summons may be served without an order, upon a defendant without the State in the same manner as if such service were made within the State, except that a copy of the complaint shall be annexed to and served with the summons.

4. Service without the State is complete ten days after proof thereof is filed.

5. When the summons is served personally without the state the affidavit of service must show that the person making it is a resident or citizen of the state of New York, or a sheriff, or under sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable of the county or other political subdivision in which the service is made, or an officer authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments of deeds to be recorded in this state, an attorney and counsellor at law duly qualified to practice in the state where such service is made or by a United States marshal.

When such affidavit is made by a resident or citizen of the state of New York, his place of residence, and street number, if any, shall be stated therein. The affidavit of service made without the state shall contain the official designation of the person making it and shall have annexed thereto a certificate of the proper official showing that the person before whom the affidavit was sworn to was, at the time of administering the oath, qualified to act.

6. A judgment shall be conclusive upon a defendant on whom the summons is personally served without the State, with respect to the property which is the subject of the action, or which is attached therein, to the same extent as if the service upon him were made within the State.

§ 446. Who may be joined as plaintiffs. All persons having an interest in the subject of the action, and in obtaining the judgment demanded, may be joined as plaintiffs, except as otherwise expressly prescribed in this act.

§ 447. Who may be joined as defendants. Any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff or who is a necessary party defendant for the complete determination or settlement of a question involved therein, except as otherwise expressly prescribed in this act. In any action brought affecting real estate upon which the people of the State of New York have a claim to have a lien under the transfer tax act, the said people of the state of New York may be made a party defendant in the same manner as a private person, but where the people of the state of New York are made a party defendant, as herein provided, the complaint shall set forth, in addition to the matters required to be set forth by the code of civil procedure, the name or names of the decedent or decedents against whose estate there is an unpaid transfer tax, the place of residence of decedent at the time of death, the heirs at law and next of kin of decedent and if decedent left none that fact shall be stated, whether decedent died testate or intestate, and whether the estate of decedent has been administered, and if so where; and if not administered, such facts shall be stated; and also that the people of the state of New York are made a party defendant for no other reason than the lien of said transfer tax. Upon failure to state such facts, the complaint shall be dismissed as to the people of the state of New York. In such a case the summons must be served on the attorney-general, who may appear in behalf of the people.

§ 448. Parties united in interest, when to be joined; when one or more may sue or defend for the whole. Of the parties to the action, those who are united in interest must be joined as plaintiffs or defendants, except as otherwise expressly prescribed in this act. But if the consent of any one, who ought to be joined as a plaintiff, cannot be obtained, he may be made a defendant, the reason therefor being stated in the complaint. And where the question is one of a common or general interest of many persons; or where the persons, who might be made parties, are very numerous, and it may be impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of all.

§ 449. Party in interest to sue. Trustee, etc., may sue alone. Every action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except that an executor or administrator, a trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue, without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. A person, with whom or in whose name, a contract is made for the benefit of another, is a trustee of an express trust, within the meaning of this section.

§ 452. When court to decide controversy, or to order other parties to be brought in. The court may determine the controversy, as between the parties before it, where it can do so without prejudice to the rights of others, or by saving their rights; but where a complete determination of the controversy cannot be had without the presence of other parties, the court must direct them to be brought in. And where a person, not a party to the action, has an interest in the subject thereof, or in real property, the title to which may in any manner be affected by the judgment, or in real property for injury to which the complaint demands relief, and makes application to the court to be made a party, it must direct him to be brought in by the proper amendment.

§ 481. Complaint; what to contain. The complaint must contain:

1. The title of the action, specifying the name of the court in which it is brought; if it is brought in the supreme court, the name of the county, which the plaintiff designates as the place of trial; and the names of all the parties to the action, plaintiff and defendant.

2. A plain and concise statement of the facts constituting each cause of action without unnecessary repetition.

3. A demand of the judgment to which the plaintiff supposes himself entitled.

§ 484. What causes of action may be joined in the same complaint. The plaintiff may unite in the same complaint, two or more causes of action, whether they are such as were formerly denominated legal or equitable, or both, where they are brought to recover, as follows:

1. Upon contract, express or implied.
2. For personal injuries except libel, slander, criminal conversation or seduction.
3. For libel or slander.
4. For injuries to real property.
5. Real property, in ejectment, with or without damages for the withholding thereof.
6. For injuries to personal property.
7. Chattels, with or without damages for the taking or detention thereof.
8. Upon claims against a trustee, by virtue of a contract, or by operation of law.
9. Upon claims arising out of the same transaction, or transactions connected with the same subject of action, and not included within one of the foregoing subdivisions of this section.
10. For penalties incurred under the forest, fish and game law.
11. For penalties incurred under the agricultural law.
12. For penalties incurred under the public health law.

But it must appear, on the face of the complaint, that all the causes of action, so united, belong to one of the foregoing subdivisions of this section; that they are consistent with each other; and, except as otherwise prescribed by law, that they affect all the parties to the action; and it must appear upon the face of the complaint, that they do not require different places of trial.

§ 488. When he may demur. The defendant may demur to the complaint, where one or more of the following objections thereto appear upon the face thereof:

1. That the court has not jurisdiction of the person of the defendant.
2. That the court has not jurisdiction of the subject of the action.
3. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue.
4. That there is another action pending between the same parties, for the same cause.
5. That there is a misjoinder of parties plaintiff.
6. That there is a defect of parties, plaintiff or defendant.
7. That causes of action have been improperly united.
8. That the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

§ 498. When objection may be taken by answer.—Where any of the matters enumerated in section 488 of this act as grounds of demurrer, do not appear on the face of the complaint, the objection may be taken by answer.

§ 499. Objection; when deemed waived. If such an objection is not taken, either by demurrer or answer, the defendant is deemed to have waived it; except the objection to the jurisdiction of the court, or the objection that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

§ 507. Defendant may interpose several defences or counterclaims; rules relating thereto. A defendant may set forth, in his answer, as many defences or counterclaims, or both, as he has, whether they are such as were formerly denominated legal or equitable. Each defence or counterclaim must be separately stated, and numbered. Unless it is interposed as an answer to the entire complaint, it must distinctly refer to the cause of action which it is intended to answer.

§ 516. Cases where the court may require a reply. Where an answer contains new matter, constituting a defence by way of avoidance, the court may, in its discretion, on the defendant's application, direct the plaintiff to reply to the new matter. In that case, the reply, and the proceedings upon failure to reply, are subject to the same rules as in the cases of a counterclaim.

§ 525. Verification; how and by whom made. The verification must be made by the affidavit of the party, or, if there are two or more parties united in interest, and pleading together, by at least one of them, who is acquainted with the facts, except as follows:

1. Where the party is a domestic corporation, the verification must be made by an officer thereof.

2. Where the people of the State are, or a public officer, in their behalf, is the party, the verification may be made by any person acquainted with the facts.

3. Where the party is a foreign corporation; or where the party is not within the county where the attorney resides, or if the latter is not a resident of the State, the county where he has his office, and capable of making the affidavit; or if there are two or more parties united in interest, and pleading together, where neither of them, acquainted with the facts is within the county, and capable of making the affidavit; or where the action or defence is founded upon a written instrument for the payment of money only, which is in the possession of the agent or the attorney; or where all the material allegations of the pleading are within the personal knowledge of the agent or the attorney; in either case the verification may be made by the agent or the attorney for the party.

§ 526. Form of affidavit of verification. The affidavit of verification must be to the effect that the pleading is true to the knowledge of the deponent except as to the matters therein stated to be alleged on information and belief, and that as to those matters he believes it to be true. Where it is made by a person, other than the party, he must set forth, in the affidavit, the grounds of his belief, as to all matters not stated upon his knowledge, and the reason why it is not made by the party.

§ 533. Conditions precedent; how pleaded. In pleading the performance of a condition precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts constituting performance; but the party may state, generally, that he, or the person whom he represents, duly performed all the conditions on his part. If that allegation is controverted, he must, on the trial, establish performance.

§ 549. When the right to arrest depends upon the nature of the action. A defendant may be arrested in an action, as prescribed in this title, where the action is brought for either of the following causes:

1. To recover a fine or penalty.

2. To recover damages for a personal injury; an injury to property, including the wrongful taking, detention or conversion of personal property; breach of a promise to marry; misconduct or neglect in office, or in a professional employment; fraud, or deceit; or to recover a chattel where it is alleged in the complaint that the chattel or a part thereof has been concealed, removed or disposed of so that it cannot be found or taken by the sheriff and, with intent that it should not be so found or taken, or to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof; or to recover for money received, or to recover property or damages for the conversion or misapplication of property where it is alleged in the complaint that the money was received or the property was embezzled or fraudulently misapplied by a public officer or by an attorney, solicitor or counsellor, or by an officer or agent of a corporation or banking association in the course of his employment, or by a factor, agent, broker, or other person in a fiduciary capacity. Where such allegation is made, the plaintiff cannot recover unless he proves the same on the trial of the action; and a judgment for the defendant is not a bar to the new action to recover the money or chattel.

3. To recover moneys, funds, or property held or owned by the State, or held or owned officially or otherwise for or in behalf of a public or governmental interest by a municipal or other public corporation, board, officer, custodian, agency, or agent, of the State or of a city, county, town, village, or other division, subdivision, department, or portion of the State, which the defendant has, without right, obtained, received, converted, or disposed of; or to recover damages for so obtaining, receiving, paying, converting, or disposing of the same.

4. In an action upon contract, express or implied, other than a promise to marry, where it is alleged in the complaint that the defendant was guilty of a fraud in contracting or incurring the liability, or that he has, since the making of the contract, or in contemplation of making of the same, removed or disposed of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, or is about to remove or dispose of the same with like intent; but where such allegation is made, the plaintiff cannot recover unless he proves the fraud on the trial of the action; and a judgment for the defendant is not a bar to a new action to recover upon the contract only.

§ 603. Injunction, when the right thereto depends upon the nature of the action. Where it appears, from the complaint, that the plaintiff demands and is entitled to a judgment against the defendant, restraining the commission or continuance of an act, the commission or continuance of which, during the pendency of the action, would produce injury to the plaintiff, an injunction order may be granted to restrain it. The case, provided for in this section, is described in this act, as a case, where the right to an injunction depends upon the nature of the action.

§ 604. Id.; when the right thereto depends upon extrinsic facts. In either of the following cases, an injunction order may also be granted in an action:

1. Where it appears, by affidavit, that the defendant, during the pendency of the action, is doing, or procuring, or suffering to be done, or threatens, or is about to do, to procure, or suffer to be done, an act, in violation of the plaintiff's rights, respecting the subject of the action, and tending to render the judgment ineffectual, an injunction order may be granted to restrain him therefrom.

2. Where it appears, by affidavit, that the defendant, during the pendency of the action, threatens, or is about to remove, or to dispose of his property, with intent to defraud the plaintiff, an injunction order may be granted, to restrain the removal or disposition.

§ 610. Order must recite grounds; service of order. The injunction order must briefly recite the grounds for the injunction. Where it is granted by the court, it must be served by delivering a certified copy thereof; where it is granted by a judge, it must be served by showing the original order, and delivering a copy thereof. Service of the order, upon a corporation, may be made as prescribed in this act, for making personal service of a summons upon a corporation. Copies of the papers, upon which the order was granted, must be delivered with the copy of the order.

§ 624. Damages sustained by a third person. Where the defendant enjoined was an officer of a corporation, or joint-stock association, or a bailee, agent, trustee, or other representative of another, and the damages, sustained by him, are less than the sum specified in the undertaking, the court or the referee may also separately ascertain and determine the damages sustained, by reason of the injunction, by the corporation, association, or person, whom the defendant represents, to an amount not exceeding the surplus of the sum specified in the undertaking; and those damages may be recovered in a separate action, brought as prescribed in the next section.

§ 635. In what actions. A warrant of attachment against the property of one or more defendants in an action, may be granted upon the application of the plaintiff, as specified in the next section, whether the action is to recover a sum of money only, as damages for one or more of the following causes:

1. Breach of contract, express or implied, other than a contract to marry.
2. Wrongful conversion of personal property.

3. An injury to person or property, in consequence of negligence, fraud or other wrongful act.

4. A wrongful act, neglect or default by which the decedent's death was caused, when the cause of action arose in this state before or after the passage of this act and the action is brought by an executor or administrator against a natural person who, or a corporation which would have been liable to an action in favor of the decedent by reason thereof if death had not ensued as prescribed by section 1902 of this act.

§ 636. What must be shown to procure the warrant. To entitle the plaintiff to such a warrant, he must show, by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the judge granting the same, as follows:

1. That one of the causes of action specified in the last section exists against the defendant. If the action is to recover damages for breach of contract, the affidavit must show that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, over and above all counterclaims known to him.

2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation or not a resident of the state; or if he is a natural person and a resident of the state, that he has departed therefrom, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a summons, or keeps himself concealed therein with the like intent; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from the state, with intent to defraud his or its creditors; or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of or secrete property with the like intent; or where, for the purpose of procuring credit, or the extension of credit, the defendant has made a false statement in writing, under his own hand or signature, or under the hand or signature of a duly authorized agent, made with his knowledge and acquiescence as to his financial responsibility or standing, or, where the defendant, being an adult and a resident of the state, has been continuously without the state of New York for more than six months next before the granting of the order of publication of the summons against him, and has not made a designation of a person upon whom to serve a summons in his behalf, as prescribed in section 430 of this act; or a designation so made no longer remains in force; or service upon the person so designated cannot be made within the state, after diligent effort.

§ 638. When and by whom the warrant may be granted. The warrant may be granted by a judge of the court, or by any county judge, to accompany the summons, or at any time after the commencement of the action, and before final judgment therein. Personal service of the summons must be made upon the defendant, against whose property the warrant is granted, within thirty days after the granting thereof; or else, before the expiration of the same time, service of the summons by publication must be commenced, or service thereof must be made without the State, pursuant to an order obtained therefor, as prescribed in this act; and if publication has been, or is thereafter commenced, the service must be made complete, by the continuance thereof.

§ 641. Contents of warrant; to whom directed. The warrant must be subscribed by the judge and the plaintiff's attorney, and must briefly recite the ground of the attachment. It may be directed, either to the sheriff of a particular county, or, generally to the sheriff of any county. It must require the sheriff to attach and safely keep, so much of the property, within his county, which the defendant has, or which he may have, at any time before final judgment in the action, as will satisfy the plaintiff's demand, with costs and expenses. The amount of the plaintiff's demand must be specified in the warrant, as stated in the affidavit. Warrants may be issued at the same time, to sheriffs of different counties.

§ 644. Sheriff must attach property of defendant. The sheriff must immediately execute the warrant, by levying upon so much of the personal and real property of the defendant, within his county, not exempt from levy and sale by virtue of an execution, as will satisfy the plaintiff's demand, with the costs and expenses. He must take into his custody all books of account, vouchers, and other papers, relating to the personal property attached, and all evidences of the defendant's title to the real property attached, which he must safely keep, to be disposed of, as prescribed in this title. The sheriff, to whom a warrant of attachment is delivered, may levy, from time to time, and as often as is necessary, until the amount, for which it was issued, has been secured, or final judgment has been rendered in the action, notwithstanding the expiration of his term of office.

§ 646. Attachment of unpaid subscription to foreign corporation. Under a warrant of attachment against a foreign corporation, other than a corporation created by or under the laws of the United States, the sheriff may levy upon the sum remaining unpaid upon a subscription to the capital stock of the corporation, made by a person within the county; or upon one or more shares of stock therein, held by such a person, or transferred by him, for the purpose of avoiding payment thereof.

§ 647. Id.; interest in shares or bonds. The rights or shares which the defendant has in the stock of an association or corporation, or in a bond negotiable or otherwise, together with the interest and profits thereon, may be levied upon; and the sheriff's certificate of the sale thereof entitles the purchaser to the same rights and privileges, with respect thereto, which the defendant had when they were so attached.

§ 648. Id; bond, note, etc. The attachment may also be levied upon a cause of action arising upon contract; including a bond, promissory note or other instrument for the payment of money only, negotiable or otherwise, whether past due, or yet to become due, executed by a foreign or domestic government, state, county, public officer, association, municipal or other corporation, or by a private person, either within or without the state; which belongs to the defendant, and is found within the county. The levy of the attachment thereupon is deemed a levy upon, and a seizure and attachment of, the debt represented thereby. The attachment may also be levied upon a right or interest, present or future, to any of the property or estate of a deceased person which may belong to the defendant and which could be legally assigned by him as legatee or distributee, whether the same exists by reason of the provisions of a last will and testament admitted to probate at the time the attachment is granted, or by operation of the law in case of the intestacy of the deceased. Levy of the attachment thereupon is deemed a levy upon, and a seizure and attachment of, the rights and interests of the defendant at the time of such levy, subject to the rights of the executor, administrator or trustee or such state to administer the same according to law.

§ 649. How property to be attached. A levy under a warrant of attachment must be made as follows:

1. Upon real property, by filing with the clerk of the county, where it is situated a notice of the attachment, stating the names of the parties to the action, the amount of the plaintiff's claim, as stated in the warrant, and a description of the particular property levied upon. The notice must be subscribed by the plaintiff's attorney, adding the office address; and must be recorded and indexed by the clerk, in the same book, in like manner, and with like effect, as a notice of the pendency of an action.

2. Upon the personal property, capable of manual delivery, including a bond, promissory note, or other instrument for the payment of money, by taking the same into the sheriff's actual custody. He must thereupon, without delay, deliver to the person from whose possession the property is taken, if any, a copy of the warrant, and of the affidavits upon which it was granted.

3. Upon other personal property, by leaving a certified copy of the warrant, and a notice showing the property attached, with the person holding the same; or, if it consists of a demand, other than as specified in the last subdivision, with the person against whom it exists; or, if it consists of a right or share in the stock of an association or corporation, or interests or profits thereon, with the president, or other head of the association or corporation, or the secretary, cashier, or managing agent thereof, or if it consists of a right or interest in an estate of a deceased person arising under the provisions of a will or under the provisions of law in case of intestacy, with the executor or trustee under the will, or the administrator of the estate.

4. Upon property discovered in any action brought as prescribed in subdivision two of section 655 of this act, by entering in the proper clerk's office, the judgment rendered in said action, and thereafter levying on said property in the manner prescribed in subdivision one, two and three of this section.

§ 650. Certificate of defendant's interest to be furnished. Upon the application of a sheriff, holding a warrant of attachment, the president or other head of an association or corporation, or the secretary, cashier, or managing agent thereof, or a debtor of the defendant, or a person holding property, including a bond, promissory note, or other instrument for the payment of money, belonging to the defendant, must furnish to the sheriff a certificate, under his hand, specifying the rights or number of shares of the defendant, in the stock of the association or corporation, with all dividends declared or incumbrances thereon; or the amount, nature, and description of the property, held for the benefit of the defendant, or to the defendant's interest in property so held, or of the debt of demand owing to the defendant, as the case requires.

§ 651. Person refusing certificate may be examined. If a person, to whom application is made, as prescribed in the last section, refuses to give such a certificate; or if it is made to appear, by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the court, or a judge thereof, or the county judge of the county to which the warrant is issued, that there is reason to suspect that a certificate given by him is untrue, or that it fails fully to set forth the facts required to be shown thereby; the court or judge may make an order, directing him to attend, at a specified time, and at a place within the county to which the warrant is issued, and submit to an examination under oath, concerning the same. The order may, in the discretion of the court or judge, direct an appearance before a referee named therein.

§ 677. Plaintiff may bring action in name of himself and the sheriff. The plaintiff, by leave of the court or judge, procured as prescribed in the next section, may bring and maintain, in the name of himself and the sheriff jointly, by his own attorney, and at his own expense, any action which, by the provisions of this title, may be brought by the sheriff, to recover property attached, or the value thereof, or a demand attached, or upon an undertaking given as prescribed in this title, by a person other than the plaintiff; but the plaintiff, in his own name and the sheriff's jointly, may also bring and maintain any action which, by the provisions of subdivision two of section 655 of article second of this title, may be brought by the sheriff. The sheriff must receive the proceeds of such action, but he is not liable for the costs or expenses thereof. Costs may be awarded, in such an action, against the plaintiff in the warrant, but not against the sheriff.

§ 678. How leave to bring such action procured. The court or judge must grant leave to bring such an action, where it appears, that due notice of the application therefor has been given to the sheriff; but, before doing so, the court or judge may require that notice of the application be given to the plaintiff, in any other warrant against the same defendant. And such terms, conditions, and regulations may be imposed, in the order granting leave, as the court or judge thinks proper, for the due protection of the rights and interests of all persons, interested in the disposition of the proceeds of the action.

§ 688. Undertaking to be given. Upon such an application, the defendant must give an undertaking, with at least two sufficient sureties, to the effect that he will, on demand, pay to the plaintiff the amount of any judgment which may be recovered in the action against him, not exceeding a sum specified in the undertaking, with interest. The sum so specified must be, at least equal to the amount of the plaintiff's demand, as specified in his affidavit; or, at the option of the defendant, equal to the appraised value, according to the inventory, of the property attached; or, if the application is to discharge the attachment, as to a part only of the property attached, to the appraised value of that portion. Upon such application being made after final judgment, the defendant must give the security required to perfect an appeal to the court of appeals from a final judgment, of the same amount or to the same effect, and to stay the execution hereof.

§ 707. When judgment enforceable only against attached property. Where a defendant, who has not appeared, is a non-resident of the State, or a foreign corporation, and the summons was served without the State, or by publication, pursuant to an order obtained for that purpose, as prescribed in chapter fifth of this act, the judgment can be enforced only against the property which has been levied upon, by virtue of the warrant of attachment, at the time when the judgment is entered. But this section does not declare the effect of such a judgment, with respect to the application of any statute of limitation.

§ 708. Judgment in the principal action; how satisfied. Where an execution against property is issued upon a judgment for the plaintiff, in an action in which a warrant of attachment has been levied, the sheriff must satisfy it, as follows:

1. He must pay over to the plaintiff all money attached by him, and the proceeds of all sales of perishable property, or of any vessel or share of interest therein, or animals, sold by him, or of any debts, or other things in action collected or sold by him; or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the judgment.

2. If any balance remains due, he must sell, under the execution, the other personal property attached, or so much thereof as is necessary; including rights or shares in the stock of an association or corporation, or a bond or other instrument for the payment of money, executed and issued, with the interest coupons annexed, if any, by a government, state, county, public officer, or municipal or other corporation, which is in terms negotiable, or otherwise, whether past due, or yet to become due; but not including any other debt or thing in action. If the proceeds of that property are insufficient to satisfy the judgment, and the execution requires him to satisfy it out of any other personal property of the defendant, he must sell the personal property, upon which he has levied by virtue of the execution. If the proceeds of the personal property, applicable to the execution, are insufficient to satisfy the judgment, the sheriff must sell, under the execution, all the right, title, and interest, which the defendant had in the real property attached, at the time when the notice was filed, or at any time afterwards, before resorting to any other real property.

3. If personal property attached, belonging to the defendant, has passed out of the hands of the sheriff, without having been sold or converted into money, and the attachment has not been discharged as to that property, he must, if practicable, regain possession thereof; and, for that purpose, he has all the authority which he had, to seize the same under the warrant. A person, who wilfully conceals or withholds such property from him, is liable to double damages, at the suit of the party aggrieved.

4. Until the judgment is paid, he may collect the debts and other things in action attached, and prosecute any undertaking, which he has taken in the course of the proceedings, and apply the proceeds thereof to the payment of the judgment.

5. At any time after levying the attachment, the court, upon the petition of the plaintiff, accompanied with an affidavit, specifying fully all the proceedings of the sheriff, since the levy under the warrant, the property attached, and the disposition thereof; and the affidavit of the sheriff, showing that he has used diligence, in endeavoring to collect the debts and other things in action attached, and that a portion thereof remains uncollected; may direct the sheriff to sell the remaining portion, upon such terms, and in such manner, as it thinks proper. Notice of the application must be given to the defendant's attorney, if the defendant appeared in the action. If the summons was not personally served on the defendant, and he did not appear, the court may make such order as to the service of notice, as it thinks proper; or may grant the application without notice.

§ 713. Receiver; when appointed. In addition to the cases, where the appointment of a receiver is specially provided for by law, a receiver of property, which is the subject of an action, in the supreme court or a county court, may be appointed by the court, in either of the following cases:

1. Before final judgment, on the application of a party who establishes an apparent right to, or interest in, the property, where it is in the possession of an adverse party, and there is danger that it will be removed beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or lost, materially injured, or destroyed.
2. By or after the final judgment, to carry the judgment into effect, or to dispose of the property, according to its directions.
3. After final judgment, to preserve the property, during the pendency of an appeal.

The word, "property," as used in this section, includes the rents, profits, or other income, and the increase, of real or personal property.

§ 715. Security. A receiver, appointed in an action or special proceeding, must, before entering upon his duties, execute and file with the proper clerk, a bond to the people, with at least two sufficient sureties, in a penalty fixed by the court, judge, or referee, making the appointment, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver; and the execution of any such bond by any fidelity or surety company authorized by the laws of this state to transact business, shall be equivalent to the execution of said bond by two sureties. And the court, or where the order was made out of court, the judge making the order, by or pursuant to which the receiver was appointed, or his successor in office, may at any time, remove the receiver, or direct him to give a new bond, with new sureties, with the like condition. But the foregoing provisions of this section do not apply to a case where special provision is made by law, for the security to be given by a receiver, or for increasing the same, or for removing a receiver. A receiver who, having executed and filed a bond as provided for in this section, before presenting his accounts as receiver, must give notice to the surety or sureties on his official bond, of his intention to present his accounts, not less than eight days before the day set for the hearing on said accounting. The same notice must be given to such surety or sureties where the accounting is ordered on the petition of a person or persons other than the receiver, and in no case shall the receiver's accounts be passed, settled or allowed, unless the said notice provided for in this section shall have first been given to the surety or sureties on the official bond of such receiver.

§ 723. Amendments by the court; disregarding immaterial errors, etc. The court may, upon the trial, or at any other stage of the action, before or after judgment, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as it deems just, amend any process, pleading, or other proceeding, by adding or striking out the name of a person as a party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect, or by inserting an allegation material to the case; or, where the amendment does not change substantially the claim or defence, by conforming the pleading or other proceedings to the facts proved. And, in every stage of the action, the court must disregard an error or defect, in the pleadings or other proceedings, which does not affect the substantial rights of the adverse party. When amending a pleading or permitting the service of an amended or supplemental pleading in a case which is on the general calendar of issues of fact, the court may direct that the case retain the place upon such calendar which it occupied before the amendment or new pleading was allowed, and that the proceedings had upon the amended or supplemental pleadings shall not affect the place of the case upon such calendar, or render necessary the service of a new notice of trial.

§ 755. Action; when not to abate. An action does not abate by any event, if the cause of action survives or continues. A special proceeding does not abate by any event, if the right to the relief sought in such special proceeding survives or continues, but this provision as to a special proceeding applies only to cases where a party dies after this act takes effect.

§ 756. Proceedings upon transfer of interest, or devolution of liability. In case of a transfer of interest, or devolution of liability, the action may be continued, by or against the original party; unless the court directs the person, to whom the interest is transferred, or upon whom the liability is devolved, to be substituted in the action, or joined with the original party, as the case requires.

§ 757. Id.; when sole party dies and action survives. In case of the death of a sole plaintiff or a sole defendant, if the cause of action survives or continues, the court must, upon a motion, allow or compel the action to be continued, by or against his representative or successor in interest. In case of the death of a sole party to a special proceeding after this act takes effect, if the right to the relief sought in such proceeding survives or continues, the court must, upon a motion, allow or compel such proceeding to be continued by or against his representative or successor in interest. This provision as to a special proceeding does not apply where provision for such continuance has been otherwise made by law.

§ 768. Id.; of a motion. An application for an order is a motion. Such application or motion must be made to a court, or to a judge or justice thereof. When the defendants have made default in appearing in an action or proceeding, any application or motion therein may be made to the court or to a judge or justice thereof out of court. Where any of the defendants in an action or proceedings have appeared all motions or applications thereafter made in such action, or proceedings, except a motion made for an extension of time on two days' notice under rule twenty-four of the general rules of practice which may be made to a judge, and except where it is otherwise authorized by law, must be made to the court, unless such defendants consent to the making of such motion or application to a judge or justice out of court. Except in the first judicial department an order which is authorized by statute to be made at chambers may be made by the court. Any proceeding which is required by statute to be instituted by petition may also be instituted by an affidavit setting forth the matter which it is required that the petition shall contain, accompanying a notice of an application for the relief which would properly be prayed for in the petition; and in like manner a proceeding which is required by statute to be instituted by affidavit may be instituted by petition. The party making a motion may, in the notice thereof, specify one or more kinds of relief in the alternative or otherwise, and the adverse party must, where at least eight days' notice of the motion shall be given, at least one day prior to the time at which the motion is noticed to be heard, serve upon the attorney for the moving party copies of the affidavits and papers which he expects to read in opposition to the motion; he may, at least three days prior to the time at which the motion is noticed to be heard, serve upon the attorney for the moving party a notice, with or without affidavits or other papers in support thereof, specifying any kind or kinds of relief in the alternative or otherwise to which he claims to be entitled in the action whether the relief so asked for be responsive or not to the relief asked for by the moving party. Upon the hearing of a motion relief shall not be denied to any party because of defects or insufficiencies in the moving papers which can be cured upon the hearing or before the entry of the order thereon, but the court or judge shall direct that such defects or insufficiencies be cured or supplied forthwith, and shall proceed to hear and consider the motion, or may direct the motion to stand over to be heard at a subsequent time or place. In either case it may award against the party in whose moving papers or application such defect or insufficiency appears, costs in favor of the adverse party. Whenever a motion is made to set aside or vacate an order, judgment or decree or any paper filed or proceeding taken, because of technical defects therein, or because of defects or insufficiencies in the papers or proceedings upon which it was made or entered and such defects or insufficiencies can, without prejudice to intervening rights be cured or supplied, it shall be the duty of the court to direct upon the hearing of such motion, that such defects or insufficiencies in the order, judgment or decree, or in the papers or proceedings, be cured or supplied nunc pro tunc, awarding against the party in whose order, judgment or decree, or in whose papers or proceedings such defects or insufficiencies appear, costs in favor of the adverse party. The pleadings in an action shall at all times when a motion is made therein be deemed to be before the court although not specifically referred to in the notice of motion.

§ 803. Court may direct discovery of books, etc. A court of record, other than a justices court in a city, has power to compel a party to an action pending therein, to produce and discover, or to give to the other party, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy or photograph, of a book, document, or other paper, or to make discovery of any article or property, in his possession or under his control, relating to the merits of the action, or of the defence therein.

§ 804. Rules to prescribe the cases, etc. The general rules of practice must prescribe the cases in which a discovery or inspection may be so compelled, and the proceedings for that purpose, where the same are not prescribed in this act.

§ 805. Petition for discovery, and order thereupon. To entitle a party to procure such a discovery or inspection, he must present a petition, praying therefor, and verified by affidavit, to the court, or to a judge, authorized to make an order in the action; upon which an order may be made, directing the party, against whom the discovery or inspection is sought, to allow it, or, in default thereof, to show cause before the court at a time and place, and upon a notice, therein specified, why the prayer of the petition should not be granted; and, if necessary or proper, that his proceedings be stayed until the hearing of the application, although the stay exceeds twenty days.

§ 806 Order, when and by whom vacated. An order, made as prescribed in the last section, may be vacated, by the judge who granted it, or by the court, upon satisfactory proof, by affidavit:

1. That it ought not to have been granted, or that it has been complied with; or
2. That the party required to make the discovery, or permit the inspection, has not the possession or control of the book, document, or other paper, directed to be produced or inspected.

§ 807. Proceedings upon the return of the order. Upon the return of the order to show cause, the court may make such an order, with respect to the discovery or inspection prayed for, as justice requires. Where either is directed, a referee may be appointed by the order, to direct and superintend it; whose certificate, unless set aside by the court, is presumptive, and except in proceedings for contempt, conclusive evidence of compliance or non-compliance with the terms of the order. A fixed sum, not exceeding twenty dollars, may be added to the costs of the motion, for the fees of the referee.

§ 808. Penalty for disobedience. Where an order, made as prescribed in the last section, directs a discovery or inspection, the party in whose behalf it was made, may, upon proof, by affidavit, that the adverse party has failed to obey it, and upon notice to him, apply to the court, for an order to punish him for the failure. Upon the hearing of the application, the court may, upon the payment of such a sum, for the expenses of the applicant, as the court fixes, and upon compliance with such other terms, as it deems just to impose, permit the party in default to comply with the order for a discovery and inspection; and, for that purpose, it may direct that the application to punish him stand over to a future time. Upon the final hearing of the application to punish the party in default, the court, in a proper case, may direct that his complaint be dismissed, or his answer or reply be stricken out, and that judgment be rendered accordingly; or it may make an order, striking out one or more causes of action, defences, counterclaims or replies, interposed by him; or that he be debarred from maintaining a particular claim or defence, in relation to which the discovery or inspection was sought. Where the party has failed to obey an order, allowing an inspection by the adverse party, and requiring him to furnish a copy, or permit a copy to be taken, the court may also direct that the book, document, or other paper, be excluded from being given in evidence; or it may punish the party for a contempt; or both.

§ 809. Effect of papers, etc., produced. A book, document, or other paper, produced under an order made as prescribed in this article, has the same effect, when used by the party requiring it, as if it was produced upon notice, according to the practice of the court.

§ 820. Interpleader by order in certain cases. A defendant against whom an action to recover upon a contract, or an action of ejectment, or an action to recover a chattel is pending, may, at any time before answer, upon proof, by affidavit, that a person, not a party to the action, makes a demand against him, for the same debt or property, without collusion with him, apply to the court, upon notice to that person and the adverse party, for an order to substitute that person in his place, and to discharge him from liability to either, on his paying into court the amount of the debt, or delivering the possession of the property, or its value, to such person as the court directs; or upon it appearing that the defendant disputes, in whole or in part, the liability as asserted against him by different claimants, or that he has some interest in the subject-matter of the controversy which he desires to assert, his application may be for an order joining the other claimant or claimants as co-defendants with him in the action. The court may, in its discretion, make such order, upon such terms as to costs and payments into court of the amount of the debt, or part thereof, or delivery of the possession of the property, or its value or part thereof, as may be just, and thereupon the entire controversy may be determined in the action.

§ 820a. Interpleader in actions on contract. When any sum of money shall be due and payable under or on account of a contract, and the whole, or any part thereof, exceeding fifty dollars in amount, shall be claimed or demanded by adverse claimants thereto, the debtor may bring suit in any court having jurisdiction thereof, and of the parties, demanding judgment of interpleader, and that the debtor be permitted to pay the amount of the debt into court, and that such debtor upon such payment into court be discharged from any further liability to any of the parties to the action. When service of the summons and complaint shall have been made upon all such claimants, the plaintiff may make application, by petition or upon affidavits for an order permitting and directing the plaintiff to pay the amount of the debt into court, and that the plaintiff, upon the payment into court of the amount of the debt as required by the order, be discharged from any further liability to any of the defendants in such action, and the court, upon satisfactory proof by affidavit or otherwise, as the court may require, of the facts alleged in the complaint, and that the whole or part of the debt is claimed adversely by the defendants without any collusion on the part of the plaintiff, and that the amount thereof is not in dispute may make such an order, upon such terms as to costs and disbursements payable out of the money so adversely claimed as to the court may seem just, and upon the payment into court of the amount of such debt, and complying with the terms of such order, the plaintiff shall stand discharged from any further liability to any of the defendants in said action upon account of such debt and contract. Notice of such application, together with copies of the papers upon which the same is made, shall be personally served on each of the defendants, at least five, and not more than fifteen days before the return day thereof.

§ 837. When witness not excused from testifying. A competent witness shall not be excused from answering a relevant question, on the ground only that the answer may tend to establish the fact, that he owes a debt, or is otherwise subject to a civil suit. But this provision does not require a witness to give an answer, which will tend to accuse himself of a crime or misdemeanor or to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture; nor does it vary any other rule, respecting the examination of a witness.

§ 839. Admission by member of corporation. The admission of a member of an aggregate corporation, who is not a party, shall not be received as evidence against the corporation unless it was made concerning and while engaged in a transaction in which he was the authorized agent of the corporation; or unless it was made while a member of such corporation and testifying as a witness concerning a transaction of the corporation, when the official record of such testimony shall be received.

§ 868 Books, etc., of corporation, how produced. The production, upon a trial, of a book or paper, belonging to or under the control of a corporation, may be compelled, in like manner as if it was in the hands, or under the control, of a natural person. For that purpose a subpoena duces tecum, or an order, made as prescribed in the last section, as the case requires, must be directed to the president, or other head of the corporation, or to the officer thereof, in whose custody the book or paper is.

§ 869. When personal attendance not required by subpoena duces tecum. In a case specified in the last section, or where a subpoena duces tecum, or an order, made as prescribed in section 866 or section 867 of this act requires a public officer to attend, and bring a book or paper under his control, the subpoena or order is deemed to be sufficiently obeyed, if the book or paper is produced by a subordinate officer or employee of the corporation, or in the public office, who possesses the requisite knowledge to identify it, and to testify respecting the purposes for which it is used. If the personal attendance of a particular officer of the corporation or public officer is required, a subpoena, without a duces tecum clause, must also be served upon him.

§ 870. Deposition of a party, etc. The deposition of a party to an action pending in a court of record, or of a person who expects to be a party to an action about to be brought in such a court, may be taken at his own instance or at the instance of an adverse party, or by a co-plaintiff or co-defendant at any time before or during the trial as prescribed in this article.

§ 871. Deposition of a witness not a party. The deposition of a person not a party, whose testimony is material and necessary to a party to an action, pending in a court of record, or to a person who expects to be a party to an action, about to be brought in such a court, by a person other than the person to be examined, may also be taken, as prescribed in this article.

§ 872. Application; contents of affidavit. The person desiring to take a deposition as prescribed in this article, may present to a judge of the court in which the action is pending; or, if it is pending in the supreme court, to a county judge; or, if an action is not pending, but is expected to be brought, to a judge of the supreme court, or to a county judge; an affidavit, setting forth as follows:

1. The names and residences of all the parties to the action, and whether or not they have appeared, and if either of them has appeared by attorney, the name, and the residence or office address of the attorney; or, if no action is pending, the names and residences of the expected parties thereto.

2. If an action is pending, the nature of the action, and the substance of the judgment demanded, and the application is made by the defendant before answer, or by either party after answer, the nature of the defense.

3. If no action is pending, the nature of the controversy which is expected to be the subject thereof.

4. The name and residence of the person to be examined, and that the testimony of such person is material and necessary for the party making such application or the prosecution or defence of such action, and if the action is to recover damages for personal injuries, that the defendant is ignorant of the nature and extent of such personal injuries; and, at the option of the applicant, the place where he is sojourning, or where he regularly transacts business.

5. If an action is pending, that the person to be examined is about to depart from the State, or that he is so sick or infirm as to afford reasonable ground to believe that he will not be able to attend the trial; or that any other special circumstances exist which render it proper that he should be examined as prescribed in this article. But this subdivision does not apply to a case where the person to be examined is a party to the action.

6. If no action is pending, that the person expected to be the adverse party is of full age and a resident of the State, or sojourning within the State; or that he has an office within the State where he regularly transacts business in person, specifying the place, and if it is in a city, the street and street number or other designation of the particular locality; or, if two or more persons are expected to be adverse parties, that each is of full age and so resident or sojourning or has an office; also the circumstances which render it necessary for the protection of the applicant's rights, that the witness's testimony should be perpetuated.

7. Any other fact necessary to show that the case comes within one of the two last sections. And if the party sought to be examined is a corporation, joint-stock or other unincorporated association, the affidavit shall state the name of the officers, directors, or managing agents thereof, or any of them whose testimony is necessary and material, or the books and papers as to the contents of which an examination or inspection is desired, and the order to be made in respect thereto shall direct the examination of such persons and the production of such books and papers, and on such examination the books or papers, or any part or parts thereof may be offered and received in evidence in addition to the use thereof by the witness to refresh his memory.

§ 873. Order for examination. The judge to whom such an affidavit is presented must grant an order for the examination, if an action is pending. If no action is pending he must grant it if there be reasonable ground to believe that an action will be brought, as stated in the affidavit and that the application is made in good faith to preserve the expected testimony; otherwise he must dismiss the application. Where the person to be examined is a party to a pending action, or is expected to be a party to an action to be brought, the order may, in the discretion of the judge, designate and limit the particular matters as to which he shall be examined. In every action to recover damages for personal injuries, the court or judge, in granting an order for the examination of the plaintiff before trial may, if the defendant apply therefor, direct that the plaintiff submit to a physical examination by one or more physicians or surgeons, to be designated by the court or judge, and such examination shall be had and made under such restrictions and directions as to the court or judge shall seem proper. In any action brought to recover damages for personal injuries, where the defendant shall present to the court or judge satisfactory evidence that he is ignorant of the nature and extent of the injuries complained of, the court or judge shall order that such physical examination be made; and if the party to be examined shall be a female she shall be entitled to have such examination before physicians or surgeons of her own sex. The order must require the party or persons to be examined to appear before the judge, or before a referee named in the order, for the purpose of taking the examination, at a time and place therein specified. The order must also direct the time of service of a copy thereof; which must be made within the State, not more than twenty, nor less than five days, before the time fixed for the examination, unless special circumstances, making a different time of service necessary, are shown in the affidavit, and that fact is recited in the order.

§ 875. Service of order, etc. A copy of the order, and of the affidavit upon which it was granted, must be served upon the attorney for each party to the action, in like manner as a paper in the action; or, if a party has not appeared in the action, they must be served upon him, as directed by the order. If no action is pending, they must be personally served upon each of the persons, named therein as expected adverse parties.

§ 914. In what cases deposition may be taken. A party to an action, suit, or special proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in a court without the State, either in the United States, or in a foreign country, may obtain, by the special proceeding prescribed in this article, the testimony of a witness, and, in connection therewith, the production of books and papers, within the State, to be used in the action, suit or special proceeding.

§ 915. Proceedings to obtain testimony. Where a commission to take testimony, within the State, has been issued from the court in which the action, suit, or special proceeding is pending; or where a notice has been given, or any other proceeding has been taken, for the purpose of taking the testimony, within the State, pursuant to the laws of the state or country, wherein the court is located, or pursuant to the laws of the United States, if it is a court of the United States, the supreme court, or the county court, or a judge of either court, shall, in a proper case, on the presentation of a verified petition issue a subpoena to the witness, commanding him to appear before the commissioner, named in the commission; or before a commissioner, within the State, for the state, territory, or foreign country, in which the notice was given, or the proceeding taken; or before the officer designated in the commission, notice, or other paper, by his title of office; at a time and place specified in the subpoena, to testify, in the action, suit, or special proceeding. If the witness shall fail to obey the subpoena, or refuse to have an oath administered, or to testify, or to produce a book or paper pursuant to a subpoena, or to subscribe his deposition, the court or judge issuing the subpoena shall, if it is determined that a contempt has been committed, prescribe the punishment as in the case of a recalcitrant witness in the supreme court. The general rules of practice must prescribe rules for such proceedings.

§ 929. Book of foreign corporation; when evidence. Where a party wishes to prove an act or transaction of a foreign corporation, the book or books of the corporation may be used for that purpose, as presumptive evidence, whether any or all of the parties are or are not members of the corporation.

§ 930. When a copy thereof is evidence. If an original book is not produced at the trial, as prescribed in the last section, a copy thereof, or of an entry therein, verified as prescribed in the next section, may be used, with like effect as the original book; provided that the party, intending to use the copy, gives the adverse party at least ten days' notice of his intention, specifying briefly the nature of the evidence proposed to be given. But this and the next section do not apply, where the foreign corporation is a party to the action, and seeks to prove its own act or transaction, in its own behalf.

§ 931. How copy to be verified. The copy must be verified by the deposition, taken as prescribed by law, or the oral testimony, taken at the trial, of the person who made it, or of a person who has examined and compared it with the original book, or the entry therein. The witness must testify that the copy produced is correct; that he made it, or compared it with the original; and that he then knew that the original book so copied, or containing the entry, was the book of the corporation; or that it was then acknowledged to him to be such, by an officer or receiver of the corporation, or a person having the custody thereof, naming the person who made the acknowledgment; and he must specify where, and in whose custody, the original was then kept.

§ 931a. Copy of designation of person upon whom to make service, as evidence. An exemplified copy of a designation of a person upon whom to make service filed by a foreign corporation as provided in section 16 of the General Corporation Law accompanied with a certificate that it has not been revoked, is a presumptive evidence of the execution thereof, and conclusive evidence of the authority of the officer executing it.

§ 984. Other actions, according to the residence of the parties. An action, not specified in the last two sections, must be tried in the county, in which one of the parties resided, at the commencement thereof. If neither of the parties then resided in the State, it may be tried in any county, which the plaintiff designates, for that purpose, in the title of the complaint.

§ 987. When court may change the place of trial. The court may, by order, change the place of trial, in either of the following cases:

1. Where the county, designated for that purpose in the complaint, is not the proper county.

2. Where there is reason to believe, that an impartial trial cannot be had in the proper county.

3. Where the convenience of witnesses, and the ends of justice, will be promoted by the change.

§ 1012. Qualification of the last section. But a reference shall not be made, of course, upon the consent of the parties, in an action to annul the marriage, or for a divorce or a separation; or an action against a corporation, to obtain a dissolution thereof, the appointment of a receiver of its property, or the distribution of its property, unless it is brought by the attorney general; or an action wherein a defendant, to be affected by the result of the trial, is an infant. In a case specified in this section, where the parties consent to a reference, the court may, in its discretion, grant or refuse a reference; and, where a reference is granted, the court must designate the referee. If the referee, thus designated, refuses to serve, or if a new trial of an action tried by a referee, so designated, is granted, the court must, upon the application of either party, appoint another referee.

§ 1013. Compulsory reference for the trial of issues; in what cases it may be made. The court may, of its own motion, or upon the application of either party, without the consent of the other, direct a trial of the issues of fact, by a referee, where the trial will require the examination of a long account, on either side, and will not require the decision of difficult questions of law. In an action, triable by the court, without a jury, a reference may be made, as prescribed in this section, to decide the whole issue, or any of the issues; or to report the referee's finding, upon one or more specific questions of fact, involved in the issue.

§ 1015. Compulsory reference upon questions incidentally arising. The court may likewise, of its own motion, or upon the application of either party, without the consent of the other, direct a reference to take an account, and report to the court thereon, either with or without the testimony, after interlocutory or final judgment, or where it is necessary to do so, for the information of the court; and also to determine and report upon a question of fact arising in any stage or the action, upon a motion, or otherwise, except upon the pleadings.

§ 1185. When verdict to be taken, subject to the opinion of the court. Where, upon the trial of an issue by a jury, the case presents only questions of law, the judge may direct the jury to render a verdict, subject to the opinion of the court. Notwithstanding that such a verdict has been rendered, the judge holding the trial term may, at the same term, set aside the verdict, and direct judgment to be entered for either party, with like effect and in like manner, as if such a direction had been given at the trial. An exception to such a direction may be taken as prescribed in section 994 of this act.

§ 1207. When judgment for plaintiff not to exceed judgment demanded. Where there is no answer, the judgment shall not be more favorable to the plaintiff, than that demanded in the complaint. Where there is an answer, the court may permit the plaintiff to take any judgment, consistent with the case made by the complaint, and embraced within the issue.

§ 1216. Application for judgment in case of service by publication. Where the summons was served upon the defendant without the state, or otherwise than personally, if the defendant does not demand a copy of the complaint, or plead, as the case requires, within twenty days after the service is complete, the plaintiff may apply to the court, or a judge or justice thereof, for the judgment demanded in the complaint. Upon such an application, he must file proof that the service is complete, and proof, by affidavit, of the defendant's default. The court, or a judge or justice thereof, must require proof of the cause of action, set forth in the complaint, to be made, either before such court, or such judge or justice, or before a referee appointed for that purpose; except that where the action is brought to recover damages for a personal injury, or an injury to property, the damages must be ascertained by means of a writ of inquiry as prescribed in the last section. If the defendant is a non-resident, or a foreign corporation, the court, or a judge or justice to whom such application is made, must require the plaintiff, or his agent or attorney, to be examined on oath, respecting any payments to the plaintiff, or to any one for his use, on account of his demand, and must render the judgment to which the plaintiff is entitled. But before rendering judgment, the court, or a judge or justice thereof, to whom the application is made, may, in any case, in its, or their, discretion, require the plaintiff to file an undertaking, to abide the order of the court touching the restitution of any estate or effects which may be directed by the judgment to be transferred or delivered, or the restitution of any money that may be collected under or by virtue of the judgment, in case the defendant or his representative applies and is admitted to defend the action, and succeeds in his defense.

§ 1217. Attachment and undertaking for restitution, required in certain actions. A judgment shall not be rendered for a sum of money only, upon an application made pursuant to the last section, except in an action specified in section 635 of this act. Where the defendant is a non-resident, or a foreign corporation, and has not appeared, the plaintiff, upon the application for judgment in such an action, must produce and file the following papers:

1. Proof, by affidavit, that a warrant of attachment, granted in the action, has been levied upon property of the defendant.

2. A description of the property, so attached, verified by affidavit; with a statement of the value thereof according to the inventory.

3. The undertaking mentioned in section 1216, if one has been required.

§ 1294. When party may appeal. A party aggrieved may appeal, in a case prescribed in this chapter, except where the judgment or order, of which he complains, was rendered or made upon his default.

§ 1296. When a person entitled to become a party may appeal. A person aggrieved, who is not a party, but is entitled by law to be substituted, in place of a party; or who has acquired, since the making of the order, or the rendering of the judgment appealed from, an interest, which would have entitled him to be so substituted, if it had been previously acquired, may also appeal, as prescribed in this chapter, for an appeal by a party. But the appeal cannot be heard, until he has been substituted in place of the party; and if he unreasonably neglects to procure an order of substitution, the appeal may be dismissed, upon motion of the respondent.

§ 1370. Requisites of execution for the collection of money; where a warrant of attachment has been levied by sheriff. Where a warrant of attachment, issued in the action, has been levied by the sheriff, the execution must substantially require the sheriff to satisfy the judgment, as follows:

1. Where the judgment debtor is a non-resident, or a foreign corporation, and the summons was served upon him or it, without the State, or otherwise than personally, pursuant to an order obtained for that purpose, as prescribed in chapter fifth of this act, and the judgment debtor has not appeared in the action; out of the personal property attached, and, if that is insufficient, out of the real property attached.

2. In any other case, out of the personal property attached; and, if that is insufficient, out of the other personal property of the judgment debtor; if both are insufficient, out of the real property attached; and, if that is insufficient, out of the real property, belonging to him, at the time when the judgment was docketed in the clerk's office of the county, or at any time thereafter.

§ 1405. Personal property bound by execution. The goods and chattels of a judgment debtor, not exempt, by express provision of law, from levy and sale by virtue of an execution, and his other personal property, which is expressly declared by law, to be subject to levy by virtue of an execution, are, when situated within the jurisdiction of the officer, to whom an execution against property is delivered, bound by the execution, from the time of the delivery thereof to the proper officer, to be executed; but not before.

§ 1502. Against whom action to be brought. Where the complaint demands judgment for the immediate possession of the property, if the property is actually occupied, the occupant thereof must be made defendant in the action. If it is not so occupied, the action must be brought against some person exercising acts of ownership thereupon, or claiming title thereto, or an interest therein, at the time of the commencement of the action.

§ 1650. This article applies to corporations. An action may be maintained, as prescribed in this article, by or against a corporation, or by or against an unincorporated association, as if was a natural person, or such an action may be maintained by or against the receiver or other successor of any such corporation or association.

§ 1775. Complaint in actions by or against corporations. In an action brought by or against a corporation, the complaint must aver that the plaintiff, or the defendant, as the case may be, is a corporation; must state whether it is a domestic corporation or a foreign corporation; and, if the latter, the state, country, or government, by or under whose laws it was created. But the plaintiff need not set forth, or specially refer to, any act or proceeding, by or under which the corporation was created.

§ 1776. When proof of corporate existence unnecessary. In an action, brought by or against a corporation, the plaintiff need not prove, upon the trial, the existence of the corporation, unless the answer is verified, and contains an affirmative allegation that the plaintiff, or the defendant, as the case may be, is not a corporation.

§ 1777. Misnomer, when waived. In an action or special proceeding, brought by or against a corporation, the defendant is deemed to have waived any mistake in the statement of the corporate name, unless the misnomer is pleaded in the answer, or other pleadings in the defendant's behalf.

§ 1778. Action against a corporation upon a note, etc. In an action against a foreign or domestic corporation, to recover damages for the non-payment of a promissory note, or other evidence of debt, for the absolute payment of money, upon demand, or at a particular time, an order, extending the time to answer or demur, shall not be granted, except by the court, upon notice to the plaintiff's attorney. In such an action, unless the defendant serves, with a copy of his answer of demurrer, a copy of an order of a judge, directing that the issues presented by the pleadings be tried, the plaintiff may take judgment, as in case of default in pleading, at the expiration of twenty days after service of a copy of the complaint, either personally with the summons, or upon the defendant's attorney, pursuant to his demand therefor; or, if the service of the summons was otherwise than personal, at the expiration of twenty days after the service is complete.

§ 1779. When foreign corporation may sue. An action may be maintained by a foreign corporation, in like manner, and subject to the same regulations, as where the action is brought by a domestic corporation, except as otherwise specially prescribed by law. But a foreign corporation cannot maintain an action, founded upon an act, or upon a liability or obligation, express or implied, arising out of, or made and entered into in consideration of, an act, which the laws of the State forbid a corporation or association of individuals to do, without express authority of law. This section does not affect the validity of a meeting of the stockholders or directors of a foreign corporation, held within the State, where such a meeting is authorized by the laws of the state, country, or government by or under which the corporation is created; or of an act, done at such a meeting, which is not in conflict with the same laws, or the laws of the State.

§ 1780. When foreign corporation may be sued. An action against a foreign corporation may be maintained by a resident of the State, or by a domestic corporation, for any cause of action. An action against a foreign corporation may be maintained by another foreign corporation, or by a non-resident, in one of the following cases only:

1. Where the action is brought to recover damages for the breach of a contract, made within the State, or relating to property situated within the State, at the time of the making thereof.
2. Where it is brought to recover real property situated within the State, or a chattel, which is replevied within the State.
3. Where the cause of action arose within the State, except where the object of the action is to affect the title to real property situated without the State.
4. Where a foreign corporation is doing business within this State.

§ 1812. Application of certain provisions to joint-stock associations. Section 1809 of the Code of Civil Procedure and sections 306 and 307 of the General Corporation Law apply to an action or special proceeding, against a joint-stock association created by or under the laws of the State, or a trustee, director, or other officer thereof; or against a joint-stock association created by or under the laws of another state, government, or country, or a trustee, director, or other officer thereof, where the association does business within the State, or has, within the State, a business agency or a fiscal agency or an agency for the transfer of its stock.

§ 1836-a. Actions by or against foreign executors or administrators. An executor or administrator duly appointed in any other state, territory or district of the United States or in any foreign country may sue or be sued in any court in this state in his capacity of executor or administrator in like manner and under like restrictions as a nonresident may sue or be sued, if, within twenty days after any such executor or administrator shall commence, or appear in, any action or proceeding in any court in this state or within twenty days after he shall be required or directed by summons or otherwise to appear therein, there shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the court, in which such action or proceeding shall be brought or be pending, a copy of the letters testamentary or letters of administration issued to such executor or administrator duly authenticated as prescribed by section 2704 of the code of civil procedure; in default whereof all proceedings in such action or proceeding may be stayed until such duly authenticated copy of such letters shall be so filed.

§ 1879. Application of this article; what property cannot be reached. This article does not apply to a case, where the judgment debtor is a corporation, created by or under the laws of the State. Nor does it authorize the discovery or seizure of, or other interference with, and property, which is expressly exempted by law from levy and sale, by virtue of an execution; or any money, thing in action, or other property, held in trust for a judgment debtor, where the trust has been created by, or the fund so held in trust has proceeded from, a person other than the judgment debtor; or the earnings of the judgment debtor for his personal services, rendered within sixty days next before the commencement of the action, where it is made to appear, by his oath or otherwise, that those earnings are necessary for the use of a family, wholly or partly supported by his labor.

§ 1902. Action for causing death by negligence, etc. The executor or administrator duly appointed in this state, or in any other state, territory or district of the United States, or in any foreign country, of a decedent, who has left, him or her surviving a husband, wife, or next of kin, may maintain an action to recover damages for a wrongful act, neglect, or default, by which the decedent's death was caused, against a natural person who, or a corporation which, would have been liable to an action in favor of the decedent by reason thereof if death had not ensued. Such an action must be commenced within two years after the decedent's death. When the husband, wife or next of kin do not participate in the estate of decedent, under a will appointing an executor, other than such husband, wife or next of kin, who refuses to bring such action, then such husband, wife or next of kin shall be entitled to have an administrator appointed for the purpose of prosecuting such action for their benefit.

§ 1910. What claims or demands may be transferred. Any claim or demand can be transferred, except in one of the following cases:

1. Where it is to recover damages for a personal injury, or for a breach of promise to marry.

2. Where it is founded upon a grant, which is made void by a statute of the State; or upon a claim to or interest in real property, a grant of which, by the transferor, would be void by such a statute.

3. Where a transfer thereof is expressly forbidden by a statute of the State, or of the United States, or would contravene public policy.

§ 1919 Actions, etc., by or against associations of seven or more persons. An action or special proceedings may be maintained, by the president or treasurer of an unincorporated association, consisting of seven or more persons, to recover any property, or upon any cause of action, for or upon which all the associates may maintain such an action or special proceeding, by reason of their interest or ownership therein, either jointly or in common. An action may likewise be maintained by such president or treasurer to recover from one or more members of such association his or their proportionate share of any moneys lawfully expended by such association for the benefit of such associates, or to enforce any lawful claim of such association against such member or members. An action or special proceeding may be maintained, against the president or treasurer of such an association, to recover any property, or upon any cause of action, for or upon which the plaintiff may maintain such an action or special proceeding, against all the associates, by reason of their interest or ownership, or claim of ownership therein, either jointly or in common, or their liability therefor, either jointly or severally. Any partnership, or other company of persons, which has a president or treasurer, is deemed an association within the meaning of this section.

§ 1948. Attorney-general may maintain action. The attorney-general may maintain an action, upon his own information, or upon the complaint of a private person, in either of the following cases:

1. Against a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises within the State, a franchise or a public office, civil or military, or an office in a domestic corporation.

2. Against a public officer, civil or military, who has done or suffered an act, which by law works a forfeiture of his office.

3. Against one or more persons who act as a corporation, within the State, without being duly incorporated; or exercises within the State, any corporate rights, privileges or franchises, not granted to them by the law of the State.

4. Against a foreign corporation which exercises within the state any corporate rights, privileges or franchises, not granted to it by law of this state; or which within the state, has violated any provision of law, or, contrary to law, has done or omitted any act, or has exercised a privilege or franchise, not conferred upon it by the law of this state, where, in a similar case, a domestic corporation would, in accordance with section 131 of the General Corporation Law, be liable to an action to vacate its charter and to annual its existence; or where exercises within the state any corporate rights, privileges or franchises in a manner contrary to the public policy of the state.

§ 1949. Proceedings when complaint names rightful incumbent. In an action brought as prescribed in the last section, for usurping, intruding into, unlawfully holding, or exercising an office, the attorney-general, besides stating the cause of action in the complaint, may, in his discretion, set forth therein the name of the person rightfully entitled to the office, and the facts showing his right thereto; and thereupon, and upon proof, by affidavit, that the defendant, by means of his usurpation or intrusion, has received any fees or emoluments belonging to the office, an order to arrest the defendant may be granted by the court, or a judge. The provisions of title first of chapter seventh of this act apply to such an order, and the proceedings thereupon and subsequent thereto, except where special provision is otherwise made in this title. For that purpose, the order is deemed to have been made as prescribed in section 549 of this act. Judgment may be rendered upon the right of the defendant, and of the party so alleged to be entitled; or only upon the right of the defendant, as justice requires.

§ 1950. Action triable by jury. An action, brought as prescribed in this article, is triable, of course and of right, by a jury, in like manner as if it was an action specified in section 968 of this act, and without procuring an order, as prescribed in section 970 of this act.

§ 1951. Assumption of office by person entitled. Where final judgment is rendered, upon the right and in favor of the person so alleged to be entitled, he may, after taking the oath of office, and giving an official bond, as prescribed by law, take upon himself the execution of the office. He must, immediately thereafter, demand of the defendant in the action, delivery of all the books and papers in the custody, or under the control, of the defendant, belonging to the office from which the defendant has been so excluded.

§ 1952. Proceedings to obtain books and papers. If the defendant refuses or neglects to deliver any of the books or papers, demanded as prescribed in the last section, he is guilty of a misdemeanor; and the same proceedings must be taken to compel the delivery thereof, as are now or shall hereafter be prescribed by law, where a person, who has held an office, refuses or neglects to deliver the official books or papers to his successor.

§ 1952. Damages; how recovered. Where final judgment has been rendered, upon the right and in favor of the person so alleged to be entitled, he may recover, by action, against the defendant, the damages which he has sustained, in consequence of the defendant's usurpation, intrusion into, unlawful holding, or exercise of the office.

§ 1954. One action against several persons. Where two or more persons claim to be entitled to the same office or franchise, the attorney-general may bring the action against all, to determine their respective rights thereto.

§ 1955. When injunction may be granted. In an action, brought as prescribed in subdivision third or fourth of section 1948 of this act, the final judgment, in favor of the plaintiff, must perpetually restrain the defendant or defendants from the commission or continuance of the act or acts complained of. A temporary injunction to restrain the commission or continuance thereof may be granted, upon proof, by affidavit, that the defendant or defendants have violated any of the provisions of either of the said subdivisions third or fourth of section 1948 of this act. The provisions of title second of chapter seventh of this act apply to such a temporary injunction, and the proceedings thereupon, except where provision is otherwise made in this title. For the purpose, the injunction order is deemed to have been granted as prescribed in section 603 of this act. In the trial of an action brought as prescribed in subdivision third or fourth of section 1948 of this act, a party or a witness is not excused from answering a question on the ground that such answer will tend to incriminate him; but such answer cannot be used as evidence against the person so answering, in a criminal action or criminal proceeding.

§ 1956. Final judgment in action for usurping office, etc. In any other action brought as prescribed in this article, where a defendant is adjudged to be guilty of usurping or intruding into, or unlawfully holding or exercising, an office, franchise, or privilege, final judgment must be rendered, ousting and excluding him therefrom, and in favor of the people or the relator, as the case requires, for the costs of the action. As a part of the final judgment, the court may, in its discretion, also award, that the defendant, or, where there are two or more defendants, that one or more of them, pay to the people a fine, not exceeding two thousand dollars. The judgment for the fine may be docketed, and execution may be issued thereupon, in favor of the people, as if it had been rendered in an action to recover the fine. The fine, when collected, must be paid into the treasury of the State.

§ 1975. Ultimate disposition of proceeds of actions, in court of the State; upon petition of corporation, etc., aggrieved. Any corporation, board, officer, custodian, agency, or agent, may, in behalf of any city, county, town, village, or other division, subdivision, department, or portion of the State, which was not a party to an action, brought as prescribed in this article, and which claims to be entitled to the custody or disposition of any of the money, funds, damages, credits, or other property, recovered by, or awarded to the plaintiff, by the final judgment in the action, or any of the proceeds thereof, and not disposed of as prescribed in the last section, present, at any time after the actual collection of the money, and its payment into the State treasury, or the actual receipts of the property by the people, to the supreme court, at a special term thereof held in the county of Albany, a verified petition, setting forth the facts, and praying for the relief to which he or it is entitled. Notice of the application and a copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney-general. Upon the hearing the court may make such a final order, as justice requires, for the disposition of the money or other property, as prescribed in the last section.

§ 1984. Actions to be brought in the name of the people. An action, brought as prescribed in this title, except an action to recover a penalty or forfeiture, expressly given by law to a particular officer, must be brought in the name of the people of the State; and the proceedings therein are the same, as in an action by a private person, except as otherwise specially prescribed in this title.

§ 1986. Relator; when to be joined as plaintiff. Where an action is brought by the attorney-general, as prescribed in this title, on the relation or information of a person, having an interest in the question, the complaint must allege, and the title of the action show, that the action is brought upon the relation of that person. In such case, the attorney-general must, as a condition of bringing the action, require the relator to give satisfactory security to indemnify the people, against the costs and expenses thereof. Where security is so given all costs and disbursements taxed in favor of the plaintiff shall be payable to the relator. (Effective Sept. 1, 1918.)

§ 1987. Costs; how collected against corporation and usurpers of franchise. Where final judgment in an action, brought as prescribed in this title, is rendered against a corporation, or persons claiming to be a corporation, the court may direct the costs to be collected by execution against any of the persons claiming to be a corporation; or by warrant of attachment, or other process, against the person of any director or other officer of the corporation.

§ 2070. When peremptory mandamus to issue in first instance. A peremptory writ of mandamus may be issued, in the first instance, where the applicant's right to the mandamus depends only upon questions of law, and notice of the application has been given to a judge of the court, or to the corporation, board, or other body, officer, or other person, to which or to whom it is directed. The notice must be served, at least eight days before the application is heard; unless a shorter time is prescribed by an order to show cause, made, where the application is to the special term, by the court, or a judge thereof; or where the application is to the appellate division, by the appellate division, or a justice of the appellate division of that judicial department. In such a case the application must be founded upon affidavits, or other written proofs, a copy of which must be served with the notice, or order to show cause. Where the court, board or other body to be served, consists of three or more members, the notice or order to show cause, and the papers upon which the application is to be made, may be served, as prescribed in the next section for service of an alternative writ of mandamus. Except as prescribed in this section, or by special provision of law, a peremptory mandamus cannot be issued, until an alternative mandamus has been issued and duly served, and the return day thereof has elapsed.

§ 2071. Alternative writ; how served. An alternative writ of mandamus must be served, by showing the original writ, and delivering a copy thereof, to the person to be served. Where it is directed to a court, or to the judge or judges of a court, it must be served, either in term time or in vacation, upon the judge or judges of the court; except that, where the court consists of three or more judges, service upon a majority of them is sufficient. Where it is to be served upon a board or body, other than a corporation, service must be made upon a majority of the members thereof, unless the board or body was created by law, and has a chairman of other presiding officer, appointed pursuant to law; in which case, service upon him is sufficient. Where the writ is to be served upon a corporation, service thereof may be made upon any officer, upon whom a summons, issued out of the supreme court, may be served. Where one or more of the persons, upon whom to make service, as prescribed in this section, cannot, after due diligence, be found, the exhibition of the original writ may be dispensed with, and service may be made upon him or them, as prescribed by law for the service of a summons, issued out of the supreme court.

1. Where the right to the writ is expressly conferred, or the issue thereof is expressly authorized by a statute.

2. Where the writ may be issued at common law, by a court of general jurisdiction, and the right to the writ, or the power of the court to issue it, is not expressly taken away by a statute.

§ 2121. Cases where it cannot issue. A writ of certiorari cannot be issued, to review a determination, made, after this article takes effect, in a civil action or special proceeding, by a court of record, or a judge of a court of record.

§ 2122. The same. Except as otherwise expressly prescribed by a statute, a writ of certiorari cannot be issued, in either of the following cases:

1. To review a determination which does not finally determine the rights of the parties, with respect to the matter to be reviewed.

2. Where the determination can be adequately reviewed, by an appeal to a court, or to some other body or officer.

3. Where the body or officer, making the determination, is expressly authorized, by statute, to rehear the matter, upon the relator's application; unless the determination to be reviewed was made upon a rehearing, or the time within which the relator can procure a hearing has elapsed.

§ 2123. When issued from supreme court. A writ of certiorari can be issued only out of the supreme court, except in a case where another court is expressly authorized by statute to issue it.

§ 2124. When from another court. Any court of record, exercising jurisdiction of an appellate nature, may issue a writ of certiorari, requiring the body or officer whose proceedings are under review, to make a return to the court issuing the writ, at a time and place, fixed by the court, and designated in the writ, for the purpose of supplying any diminution, variance, or other defect, in the record or other papers, before the court issuing the writ, in any case where justice requires that the defect should be supplied, and adequate relief cannot be obtained by means of an order.

§ 2125. Limitation of time for review. Subject to the provisions of the next section, a writ of certiorari to review a determination must be granted and served, within four calendar months after the determination to be reviewed becomes final and binding, upon the relator, or the person whom he represents, either in law or in fact.

§ 2126. Id.; in case of disability. The appellate division of the supreme court may grant the writ, at any time within twenty months after the expiration of the time limited in the last section, where the relator, or the person whom he represents, was at the time when the determination to be reviewed became final and binding upon him, either

1. Within the age of twenty-one years; or

2. Insane; or

3. Imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution upon conviction of a criminal offence, for a term less than for life.

§ 2127. Application for writ; where and how made. An application for the writ must be made by, or in behalf of, a person aggrieved by the determination to be reviewed; must be founded upon affidavit, or a verified petition, which may be accompanied by other written proof; and must show a proper case for the issuing of the writ. It can be granted only at a term of the appellate division of the supreme court or at special term; and the granting or refusal thereof is discretionary with the court.

§ 2128. When notice necessary; service thereof. Until provision is made, in the general rules of practice, for requiring, or dispensing with notice of the application for the writ, the court, to which the application for the writ is made, may, in its discretion, require or dispense with notice. A notice, when it is necessary, must be served, with copies of the papers upon which the application is to be made, upon the body or officer, whose determination is to be reviewed, or upon such other person as the court directs, as prescribed in this article for the service of a writ of certiorari. The service must be made, at least eight days before the application, unless the court, by an order to show cause, prescribes a shorter time. Where notice is given, the person served may produce affidavits or other written proofs, upon the merits, in opposition to the application.

§ 2129. To whom writ directed. The writ must be directed to the body or officer, whose determination is to be reviewed; or to any other person having the custody of the record or other papers to be certified; or to both if necessary. Where it is brought to review the determination of a board or body, other than a court, if an action would lie against the board or body, in its associate or official name, it must be directed to the board or body, by that name; otherwise it must be directed to the members thereof, by their names.

§ 2130. Mode of service. A writ of certiorari must be served as follows, except where different directions, respecting the mode of service thereof, are given by the court granting it:

1. Where it is directed to a person or persons by name, or by his or their official title or titles, or to a municipal corporation, it must be served, upon each officer or other person, to whom it is so directed, or upon the corporation, in the same manner as a summons in an action brought in the supreme court, except as prescribed in the next two subdivisions of this section.

2. Where it is directed to a court, or to the judges of a court, having a clerk appointed pursuant to law, service upon the court, or the judges thereof, may be made by filing the writ with the clerk.

3. Where it is to be served upon any other board or body, or upon the members thereof, it may be served as prescribed in section 2071 of this act, for service, upon a like board or body, of an alternative writ of mandamus.

§ 2131. Stay of proceedings. Except as prescribed in this section, a writ of certiorari does not stay the execution of the determination to be reviewed, or affect the power of the body or officer, to which or to whom it is addressed. The court, which grants the writ, may, in its discretion, and upon such terms, as to security or otherwise, as justice requires, direct, by a clause in the writ, or by a separate order, that the execution of the determination be stayed, pending the certiorari, and until the further direction of the court. A bond, undertaking, or other security, given to procure such a stay, is valid and effectual, according to its terms, in favor of a person beneficially interested in upholding the determination to be reviewed, who is admitted as a party to the special proceeding, as prescribed in section 2137 of this act.

§ 2132. When and where writ returnable. A writ of certiorari must be made returnable, within twenty days after the service thereof, at the office of the clerk of the court. If it was issued from the supreme court, it must be made returnable at the office of the clerk of the county, designated therein, wherein the determination to be reviewed was made; and, if the county, designated in the writ, is not the proper county, the court, upon motion, may amend the writ accordingly. Thereupon all papers on file must be transferred to the clerk of the county, where the writ is made returnable by the amendment.

§ 2133. Subsequent proceedings as in an action. After a writ of certiorari has been issued, the time to make a return thereto may be enlarged, or any other order may be made, or proceeding taken, in the cause, in relation to any matter not provided for in this article, as a similar proceeding may be taken in an action, brought in the same court, and triable in the county where the writ is returnable.

§ 2134. Return; when and how made. The clerk, with whom a writ of certiorari is filed, and each person, upon whom a writ of certiorari is served, as prescribed in section 2130 of this act, must make and annex to the writ, or to the copy thereof served upon him, a return, with a transcript annexed, and certified by him, of the record or proceedings, and a statement of the other matters, specified in and required by the writ. The return must be filed in the office where the writ is returnable, according to the command thereof.

§ 2135. Id.; how compelled; fees for making. If a return is defective, the court may direct a further return. An omission to make a return, as required by a writ of certiorari, or by an order for a further return, may be punished, as a contempt of the court. But a judge or clerk shall not be thus punished, unless the relator, before the time when the return is required, pays him, for his return, the sum of two dollars, and, in addition, ten cents for each folio of the copies of papers required to be returned.

§ 2136. Id.; after term of office expired. A writ of certiorari may be issued to, and a return to a writ of certiorari may be made by, an officer, whose term of office has expired. Such an officer may be punished for a failure to make a return to the writ, as required thereby; or to make a further return, as required by an order for that purpose.

§ 2137. When third person may be brought in. Upon the application of a person, specially and beneficially interested in upholding or annulling the determination to be reviewed, the court may, in its discretion, admit him as a party in the special proceedings, upon such terms as justice requires. And a term of the appellate division of the supreme court, at which the cause is noticed for hearing, and is placed upon the calendar, may, in a proper case, direct that notice of the pendency of the special proceeding be given to any person, in such a manner as it thinks proper; and may suspend the hearing until notice is given accordingly.

§ 2138. Hearing upon return. The cause must be heard at a term of the appellate division of the supreme court, held within the judicial department, embracing the county where the writ was returnable. Either party may notice it for hearing, at any time after the return is complete. Except as prescribed in the next section, it must be heard upon the writ and return, and the papers upon which the writ was granted.

§ 2139. Id.; upon affidavits. If the officer or other person, whose duty it is to make a return, dies, absconds, removes from the State, or becomes insane, after the writ is issued, and before making a return, or after making an insufficient return; and it appears that there is no other officer or person, from whom a sufficient return can be procured by means of a new certiorari, the court may, in its discretion, permit affidavits, or other written proofs, relating to the matters not sufficiently returned, to be produced, and may hear the cause accordingly. The court may also, in its discretion, permit either party to produce affidavits, or other written proofs, relating to any alleged error of fact, or any other question of fact, which is essential to the jurisdiction of the body or officer, to make the determination to be reviewed, where the facts, in relation thereto, are not sufficiently stated in the return, and the court is satisfied that they cannot be made to appear, by means of an order for a further return.

§ 2140. Questions to be determined. The questions, involving the merits, to be determined by the court upon the hearing, are the following, only:

1. Whether the body or officer had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the determination under review.
2. Whether the authority, conferred upon the body or officer, in relation to that subject-matter, has been pursued in the mode required by law, in order to authorize it or him to make the determination.
3. Whether, in making the determination, any rule of law, affecting the rights of the parties thereto, has been violated, to the prejudice of the relator.
4. Whether there was any competent proof of all the facts, necessary to be proved, in order to authorize the making of the determination.
5. If there was such proof, whether there was, upon all the evidence, such a preponderance of proof, against the existence of any of those facts, that the verdict of a jury, affirming the existence thereof, rendered in an action in the supreme court, triable by a jury, would be set aside by the court, as against the weight of evidence.

§ 2141. Final order upon the hearing. The court, upon the hearing, may make a final order, annulling or confirming, wholly or partly, or modifying, the determination reviewed, as to any or all of the parties.

§ 2142. Restitution may be awarded. Where the determination reviewed is annulled or modified, the court may order and enforce restitution, in like manner, with like effect and subject to the same conditions, as where a judgment is reversed upon appeal.

§ 2144. Entry and enrollment of final order. The final order of the court upon the certiorari must be entered in the office of the clerk where the writ was returnable. But before it can be enforced, an enrollment thereof must be filed. For that purpose, the clerk must attach together, and file in his office, the papers upon which the cause was heard; a certified copy of the final order; and a certified copy of each order, which in any way involves the merits, or necessarily affects the final order.

§ 2145. Effect thereof. The filing of the enrollment in the office of the clerk where the final order is entered, as prescribed in the last section, is a sufficient authority for any proceeding, by or before the body which, or the officer who, made the determination reviewed, which the final order of the court directs or permits. But where the execution of the final order is stayed by an appeal to the court of appeals, the proceedings below are stayed in like manner.

§ 2146. "Body or officer;" "determination;" what they include. The expression, "body or officer," as used in this article, includes every court, tribunal, board, corporation, or other person, or aggregation of persons, whose determination may be reviewed by a writ of certiorari; and the word, "determination," as used in this article, includes every judgment, order, decision, adjudication, or other act of such body or officer, which is subject to be so reviewed.

§ 2148. Id.; to civil cases only. This article is not applicable to a writ of certiorari, brought to review a determination made in any criminal matter, except a criminal contempt of court.

§ 2148a. Substitution by amendment of remedy by mandamus for that by certiorari and vice versa. Whenever a writ of certiorari shall be applied for or granted under this article, and it shall appear at any stage of the proceedings, or upon appeal, that the appropriate remedy upon the facts pleaded or proved is mandamus, the proceedings may be amended upon such terms as may be just, and may be continued and determined by the court and at the term where then pending, or remitted to the proper term or court to be disposed of, in order that the relief may be finally granted which is appropriate to the facts, to the same extent as if the application had been in the first instance for a writ of mandamus under article four of this title; and likewise, if a writ of mandamus is applied for or issued under article four of this title, and it shall appear, at any stage of the proceedings, or upon appeal, that certiorari under this article is the appropriate remedy, the proceedings may be amended accordingly upon such terms as are just, and continued and determined by the court and at the term where then pending, or be remitted to the proper term or court to be disposed of; and such relief may be finally ordered as might have been granted if such writ of certiorari had been issued or applied for in the first instance. And in either case, the court may correct by amendment all defects and irregularities in matters of form, or procedure, and may bring in all parties necessary to completely determine the matter and award the appropriate relief upon the facts established.

§ 2240. Precept; how served. The precept must be served as follows:

1. By delivering, to the person to whom it is directed, or, if it is directed to a corporation, to an officer of the corporation, upon whom a summons, issued out of the supreme court, in an action against the corporation, might be served, a copy of the precept, together with a copy of the petition, and at the same time showing him the original precept.

2. If the person, to whom the precept is directed, resides in the city or town in which the property is situated, but is absent from his dwelling-house, service may be made by delivering a copy thereof, together with a copy of the petition, at his dwelling-house, to a person of suitable age and discretion, who resides there; or, if no such person can with reasonable diligence, be found there, upon whom to make service, then by delivering a copy of the precept and petition, at the property sought to be recovered, either to some person of suitable age and discretion residing there, or if no such person can be found there, to any person of suitable age and discretion employed there.

3. Where service cannot, with reasonable diligence, be made, as prescribed in either of the foregoing subdivisions of this section, by affixing a copy of the precept and petition upon a conspicuous part of the property.

If the precept is returnable on the day on which it is issued, it must be served at least two hours before the hour at which it is returnable; in every other case, it must be served at least two days before the day on which it is returnable.

§ 2284. Amount of fine. If an actual loss or injury has been produced to a party to an action or special proceeding, by reason of the misconduct proved against the offender, and the case is not one where it is specially prescribed by law, that an action may be maintained to recover damages for the loss or injury, a fine, sufficient to indemnify the aggrieved party, must be imposed upon the offender, and collected, and paid over to the aggrieved party, under the direction of the court. The payment and acceptance of such a fine constitute a bar to an action by the aggrieved party, to recover damages for the loss or injury. Where it is not shown that such an actual loss or injury has been produced, a fine must be imposed, not exceeding the amount of the complainant's costs and expenses, and two hundred and fifty dollars in addition thereto, and must be collected and paid, in like manner. A corporation may be fined as prescribed in this section.

§ 2389. Notice of sale; how served. Service of notice of the sale, as prescribed in subdivision fourth of the last section, must be made as follows:

1. Upon the mortgagor, his wife, widow, executor, or administrator, or a subsequent grantee of the property, whose conveyance is upon record, or his wife or widow; by delivering a copy of the notice, as prescribed in article first of title first of chapter fifth of this act, for delivery of a copy of a summons, in order to make personal service thereof upon the person to be served; or by leaving such a copy, addressed to the person to be served, at his dwelling-house, with a person of suitable age and discretion, at least fourteen days before the day of sale. If said mortgagor is a foreign corporation, or being a natural person, he, or his wife, widow, executor or administrator, or a subsequent grantee, of the property whose conveyance is upon record, or his wife or widow, is not a resident of or within the State, then service thereof may be made upon them in like manner without the State, at least twenty-eight days prior to the day of sale.

2. Upon any other person, either in the same method, or by depositing a copy of the notice in the post-office, properly inclosed in a postpaid wrapper, directed to the person to be served, at his place of residence, at least twenty-eight days before the day of sale.

§ 2441. Order to examine person having property, etc., of judgment debtor. Upon proof, by affidavit, or other competent written evidence, to the satisfaction of the judge, that an execution against property has been issued, as prescribed in section 2458 of this act, and either that it has been returned wholly or partly unsatisfied, or that it has not been returned; and also that any person or corporation has personal property of the judgment debtor, exceeding ten dollars in value, or is indebted to him in a sum exceeding ten dollars; the judgment creditor is entitled to an order, requiring that person or corporation to attend and be examined concerning the debt, or other property, at a time and place, specified in the order. The judge may, in his discretion, require notice of the subsequent proceedings to be given to the judgment debtor, in such a manner as he deems just. But a receiver shall not be appointed without such a notice; except as otherwise prescribed in article second of this title.

§ 2444. Proceedings upon examination; adjournment. Upon an examination under this article, each answer of a party or witness examined must be under oath. A corporation must attend by, and answer under the oath of, an officer thereof; and the judge may, in his discretion, specify the officer. Either party may be examined as a witness, in his own behalf, and may produce and examine other witnesses, as upon the trial of an action. The judge or referee may adjourn any proceedings, under this article, from time to time, as he thinks proper.

§ 2446. Order permitting person indebted to pay debt to sheriff. At any time after the commencement of a special proceeding, authorized by this article, and before the appointment of a receiver therein, or the extension of a receivership thereto, the judge, by whom the order or warrant was granted, or to whom it is returnable, may, in his discretion, upon proof, by affidavit, to his satisfaction, that a person or corporation is indebted to the judgment debtor, and upon such a notice, given to such persons, as he deems just, or without notice, make an order, permitting the person or corporation, to pay to a sheriff, designated in the order, a sum, on account of the alleged indebtedness, not exceeding the sum which will satisfy the execution. A payment thus made is, to the extent thereof, a discharge of the indebtedness, except as against a transferee from the judgment debtor, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, of whose rights the person or corporation had actual or constructive notice, when the payment was made.

§ 2447. Order requiring delivery of money or property to sheriff or receiver. Where it appears, from the examination or testimony taken in a special proceeding authorized by this article, that the judgment debtor has, in his possession or under his control, money or other personal property, belonging to him; or that one or more articles of personal property, capable of delivery, his right to the possession whereof is not substantially disputed are in the possession or under the control of another person; the judge, by whom the order or warrant was granted, or to whom it is returnable, may, in his discretion, and upon such a notice, given to such persons, as he deems just, or without notice, make an order, directing the judgment debtor, or other person, immediately to pay the money, or deliver the articles of personal property, to a sheriff, designated in the order, unless a receiver has been appointed, or a receivership has been extended to the special proceeding, and in that case to the receiver.

§ 2452. Mode of service of certain orders. An injunction order, or an order requiring a person to attend and be examined, made as prescribed in this article, must be served as follows:

1. The original order, under the hand of the judge making it, must be exhibited to the person to be served.
2. A copy thereof, and of the affidavit upon which it was made, must be delivered to him.

Service upon a corporation is sufficient, if made upon an officer, to whom a copy of a summons must be delivered, where a summons is personally served upon the corporation; unless the officer is specially designated by the judge, as prescribed in section 2444 of this act.

§ 2458. Upon what judgment and to what county the execution must have issued. In order to entitle a judgment-creditor to maintain either of the special proceedings authorized by this article, the judgment must have been rendered upon the judgment debtor's appearance or personal service of the summons upon him, for a sum not less than twenty-five dollars or substituted service of the summons upon him in accordance with section 436 of the code of civil procedure; and the execution must have been issued out of a court of record; and either:

1. To the sheriff of the county where the judgment debtor has, at the time of the commencement of the special proceedings, a place for the regular transaction of business in person; or,
2. If the judgment debtor is then a resident of the state, to the sheriff of the county where he resides; or,
3. If he is not then a resident of the state, to the sheriff of the county where the judgment-roll is filed unless the execution was issued out of a court other than that in which the judgment was rendered, and, in that case, to the sheriff of the county where the transcript of the judgment is filed.

§ 2459. In what county judgment debtor, his bailee, etc., must attend. If the judgment debtor, or other person, required to attend and be examined, as prescribed in this article, or the officer of a corporation, required to attend in its behalf, is, at the time of the service of the order upon him, a resident of the State, or then has an office, within the State, for the regular transaction of business in person, he cannot be compelled to attend, pursuant to the order, or to any adjournment, at a place without the county wherein his residence or place of business is situated.

§ 2517. Jurisdiction, how affected by locality of debts. For the purpose of conferring jurisdiction upon a surrogate's court, a debt owing to a decedent by a resident of the state is regarded as personal property situated within the county where the debtor, or either of two or more joint debtors, resides; and a debt owing to him by a domestic corporation is regarded as personal property situated within the county where the principal office of the corporation is situated. But the foregoing provision does not apply to a debt evidenced by a bond, promissory note, or other instrument for the payment of money only, in terms negotiable, or payable to the bearer or holder. Such a debt, whether the debtor is a resident or a non-resident of the state, or a foreign or a domestic government, state, county, public officer, association, or corporation is, for the purpose of so conferring jurisdiction, regarded as personal property at the place where the bond, note or other instrument is, either within or without the state.

§ 2525. Citation; how served within state. Personal service of a citation within the state shall be made as follows:

Upon an adult person, or upon an infant of the age of fourteen years or upwards, by delivering a copy thereof to the person to be served.

Upon an infant under the age of fourteen years, by delivering a copy thereof to the infant in person, and to his father, mother or guardian; or if there be none within the state, or if the infant does not reside with a parent, to the person having the care and control of him, or with whom he resides, or in whose service he is employed.

Upon a person judicially declared to be incompetent to manage his affairs by reason of lunacy, idiocy, or habitual drunkenness, or upon a corporation by delivering a copy thereof in the manner prescribed for personal service of a summons upon such a person, or upon a corporation in article first of title first of chapter fifth of this act. Upon a public officer by delivering a copy thereof to such officer, or to one of his duly constituted deputies.

Where it appears, by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the surrogate from whose court a citation is issued, that proper and diligent effort has been made to serve it as hereinbefore prescribed in this section upon a resident of the state whose place of residence or place of business is known, and that the person to be served cannot be found at his residence or place of business, and cannot be elsewhere served within the state within a reasonable time, or, if found, that he evades service, so that it cannot be made; the surrogate may make an order directing that service thereof be made, as prescribed in section 436 of this act; and the provisions of that section and of section 437 of this act, relating to the service of a summons, apply to the service of a citation, pursuant to an order made as prescribed in this section.

Where it is necessary in any special proceeding to cite known creditors, and it appears that the number of creditors or persons claiming to be creditors, residing within the state of New York, upon whom citation is required to be served, exceeds fifty, service thereof may be made upon them by publication thereof in such newspaper or newspapers and for such a length of time as shall be fixed by the surrogate, and by the mailing of a copy of such citation to each of them by deposit of a copy thereof in the post-office, properly enclosed in a postpaid sealed wrapper addressed to each of them at his last known post-office address as stated in the order, at least twenty days prior to the return day thereof.

§ 2526. Service personally without the state, or by publication; when ordered. The surrogate from whose court a citation is issued may make an order directing the service thereof personally without the state, or by publication, in either of the following cases:

1. Where it is to be served upon a foreign corporation, or upon a person who is not a resident of the state.

2. Where the person to be served is a resident of the state, and substituted service upon him cannot be authorized as provided in section 2525 of this chapter.

3. Where it is to be served upon a party, or a person required to be made a party, whose name, or residence, cannot be ascertained.

4. Where it is to be served upon one or more unknown creditors, next of kin, heirs, legatees or other persons, either individually or included in a class, to whom a citation has been directed, designating them by a general description, as prescribed in this chapter.

· § 2588 Who entitled to letters of administration. Administration in case of intestacy must be granted to the persons entitled to take or share in the personal property, who are competent and will accept the same, in the following order:

1. To the surviving husband or wife.
2. To the children.
3. To the grandchildren.
4. To the father.
5. To the mother.
6. To the brothers.
7. To the sisters.

8. To any other next of kin entitled to share in the distribution of the estate, preference being given to the person entitled to take the largest share in the estate, except as hereinafter provided.

If a person entitled to take all the personal estate is an infant, or an incompetent, or has died, his guardian, committee or legal representative, as the case may be, shall have a prior right to letters in his place and stead.

If all the persons entitled to take the personal estate are infants, or adjudged incompetents, or, if no adult or competent person entitled to take or share in the estate will accept the same, letters may be granted to the general guardian of an infant or to the committee of an incompetent, in the place of such infant or incompetent.

If no person entitled to take or share in the estate will accept the same or an appointment is not made by consent as hereinafter provided, then administration shall be granted as follows:

a. To the public administrator.

b. To the county treasurer of the county, or to the petitioner, in the discretion of the surrogate.

c. To any other person or persons.

If several persons have an equal right to administration, they must be preferred in the following order: First, men to women; second, relatives of the whole blood to those of the half blood; third, unmarried women to married. If there are several persons equally entitled to administration, the surrogate may grant letters to one or more of such persons. Administration may be granted to one or more competent persons, jointly with, and upon the application of, a person entitled; or to a competent person or persons not entitled, upon the consent of all of the persons entitled to take or share in the estate who are within this state and competent, which consent must be in writing, and filed in the office of the surrogate. For the purposes of this section a trust company or other corporation authorized to act as administrator shall be included in the word "person."

§ 2603. Letters of administration with will annexed; when and to whom granted. If no person is named as executor in the will, or selected by virtue of a power contained therein; or if, at any time there is no executor, or administrator with the will annexed, qualified to act; the surrogate must, upon the application of a creditor of the decedent, or a person interested in the estate of the decedent, or having a lien upon any real property upon which the decedent's estate has a lien, and upon such notice to the other creditors and persons interested in the estate as the surrogate deems proper, issue letters of administration with the will annexed, as follows:

1. To an executor or administrator of a sole legatee and devisee named in a will or to the executor or administrator of a sole residuary legatee and devisee named in a will.

2. To one or more of the residuary legatees, who are qualified to act as administrators. A corporation which is a residuary legatee shall be qualified to act as such administrator, although not specially authorized by its charter or any provision of law.

3. If there is no such residuary legatee or none who will accept, then to one or more of the principal or specified legatees so qualified.

4. If there is no such legatee or none who will accept, then to the husband, or wife, or to one or more of the next of kin, or to one or more of the heirs or devisees, so qualified.

If any of the above persons who would otherwise be entitled to letters is an infant or an adjudged incompetent, administration may be granted to his guardian or committee as the case may be, unless there is an adult or competent person equally entitled who will accept the same.

5. If there is no qualified person, entitled under the foregoing subdivisions, who will accept, then to the public administrator, and if there be none for the county, to the treasurer of the county or to the petitioner in the discretion of the surrogate, and if neither will accept, to any creditor or competent person designated by the surrogate.

Except as to the right of priority as provided in this section, the provisions of section 2588 of this chapter apply to an application for letters of administration with the will annexed.

§ 2865. Actions by and against officers, etc.; and by executors, etc. An action, cognizable by a justice of the peace, may be brought by or against a corporation; by or against a natural person in his own right; by or against a town or county officer in his official character; or by an executor or administrator, trustee of an express trust, or a receiver in supplementary proceedings.

§ 2879. Service of summons upon a corporation. Where the defendant to be served is a corporation, or person, company or partnership doing business in another county than that in which he or it resides, the summons may be personally served upon it or him by delivering a copy thereof to an officer, managing agent or person to whom a copy of the summons in an action brought against the corporation in the supreme court might be delivered as prescribed in sections 431 and 432 of this act, or, to any director, managing agent or trustee of the corporation, person, partnership or company by whatever official title he or it is called.

§ 2906. What must be shown to procure a warrant. To entitle the plaintiff to such a warrant, he must show, by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the justice as follows:

1. That a sufficient cause of action exists against the defendant, to recover damages for one or more of the causes specified in the last section. If the action is upon a judgment, or to recover for breach of a contract, the affidavit must show that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated therein, over and above all counterclaims known to him.

2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation; or not a resident of the State; or, if the defendant is a natural person, and a resident of the State, that he has departed, or is about to depart, from the county where he last resided, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a summons, or keeps himself concealed, with the like intent; or if the defendant is a natural person, or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed, or is about to remove, property from the county where the defendant, being a natural person, last resided, or, being a corporation, last kept its principal office, or from the county in which the action is brought, with intent to defraud his or its creditors, or has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete, property, with the like intent; or that the defendant, being a natural person of full age, and a resident of the State, has been continuously without the United States for the space of six months or more, immediately before the application, and either that he has not made a designation of a person, upon whom to serve a summons in his behalf, as prescribed in section 430 of this act, or that service upon the person so designated cannot be made, with due diligence, in the county where the person making the designation resides. The affidavit must be filed with the justice, when the warrant is granted.

§ 3169. Proof necessary to obtain warrant of attachment. In order to entitle the plaintiff to a warrant of attachment against property, he must show by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the justice granting it, that a sufficient cause of action exists against the defendant, to recover damages for one or more causes specified in section 635 of this act, to an amount stated in the affidavit, which, if the action is to recover damages for breach of contract, must be stated over and above all counterclaims known to the plaintiff; and also that the case is within one of the following subdivisions:

1. That the defendant is a foreign corporation, or being a natural person is not a resident of the State.

2. That the defendant, being an adult and a resident of the borough of Manhattan in the city of New York, has departed from the State, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid service of the summons, or keeps himself concealed therein, with like intent; or that, after proper and diligent effort to ascertain the place of the sojourn of such a resident adult defendant, the same cannot be ascertained.

3. That the defendant, being an adult, has removed, or is about to remove, property from the State, with intent to defraud his creditors, or that he has assigned, disposed of, or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of, or secrete property with the like intent.

4. That the defendant, being an adult and a resident of that borough has been continuously without the United States more than six months next before the granting of the warrant, and has not made a designation of a person upon whom to serve a summons in his behalf, as prescribed in section 430 of this act; or a designation so made no longer remains in force.

§ 3170. Service of summons without the city, or by publication. An order, directing the service of a summons, either without the city of New-York, or by publication, may be granted by the court, or by a justice thereof; but only in a case, where a warrant of attachment has been issued, as prescribed in the last section, and personal service of the summons cannot be made, with due diligence, within that city. The plaintiff, when he applies for such an order, must show by affidavit, to the satisfaction of the court or justice, that the case is within this section. Where an order is granted, as prescribed in this section, service of the summons without that city may be made, as directed in the order, either within or without the State. Sections 440 to 445, both inclusive, and sections 638, 707, and 708 of this act apply to the service or publication, pursuant to such an order, and to the proceedings relating to the same, and subsequent thereto; substituting the words, "the city of New-York", in place of the words, "the State", wherever the latter words occur. If the defendant is a resident of the city of New-York, the order must also direct that a copy of the summons, complaint, and order be left at his residence, specifying it, with a person of suitable age and discretion, if, upon reasonable application, admittance can be obtained, and such a person found who will receive it; or, if admittance cannot be so obtained, nor such a person found, by affixing the same to the outer door of the residence so specified.

§ 3203. Jurisdiction in civil actions. The jurisdiction of the city court of Yonkers extends to the following civil actions only:

1. An action against a natural person, or against a foreign or domestic corporation, wherein the complaint demands judgment for a sum of money only, or to recover one or more chattels, with or without damages for the taking, withholding, or detention thereof,

2. An action to foreclose or enforce a lien, upon real property in the city

3. An action to foreclose or enforce a lien, for a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, upon one or more chattels.

§ 3242. Costs where action brought by people, on relation of private person. Where an action is brought, in the name of the people of the State, upon the relation of a private corporation or individual, as prescribed in section 1986 of this act, a judgment, awarding costs to the defendant, must award them, against the relator, in the first instance; and against the people, only in case an execution, issued thereupon against the property of the relator, is returned unsatisfied.

§ 3268. When defendant may require security for costs. The defendant, in an action brought in a court of record, may require security for costs to be given, as prescribed in this title, where the plaintiff was, when the action was commenced, either

1. A person residing without the state; or, if the action is brought in a county court, except in the counties of Albany, Kings, Queens, Rensselaer and Richmond, or in the city court of the city of New York, the city court of Yonkers, or the city court of Albany, residing without the city or county, as the case may be, wherein the court is located; or

4. The official assignee of a person so imprisoned; the official assignee or official trustee of a debtor; or an assignee in bankruptcy; where the action is brought upon a cause of action, arising before the assignment, the appointment of the trustee, or the adjudication in bankruptcy.,

§ 3270. The last two sections qualified. In a case specified in either of the last two sections, if there are two or more plaintiffs, the defendant cannot require security for costs to be given, unless he is entitled to require it of all the plaintiffs.

§ 3304. Fees of county clerks generally. A county clerk is entitled, for the services specified in this section, except where another fee is allowed therefor by special statutory provision, to the following fees, to be paid in advance:

said receiver such a sum, not exceeding one hundred dollars, for his commissions as shall be commensurate with the services rendered by said receiver. If the instrument creating the trust provides specific compensation for the services of the trustee or trustees, no other compensation for such services shall be allowed unless the trustee or trustees shall, before receiving any compensation for such services, by a written instrument duly acknowledged, renounce such specific compensation.

§ 3343. Miscellaneous general definitions and rules of construction. In construing this act, the following rules must be observed, except where a contrary intent is expressly declared in the provision to be construed, or plainly apparent from the context thereof:

A warrant of attachment against property is said to be "annulled", when the action, in which it was granted, abates or is discontinued; or a final judgment, rendered therein in favor of the plaintiff is fully paid; or a final judgment is rendered therein in favor of the defendant. But, in the case last specified, a stay of proceedings suspends the effect of the annulment, and the reversal or vacating of the judgment revives the warrant.

13. The term, "judgment creditor", signifies the person who is entitled to collect, or otherwise enforce, in his own right, a judgment for a sum of money, or directing the payment of a sum of money.

14. A "judgment creditor's action" is an action brought as prescribed in article first of title fourth of chapter fifteenth of this act, or any other action, brought by a judgment creditor to aid the collection of a judgment for a sum of money, or directing the payment of a sum of money.

Every other corporation is a "foreign corporation".

19. The terms, "trial juror", and "trial jury", are respectively equivalent to the terms, "petit juror", and "petit jury", as used in the constitution and laws of the State. § 3362. How petition and notice served. Service of the petition and notice must be made in the same manner as the service of a summons in an action in the supreme court is required to be made, and all the provisions of articles one and two of title one of chapter five of this act, which relate to the service of a summons, either personally or in any other way, and the mode of proving service, shall apply to the service of the petition and notice. the real property described in the petition, service upon such agent or attorney will be sufficient service upon such defendant. § 3363. Appearance of infant, idiot, lunatic or habitual drunkard. If a defendant is an infant, idiot, lunatic or habitual drunkard, it shall be the duty of his general guardian, committee or trustee, if he has one, to appear for him upon the presentation of the petition and attend to his interests, and in case he has none, or in case his general guardian, committee or trustee fails to appear for him, the court shall, upon the presentation of the petition and notice, with proof of service, without further notice, appoint a guardian ad litem for such defendant, whose duty it shall be to appear for him and attend to his interests in the proceeding, and if deemed necessary to protect his rights, the court may require a general guardian, committee or trustee, or a guardian ad litem to give security in such sum and with such sureties as the court may approve. If a service other than personal has been made upon any defendant, and he does not appear upon the presentation of the petition, the court shall appoint some competent attorney to appear for him and attend to his interests in the proceeding.

§ 3364. Appearance of parties generally. The provisions of law and of the rules and practice of the court, relating to the appearance of parties in person or by attorney in actions in the supreme court, shall apply to the proceeding from and after the service of the petition, and all subsequent orders, notices and papers may be served upon the attorney appearing and upon a guardian ad litem in the same manner and with the same effect as the service of papers in an action in the supreme court may be made.

§ 3365 Answer; contents thereof. Upon presentation of the petition and notice with proof of service thereof, an owner of the property may appear and interpose an answer, which must contain a general or specific denial of each material allegation of the petition controverted by him, or of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief, or a statement of new matter constituting a defence to the proceeding.

§ 3366. Verification of petition or answer. A petition or answer must be verified, and the provisions of this act relating to the form and contents of the verification of pleadings in courts of record, and the persons by whom it may be made, shall apply to the verification.

§ 3367. Trial; case; exceptions. The court shall try any issue raised by the petition and answer at such time and place as it may direct, or it may order the same to be referred to a referee to hear and determine, and upon such trial the court or referee shall file a decision in writing, or deliver the same to the attorney for the prevailing party, within twenty days after the final submission of the proofs and allegations of the parties, and the provisions of this act relating to the form and contents of decisions upon the trial of issues of fact by the court or a referee, and to making and filing exceptions thereto, and the making and settlement of a case for the review thereof upon appeal, and to the proceedings which may be had, in case such decision is not filed or delivered within the time herein required, and to the powers of the court and referee upon such trial, shall be applicable to a trial and decision under this title.

§ 3368. Certain provisions of code applicable. The provisions of title one of chapter eight of this act shall also apply to proceedings had under this title.

§ 3369. Judgment; costs to defendant; commissioners. Judgment shall be entered pursuant to the direction of the court or referee in the decision filed. If in favor of the defendant, the petition shall be dismissed, with costs to be taxed by the clerk, at the same rates as are allowed, of course, to a defendant prevailing in an action in the supreme court, including the allowances for proceedings before, and after notice of trial. If the decision is in favor of the plaintiff, or if no answer has been interposed and it appears from the petition that he is entitled to the relief demanded, judgment shall be entered, adjudging that the condemnation of the real property described is necessary for the public use, and that the plaintiff is entitled to take and hold the property for the public use specified, upon making compensation therefor, and the court shall thereupon appoint three disinterested and competent freeholders, residents of the judicial district embracing the county where the real property, or some part of it, is situated, or of some county adjoining such judicial district, commissioners to ascertain the compensation to be made to the owners for the property to be taken for the public use specified, and fix the time and place for the first meeting of the commissioners. Provided, however, that in any such proceeding instituted within the first or second judicial district, such commissioners shall be residents of the county where the real property, or some part of it, is situated, or of some adjoining county. If a trial has been had, at least eight days' notice of such appointment must be given to all the defendants who have appeared. The parties may waive, in writing, the provisions of this section as to the residence of the commissioners, and in that case they may be residents of any county in the State. Where owners of separate properties are joined in the same proceeding, or separate properties of the same owner are to be condemned, more than one set of commissioners may be appointed.

§ 3370. Powers and duties of commissioners. The commissioners shall take and subscribe the constitutional oath of office. Any of them may issue subpoenas and administer oaths to witnesses; a majority of them may adjourn the proceeding before them, from time to time in their discretion. Whenever they meet, except by appointment of the court or pursuant to adjournment, they shall cause at least eight days' notice of such meeting to be given to the defendants who have appeared, or their agents or attorneys. They shall view the premises described in the petition, and hear the proof and allegations of the parties, and reduce the testimony taken by them, if any, to writing, and after the testimony in each case is closed, they, or a majority of them, all being present, shall, without unnecessary delay ascertain and determine the compensation which ought justly to be made by the plaintiff to the owners of the property appraised by them; and, in fixing the amount of such compensation, they shall not make any allowance or deduction on account of any real or supposed benefits which the owners may derive from the public use for which the property is to be taken, or the construction of any proposed improvement connected with such public use. But in case the plaintiff is a railroad corporation and such real property shall belong to any other railroad corporation, the commissioners on fixing the amount of such compensation, shall fix the same at its fair value for railroad purposes. They shall make a report of their proceedings to the supreme court with the minutes of the testimony taken by them, if any; and they shall each be entitled to six dollars for services for every day they are actually engaged in the performance of their duties, and their necessary expenses, to be paid by the plaintiff; provided, that in proceedings within the counties of New York and Kings, such commissioners shall be entitled to such additional compensation not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every such day, as may be awarded by the court, and provided that in proceedings instituted by a village or any board thereof under this title such commissioners shall be entitled to such additional compensation, not exceeding five dollars for every such day, as may be awarded by the court.

§ 3371. Confirmation or setting aside of report; deposit, when deemed a payment. Upon filing the report of the commissioners, any party may move for its confirmation at a special term, held in the district where the property or some part of it is situated, upon notice to the other parties who have appeared, and upon such motion, the court may confirm the report, or may set it aside for irregularity, or for error of law in the proceedings before the commissioners, or upon the ground that the award is excessive or insufficient. If the report is set aside, the court may direct a rehearing before the same commissioners, or may appoint new commissioners for that purpose, and the proceedings upon such rehearing shall be conducted in the manner prescribed for the original hearing, and the same proceedings shall be had for the confirmation of the second report, as are herein prescribed for the confirmation of the first report. If the report is confirmed, the court shall enter a final order in the proceeding, directing that compensation shall be made to the owners of the property, pursuant to the determination of the commissioners, and that upon payment of such compensation, the plaintiff shall be entitled to enter into the possession of the property condemned, and take and hold it for the public use specified in the judgment. Deposit of the money to the credit of, or payable to the order of the owner, pursuant to the direction of the court, shall be deemed a payment within the provisions of this title.

§ 3372. Offer to purchase; costs; additional allowance. In all cases where the owner is a resident and not under legal disability to convey title to real property the plaintiff, before service of his petition and notice, may make a written offer to purchase the property at a specified price, which must within ten days thereafter be filed in the office of the clerk of the county where the property is situated; and which cannot be given in evidence before the commissioners, or considered by them. The owner may at the time of the presentation of the petition, or at any time previously, serve notice in writing of the acceptance of plaintiff's offer, and thereupon the plaintiff may, upon filing the petition, with proof of the making of the offer, and its acceptance, enter an order that upon payment of the compensation agreed upon, he may enter into possession of the real property, described in the petition, and take and hold it for the public use therein specified. If the offer is not accepted, and the compensation awarded by the commissioners does not exceed the amount of the offer with interest from the time it was made, no costs shall be allowed to either party. If the compensation awarded shall exceed the amount of the offer with interest from the time it was made, or if no offer was made, the court shall, in the final order, direct that the defendant recover of the plaintiff the costs of the proceeding, to be taxed by the clerk at the same rate as is allowed, of course, to the defendant when he is the prevailing party in an action in the supreme court, including the allowances for proceedings, before and after notice of trial, and the court may also grant an additional allowance of costs, not exceeding five per centum upon the amount awarded. The court shall also direct in the final order what sum shall be paid to the general or special guardian, or committee or trustee of an infant, idiot, lunatic or habitual drunkard, or to an attorney appointed by the court to attend to the interests of any defendant upon whom other than personal service of the petition and notice may have been made, and who has not appeared, for costs, expenses and counsel fees, and by whom or out of what fund the same shall be paid. If a trial has been had, and all the issues determined in favor of the plaintiff, costs of the trial shall not be allowed to the defendant, but the plaintiff shall recover of any defendant answering the costs of such trial caused by the interposition of the unsuccessful defence, to be taxed by the clerk at the same rate as is allowed to the prevailing party for the trial of an action in the supreme court.

§ 3373. Judgment, how enforced; delivery of possession of premises; when writ of assistance to issue. Upon the entry of the final order, the same shall be attached to the judgment-roll in the proceeding, and the amount directed to be paid, either as compensation to the owners, or for the costs or expenses of the proceeding, shall be docketed as a judgment against the person who is directed to pay the same, and it shall have all the force and effect of a money judgment in an action in the supreme court, and collection thereof may be enforced by execution and by the same proceedings as judgments for the recovery of money in the supreme court may be enforced under the provisions of this act. When payment of the compensation awarded, and costs of the proceedings, if any, has been made, as directed in the final order, and a certified copy of such order has been served upon the owner, he shall, upon demand of the plaintiff, deliver possession thereof to him, and in case possession is not delivered when demanded, the plaintiff may apply to the court without notice, unless the court shall require notice to be given, upon proof of such payment and of service of the copy order, and of the demand and non-compliance therewith, for a writ of assistance, and the court shall thereupon cause such writ to be issued, which shall be executed in the same manner as when issued in other cases for the delivery of possession of real property.

§ 3374. Abandonment and discontinuance of proceeding. Upon the application of the plaintiff to be made at any time after the presentation of the petition and before the expiration of thirty days after the entry of the final order, upon eight day's notice of motion to all other parties to the proceeding who have appeared therein or upon an order to show cause, the court may, in its discretion, and for good cause shown, authorize and direct the abandonment and discontinuance of the proceeding, upon payment of the fees and expenses, if any, of the commissioners, and the costs and expenses, directed to be paid in such final order, if such final order shall have been entered, and upon such other terms and conditions as the court may prescribe; and upon entry of the order granting such application and upon compliance with the terms and conditions therein prescribed, payment of the amount awarded for compensation, if such compensation shall have been theretofore awarded, shall not be enforced, but in such case, if such abandonment and discontinuance of the proceedings be directed upon the application of the plaintiff, the order granting such application, if permitting a renewal of such proceedings, shall provide that proceedings to acquire title to such lands or any part thereof shall not be renewed by the plaintiff without a tender or deposit in court of the amount of the award and interest thereon.

§ 3375. Appeal from final order; stay of proceedings. Appeal may be taken to the appellate division of the supreme court from the final order, within the time provided for appeals from orders by title four of chapter twelve of this act; and all the provisions of such chapter relating to appeals to the appellate division of the supreme court from orders of the special term shall apply to such appeals. Such appeal will bring up for review all the proceedings subsequent to the judgment, but the judgment and proceedings antecedent thereto may be reviewed on such appeal, if the appellant states in his notice that the same will be brought up for review, and exceptions shall have been filed to the decision of the court or the referee, and a case or a case and exceptions shall have been made, settled and allowed, as required by the provisions of this act for the review of the trial of actions in the supreme court without a jury. The proceedings of the plaintiff shall not be stayed upon such an appeal, except by order of the court, upon notice to him, and the appeal shall not affect his possession of the property taken, and the appeal of a defendant shall not be heard except on his stipulation not to disturb such possession.

§ 3376. Appeal by plaintiff to appellate division of Supreme Court. If a trial has been had and judgment entered in favor of the defendant, the plaintiff may appeal therefrom to the appellate division of the supreme court within the time provided for appeals from judgments by title four of chapter twelve of this act, and all the provisions of said chapter relating to appeals from judgments shall apply to such appeals; and on the hearing of the appeal the appellate division may affirm, reverse or modify the judgment, and in case of reversal may grant a new trial, or direct that judgment be entered in favor of the plaintiff. If the judgment is affirmed, costs shall be allowed to the respondent, but if reversed or modified, no costs of the appeal shall be allowed to either party.

§ 3377. Court may direct a new appraisal. On the hearing of the appeal from the final order the court may direct a new appraisal before the same or new commissioners, in its discretion, and the report of such commissioners shall be final and conclusive upon all parties interested. If the amount of the compensation to be paid is increased by the last report, the difference shall be a lien upon the land appraised, and shall be paid to the parties entitled to the same, or shall be deposited as the court shall direct; and if the amount is diminished, the difference shall be refunded to the plaintiff by the party to whom the same may have been paid, and judgment therefor may be rendered by the court, on the filing of the last report, against the parties liable to pay the same.

§ 3378. Conflicting claimants. If there are adverse and conflicting claimants to the money, or any part of it, to be paid as compensation for the property taken, the court may direct the money to be paid into the court by the plaintiff, and may determine who is entitled to the same, and direct to whom the same shall be paid, and may, in its discretion, order a reference to ascertain the facts on which such determination and direction are to be made.

§ 3379. Plaintiff in possession may have stay of proceedings on giving security. At any stage of the proceeding the court may authorize the plaintiff, if in possession of the property sought to be condemned to continue in possession, and may stay all actions or proceedings against him on account thereof, upon giving security, or depositing such sum of money as the court may direct to be held as security for the payment of the compensation which may be finally awarded to the owner therefor and the costs of the proceedings, and in every such case the owner may conduct the proceeding to a conclusion, if the plaintiff delays or neglects to prosecute the same. When the final award to any owner is less than fifty dollars, in proceedings to condemn a right of way, for telephone or telegraph poles and wires, the allowance of costs, if any, and the amount thereof not exceeding that prescribed by statute, shall be in the discretion of the court in any action or proceeding that may have been or may hereafter be stayed, if the telephone or telegraph poles and wires, in such action or proceeding so stayed, shall have been erected for more than three years prior to the commencement thereof.

§ 3380. Temporary possession pending proceedings. When an answer to the petition has been interposed, and it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the public interests will be prejudiced by delay, it may direct that the plaintiff be permitted to enter immediately upon the real property to be taken, and devote it temporarily to the public use specified in the petition, upon depositing with the court the sum stated in the answer as the value of the property, and which sum shall be applied, so far as it may be necessary for that purpose, to the payment of the award that may be made, and the costs and expenses of the proceeding, and the residue, if any, returned to the plaintiff, and, in case the petition should be dismissed, or no award should be made, or the proceedings should be abandoned by the plaintiff, the court shall direct that the money so deposited, so far as it may be necessary, shall be applied to the payment of any damages which the defendant may have sustained by such entry upon and use of his property, and his costs and expenses of the proceedings, such damages to be ascertained by the court, or a referee to be appointed for that purpose, and if the sum so deposited shall be insufficient to pay such damages, and all costs and expenses awarded to the defendant, judgment shall be entered against the plaintiff for the deficiency, to be enforced and collected in the same manner as a judgment in the supreme court; and the possession of the property shall be restored to the defendant.

§ 3381. Notice of pendency of action to be filed. Upon service of the petition, or at any time afterwards before the entry of the final order, the plaintiff may file in the clerk's office of each county where any part of the property is situated, a notice of the pendency of the proceeding, stating the names of the parties and the object of the proceeding, and containing a brief description of the property affected thereby, and from the time of filing, such notice shall be constructive notice to a purchaser, or incumbrancer of the property affected thereby, from or against a defendant with respect to whom the notice is directed to be indexed, as herein prescribed, and a person whose conveyance or incumbrance is subsequently executed or subsequently recorded, is bound by all proceedings taken in the proceeding, after the filing of the notice, to the same extent as if he was a party thereto. The county clerk must immediately record such notice when filed in the book in his office kept for the purpose of recording notices of pendency of actions, and index it to the name of each defendant specified in the direction appended at the foot of the notice, and subscribed by the plaintiff or his attorney.

§ 3382. Practice in cases not herein provided for. In all proceedings under this title, where the mode or manner of conducting all or any of the proceedings therein is not expressly provided for by law, the court before whom such proceedings may be pending, shall have the power to make all necessary orders and give necessary directions to carry into effect the object and intent of this title, and of the several acts conferring authority to condemn lands for public use, and the practice in such cases shall conform, as near as may be, to the ordinary practice in such court.

§ 3383. Repealing clause limitations. So much of all acts and parts of acts as prescribed a method of procedure in proceedings for the condemnation of real property for a public use is repealed, except such acts and parts of acts as prescribed a method of procedure for the condemnation of real property for public use as a highway, or as a street, avenue, or public place in an incorporated city or village, or as may prescribe methods of procedure for such condemnation for any public use for by, on behalf, on the part, or in the name of the corporation of the city of New York, known as the mayor, aldermen, and commonalty of the city of New York, or by whatever name known, or by or on the application of any board, department, commissioners or other officers acting for or on behalf or in the name of such corporation or city, or where the title to the real property so to be acquired vests in such corporation or in such city; and all proceedings for the condemnation of real property embraced within the exceptions enumerated in this section are exempted from the operation of this title.

§ 3384. When act takes effect. This title shall take effect on the first day of May, 1890, and shall not affect any proceeding previously commenced.

§ 17. Venue. 1. An action must be brought in a district in which either the plaintiff or defendant or one of the plaintiffs or one of the defendants resides, unless all the plaintiffs or all the defendants reside out of the city of New York, in which case the action may be brought in any district; but an action brought by the assignee of the cause of action shall, upon the demand of a defendant made as provided in subdivision two of this section, be transferred to the district in which the defendant resides, and the court must make an order for such transfer, as provided in said subdivision. The district in which is situated the place for the regular transaction of business of an individual who does not reside in the city of New York, and the place where a corporation transacts its general business or keeps an office or has an agency established for the transaction of business, or is established by law, shall be deemed the place of residence under the provisions of this section. The city of New York may sue or be sued in any district, except as provided in subdivision three of this section.

Such demand must be made in writing and filed with the clerk before or at joinder of issue and must specify the district to which the defendant desires the action to be transferred and facts under oath showing that such district is the proper one. The court must thereupon transfer the action to the proper district, and may in its discretion impose five dollars costs against the plaintiff.

4. An action or special proceeding may upon consent be transferred by the court to a district other than that in which it is pending.

5. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the board of justices from designating a part or parts of the court where special classes of cases shall be brought or tried, or the president of the board of justices from transferring cases from one district to another in the same borough.

§ 21. Method of serving summons. 1. The summons may be served upon the defendant within the city of New York in like manner as though the summons issued out of the supreme court, except as otherwise provided in this act or in the rules, provided that it shall not be served by publication.

§ 40. Grounds; affidavit. To entitle the plaintiff to a warrant of attachment he must show by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court:

1. That a cause of action for which a warrant of attachment may be granted exists against the defendant; and if the action is based upon a breach of contract, that the plaintiff is entitled to recover a sum stated, in excess of all counterclaims known to him.

2. That the defendant is either a foreign corporation or not a resident of the state; or, if the defendant is a natural person and a resident of the city of New York, that he has departed or is about to depart therefrom with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid the service of a summons, or keeps himself concealed with the like intent; or, if the defendant is a natural person or a domestic corporation, that he or it has removed or is about to remove property from the city of New York with intent to defraud his or its creditors, or has assigned, disposed of or secreted, or is about to assign, dispose of or secrete property with the like intent; or, where for the purpose of procuring credit or the extension of credit, the defendant has made a false statement in writing under his own hand and signature, or under the hand and signature of a duly authorized agent made with his knowledge and acquiescence, as to his financial responsibility or standing; or, that the defendant, being a natural person of full age and a resident of the state, has been continuously without the state for the space of six months or more immediately before the application, and either that he has not made a designation of a person upon whom to serve a summons in his behalf as prescribed in section 430 of the code of civil procedure, or that a designation so made no longer remains in force.

§ 94. Order that issues be tried unnecessary in action against corporation. In an action against a corporation, an order directing that the issues presented by the pleadings be tried shall not be required.

§ 108. The same; affidavit on application. The party desiring to take a deposition as prescribed in the last preceding section, must present to the court in the district where the action or special proceeding is pending, an affidavit showing:

1. The title and nature of the action or proceeding and the name and residence of the person to be examined; and that the testimony of such person is material and necessary for the prosecution or defense of the action or proceeding.

2. That the person to be examined is about to depart from the city of New York, or that he is so sick or infirm as to afford reasonable ground to believe that he will not be able to attend the trial, or that any other special circumstances exist which render it proper that he should be examined; but this subdivision does not apply where the person to be examined is a party to the actions, except in case of his sickness or infirmity.

3. If the party sought to be examined is a corporation, the affidavit shall state the names of the officers or directors thereof whose testimony is necessary and material, or the books and papers as to the contents of which an examination or inspection is desired; and the order to be made in respect thereto shall direct the examination of such persons and the production of such books and papers.

CONSOLIDATED LAWS

BUSINESS CORPORATIONS LAW.

§ 1. Short title. This chapter shall be known as the "Business Corporations Law."

§ 2. Incorporation. Except as provided in section two-a of this chapter, three or more persons may become a stock corporation for any lawful business purpose or purposes other than a moneyed corporation, or a corporation provided for by the banking, the insurance, the railroad and the transportation corporations laws, or an educational institution or corporation which may be incorporated as provided in the education law, by making, signing, acknowledging and filing a certificate which shall contain:

1. The name of the proposed corporation.
2. The purpose or purposes for which it is to be formed.
3. The amount of the capital stock, and if any portion be preferred stock, the preferences thereof.
4. The number of shares of which the capital stock shall consist, each of which shall not be less than five nor more than one hundred dollars, and the amount of capital not less than five hundred dollars, with which said corporation will begin business.
5. The city, village or town in which its principal business office is to be located. If it is to be located in the city of New York, the borough therein in which it is to be located.
6. Its duration.

8. The names and post-office addresses of the directors for the first year.
9. The names and post-office addresses of the subscribers to the certificate, and a statement of the number of shares of stock which each agrees to take in the corporation.

Any certificate of incorporation filed, prior to April twenty-second, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, under the provisions of the business corporations law theretofore in force which shall contain the names and post-office addresses, either of the subscribers to the stock or of the subscribers to the certificate, and a statement of the number of shares of stock which each agrees to take in the corporation, shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of section two, subdivision nine of said law.

If meetings of the board of directors are to be held only within the state the certificate or by-laws must so provide.

§ 2-a. Incorporating for the purpose of conducting law business, et cetera, prohibited. No corporation shall be organized or created under the provisions of this chapter for the purpose or purposes of conducting any branch of the practice of law or of retaining or employing an attorney or attorneys to furnish legal advice, draw legal papers or perform legal services of any kind or description, either directly for the person, persons or corporation for whose use such services are rendered, or for the corporation retaining such attorney in compliance with any contract of employment of the corporation or of the attorney made by the corporation with any other person, persons or corporation. The statement of the purpose or purposes of a corporation, in any certificate filed under the provisions of this chapter, in whatsoever language the same may be set forth, shall not be held or construed to confer on the corporation the power to transact any business specified in this section as a purpose for which the creation of a corporation under this chapter is prohibited; and particularly when the stated objects of a corporation include the collection of debts or accounts, in words or substance, they shall not be construed to include the employment or furnishing of attorneys to prosecute any action or pursue any legal or equitable remedy in aid of such collections.

§ 3. Restrictions upon commencement of business. No such corporation shall incur any debts until the amount of capital specified in its certificate of incorporation, as the amount of capital with which it will begin business, shall have been paid in in money or property.

§ 4. Reorganization of existing corporations. Any stock corporation heretofore organized, except a moneyed or transportation corporation, or a corporation the business of which partakes of the nature of banking or insurance, may reincorporate under this chapter in the following manner: The directors of the corporation shall call a meeting of the stockholders thereof by publishing a notice, stating the time, place and object of the meeting, signed by at least a majority of them, in a newspaper of the county in which its principal business office is situated, once a week, for at least three successive weeks, and by serving upon each stockholder, at least three weeks before the meeting, a copy of such notice either personally or by depositing it in the post-office, postage prepaid, addressed to him at his last known post-office address. The stockholders shall meet at the time and place specified in the notice and organize by choosing one of the directors chairman, and a suitable secretary, and shall then take a vote of those present in person or by proxy upon the proposition to reincorporate under this chapter, and if votes representing a majority of all the stock of the corporation shall be cast in favor of the proposition, the officers of the meeting shall execute and acknowledge a certificate of the proceedings, which certificate shall also contain the statements required by section two of this chapter, and shall be filed in the offices where certificates of incorporation under this chapter are required to be filed. From the time of such filing such corporation shall be deemed to be a corporation organized under this chapter, and if originally organized or incorporated under a general law of this state, it shall have and exercise all such rights and franchises as it has heretofore had and exercised under the laws pursuant to which it was originally incorporated, and such reorganization shall not in any way affect, change or diminish the existing liabilities of the corporation.

§ 5. Payment of capital stock. One-half of the capital stock of every such corporation shall be paid in within one year from its incorporation, or the corporation shall be dissolved, and the directors within thirty days after such payment shall make a certificate of the fact of such payment, which shall be signed and acknowledged by a majority of the directors, and verified by the president or vice-president and secretary or treasurer, and filed in the office where the certificates of incorporation are filed. The dissolution of any such corporation for any cause shall not take away or impair any remedy against it, its stockholders or officers, for any liabilities incurred previous to its dissolution.

§ 6. Full liability corporations. Every corporation formed under this chapter may be or become a full liability corporation by inserting a statement in the certificate of incorporation, that the corporation thereby formed is intended to be a full liability corporation; and in case of an existing corporation, which is not a full liability corporation, it may become such by filing in the offices where certificates of incorporation are required to be filed, a supplemental certificate stating that thereafter the corporation intends to be a full liability corporation, which certificate shall be executed and acknowledged by the president and treasurer of the corporation or by the board of directors, and shall have annexed thereto a copy of a resolution, adopted by a two-thirds vote of the board of directors, and the written consent of all the stockholders of the corporation, authorizing and consenting to the change of the corporation to a full liability corporation. If the corporation is formed as or becomes a full liability corporation all the stockholders of the corporation shall be severally individually liable to its creditors for all its debts and liabilities, and may be joined as defendants in any action against it. No execution shall issue against any stockholder individually until execution has been issued against the corporation and returned unsatisfied, and all the stockholders shall contribute a proportionate share, according to the number of shares of stock owned by each, of the amount paid by any stockholder on a judgment recovered against him individually for a debt of the corporation, and he may recover from the other stockholders in the corporation in a joint or several action the proper portion due by them and each of them, of the amount paid by him on any such judgment.

§ 7. Consolidation of corporations. Any two or more corporations organized under the laws of this state for the purpose of carrying on any kind of business of the same or of a similar nature, which a corporation organized under this chapter might carry on, may consolidate such corporations into a single corporation, as follows: The respective corporations may enter into and make an agreement signed by a majority of their respective boards of directors and under their respective corporate seals, for the consolidation of such corporations, prescribing the terms and conditions thereof, the mode of carrying the same into effect, the name of the new corporation, the number of directors who shall manage its affairs, not less than three, the names and post-office addresses of the directors for the first year, the term of its existence, not exceeding fifty years, the name of the town or towns, county or counties, in which its operations are to be carried on, the name of the town or city and county in this state in which its principal place of business is to be situated, the amount of its capital stock, which shall not be larger in amount than the fair aggregate value of the property, franchises and rights of such corporations, and the number of shares into which the same is to be divided, the manner of distributing such capital stock among the holders thereof, and if such corporations, or either of them, shall have been organized for the purpose of carrying on any part of its business in any place out of this state, the agreement shall so state, with such other particulars as they may deem necessary.

§ 8. Submission of consolidation agreement to stockholders. Such agreement shall be submitted to the stockholders of each of such corporations, at a meeting thereof to be called upon notice of at least two weeks, specifying the time, place and object thereof, and addressed to each at his last known post-office address, and deposited in the post-office, postage prepaid, and published for at least two successive weeks in one of the newspaper in each of the counties of this state in which either of such corporations shall have its place of business, and if such agreement shall be approved at each of such meetings of the respective stockholders separately, by the vote by ballot of the stockholders owning at least two-thirds of the stock, the same shall be the agreement of such corporation, and a sworn copy of the proceedings of such meetings, made by the secretaries thereof, respectively, and attached thereto, shall be presumptive evidence of the holding and action of such meetings. Such agreement and verified copy of proceedings of such meetings shall be made in duplicate, one of which shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and the other in the office of the clerk of the county where the principal business office of the new corporation is to be situated in this state, and thereupon such corporation shall be merged into the new corporation specified in such agreement, to be known by the corporate name therein mentioned, and the provisions of such agreement shall be carried into effect as therein provided. If any stockholder, not voting in favor of such agreement to consolidate, shall at such meeting, or within twenty days thereafter, object to such consolidation and demand payment for his stock, such stockholder or such new corporation, if the consolidation takes effect at any time thereafter, may at any time within sixty days after such meeting apply to the supreme court at any special term thereof held in the district in which any county is situated in which such new corporation may have its place of business, upon at least eight days' notice to the new corporation, for the appointment of three persons to appraise the value of such stock, and the court shall appoint three such appraisers and designate the time and place of their first meeting, with such directions in regard to their proceedings as shall be deemed proper, and also direct the manner in which payment for such stock shall be made to such stockholder. The court may fill any vacancy in the board of appraisers occurring by refusal or neglect to serve or otherwise. The appraisers shall meet at the time and place designated, and they or any two of them, after being duly sworn honestly and faithfully to discharge their duties, shall estimate and certify the value of such stock at the time of such dissent, and deliver one copy to such new corporation, and another to such stockholder if demanded; the charges and expenses of the appraisers shall be paid by the new corporation. When the new corporation shall have paid the amount of such appraisal, as directed by the court, such stockholder shall cease to have any interest in such stock and in the corporate property of such corporation, and such stock may be held or disposed of by such new corporation. Where any consolidation has been heretofore or shall be hereafter effected pursuant to the laws of this state, and the holders of ninety per centum of the capital stock of each of such corporations have voted in favor of such agreement to consolidate, if any stockholder not voting in favor of such consolidation shall fail to exchange his stock for stock of such new corporation within sixty days after this act shall go into effect, or, in case of a consolidation hereafter effected, within sixty days after he shall have become entitled to make such exchange, such new corporation may, at any time thereafter, upon at least eight days' notice to such stockholder, to be given personally, within the state, if possible, and if not, then in such manner as the court shall direct, apply to the court as herein provided, for the appointment of three persons to appraise the value of such stock at the time of the expiration of such sixty days. Upon the completion of the appraisal in the manner hereinbefore provided for, and the payment by such new corporation of the amount of such appraisal, as directed by the court, such stockholder shall cease to have any interest in such stock, and in the corporate property of such corporation, and such stock may be held or disposed of by such new corporation.

§ 9. Powers of consolidated corporations. Such new corporation in addition to the general powers of corporations shall enjoy the rights, franchises and privileges possessed by each of the corporations so consolidated, subject to the restrictions, liabilities, duties and provisions contained in this chapter so far as the same may be applicable to the purposes for which it shall have been organized and expressed in the agreement for consolidation, and may prosecute or carry on any kind of business which each of the consolidating corporations was authorized by law to conduct.

§ 10. Transfer of property of old corporations to consolidated corporations. Upon the consummation of such act of consolidation, all the rights, privileges, franchises and interests of each of the corporations, parties to the same, and all the property, real, personal and mixed, and all the debts due on whatever account to either of them, as well as all stock subscriptions and other things in action belonging to either of them, shall be taken and deemed to be transferred to and vested in such new corporation, without further act or deed; and all claims demands, property and every other interest shall be as effectually the property of the new corporation as they were of the former corporations, parties to such agreement and act; and the title to all real estate, taken by deed or otherwise, under the laws of this state, vested in either of such corporations, parties to such agreement and act, shall not be deemed to revert or be in any way impaired by reason of this chapter, or anything done by virtue thereof, but shall be vested in the new corporation by virtue of such act of consolidation; and all the rights, privileges, franchises and property of the corporations, parties to any consolidation heretofore made under this chapter, shall vest as fully in the new corporation thereby created as they were vested in the corporations, parties to such consolidations.

§ 11. Rights of creditors of old corporations. The rights of creditors of any corporation that shall be so consolidated shall not in any manner be impaired, nor any liability or obligation for the payment of any money due or to become due to any person or persons, or any claim or demand for any cause existing against any such corporation or against any stockholder thereof be released or impaired by any such consolidation; but such new corporation shall succeed to and be held liable to pay and discharge all such debts and liabilities of each of the corporations consolidated in the same manner as if such new corporation had itself incurred the obligation or liability to pay such debt or damages and the stockholders of the respective corporations consolidated shall continue, subject to all the liabilities, claims and demands existing against them as such, at or before the consolidation; and no action or proceeding then pending before any court or tribunal in which any corporation that may be so consolidated is a party, or in which any such stockholder is a party, shall abate or be discontinued by reason of such consolidation, but may be prosecuted to final judgment, as though no consolidation had been entered into; or such new corporation may be substituted as a party in place of any corporation so consolidated, by order of the court in which such action or proceeding may be pending.

§ 25. Definition. For the purposes of this article, the words "corporation," "company," "association," "exchange," "society" or "union" shall be synonymous.

§ 26. Incorporation. Five or more persons may become a co-operative corporation, company, association, exchange, society or union for the purpose of conducting a general producing, manufacturing and merchandising business, on the co-operative plan as limited in this article, in articles of common use, including farm products, food supplies, farm machinery and supplies and articles of domestic and personal use, by making, signing, acknowledging and filing a certificate in the form and manner prescribed by article two of this chapter.

§ 27. Application of corporate law. The provisions of the business corporations law, the general corporation law and the stock corporation law shall apply to co-operative corporations formed under this article, except where such provisions are in conflict with this article.

§ 28. Directors; officers. Every such corporation shall be managed by a board of not less than five directors. The directors shall be elected by and from the stockholders at such time and for such term as the by-laws may prescribe, and shall hold office until their successors are elected, and shall enter upon the discharge of their duties. The officers of every such corporation shall be a president, one or more vice-presidents, a secretary and a treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors, and each of whom must be a director. The office of secretary and treasurer may be combined. A majority of the stockholders may, at any regular or special meeting, duly called, remove any director or officer for cause, and fill the vacancy.

§ 29. Amendment of certificate. The stockholders of any such corporation may, by a three-fourths vote, at any regular meeting, or at any special meeting called for that purpose on ten days' notice to the stockholders, amend its certificate of incorporation. The power to amend shall include the power to increase or diminish the amount of capital stock and the number of shares; but such amount shall not be diminished below the amount of paid-up capital at the time the amendment is adopted. The certificate of the action of such meeting shall be executed and filed in the manner prescribed by section sixty-four of the stock corporation law.

§ 30. Stock and stockholders. The capital stock of any such corporation shall be divided into shares of the par value of five dollars each. A stockholder in any such corporation shall not own shares of a greater aggregate par value than five thousand dollars, except as hereinafter provided. A stockholder shall be entitled to but one vote, without regard to the amount of stock held by him. Certificates of stock shall not be issued to any subscriber until fully paid, but the by-laws of the corporation may allow subscribers to vote as stockholders, if part of the stock subscribed for has been paid for in cash. No stock shall be transferred without the written consent of the corporation indorsed on the certificate of stock. The corporation shall have the first right to purchase at par any stock of a stockholder offered for transfer or the stock of any deceased or retiring stockholder, or of any stockholder who shall have purchased of or sold to the corporation goods of the value of less than one hundred dollars in any one corporation year.

§ 31. Written vote of stockholders. At any regularly called general or special meeting of the stockholders the written vote of an absent stockholder signed by him shall be received and counted, provided he shall have been previously notified, in writing, of the exact motion or resolution upon which such vote is taken and a copy of the same is forwarded with and attached to his written vote.

§ 32. Subscription of stock in other corporations. At any duly called regular or special meeting at which at least a majority of the stockholders may be present or represented a co-operative corporation may, by a majority vote of the stockholders present or represented, subscribe for shares and invest its reserve fund to an amount not to exceed twenty-five per centum of its capital, in the capital stock of any other co-operative corporation.

§ 33. Purchasing business of other corporations or persons. Whenever a co-operative corporation shall purchase the business of another corporation, person or persons, it may pay for the same wholly or partly by the issue of shares of its capital stock to an amount which at par value would equal the fair market value of the business so purchased; and the transfer to the corporation of such business at such valuation shall be equivalent to payment in cash for the shares of the stock so purchased. No such purchase shall be made until the proposal therefor shall have been submitted by the directors to a meeting of the stockholders, together with an itemized inventory of assets and liabilities of the vendor, including the value of the good will as a separate item, and such proposal shall have been ratified by a vote of at least two-thirds of the total number of stockholders. If the cash value of such purchased business exceed one thousand dollars, the directors may hold the shares in excess of one thousand dollars in trust for the vendor and dispose of the same to such persons, and within such times, as may be agreed upon, and pay the proceeds thereof as received from time to time to the former owner of such business.

§ 34. Earnings; dividends. The directors, subject to revision by the stockholders at any general or special meeting, shall apportion the net earnings by first paying dividends on the paid-up capital stock at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum. They shall set aside not less than ten per centum of the net earnings for a reserve fund until the reserve fund shall equal thirty per centum of the paid-up capital stock. They shall also annually set aside five per centum of the net earnings for an educational fund to be used in teaching co-operation. The remainder of the net earnings shall be distributed by uniform dividend to members of the first class and members of the second class. Members of the first class shall include stockholders and employees. Members of the second class shall include non-stockholders who shall during any fiscal year do business with the corporation amounting to not less than one hundred dollars. Dividends shall be paid on purchases amounting to one hundred dollars and over from or by members and on the amount earned by each employee during the fiscal year. Members of the first class and employees shall be entitled to dividends at double the rate of dividends to which members of the second class shall be entitled. Dividends to non-shareholders may be credited on account of such non-shareholders, in the purchase of capital stock of the corporation. In productive corporations, including creameries, canneries, elevators, factories, and the like, dividends shall be calculated on raw material delivered instead of on goods purchased. If the corporation be both a selling and a productive concern, the dividends may be on both raw material delivered and on goods purchased.

The net earnings of such corporation shall be distributed at such times as the by-laws shall prescribe, but such distribution shall be made at least once every twelve months.

§ 35. Dissolution. If any such corporation, for five consecutive years, shall fail to declare a dividend upon the shares of its paid-up capital stock, five or more stockholders may present a petition to the supreme court of a county in which the principal office of the corporation is situated, praying for its dissolution upon such ground. If upon the hearing the allegations of the petition are found to be true, the court may adjudge such corporation dissolved.

§ 36. Annual report. Every co-operative corporation shall, annually, on or before the thirty-first day of October, make a report to the secretary of state, containing the name of the corporation, its principal place of business, and generally a statement as to its business, showing the total amount of business transacted, the number of stockholders, the amount of capital stock subscribed for and paid in, the total expenses of operation, the amount of indebtedness or liabilities, and its profits and losses.

§ 37. Existing co-operative corporations and associations. An existing co-operative corporation, company or association heretofore organized and doing business in this state may file with the secretary of state a written certificate signed and sworn to by the president and secretary to the fact that such corporation has, by a majority vote of its stockholders, decided to accept the provisions of this article, and thereupon such corporation shall be deemed to have abandoned its certificate filed under any other law and be subject to the provisions of this article.

§ 38. Corporate name. No corporation shall be formed under this article unless there be affixed or prefixed to the name thereof, as required by section six of the general corporation law, such word or words or abbreviation as will indicate that it is a corporation as distinguished from a natural person, firm or copartnership. No corporation hereafter organized under any general law other than this article shall use the term "co-operative" or any other derivative of the term "co-operate" as part of its corporate name.

may maintain an equitable action in the supreme court of this state against the person, firm or corporation so using his name, portrait or picture, to prevent and restrain the use thereof; and may also sue and recover damages for any injuries sustained by reason of such use and if the defendant shall have knowingly used such person's name, portrait or picture in such manner as is forbidden or declared to be unlawful by the last section, the jury, in its discretion, may award exemplary damages. But nothing contained in this act shall be so construed as to prevent any person, firm or corporation, practicing the profession of photography, from exhibiting in or about his or its establishment specimens of the work of such establishment, unless the same is continued by such person, firm or corporation after written notice objecting thereto has been given by the person portrayed.

This section shall not extend to an action for personal injuries, as such action is defined in section thirty-three hundred and forty-three of the code of civil procedure; except that nothing herein contained shall affect the right of action now existing to recover damages for injuries resulting in death.

Every contract, agreement, arrangement or combination whereby a monopoly in the manufacture, production or sale in this state of any article or commodity of common use is or may be created, established or maintained, or whereby competition in this state in the supply or price of any such article or commodity is or may be restrained or prevented, or whereby for the purpose of creating, establishing or maintaining a monopoly within this state of the manufacture, production or sale of any such article or commodity, the free pursuit in this state of any lawful business, trade or occupation is or may be restricted or prevented, is hereby declared to be against public policy, illegal and void.

§ 341. Penalty. Every person or corporation, or any officer or agent thereof, who shall make or attempt to make or enter into any such contract, agreement, arrangement or combination, or who within this state shall do any act pursuant thereto, or in, toward or for the consummation thereof, wherever the same may have been made, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall, if a natural person, be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not longer than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and if a corporation, by a fine of not exceeding twenty thousand dollars. The application for such order made by the attorney-general may simply show upon his information and belief that the testimony of such person is material and necessary. The provisions of the code of civil procedure, chapter nine, title three, article one, relating to the application for an order for the examination of witnesses before the commencement of an action and the method of proceeding on such examinations, shall not apply except as herein prescribed. subject of such examination. The order shall be served upon the person named in the indorsement aforesaid by showing him the original order, and delivering to and leaving with him, at the same time, a copy thereof indorsed as above provided, and by paying or tendering to him the fee allowed by law to witnesses subpoenaed to attend trials of civil actions in a court of record in this state.

If such suit be not brought within the said one year, and prosecuted with effect, then the said sum may be sued for and recovered with costs, at any time within three years after the said one year, by any overseer of the poor of the town where such payment may have been made, or by any county superintendent of the poor of the county, in which the payment may have been made.

The term corporation, as used in this section, shall be construed to include all associations, and joint-stock companies having any of the powers and privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships.

§ 2. Classification of corporations. A corporation shall be either,

1. A municipal corporation,
2. A stock corporation, or
3. A non-stock corporation.

A stock corporation shall be either

1. A moneyed corporation,
2. A railroad or other transportation corporation, or
3. A business corporation.

A non-stock corporation shall be either.

1. A religious corporation,
2. A membership corporation, or
3. Any corporation other than a stock corporation.

A reference in a general law to a class of corporations described in accordance with this classification shall include all corporations theretofore formed belonging to such class.

§ 3. Definitions. 1. A "municipal corporation" includes a county, town, school district, village and city and any other territorial division of the state established by law with powers of local government.

2. A "stock corporation" is a corporation having a capital stock divided into shares, and which is authorized by law to distribute to the holders thereof dividends or shares of the surplus profits of the corporation. A corporation is not a stock corporation because of having issued certificates called certificates of stock, but which are in fact merely certificates of membership, and which is not authorized by law to distribute to its members any dividends or share of profits arising from the operations of the corporation.

3. The term "non-stock corporation" includes every corporation other than a stock corporation.

4. A "moneyed corporation" is a corporation formed under or subject to the banking or the insurance law.

5. A "domestic corporation" is a corporation incorporated by or under the laws of the state or colony of New York. Every corporation which is not a domestic corporation is a foreign corporation, except as provided by the code of civil procedure for the purpose of construing such code.

6. The term "directors," when used in relation to corporations, shall include trustees or other persons, by whatever name known, duly appointed or designated to manage the affairs of the corporation.,

7. The term "certificate of incorporation" shall include articles of association or any other written instruments required by law to be filed, to effect the incorporation of a corporation, including a certified copy of an original certificate of incorporation filed for such purpose in pursuance of law.

8. The term "member of a corporation" shall include every person having a right to vote at a meeting of the corporation for the election of directors, other than a person having a right to vote only upon a proxy.

9. The term "office of a corporation" means its principal office within the state, or principal place of business within the state if it has no principal office therein.

10. The term "business of a corporation," when used with reference to a non-stock corporation, includes the operations for the conduct of which it is incorporated.

11. The term "corporate law" or "laws," when used in any law forming a part of the consolidation of the general laws of the state of which this chapter is a part, means the general statutes of this state relating to corporations included in such consolidation.

12. The existence of an easement in real property acquired or reserved by a municipal corporation, a railroad corporation or other transportation corporation, shall not be deemed an encumbrance upon such real property under any law relating to investments in mortgages upon real property by corporations, trustees, executors, administrators, guardians or other persons holding trust funds, but the effect of such an easement upon the real property which it affects, shall be taken into consideration in determining the value thereof.

§ 4. Qualifications of incorporators. A certificate of incorporation must be executed by natural persons, who must be of full age, and at least two-thirds of them must be citizens of the United States and one of them a resident of this state. This section shall not apply to a corporation formed by the reincorporation or consolidation of existing corporations, or to the reorganization of a corporation upon the sale of the property and franchises of a previously existing corporation or otherwise.

§ 5. Filing and recording certificates of incorporation. 1. Every certificate of incorporation and every amended or supplemental certificate, and every certificate which alters the provisions of any certificate of incorporation or any amended or supplemental certificate hereafter executed, shall be in the English language, and except as otherwise provided by law, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and shall be by him duly recorded and indexed in books specially provided therefor, and a certified copy of such certificate or amended or supplemental certificate with a certificate of the secretary of state of such filing and record, or a duplicate original of such certificate or amended or supplemental certificate shall be filed and similarly recorded and indexed in the office of the clerk of the county in which the office of the corporation is to be located, or if it be a non-stock corporation, and such county be not determined upon at the time of executing the certificate of incorporation, in such county clerk's office as the judge approving the certificate shall direct. Nothing herein contained, however, shall be deemed to prohibit a corporation from having and using a corporate name or title in a language other than the English language if the same be in English letters or characters. All taxes required by law to be paid before or upon incorporation and the fees for filing and recording such certificate must be paid before filing. No corporation shall exercise any corporate powers or privileges until such taxes and fees have been paid.

2. Whenever under any law now or heretofore in force the certificate of incorporation of any corporation other than a stock corporation was or is required to be filed in more than one public office, a certified copy of such certificate so filed in any one of such public offices may be filed in such other office with the like effect as if the original had been duly filed therein, provided, however, that no rights accrued prior to the filing of such copy shall be impaired or affected thereby, provided also, that such filing of a copy shall not cause a duplication or similarity of corporate names in violation of the next succeeding section.

§ 6. Corporate names. 1. No certificate of incorporation of a proposed corporation having the same name as a corporation authorized to do business under the laws of this state, or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, shall be filed or recorded in any office for the purpose of effecting its incorporation, or of authorizing it to do business in this state; nor shall any corporation except a religious, charitable or benevolent corporation or bar association be authorized to do business in this state unless its name has such word or words, abbreviation, affix or prefix, therein or thereto, as will clearly indicate that it is a corporation as distinguished from a natural person, firm or copartnership; or unless such corporation uses with its corporate name, in this state, such an affix or prefix. A corporation formed by the reincorporation, reorganization or consolidation of other corporations or upon the sale of the property or franchises of a corporation, or a corporation acquiring or becoming possessed of all the estate, property, rights, privileges and franchises of any other corporation or corporations by merger, may have the same name as the corporation or one of the corporations to whose franchises it has succeeded. No corporation shall be hereafter organized under the laws of this state with the word "trust," "bank," "banking," "insurance," "assurance," "indemnity," "guarantee," "guaranty," "title," "casualty," "surety," "fidelity," "bonding," "savings," "investment," "loan" or "benefit" as part of its name, except a corporation formed under the banking law or the insurance law.

§ 7. Amended and supplemental certificates. If in the original or amended certificate of incorporation of any corporation, or if in a supplemental certificate of any corporation any informality exist, or if any such certificate contain any matter not authorized by law to be stated therein, or if the proof or acknowledgment thereof shall be defective, the incorporators or directors of the corporation may make and file an amended certificate correcting such informality or defect or striking out such unauthorized matter; and the certificate amended shall be deemed to be amended accordingly as of the date such amended certificate was filed, and upon the filing of such an amended certificate of incorporation, the corporation shall then for all purposes be deemed to be a corporation from the time of filing the original certificate.

The supreme court may, upon due cause shown, and proof made, and upon notice to the attorney-general, and to such other persons as the court may direct, and upon such terms and conditions as it may impose, amend any certificate of incorporation which fails to express the true object and purpose of the corporation, so as to truly set forth such object and purpose.

When an amended or supplemental certificate is filed, an entry shall be made upon the margin of the index and record of the original certificate of the date and place of record of every such amended certificate.

The amendment of a certificate under this section shall be without prejudice to any pending action or proceeding, or to any rights previously accrued.

§ 8. Lost or destroyed certificates. If either of the certificates of incorporation shall be lost or destroyed after filing, a certified copy of the other certificate may be filed in the place of the one lost or destroyed and as of the date of its original filing, and such certified copy shall have the same force and effect as the original certificate had when filed.

§ 9. Certificate and other papers as evidence; evidence of consolidation. 1. The certificate of incorporation of any corporation duly filed shall be presumptive evidence of its incorporation, and any amended certificate or other paper duly filed or recorded relating to the incorporation of any corporation or its existence or management, and containing facts required or authorized by law to be stated therein, shall be presumptive evidence of the existence of such facts.

2. Whenever, by the laws of any other state or territory, or the dominion of Canada, a copy of the certificate of organization or incorporation or any other certificate, certified or exemplified by any officer or officers in such state or territory or dominion, is or shall be prima facie evidence of the due formation, creation, existence, organization or capacity of any corporation or joint-stock company, created, organized or located in such state, territory or dominion, or claiming so to be, such certificate or certificates, duly exemplified, or a duly exemplified copy thereof, shall be received in all actions and proceedings in this state, in or before all courts and officers, with the same force and effect in all respects as prima facie evidence as aforesaid, as in such other state, territory or dominion.

3. Where two or more corporations have been or shall hereafter be consolidated and merged into a new corporation, a certificate of the secretary of state under his official seal concisely stating the names of the respective corporations consolidated, the dates of the filing of the certificates respectively of the incorporation of such corporations in his office, the object for which they were formed, including the nature and locality of their business as set forth in their respective incorporation papers on file in his office, the date of the filing of the consolidation agreement and other proceedings in his office, the name of the new corporation formed by such consolidation and merger, the term of its corporate existence, the place where its principal office is situated and the amount of its capital stock, shall be presumptive and prima facie evidence in all actions and special proceedings for all purposes of the incorporation of the corporations so consolidated, the incorporation of the new corporation by such consolidation and merger from the date of filing of said consolidation agreement and proceedings, and of the other facts so certified by him.

§ 10. Limitation of powers; provisions of certificate. 1. No corporation shall possess or exercise any corporate powers not given by law, or not necessary to the exercise of the powers so given.

2. The certificate of incorporation of any corporation may contain any provision for the regulation of the business and the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and any limitation upon its powers, or upon the powers of its directors and stockholders, which does not exempt them from the performance of any obligations or the performance of any duty imposed by law.

§ 11. Grant of general powers. Every corporation as such has power, though not specified in the law under which it is incorporated:

1. To have succession for the period specified in its certificate of incorporation or by law, and perpetually when no period is specified.

2. To have a common seal, and alter the same at pleasure.

3. To acquire by grant, gift, purchase, devise or bequest, to hold and to dispose of such property as the purposes of the corporation shall require, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by law.

4. To appoint such officers and agents as its business shall require, and to fix their compensation, and

5. To make by-laws, not inconsistent with any existing law, for the management of its property, the regulation of its affairs, and the transfer of its stock, if it has any, and the calling of meetings of its members. Such by-laws may also fix the amount of stock, which must be represented at meetings of the stockholders in order to constitute a quorum, unless otherwise provided by law. By-laws duly adopted at a meeting of the members of the corporation shall control the action of its directors. No by-law adopted by the board of directors regulating the election of directors or officers shall be valid unless published for at least once a week for two successive weeks in a newspaper in the county where the election is to be held, and at least thirty days before such election.

Subdivisions four and five of this section shall not apply to municipal corporations.

§ 13. Acquisition of additional real property. When any corporation, except a life insurance corporation, shall have sold or conveyed any part of its real property, the supreme court may, notwithstanding any restriction of a general or special law, authorize it to purchase and hold from time to time other real property, upon satisfactory proof that the value of the property so purchased does not exceed the value of the property so sold and conveyed within the three years next preceding the application.

§ 14. Acquisition of property without the state. Any domestic corporation transacting business in other states or foreign countries may acquire and dispose of such property as shall be requisite for such corporation in the convenient transaction of its business. Any domestic corporation establishing or maintaining a charitable, philanthropic or educational institution within this state may also carry on its work and establish or maintain one or more branches of such institution or an additional institution or additional institutions in any other state, the District of Columbia or in any part of the territories or dependencies of the United States of America or in any foreign country and for either of said purposes may take by devise or bequest, hold, purchase, mortgage, sell and convey or otherwise dispose of such real and personal property without this state as may be requisite therefor. But nothing in this section contained shall be construed as exempting from taxation property to any additional amount than is now allowed to such corporation under existing laws.

§ 15. Certificate of authority of a foreign corporation. No foreign stock corporation other than a moneyed corporation, shall do business in this state without having first procured from the secretary of state a certificate that it has complied with all the requirements of law to authorize it to do business in this state, and that the business of the corporation to be carried on in this state is such as may be lawfully carried on by a corporation incorporated under the laws of this state for such or similar business, or if more than one kind of business, by two of more corporations so incorporated for such kinds of business respectively. The secretary of state shall deliver such certificate to every such corporation so complying with the requirements of law. No foreign stock corporation doing business in this state shall maintain any action in this state upon any contract made by it in this state, unless prior to the making of such contract it shall have procured such certificate. This prohibition shall also apply to any assignee of such foreign stock corporation and to any person claiming under such assignee or such foreign stock corporation or under either of them. No certificate of authority shall be granted to any foreign corporation having the same name as an existing domestic corporation, or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, nor to any foreign corporation, other than a moneyed or insurance corporation, with the word "trust," "bank," "banking," "insurance," "assurance," "indemnity," "guarantee," "guaranty," "title," "casualty," "surety," "fidelity," "bonding," "savings," "investment," "loan" or "benefit," as a part of its name.

§ 16. Proof to be filed before granting certificate. Before granting such certificate the secretary of state shall require every such foreign corporation to filed in his office a sworn copy in the English language of its charter or certificate of incorporation and a statement under its corporate seal, and the signature of its president, vice-president or other acting head, particularly setting forth the business or objects of the corporation which it is engaged in carrying on or which it proposes to carry on within the state, and a place within the state which is to be its principal place of business, and designating a person upon whom process against the corporation may be served within the state.

The person so designated must have an office or place of business at the place where such corporation is to have its principal place of business within this state and such designation must specify such office or place of business of the said person so designated, and if it is within a city the street and street number if any, or other suitable designation of the particular locality. Such designation shall be accompanied with the written consent of the person designated and shall continue in force until revoked by an instrument in writing designating in like manner some other person upon whom process against the corporation may be served in this state or until the filing in the same office of a written revocation of said consent executed by the person so designated. If the person so designated dies or removes from the place where the corporation has its principal place of business within the state, or files such revocation of his consent, and the corporation does not within thirty days after such death or removal or revocation of consent designate in like manner another person upon whom process against it may be served within the state, the secretary of state may revoke the authority of the corporation to do business within the state, and process against the corporation in an action upon any liability incurred within this state before such revocation, may, after such death or removal, or revocation of consent, and before another designation is made, be served upon the secretary of state. At the time of such service the plaintiff shall pay to the secretary of state two dollars, to be included in his taxable costs and disbursements, and the secretary of state shall forthwith mail a copy of such notice to such corporation if its address, or the address of any officer thereof, is known to him. The secretary of state may require the execution of any such designation, revocation or consent, to be authenticated as he deems proper and he may refuse to file it without such authentication.

§ 16-a. Certificate of surrender of authority. A foreign corporation having authority under section sixteen of this chapter to do business in this state, may surrender such authority by filing in the office of the secretary of state, a certificate under its corporate seal and the signature of its president, vice president, or other acting head, setting forth:

1. The name of the corporation and the state under whose laws it is formed.
2. The date on which it received authority to do business in this state.
3. Revoking its designation of the person upon whom process against the corporation may be served in this state.
4. That it surrenders its authority to do business in this state and that, as evidence of such surrender, it returns to the secretary of state, for cancellation, its certificate of authority to do business in this state, or that such certificate has been lost or destroyed.

Proof of execution in the form prescribed by section three hundred and nine of the real property law shall be attached. The certificate of authority shall be attached to the certificate of surrender, unless such certificate of authority has been lost or destroyed, in which event, there shall be attached an affidavit of the president, vice president, secretary, or other officer of the corporation, to the effect that such certificate has been lost or destroyed, as the case may be. On the filing of such certificate, the secretary of state shall make a note of the filing thereof on his index of corporations and thereupon the authority of the corporation to do business within this state shall cease and determine, and no such corporation doing business in this state after the filing of such certificate of surrender of authority shall maintain any action in this state upon any contract made by it in this state subsequent to the filing of such certificate of surrender of authority. The filing of such certificate shall not, however, affect any action pending at the time of such surrender, or affect any action in the state upon any contract made by the corporation in this state before the filing of the certificate of surrender of authority. Process against the corporation in an action upon any liability incurred within this state before the filing of such certificate of surrender of authority may, after the filing thereof, be served upon the secretary of state. At the time of such service, the plaintiff shall pay to the secretary of state two dollars to be included in his taxable costs and disbursements, and the secretary of state shall forthwith mail a copy of such process to such corporation, if its address or the address of any officer thereof, is known to him. [L. 1918, c. 193.]

Acquisition of real property in this state by certain foreign corporations. Any foreign corporation doing business in this state and created under the laws of the United States, or of any state or territory thereof, or of any foreign state or nation which borders the United States of America and which by its laws confers similar privileges on corporations created by the laws of the state of New York, may require and hold such real property in this state as may be necessary for its corporate purposes in the transaction of its business in this state, and convey the same by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation. [General Corporation Law, 1890, c. 563, § 12, as amended and made section 17 by L. 1892, c. 687.]

§ 21. Acquisition by foreign corporation of real property in this state. Any foreign corporation may purchase at a sale upon the foreclosure of any mortgage held by it, or, upon any judgment or decree for debts due it, or, upon any settlement to secure such debts, any real property within this state covered by or subject to such mortgage, judgment, decree or settlement, and may take by devise any real property situated within this state and hold the same for not exceeding five years from the date of such purchase, or from the time when the right to the possession thereof vests in such devisee, and convey it by deed or otherwise in the same manner as a domestic corporation.

§ 22. Prohibition of banking powers. No corporation, domestic or foreign, other than a corporation formed under or subject to the banking laws of this state or of the United States, except as permitted by such laws, shall by any implication or construction be deemed to possess the power of carrying on the business of discounting bills, notes or other evidences of debt, of receiving deposits, of buying and selling bills of exchange, or of issuing bills, notes or other evidences of debt for circulation as money, or of engaging in any other form of banking; nor shall any such corporation, except an express company having contracts with railroad companies for the operation of an express service upon the lines of such railroad companies, or a transatlantic steamship company, or a telegraph company, or a corporation incorporated prior to the year eighteen hundred and fifty, to promote the welfare of emigrants, possess the power of receiving money for transmission or of transmitting the same, by draft, traveler's check, money order or otherwise.

§ 23. Qualification of members as voters. Unless otherwise provided in the certificate of incorporation, every stockholder of record of a stock corporation shall be entitled at every meeting of the corporation to one vote for every share of stock standing in his name on the books of the corporation; and at every meeting of a non-stock corporation, every member, unless disqualified by the by-laws, shall be entitled to one vote. The stockholders of a stock corporation by a by-law adopted by a vote at any annual meeting, or at any special meeting duly called for such purpose, may prescribe a period, not exceeding forty days prior to meetings of the stockholders, during which no transfers of stock on the books of the corporation may be made. Except in cases of express trust, or in which other provision shall have been made by written agreement between the parties, the record holder of stock which shall be held by him as security, or which shall actually belong to another, upon demand therefor and payment of necessary expenses thereof, shall issue to such pledgor or to such actual owner of such stock, a proxy to vote thereon. No member of a corporation shall sell his vote or issue a proxy to vote to any person for any sum of money or any thing of value. The books and papers containing the record of membership of the corporation shall be produced at any meeting of its members upon the request of any member. If the right to vote at any such meeting shall be challenged, the inspectors of election, or other persons presiding thereat, shall require such books, if they can be had, to be produced as evidence of the right of the person challenged to vote at such meeting, and all persons who may appear from such books to be members of the corporation may vote at such meeting in person or by proxy, subject to the provisions of this chapter.

§ 23-a. Stock held in fiduciary capacity; how voted. Fiduciaries, whether appointed by last will and testament or by the court, shall have the same right and power, either in person or by proxy, at all corporate meetings to vote any and all shares of stock held by them in a fiduciary capacity, in any corporation organized under the laws of this state, as the deceased or legal owner thereof had in his lifetime. And where such stock is registered on the books of such corporation in the name of, or has passed by operation of law or by virtue of any last will and testament, to more than two fiduciaries, and dispute shall arise among them, the said shares of stock shall be voted by a majority of such fiduciaries, and in such manner and for such purpose as such majority shall authorize, direct, or desire the same to be voted. If the number of fiduciaries shall be even and they shall be equally divided upon the question of voting such stock, it shall be lawful for the court having jurisdiction of their accounts, upon petition filed by any of such fiduciaries or by any party in interest, to direct the voting of such stock by the person or persons beneficially interested in the manner which, in the opinion of such court, will be for the best interests of the parties beneficially interested in the stock. Fiduciaries, whether appointed by last will and testament, filed in any court of this state, or by any court of this state, shall have all the foregoing rights and powers, subject to the foregoing limitations, to vote any and all shares of stock, held by them in a fiduciary capacity, in any corporation, organized under the laws of any other state, providing nothing in the laws of the state, under which the corporation was organized, prohibits the exercise of such rights and powers. [L. 1918, c. 472.]

§ 24. Cumulative voting. The certificate of incorporation of any stock corporation may provide that at all elections of directors of such corporation, each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as shall equal the number of his shares of stock multiplied by the number of directors to be elected, and that he may cast all of such votes for a single director or may distribute them among the number to be voted for, or any two or more of them as he may see fit, which right, when exercised, shall be termed cumulative voting. The stockholders of a corporation heretofore formed, who, by the provisions of laws existing on April thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, were entitled to the exercise of such right, may hereafter exercise such right according to the provisions of this section.

§ 25. Voting trust agreements. A stockholder may, by agreement in writing, transfer his stock to any person or persons for the purpose of vesting in him or them the right to vote thereon for a time not exceeding five years upon terms and conditions stated, pursuant to which such person or persons shall act; every other stockholder, upon his request therefor, may, by a like agreement in writing, also transfer his stock to the same person or persons and thereupon may participate in the terms, conditions and privileges of such agreement; the certificates of stock so transferred shall be surrendered and canceled and certificates therefor issued to such transferee or transferees in which it shall appear that they are issued pursuant to such agreement and in the entry of such transferee or transferees as owners of such stock in the proper books of said corporation that fact shall also be noted and thereupon he or they may vote upon the stock so transferred during the time in such agreement specified; a duplicate of every such agreement shall be filed in the office of the corporation where its principal business is transacted and be open to the inspection of any stockholder, daily, during business hours.

§ 26. Proxies. Every member of a corporation, except a religious corporation, entitled to vote at any meeting thereof may so vote by proxy.

No officer, clerk, teller or bookkeeper of a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law shall act as proxy for any stockholder at any meeting of any such corporation.

Every proxy must be executed in writing by the member himself, or by his duly authorized attorney. No proxy hereafter made shall be valid after the expiration of eleven months from the date of its execution unless the member executing it shall have specified therein the length of time it is to continue in force, which shall be for some limited period. Every proxy shall be revocable at the pleasure of the person executing it; but a corporation having no capital stock may prescribe in its by-laws the persons who may act as proxies for members, and the length of time for which proxies may be executed.

§ 27. Challenges. Every member of a corporation offering to vote at any election or meeting of the corporation shall, if required by an inspector of election or other officer presiding at such election or meeting, or by any other member present, take and subscribe the following oath: "I do solemnly swear that in voting at this election I have not, either directly, indirectly or impliedly received any promise or any sum of money or any thing of value to influence the giving of my vote or votes at this meeting or as a consideration therefor." Any person offering to vote as proxy for any other person shall present his proxy and, if so required, take and subscribe the following oath: "I do solemnly swear that I have not, either directly, indirectly or impliedly, given any promise or any sum of money or any thing of value to induce the giving of a proxy to me to vote at this election, or received any promise of any such sum of money or any thing of value to influence the giving of my vote at this meeting, or as a consideration therefor." The inspectors or persons presiding at the election may administer such oath, and all such oaths and proxies shall be filed in the office of the corporation.

§ 28. Effect of failure to elect directors. If the directors shall not be elected on the day designated in the by-laws, or by law, the corporation shall not for that reason be dissolved; but every director shall continue to hold his office and discharge his duties until his successor has been elected.

§ 29. Mode of calling special election of directors. If the election has not been held on the day so designated, the directors shall forthwith call a meeting of the members of the corporation for the purpose of electing directors, of which meeting notice shall be given in the same manner as of the annual meeting for the election of directors.

If such meeting shall not be so called within one month, or, if held, shall result in a failure to elect directors, any member of the corporation may call a meeting for the purpose of electing directors by publishing a notice of the time and place of holding such meeting at least once in each week for two successive weeks immediately preceding the election, in a newspaper published in the county where the election is to be held and in such other manner as may be prescribed in the by-laws for the publication of notice of the annual meeting, and by serving upon each member, either personally or by mail, directed to him at his last known post-office address, a copy of such notice at least two weeks before the meeting.

§ 30. Mode of conducting special election of directors. Such meeting shall be held at the office of the corporation, or if it has none, at the place in this state where its principal business has been transacted, or if access to such office or place is denied or can not be had, at some other place in the city, village or town where such office or place is or was located.

At such meeting the members attending shall constitute a quorum. They may elect inspectors of election and directors and adopt by-laws providing for future annual meetings and election of directors, if the corporation has no such by-laws, and transact any other business which may be transacted at an annual meeting of the members of the corporation.

§ 31. Qualification of voters and canvass of votes at special election. In the absence at such meeting of the books of the corporation showing who are members thereof, each person, before voting, shall present his sworn statement setting forth that he is a member of the corporation; and if a stock corporation, the number of shares of stock owned by him and standing in his name on the books of the corporation, and, if known to him, the whole number of shares of stock of the corporation outstanding. On filing such statement, he may vote as a member of the corporation; and if a stock corporation, he may vote on the shares of stock appearing in such statement to be owned by him and standing in his name on the books of the corporation.

The inspectors shall return and file such statements, with a certificate of the result of the election, verified by them, in the office of the clerk of the county in which such election is held, and the persons so elected shall be the directors of the corporation.

§ 32. Powers of supreme court respecting elections. The supreme court shall, upon the application of any person or corporation aggrieved by or complaining of any election of any corporation or any proceeding, act or matter touching the same, upon notice thereof to the adverse party, or to those to be affected thereby, forthwith and in a summary way hear the affidavits, proofs and allegations of the parties, or otherwise inquire into the matters or causes of complaint, and establish the election or order a new election, or make such order and give such relief as right and justice may require.

§ 33. Stay of proceedings in actions collusively brought. If an action is brought against a corporation by the procurement or default of its directors, or any of them, to enforce any claim or obligation declared void by law, or to which the corporation has a valid defense, and such action is in the interest or for the benefit of any director, and the corporation has by his connivance made default of such action, or consented to the validity of such claim or obligation, any member of the corporation may apply to the supreme court, upon affidavit, setting forth the facts, for a stay of proceedings in such action, and on proof of the facts in such further manner and upon such notice as the court may direct, it may stay such proceedings or set aside and vacate the same, or grant such other relief as may seem proper, and which will not injuriously affect an innocent party, who, without notice of such wrongdoing and for a valuable consideration, has acquired rights under such proceedings.

§ 34. Quorum of directors and powers of majority. The affairs of every corporation shall be managed by its board of directors, at least one of whom shall be a citizen of the United States and a resident of this state. Unless otherwise provided a majority of the board of directors of a corporation at a meeting duly assembled shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for the transaction of business and the act of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the board of directors. The members of a corporation may in by-laws fix the number of directors necessary to constitute a quorum at a number less than a majority of the board, but at least equal to one-third of its number. Subject to the by-laws, if any, adopted by members of a corporation, the directors may make necessary by-laws of the corporation.

§ 35. Directors as trustees in case of dissolution. Upon the dissolution of any corporation, its directors, unless other persons shall be appointed by the legislature, or by some court of competent jurisdiction, shall be the trustees of its creditors, stockholders or members, and shall have full power to settle its affairs, collect and pay outstanding debts, and divide among the persons entitled thereto the money and other property remaining after payment of debts and necessary expenses.

Such trustees shall have authority to sue for and recover the debts and property of the corporation, by their name as such trustees, and shall jointly and severally be personally liable to its creditors, stockholders or members, to the extent of its property and effects that shall come into their hands.

§ 36. Forfeiture for non-user. If any corporation, except a railroad, turnpike, plank-road or bridge corporation, shall not organize and commence the transaction of its business or undertake the discharge of its corporate duties within two years from the date of its incorporation, its corporate powers shall cease.

§ 37. Extension of corporate existence. Any domestic corporation at any time before the expiration thereof, may extend the term of its existence beyond the time specified in its original certificate of incorporation, or by law, or in any certificate of extension of corporate existence, by the consent of the stockholders owning two-thirds in amount of its capital stock, or if not a stock corporation, by the consent of two-thirds of its members, which consent shall be given either in writing or by vote at a special meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, upon the same notice as that required for the annual meetings of the corporation; and a certificate under the seal of the corporation that such consent was given by the stockholders in writing, or that it was given by vote at a meeting as aforesaid, shall be subscribed and acknowledge by the president or a vice-president, and by the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation, and if a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks, if an insurance corporation, in the office of the superintendent of insurance, and otherwise in the office of the secretary of state, and shall by such officer be duly recorded and indexed in a book specially provided therefor, and a certified copy of such certificate, with a certificate of such officer of such filing and record, or a duplicate original of such certificate, shall be filed and similarly recorded and indexed in the office of the clerk of the county wherein the corporation has its principal place of business, and shall be noted in the margin of the record of the original certificates of such corporation, if any, in such offices, and thereafter the term of the existence of such corporation shall be extended as designated in such certificate.

The certificate of incorporation of any corporation whose duration is limited by such certificate or by law, may require that the consent of the stockholders owning a greater percentage than two-thirds of the stock, if a stock corporation, or of more than two-thirds of the members, if a non-stock corporation, shall be requisite to affect an extension of corporate existence as authorized by this section.

§ 38. Revival of corporate existence. If the term of existence of any domestic corporation shall have expired and it shall be made satisfactorily to appear to the supreme court that such corporation was legally organized pursuant to any law of this state, and that it shall have issued its bonds payable at a date beyond the date fixed in its charter or certificate of incorporation for the expiration of its corporate existence, and such bonds shall be unmatured and unpaid, or, if a bank, incorporated under a general law of this state, that shall have issued any other obligations or shall have incurred any other indebtedness which at the date of the application shall be unsatisfied or unpaid the supreme court may, upon the application of any person interested and upon such notice to such other parties as the court may require, by order, authorize the filing and recording of a certificate reviving the existence of such corporation, upon such conditions and with such limitations as such order shall specify, and extending such corporate existence for a term not exceeding the term for which it was originally incorporated. Upon filing and recording such certificate in the same manner as certificates of extension of corporate existence duly issued before the expiration of the existence of a domestic corporation are authorized by law to be filed and recorded, such corporate existence shall be revived and extended in pursuance of the terms of such order, but such revival and extension shall not affect any litigation commenced after such expiration and pending at the time of such revival.

§ 39. Approval of certificates of extension or revival; when required. In the case of a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, no certificate of extension or revival shall be filed or recorded unless it shall have indorsed thereon the written approval of the superintendent of banks; or, if an insurance corporation, unless it shall have indorsed thereon the written approval of the superintendent of insurance; and, if a turnpike or bridge corporation, it shall not be filed unless it shall have indorsed thereon or annexed thereto a certified copy of a resolution of the board of supervisors of each county in which such turnpike or bridge is located, approving of and authorizing such extension.

§ 40. Extension when stock is owned by another corporation. If all the stock of a corporation other than a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, or an insurance corporation, or a turnpike, plank-road or bridge corporation shall be lawfully owned by another stock corporation entitled by law to take a surrender and merger thereof, the corporate existence of such corporation whose stock is so owned may be extended at any time for the term of the corporate existence of the possessor corporation, by filing in the office or offices in which the original certificate or certificates of incorporation of the first-mentioned corporation were filed a certificate of such extension executed by its president and secretary and by such corporation owning all the shares of its capital stock.

§ 41. Effect of extension. Every corporation extending its corporate existence under this chapter or under any general law of the state shall hereafter be subject to the provisions of this chapter and of such general law, notwithstanding any special provisions in its charter, and shall thereafter be deemed to be incorporated under the general laws of the state relating to the incorporation of a corporation for the purpose of carrying on the business in which it is engaged, and shall be subject to the provisions of such law.

§ 42. When notice of lapse of time unnecessary. Whenever under the provisions of any of the corporate laws a corporation is authorized to take any action after notice to its members or after the lapse of a prescribed period of time, such action may be taken without notice and without the lapse of any period of time, if such action be authorized or approved, and such requirements be waived in writing by every member of such corporation, or by his attorney thereunto authorized.

§ 43. As to acts of directors. Whenever, under the provisions of any of the corporate laws a corporation is authorized to take any action by the agreement or action of its directors, managers or trustees, such agreement or action may be taken by such directors, regularly convened as a board, and acting by a majority of a quorum, except when otherwise expressly required by law or the by-laws of the corporation and any such agreement shall be executed in behalf of the corporation by such officers as shall be designated by the board of directors, managers or trustees. At any meeting at which every member of the board of directors shall be present, though held without notice, any business may be transacted which might have been transacted if the meeting had been duly called. Except when otherwise required by law or the by-laws of the corporation, special meetings of the members of the corporation may be called in the same manner as the annual meeting thereof.

§ 44. Political contributions prohibited; penalty. No corporation or joint-stock association doing business in this state, except a corporation or association organized or maintained for political purposes only, shall directly or indirectly pay or use or offer, consent or agree to pay or use any money or property for or in aid of any political party, committee or organization, or for, or in aid of, any corporation, joint-stock or other association organized or maintained for political purposes, or for, or in aid of, any candidate for political office or for nomination for such office, or for any political purpose whatever, or for the reimbursement or indemnification of any person for moneys or property so used. Any officer, director, stockholder, attorney or agent of any corporation or joint-stock association which violates any of the provisions of this section, who participates in, aids, abets or advises or consents to any such violation, and any person who solicits or knowingly receives any money or property in violation of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by imprisonment in a penitentiary or county jail for not more than one year and a fine of not more than one thousand dollars. No person shall be excused from attending and testifying, or producing any books, papers or other documents before any court or magistrate, upon any investigation, proceeding or trial, for a violation of any of the provisions of this section, upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to convict him of a crime or to subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, and no testimony so given or produced shall be received against him upon any criminal investigation or proceeding.

§ 60. Petition by corporation to change name. A petition to assume another corporate name may be made by a domestic corporation other than a corporation organized under the business corporations law, the transportation corporations law or the membership corporations law, or organized under any law repealed by either of those laws, whether incorporated by a general or special law, to the supreme court at a special term thereof, held in the judicial district in which its principal business office shall be situated, or, if it be other than a stock corporation, at a special term held in the judicial district in which its certificate of incorporation is filed or recorded, or in which its principal property is situated, or in which its principal operations are or theretofore have been conducted. If it be a banking, insurance or railroad corporation, the petition must be authorized by a resolution of the directors of the corporation, and approved, if a banking corporation, by the superintendent of banks; if an insurance corporation, by the superintendent of insurance, and if a railroad corporation, by the public service commission. The petition to change the name of any other corporation must have annexed thereto a certificate of the secretary of state, that the name which such corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other corporation appearing on his index of corporations as authorized to do business under the laws of the State of New York, or a name which he deems so nearly resembling it, as to be calculated to deceive.*

§ 61. Contents of petition. The petition must be in writing, signed by the petitioner and verified in like manner as a pleading in a court of record, and must specify the grounds of the application, its present name, and the name it proposes to assume, which must not be the name of any other corporation, or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive; and if it be a railroad corporation, a corporation having banking powers or the power to make loans upon pledges or deposits, or to make insurances, that the petition has been duly authorized by a resolution of the directors of the corporation and approved by the proper officer.

§ 62. Notice of presentation of petition. If the petition be made by a corporation located elsewhere than in the city and county of New York, notice of the presentation thereof shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of every county in which such corporation shall have a business office, or if it has no business office, of the county in which its principal corporate property is situated, or in which its operations are or theretofore have been principally conducted, which newspaper, if it be a banking corporation, shall be designated by the superintendent of banks, if an insurance corporation by the superintendent of insurance, or if a railroad corporation, by the public service commission. In the city and county of New York such notice shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks in two daily newspapers published in such county. If the petition be made by a domestic corporation organized under or subject to the religious or membership corporations law the court may dispense with the publication of the notice of the presentation of such petition or require notice of such presentation to be given to such persons and in such manner as the court thinks proper. A copy of the petition and notice of motion shall be filed with the secretary of state, and the proposed name shall thereupon be reserved for said corporation until three weeks after the date of such motion, and until three weeks after the date of any adjournment of such motion if notice of such adjournment shall be filed with the secretary of state, and no certificate of incorporation of a proposed corporation, having the same name as the name proposed in such petition, or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, shall be filed in any office for the purpose of effecting its incorporation, and no corporation formed without the state of New York having the same name or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive shall be given authority to do business in this state.

§ 63. Order authorizing change. If the court to which the petition is presented is satisfied thereby, or by the affidavit and certificate presented therewith, that the petition is true, and that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed and that the petition has been duly authorized and that notice of the presentation of the petition, if required by law, has been made, the court shall make an order authorizing the petitioner to assume the name proposed on a day specified therein, not less than thirty days after the entry of the order. The order shall be directed to be entered and the papers on which it was granted to be filed within ten days thereafter in the office of the clerk of the county in which its certificate of incorporation, if any, shall be filed, or if there be none filed, in which its principal office shall be located, or if it has no business office in the county in which its principal property is situated, or in which its operations are or theretofore have been principally conducted or in the office of the clerk of the county in which the special term granting the order is held; and that a certified copy of such order shall, within ten days after the entry thereof, be filed in the office of the secretary of state; and also, if it be a banking corporation, in the office of the superintendent of banks, or if it be an insurance corporation in the office of the superintendent of insurance, or if it be a railroad corporation, in the offices of the public service commissions. Such order shall also direct the publication, within ten days after the entry thereof, of a copy thereof, in a designated newspaper, in the county in which the order is directed to be entered, once in each week for four successive weeks. The court may dispense with the publication of a copy of such order and require notice to be given to such persons and in such manner as it thinks proper if the petition be made by a domestic corporation organized under or subject to the religious or membership corporations law.

§ 64. When change to take effect. If the order shall be fully complied with, and within forty days after the making of the order, an affidavit of the publication thereof shall be filed and recorded in the office in which the order is entered, and in each office in which certified copies thereof are required to be filed, if any, the petitioner shall, on and after the day specified for that purpose in the order, be known by the name which it is thereby authorized to be assumed, and by no other name. No proceedings had prior to April fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, under sections two thousand four hundred and fourteen and two thousand four hundred and fifteen of the code of civil procedure for the change of the name of a corporation, shall be invalid by reason of the non-filing of an affidavit of the publication of the order changing such name within twenty days from the date thereof.

And no proceedings heretofore had under the provisions of article three, chapter twenty-three, consolidated laws, for the change of the name of a corporation, shall be invalid by reason of the non-filing and recording of such affidavit of the publication of the order changing such name within forty days from the making of such order.

§ 65. Substitution of new name in pending action or proceeding. An action or special proceeding, civil or criminal, commenced by or against a corporation whose name is so changed shall not abate, nor shall any relief, recovery or other proceeding therein be prevented, impeded or impaired in consequence of such change of name. The plaintiff in the action or the party instituting the special proceeding, or the people, as the case requires, may at any time, obtain an order amending any of the papers or proceedings therein, by the substitution of the new name, without costs and without prejudice to the action or proceeding.

§ 70. Application of this article. Whenever any corporation is required by law to make application to the court for leave to mortgage, lease or sell its real estate, the proceeding therefor shall be had pursuant to the provisions of this article.

§ 71. Petition. The proceeding shall be instituted by the presentation to the supreme court of the district or the county court of the county where the real property, or some part of it, is situated, by the corporation applicant, of a petition setting forth the following facts:

1. The name of the corporation and of its directors, trustees or managers, and of its principal officers, and their places of residence.
2. The business of the corporation or the object or purpose of its incorporation and a reference to the statute under which it was incorporated.
3. A description of the real property to be sold, mortgaged or leased, by metes and bounds, with reasonable certainty.
4. That the interests of the corporation will be promoted by the sale, mortgage or lease, of the real property specified, and a concise statement of the reasons therefor.
5. That such sale, mortgage or lease has been authorized, by a vote of at least two-thirds of the directors, trustees or managers of the corporation at a meeting thereof, duly called and held, and a copy of the resolution granting such authority.
6. The market value of the remaining real property of the corporation and the cash value of its personal assets, and the total amount of its debts and liabilities, and how secured, if at all.

7. The application proposed to be made of the moneys realized from such sale, mortgage or lease.

8. Where the consent of the shareholders, stockholders or members of the corporation is required by law to be first obtained, a statement that such consent has been given, and a copy of the consent, or a certified transcript of the record of the meeting at which it was given, shall be annexed to the petition.

9. A demand for leave to mortgage, lease or sell the real estate described. The petition shall be verified in the same manner as a verified pleading in an action in a court of record.

§ 72. Hearing on application. Upon presentation of the petition, the court may immediately proceed to hear the application, or it may, in its discretion, direct that notice of the application shall be given to any person interested therein, as a member, stockholder, officer or creditor of the corporation or otherwise, in which case the application shall be heard at the time and place specified in such notice, and the court may in any case appoint a referee to take the proofs and report the same to the court, with his opinion thereon. Any person, whose interests may be affected by the proceeding, may appear upon the hearing and show cause why the application should not be granted.

§ 73. Order to sell, mortgage or lease. Upon the hearing of the application, if it shall appear, to the satisfaction of the court, that the interests of the corporation will be promoted thereby, an order may be granted authorizing it to sell, mortgage or lease the real property described in the petition, or any part thereof, for such sum, and upon such terms as the court may prescribe, and directing what disposition shall be made of the proceeds of such sale, mortgage or lease.

§ 74. Insolvent corporation. If the corporation is insolvent, or its property and assets are insufficient to fully liquidate its debts and liabilities, the application shall not be granted, unless all the creditors of the corporation have been served with a notice of the time and place at which the application will be heard.

§ 75. Service of notices. Service of notices, provided for in this article, may be made either personally or, in case of absence, by leaving the same at the place of residence of the person to be served, with some person of mature age and discretion, at least eight days before the hearing of the application, or by mailing the same, duly enveloped and addressed and postage paid, at least sixteen days before such hearing.

§ 76. Practice in cases not herein provided for. In all applications made under this article, where the mode or manner of conducting any or all of the proceedings thereon is not expressly provided for, the court before whom such application may be pending, shall have the power to make all the necessary orders and give the proper directions to carry into effect the object and intent of this article, or of any act authorizing the sale of corporate real property, and the practice in such cases shall conform, as near as may be, to the ordinary practice in such court.

§ 90. Action against officers of corporation for misconduct. An action may be maintained against one or more trustees, directors, managers, or other officers of a corporation, to procure a judgment for the following purposes, or so much thereof as the case requires:

1. Compelling the defendants to account for their official conduct, including any neglect of or failure to perform their duties, in the management and disposition of the funds and property, committed to their charge.

2. Compelling them to pay to the corporation, which they represent, or to its creditors, any money, and the value of any property, which they have acquired to themselves, or transferred to others, or lost, or wasted, by or through any neglect or failure to perform or by other violation of their duties.

3. Suspending a defendant from exercising his office, where it appears that he has abused his trust.

4. Removing a defendant from his office, upon proof or conviction of misconduct, and directing a new election to be held by the body or board duly authorized to hold the same, in order to supply the vacancy created by the removal; or, where there is no such body or board, or where all the members thereof are removed, directing the removal to be reported to the governor, who may, with the advice and consent of the senate, fill the vacancies.

5. Setting aside an alienation of property, made by one or more trustees, directors, managers or other officers of a corporation, contrary to a provision of law, or for a purpose foreign to the lawful business and objects of the corporation, where the alienee knew the purpose of the alienation.

6. Restraining and preventing such an alienation, where it is threatened, or where there is good reason to apprehend that it will be made.

7. The court must, upon the application of either party, make an order directing the trial by a jury of the issue of neglect or failure of defendants to perform their duties; and for that purpose the questions to be tried must be prepared and settled as prescribed in section nine hundred and seventy of the code of civil procedure.

As to any litigation pending prior to September one, nineteen hundred and seven, the provisions of this section as they existed prior to that date shall apply.

§ 91. Who may bring such an action. An action may be brought, as prescribed in the last section, by the attorney-general in behalf of the people of the state, or, except where the action is brought for the purpose specified in subdivision third or fourth of that section, by a creditor of the corporation, or by a trustee, director, manager, or other officer of the corporation, having a general superintendence of its concerns.

§ 91-a. Actions against officers by corporation, or receiver or trustee. The supreme court shall also have and exercise jurisdiction in equity, at the suit of a corporation, or of a receiver, or trustee in bankruptcy thereof, to compel one or more trustees, directors, managers or other officers of the corporation to account for injury to or losses of the funds, assets or property of the corporation, caused by or through any neglect or failure of the defendants to perform, or for violation of, their duties. The court must, upon the application of either party, make an order directing the trial by jury of the issue of negligence, and for that purpose the questions to be tried must be prepared and settled as prescribed in section nine hundred and seventy of the code of civil procedure.

§ 92. Visitatorial power over corporation not affected by this article. This article does not divest or impair any visitatorial power over a corporation, which is vested by statute in a corporate body, or a public officer.

§ 100. Action by judgment creditor for sequestration. Where final judgment for a sum of money has been rendered against a corporation created by or under the laws of the state, and an execution issued thereupon to the sheriff of the county, where the corporation transacts its general business, or where its principal office is located, has been returned wholly or partly unsatisfied, the judgment creditor may maintain an action to procure a judgment sequestering the property of the corporation, and providing for a distribution thereof, as prescribed in section one hundred and twelve of this chapter.

§ 101. Action to dissolve a corporation. In either of the following cases, an action to procure a judgment, dissolving a corporation, created by or under the laws of the state, and forfeiting its corporate rights, privileges and franchises, may be maintained, as prescribed in the next section:

1. Where the corporation has remained insolvent for at least one year.
2. Where it has neglected or refused, for at least one year, to pay and discharge its notes or other evidences of debt.
3. Where it has suspended its ordinary and lawful business for at least one year.
4. If it has banking powers, or power to make loans on pledges or deposits, or to make insurances, where it becomes insolvent or unable to pay its debts, or has violated any provision of the act, by or under which it was incorporated, or of any other act binding upon it.

§ 102. Who may bring action to dissolve a corporation. An action specified in the last section, may be maintained by the attorney-general, in the name and in behalf of the people. And whenever a creditor or stockholder of any corporation submits to the attorney-general a written statement of facts, verified by oath, showing grounds for an action under the provisions of the last section, and the attorney-general omits, for sixty days after this submission, to commence an action specified in the last section, then, and not otherwise, such creditor or stockholder may apply to the proper court for leave to commence such an action, and on obtaining leave may maintain the same accordingly; and if there be no person in existence upon whom service of the summons can be made under the provisions of section four hundred and thirty-one of the code of civil procedure, service of the summons in such action may be made in such manner as the court upon application by petition may direct.

§ 103. Temporary injunction in action authorized by this article. In an action, brought as prescribed in this article, the court may, upon proof of the facts authorizing the action to be maintained, grant an injunction order, restraining the corporation, and its trustees, directors, managers and other officers, from collecting or receiving any debt or demand, and from paying out, or in any way transferring or delivering, to any person, any money, property, or effects of the corporation, during the pendency of the action; except by express permission of the court. Where the action is brought to procure the dissolution of the corporation, the injunction may also restrain the corporation, and its trustees, directors, managers and other officers, from exercising any of its corporate rights, privileges, or franchises, during the pendency of the action; except by express permission of the court. The provisions of title second of chapter seventh of the code of civil procedure, relating to the granting, vacating or modifying of an injunction order, apply to an injunction order, granted as prescribed in this section; except that it can be granted only by the court.

§ 104. Temporary receiver. In such an action, the court may also, at any stage thereof, appoint one or more receivers of the property of the corporation. A receiver, so appointed, before final judgment is a temporary receiver, until final judgment is entered. A temporary receiver has power to collect and receive the debts, demands, and other property of the corporation; to preserve the property, and the proceeds of the debts and demands collected; to sell or otherwise dispose of the property as directed by the court; to collect, receive and preserve the proceeds thereof; and to maintain any action or special proceeding, for either of those purposes. He must qualify as prescribed by law for the qualification of a permanent receiver. Unless additional powers are specially conferred upon him, as prescribed in the next section, a temporary receiver has only the powers specified in this section, and those which are incidental to the exercise thereof.

§ 105. Additional powers and duties of temporary receiver. A temporary receiver, appointed as prescribed in the last section, is, in all respects, subject to the control of the court. In addition to the powers conferred upon him, by the provisions of the last section, the court may, by the order or interlocutory judgment appointing him, or by an order subsequently made in the action, or by the final judgment, confer upon him the powers and authority, and subject him to the duties and liabilities, of a permanent receiver, or so much thereof as it thinks proper; except that he shall not make any distribution among the creditors or stockholders, before final judgment, unless he is specially directed so to do by the court.

§ 106. Permanent receiver. A receiver appointed by or pursuant to a final judgment in the action, or a temporary receiver who is continued by the final judgment, is a permanent receiver, and has all the powers and authority conferred, and is subject to all the duties and liabilities imposed upon a receiver in article eleven of this chapter.

§ 107. Additional duties and liabilities of permanent receiver. A permanent receiver shall keep an account of all moneys received by him, and on the first days of January, April, July and October, in each and every year make and file a written statement, verified by his oath that such statement is correct and true, showing the amount of money received by such receiver, his agents or attorneys, the amount he has a right to retain and the items for which he claims to retain the same, and the distributive share due each person interested therein. He shall pay such distributive share to the person or persons entitled thereto, on demand, at any time after such statement. Such account, statement, and all the books and papers of the corporation in the hands of such receiver, shall at all reasonable times be open for the inspection of all persons having an interest therein. And in case of neglect or refusal to comply with either of the above requirements, or any duty imposed upon him, the supreme court, at either an appellate division or special term, shall, on the application of the party aggrieved, unless such neglect or refusal shall be satisfactorily explained to the court, forthwith remove such receiver, and appoint some suitable person as receiver in his place. Such removal shall not vitiate or annul any legal proceedings had by such receiver; but such proceedings shall be continued by such successor as if no removal had been made. Such receiver shall also be liable to pay to the party interested, interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum on all moneys due to such party and retained by him more than one day after such demand made as aforesaid.

§ 108. Application for appointment of receiver. Applications made by the attorney-general for the appointment of a receiver of a corporation shall be made in the judicial district in which the action in which the appointment is sought is triable.

§ 109. Officers and stockholders may be made parties in action brought by creditor. Where the action is brought by a creditor of a corporation, and the stockholders, directors, trustees, or other officers, or any of them, are made liable by law, in any event or contingency, for the payment of his debt, the persons, so made liable, may be made parties defendant, by the original or by a supplemental complaint; and their liability may be declared and enforced by the judgment in the action.

§ 110. Separate action may be brought against officers and stockholders. Where the stockholders, directors, trustees, or other officers of a corporation, who are made liable, in any event or contingency, for the payment of a debt, are not made parties defendant, as prescribed in the last section, the plaintiff in the action may maintain a separate action against them, to procure a judgment, declaring, apportioning and enforcing their liability.

§ 111. Proceedings in such actions. In an action brought as prescribed in either of the last two sections, the court must, when it is necessary, cause an account to be taken of the property and of the debts of the corporation, and thereupon the defendant's liability must be apportioned accordingly; but, if it affirmatively appears, that the corporation is insolvent, and has no property to satisfy its creditors, the court may, without taking such an account, ascertain and determine the amount of each defendant's liability, and enforce the same accordingly.

§ 112. Distribution of property of corporation by judgment in actions under this article. A final judgment in an action, brought against a corporation, as prescribed in this article, either separately or in conjunction with its stockholders, directors, trustees, or other officers, must provide for a just and fair distribution of the property of the corporation, and of the proceeds thereof, among its fair and honest creditors, in the order and in the proportions prescribed by law, in case of the voluntary dissolution of a corporation.

§ 113. Recovery of stock subscriptions. Where the stockholders of the corporation are parties to the action, if the property of the corporation is not sufficient to discharge its debts, the interlocutory or final judgment, as the case requires, must adjudge that each stockholder pay into court the amount due and remaining unpaid, on the shares of stock held by him, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy the debts of the corporation.

§ 114. Liability of directors and stockholders. If it appears, that the property of the corporation, and the sums collected or collectible from the stockholders, upon their stock subscriptions, are or will be insufficient to pay the debts of the corporation, the court must ascertain the several sums, for which the directors, trustees, or other officers, or the stockholders of the corporation, being parties to the action, are liable; and must adjudge that the same be paid into court, to be applied, in such proportions and in such order as justice requires, to the payment of the debts of the corporation.

§ 115. Effect of this article. This article does not repeal or affect any special provision of law, prescribing that a particular kind of corporation shall cease to exist, or shall be dissolved, in a case or in a manner, not prescribed in this article; or any special provision of law, prescribing the mode of enforcing the liability of the stockholders of a particular kind of corporation.

§ 130. Action by attorney-general to annul corporation when legislature directs. The attorney-general, whenever he is so directed by the legislature, must bring an action against a corporation created by or under the laws of the state, to procure a judgment, vacating or annulling the act of incorporation, or any act renewing the corporation, or continuing its corporate existence, upon the ground that the act was procured upon a fraudulent suggestion, or the concealment of a material fact, made by or with the knowledge and consent of any of the persons incorporated.

§ 131. Action by attorney-general to annul corporation by leave of court. Upon leave being granted, as prescribed in the next section, the attorney-general may bring an action against a corporation created by or under the laws of the state, to procure a judgment, vacating the charter or annulling the existence of the corporation, upon the ground that it has, either

1. Offended against any provision of an act, by or under which it was created, altered or renewed, or an act amending the same, and applicable to the corporation; or,

2. Violated any provision of law, whereby it has forfeited its charter, or become liable to be dissolved, by the abuse of its powers; or,

3. Forfeited its privileges or franchises, by a failure to exercise its powers; or,

4. Done or omitted any act, which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rights, privileges, and franchises; or,

5. Exercised a privilege or franchise, not conferred upon it by law.

§ 132. Notice of application for leave to commence action to annul corporation. Before granting leave, the court may, in its discretion, require such previous notice of the application as it thinks proper, to be given to the corporation, or any officer thereof, and may hear the corporation in opposition thereto.

§ 133. Jury trial. An action, brought as prescribed in this article, is triable, of course and of right, by a jury, as if it was an action specified in section nine hundred and sixty-eight of the code of civil procedure and without procuring an order, as prescribed in section nine hundred and seventy of the code of civil procedure.

§ 134. Injunction and receiver in final judgment. Where any of the matters, specified in section one hundred and thirty or section one hundred and thirty-one of this article, are established in an action, brought as prescribed in either of those sections, the court may render final judgment that the corporation, and each officer thereof, be perpetually enjoined from exercising any of its corporate rights, privileges, and franchises; and that it be dissolved. The judgment must also provide for the appointment of a receiver, the taking of an account, and the distribution of the property of the corporation, among its creditors and stockholders, as where a corporation is dissolved upon its voluntary application, as prescribed in article nine of this chapter.

§ 135. Temporary injunction. In an action, brought as prescribed in this article, an injunction order may be granted, at any stage of the action, restraining the corporation, and any or all of its directors, trustees and other officers, from exercising any of its corporate rights, privileges, or franchises; or from exercising certain of its corporate rights, privileges, or franchises, specified in the injunction order; or from exercising any franchise, liberty or privilege, or transacting any business, not allowed by law. Such an injunction is deemed one of those specified in section six hundred and three of the code of civil procedure, and all the provisions of title second of chapter seventh of the code of civil procedure applicable to an injunction, specified in that section, apply to an injunction granted as prescribed in this section, except that it can be granted only by the court.

§ 136. Filing and publishing judgment. Where final judgment is rendered against a corporation, in an action, brought as prescribed in this article, the attorney-general must cause a copy of the judgment-roll to be forthwith filed in the office of the secretary of state; who must cause a notice of the substance and effect of the judgment, to be published, for four weeks, in a newspaper printed in the county, wherein the principal place of business of the corporation was located.

§ 170. Petition for voluntary dissolution of corporation. If a majority of the directors, trustees, or other officers, having the management of the concerns of a corporation created by or under the laws of the state, discover that the stock, effects, and other property thereof are not sufficient to pay all just demands, for which it is liable, or to afford a reasonable security to those who may deal with it; or if, for any reason, they deem it beneficial to the interests of the stockholders that the corporation should be dissolved, they may present a petition to the supreme court praying for a final order dissolving the corporation, as prescribed in this article.

§ 171. Directors or trustees may be required to petition. It shall be the duty of a majority of the directors or trustees of every corporation created by or under the laws of this state to present a petition as prescribed in the last section whenever directed so to do by a majority in interest of its stockholders.

§ 172. Petition when directors or trustees do not agree. If a corporation, created under a general statute of the state for the formation of corporations or under any special act or charter has an even number of trustees or directors who are equally divided respecting the management of its affairs, or if the stock of such corporation is equally divided into not more than two independent ownerships or interests, or if the entire stock of the corporation is, at that time, owned by the trustees or directors who are even in number or equally divided representing the management of its affairs, or if the stock is so divided, that one-half thereof is owned or controlled by persons favoring the course of part of the trustees or directors and one-half thereof is owned by persons favoring the course of the other trustees or directors, the trustees or directors or the stockholders or one or more of them may present a petition as prescribed in section one hundred and seventy of this chapter.

§ 173. Corporations excepted from two preceding sections. Sections one hundred and seventy-one and one hundred and seventy-two of this chapter do not apply to a savings bank, a trust company, a safe deposit company, or a corporation formed to rent safes in burglar and fire-proof vaults, or for the construction or operation of a railroad, or for aiding in the construction thereof, or for carrying on the business of banking or insurance, or intended to derive a profit from the loan or use of money.

§ 174. Contents of petition. The petition must show that the case is one of those specified in sections one hundred and seventy and one hundred and seventy-two of this chapter, and must state the reasons, which induce the petitioner or petitioners to desire the dissolution of the corporation. A schedule must be annexed to the petition, containing the following matters, as far as the petition or petitioners know, or have the means of knowing the same:

1. A full and true account of all the creditors of the corporation, and of all unsatisfied engagements, entered into by, and subsisting against, the corporation.

2. A statement of the name and place of residence of each creditor, and of each person with whom such an engagement was made, and to whom it is to be performed, if known; or, if either is not known, a statement of that fact.

3. A statement of the sum owing to each creditor, or other person specified in the last subdivision, and the nature of each debt, demand, or other engagement.

4. A statement of the true cause and consideration of the indebtedness to each creditor.

5. A full, just and true inventory of all the property of the corporation, and of all the books, vouchers, and securities, relating thereto.

6. A statement of each incumbrance upon the property of the corporation, by judgment, mortgage, pledge, or otherwise.

7. A full, just, and true account of the capital stock of the corporation, specifying the name of each stockholder; his residence, if it is known, or if it is not known, stating that fact; the number of shares belonging to him; the amount paid in upon his shares; and the amount still due thereupon.

§ 175. Affidavit to be annexed to petition. An affidavit, made by each of the petitioners, to the effect that the matters of fact, stated in the petition and the schedule, are just and true, so far as the affiant knows or has means of knowing the same, must be annexed to the petition and schedule.

§ 176. Presentation of petition. The papers must be presented at a special term of the supreme court, held within the judicial district, embracing the county wherein the principal office of the corporation is located.

§ 177. Corporations without stockholders. In the case of corporations affected by the provisions of this article and not having stockholders, it shall be sufficient for the purposes of this article to notify, name and refer to the "members" of such corporations, instead of "stockholders," as herein provided.

§ 178. Action by court upon petition for dissolution. In a case specified in sections one hundred and seventy-one and one hundred and seventy-two of this chapter the court may, in its discretion, entertain or dismiss the application. Where it entertains the application, or where the cause is one of those specified in section one hundred and seventy of this chapter, the court must make an order, requiring all persons interested in the corporation to show cause before it, or before a referee designated in the order, at a time and place therein specified, not less than six week after the granting of the order, why the corporation should not be dissolved.

§ 179. Publication of order to show cause why corporation should not be dissolved. A copy of the order must be published, as prescribed therein, at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding the time fixed therein for showing cause, in one or more newspapers, specified in the order, published in the city or county wherein the order is entered.

§ 180. Service of order to show cause. A copy of the order must also be served upon each of the persons, specified in the schedule as a creditor or stockholder of the corporation, or as a person to whom an engagement of the corporation is to be performed, other than a person whose residence is stated to be unknown, or to be without the United States. The service must be made either personally, at least ten days before the time appointed for the hearing; or by depositing a copy of the order, at least twenty days before the time so appointed, in the post-office, inclosed in a postpaid wrapper, addressed to the person to be served, at his residence, as stated in the schedule.

§ 181. Entering and filing order and papers. The order must be entered, and the papers must be filed, within ten days after the order is made, with the clerk of the county where the principal office of the corporation is located.

§ 182. Temporary receiver. If it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that the corporation is insolvent, the court may at any stage of the proceedings before the final order, on motion of the petitioners on notice to the attorney-general, or on motion of the attorney-general on notice to the corporation, appoint a temporary receiver of the property of the corporation, which receiver shall have all the powers and be subject to all the duties that are defined as belonging to temporary receivers appointed in an action, in section one hundred and four of this chapter. The court may also, in its discretion, at any stage in the proceeding after the appointment of a temporary receiver, upon like motion and notice, confer upon such temporary receiver the powers and authority, and subject him to the duties and liabilities of a permanent receiver, or as much thereof as it thinks proper, except that he shall not make any final distribution among the creditors and stockholders, before final order in the proceedings, unless he is specially directed so to do by the court.

§ 183. Application for appointment of receiver. Every application made for the appointment of a receiver of a corporation other than applications made by the attorney-general on behalf of the people of the state, shall be made at a special term of the supreme court held in and for the judicial district in which the principal business office of the corporation is located.

§ 184. Injunction. If a temporary receiver be appointed, the court may, in its discretion, on like motion and notice, with or without security, at any stage of the proceeding before the final order, grant an injunction, restraining the creditors of the corporation, from beginning any action against the said corporation for the recovery of a sum of money, or from taking any further proceedings in such an action theretofore commenced. Such injunction shall have the same effect and be subject to the same provisions of law as if each creditor upon whom it is served was named therein.

§ 185. Referee. If a referee was not designated in the order to show cause, the court may, in its discretion, appoint a referee when or after the order is returnable.

§ 186. Hearing. At the time and place specified in the order, or at the time and place to which the hearing is adjourned, the court, or the referee, must hear the allegations and proofs of the parties, and determine the facts.

§ 187. Decision. The decision of the court, or the report of the referee, must be in writing, and must be made and filed with all convenient speed. It must contain a statement of the effects, credits, and other property, and of the debts and other engagements, of the corporation, and of all other matters, pertaining to its affairs.

§ 188. Use of original papers on hearing. The court or the referee is entitled to use, upon the hearing, the original petition, and the schedules annexed thereto; and the clerk must transmit them accordingly, upon the written order of the judge, or of the referee. In that case, they must be returned with the decision or report.

§ 189. Amending papers. The court may, at any stage of the proceedings before final order, on the application of the petitioners, or a majority of them, or on the application of the temporary receiver, grant an order amending the schedules annexed to the original petition, by the insertion of additional items, or by making the statements or inventory fuller and in greater detail than as originally filed, with the like effect as though said petition and schedules had been originally presented and filed as amended.

§ 190. Final order. Where the hearing is before a referee, a motion for a final order must be made to the court, upon notice to each person who has made himself a party to the proceedings, by filing with the clerk, before the close of the hearing, a notice of his appearance, in person or by attorney, specifying a post-office within the state, where such a notice may be served. The notice may be served as prescribed in the code of civil procedure for the service of a paper upon an attorney in an action. Where the hearing was before the court, a motion for a final order may be made immediately, or at such a time and upon such a notice, as the court prescribes.

§ 191. Permanent receiver. Upon an application for a final order, if it appear to the court in a case specified in section one hundred and seventy of this chapter that the corporation is insolvent, or, in a case specified either in that section, or in sections one hundred and seventy-one and one hundred and seventy-two of this chapter, that for any reason a dissolution of the corporation will be beneficial to the interests of the stockholders and not injurious to the public interests, the court must make a final order dissolving the corporation, and appointing one or more receivers of its property. But in the case of a solvent corporation, the court may, if there is no objection by creditors, dispense with a receiver and provide in the final order for the distribution of the assets. The order shall be entered in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal business office, or the principal place of business of the corporation is located, and a certified copy thereof, if a banking corporation, shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks; if an insurance corporation, in the office of the superintendent of insurance; and if a business, transportation, railroad or membership corporation, in the office of the secretary of state. Upon the entry of the order and the filing of a certified copy thereof as herein provided, the corporation is dissolved. A receiver appointed under this section shall have all the powers, duties and liabilities of receivers under article eleven of this chapter.

§ 192. Appointment of director, trustee or other officer or stockholder as receiver. The court may, in its discretion, appoint a director, trustee, or other officer, or a stockholder of the corporation, a receiver of its property.

§ 193. Certain sales, transfers and judgments void. A sale, assignment, mortgage, conveyance, or other transfer, of any property of a corporation, made after the filing of a petition as prescribed in this article, in payment of, or as security for, an existing or prior debt, or for any other consideration; or a judgment thereafter rendered against the corporation by confession, or upon the acceptance of an offer, is absolutely void, as against the receiver appointed in the special proceeding, and as against the creditors of the corporation.

§ 194. Omission, defect or default of receiver. In a proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation, the court may, in the furtherance of justice, upon notice to the attorney-general, and the attorney-general not objecting, and upon such further notice to creditors or others interested as the court shall direct, which notice may be made by mail upon all persons and corporations not residing or existing within the state, relieve a receiver from any omission, defect or default, in any proceeding or act required by law to be taken or done, or in the giving of any notice required by law to be given, and the court may upon like notice, confirm any act of a receiver, and any decision, report, order or judgment made in such proceeding.

§ 195. Exception of certain corporations. This article does not apply to an incorporated library society, to a religious corporation, or to, a select school or academy, incorporated by the regents of the university or by the legislature, or to a municipal or other political corporation.

§ 200. Forfeiture of charter or revocation of certificate of authority of corporations maintaining nuisances generated in another state. Any corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state which shall so conduct its business, without the state, by the emission or discharge of dust, smoke, gas, steam or offensive, noisome or noxious odors or fumes, so as to unreasonably injure or endanger the health or safety in this state of any considerable number of the people of this state, shall be deemed guilty of a nuisance and the charter of such corporation, if incorporated by or under any law of this state shall be deemed forfeited in the manner prescribed in this section, or its certificate of authority to do business in this state, if incorporated or formed under the laws of any other state, shall be deemed revoked and annulled in the manner prescribed in this section, and in either case shall be reviewed, except as prescribed in the next section. Complaints may be made to the state commissioner of health by any person, association or corporation aggrieved, by petition or complaint in writing, setting forth any act or thing done or omitted to be done claimed to constitute a nuisance within the provisions of this section. Upon the presentation of such a complaint, the state commissioner of health shall cause a copy thereof to be served upon the corporation complained of, in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons, accompanied by a notice, directed to such corporation, requiring that the matters complained of be abated, or that the charges be answered in writing within a time to be specified by such commissioner. If the charges contained in such complaint be not thus satisfied and it shall appear to such commissioner of health that there are reasonable grounds therefor, he shall cause such charges to be investigated in such manner and by such means as he shall deem proper and fix a time for a hearing upon such complaint and cause notice thereof to be forwarded to the complainant and the corporation complained of. If the state commissioner of health, or his successor, after such notice to such corporation, and an opportunity for a hearing being given to it, shall find that such corporation is so conducting its business, without the state, as to unreasonably injure or endanger the health or safety in this state of any considerable number of people of this state, he shall file such findings in duplicate in the offices of the secretary of state and the attorney-general. A certificate of the secretary of state giving notice of the filing of such findings shall be served upon the corporation, or upon the designated agent of a foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state, and thereupon the charter of such corporation if incorporated by or under any law of this state, or its certificate of authority to do business in this state, if incorporated or formed under the laws of any other state, shall be suspended for the period of thirty days. Any person who shall exercise or attempt to exercise any powers under the charter of any corporation or by virtue of a certificate of authority which has been so suspended, during the period of such suspension, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If at the expiration of such period the state commissioner of health upon further proof and opportunity to such offending corporation to be heard shall find and determine that such corporation continues to conduct its business so as to constitute such nuisance, he shall cause a notice of such determination to be served upon the corporation, or upon the designated agent of a foreign corporation authorized to do business in this state, and published once a week for two successive weeks in the official state paper. On the tenth day after such service and publication the charter of such corporation, if incorporated by or under any law of this state, shall be deemed forfeited or its certificate of authority to do business in this state, if incorporated or formed under the laws of any other state, shall be deemed to be revoked and canceled. Any person who shall exercise or attempt to exercise any powers under the charter of any corporation which has been so forfeited or by virtue of a certificate of authority which has been so revoked, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If, pursuant to this section, the charter of a domestic corporation be forfeited, the attorney-general shall forthwith apply to the supreme court for the appointment of a receiver of its property, who shall have all the powers and duties, so far as practicable, prescribed by articles ten-A and eleven of the general corporation law.

§ 201. Reinstatement. When any corporation has ceased to perform the acts or maintain the nuisance by reason of which its charter has been forfeited or its certificate of authority revoked, and shall satisfactorily guarantee that it will not perform such acts or maintain such nuisance in the future, the charter or certificate of authority of such corporation may be revived in the manner prescribed in this section with the same force and effect as if such charter had not been forfeited or such certificate revoked. If such corporation shall file a petition in writing with the state commissioner of health setting forth that the nuisance in fact no longer exists and it shall appear that there are reasonable grounds therefor, such commissioner of health shall cause an investigation to be made in such manner and by such means as he shall deem proper, and if after such investigation, he shall find and certify that such corporation has ceased to conduct its business so as to constitute such nuisance, and shall file such findings in duplicate in the offices of the secretary of state and attorney-general, the charter or certificate of authority of such corporation shall be deemed to be revived with full force and effect. A supplemental certificate of the secretary of state shall be served and published in like manner, and upon such service and publication, such revival shall become effective. Such revival shall not, however, prevent a subsequent forfeiture or revocation of the charter or certificate of the same corporation for the same or similar offense. This article shall not be deemed to apply to a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of New York and subject to the jurisdiction of the public service commission under the public service commissions law or principally engaged in furnishing power to such public service corporation.

§ 202. Application of article. This article shall not apply to corporations operating railroad or steamboat lines.

§ 220. Dissolution of stock corporation before beginning business. The incorporators named in any certificate of incorporation filed for the purpose of creating a domestic stock corporation, other than a moneyed or transportation corporation, may, before the payment of any part of the capital, and before beginning business, surrender all corporate rights and franchises, by signing, verifying and filing in the office of the secretary of state and the clerk of the county where the certificate of incorporation is filed, a certificate setting forth the names of the incorporators, that no part of the capital has been paid, that there are no liabilities, that such business has not been begun, and surrendering all rights and franchises; and proof of the facts set forth in such certificate to the satisfaction of the secretary of state; and thereupon the said corporation shall be dissolved, and its corporate existence and power shall cease. In case any incorporator of such a corporation shall be deceased, then the aforesaid certificate may be made by the surviving incorporators providing two years shall have elapsed since the date of its incorporation, but in such case the certificate shall set forth the fact that one or more of said incorporators is deceased.

§ 221. Dissolution of stock corporation before expiration of time limit. Any stock corporation, except a moneyed or a railroad corporation, may be dissolved before the expiration of the time limited in its certificate of incorporation or in its charter as follows:

1. The board of directors of any such corporation may at a meeting called for that purpose, upon at least three days' notice to each director, by a vote of a majority of the whole board, adopt a resolution that it is in their opinion advisable to dissolve such corporation forthwith, and thereupon shall call a meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of voting upon a proposition that such corporation be forthwith dissolved. Such meeting of the stockholders shall be held not less than thirty nor more than sixty days after the adoption of such resolution, and the notice of the time and place of such meeting so called by the directors shall be published in one or more newspapers published and circulating in the county wherein such corporation has its principal office, at least once a week for three weeks successively next preceding the time appointed for holding such meeting, and on or before the day of the first publication of such notice, a copy thereof shall be served personally on each stockholder, or mailed to him at his last known post-office address. Such meeting shall be held in the city, town or village in which the last preceding annual meeting of the corporation was held, and said meeting may, on the day so appointed, by the consent of a majority in interest of the stockholders present, be adjourned from time to time, and notice of such adjournment shall be published in the newspapers in which the notice of the meeting is published. If at any such meeting the holders of two-thirds in amount of the stock of the corporation, then outstanding, shall, in person or by attorney, consent that such dissolution shall take place and signify such consent, in writing, then such corporation shall file such consent, attested by its secretary or treasurer, and its president or vice-president, together with the powers of attorney signed by such stockholders executing such consent by attorney, with a statement of the names and residences of the then existing board of directors of said corporation, and the names and residences of its officers duly verified by the secretary or treasurer or president of said corporation, in the office of the secretary of state.

2. The secretary of state shall thereupon issue to such corporation, in duplicate, a certificate of the filing of such papers and that it appears therefrom that such corporation has complied with this section in order to be dissolved, and one of such duplicate certificates shall be filed by such corporation in the office of the clerk of the county in which such corporation has its principal office; and thereupon such corporation shall be dissolved and shall cease to carry on business, except for the purpose of adjusting and winding up its business. The board of directors shall cause a copy of such certificate to be published at least once a week for two weeks in one or more newspapers published and circulating in the county in which the principal office of such corporation is located, and at the expiration of such publication, the said corporation by its board of directors shall proceed to adjust and wind up its business and affairs with power to carry out its contracts and to sell its assets at public or private sale, and to apply the same in discharge of debts and obligations of such corporation, and, after paying and adequately providing for the payment of such debts and obligations, to distribute the balance of assets among the stockholders of said corporation, according to their respective right and interests.

3. Said corporation shall nevertheless continue in existence for the purpose of paying, satisfying and discharging any existing debts or obligations, collecting and distributing its assets and doing all other acts required in order to adjust and wind up its business and affairs, and may sue and be sued for the purpose of enforcing such debts or obligations, until its business and affairs are fully adjusted and wound up.

4. After paying or adequately providing for the debts and obligations of the corporation the directors may, with the written consent of the holders of two-thirds in amount of the capital stock, sell the remaining assets or any part thereof to a corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state, and engaged in a business of the same general character, and take in payment therefor the stock or bonds or both of such corporation and distribute them among the stockholders, in lieu of money, in proportion to their interest therein, but no such sale shall be valid as against any stockholder, who, within sixty days after the mailing of notice to him of such sale, shall apply to the supreme court in the manner provided by section seventeen of the stock corporation law, for an appraisal of the value of his interest in the assets so sold; unless within thirty days after such appraisal the stockholders consenting to such sale, or some of them, shall pay to such objecting stockholder or deposit for his account, in the manner directed by the court, the amount of such appraisal and upon such payment or deposit the interest of such objecting stockholder shall vest in the person or persons making such payment or deposit.

§ 225. Security. A receiver, appointed in an action or special proceeding, must, before entering upon his duties, execute and file with the proper clerk, a bond to the people, with at least two sufficient sureties, in a penalty fixed by the court, judge, or referee, making the appointment, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties as receiver; and the execution of any such bond by any fidelity or surety company authorized by the laws of this state to transact business, shall be equivalent to the execution of said bond by two sureties. But this section does not apply to a case where special provision is made by law for the security to be given by a receiver or for increasing the same.

§ 226. Removal or new bond. The court, or, where the order was made out of court, the judge making the order, by or pursuant to which the receiver was appointed, or his successor in office, may, at any time, remove the receiver, or direct him to give a new bond, with new sureties, with the like condition specified in the last section. But this section does not apply to a case where special provision is made by law for the security to be given by a receiver, or for increasing the same, or for removing a receiver.

§ 227. Notice to sureties upon accounting. A receiver who, having executed and filed a bond as provided for in section two hundred and twenty-five or section two hundred and twenty-six of this chapter, before presenting his accounts as receiver, must give notice to the surety or sureties on his official bond, of his intention to present his accounts not less than eight days before the day set for the hearing on said accounting. The same notice must be given to such surety or sureties where the accounting is ordered on the petition of a person or persons other than the receiver, and in no case shall the receiver's accounts be passed, settled or allowed, unless the said notice provided for in this section shall have first been given to the surety or sureties on the official bond of such receiver.

§ 230. Application of this article. Unless otherwise provided the provisions of this article shall apply only to permanent receivers appointed pursuant to section one hundred and six or section one hundred and ninety-one of this chapter.

§ 231. Receiver trustee of property. Permanent receivers shall be trustees of the property for the benefit of the creditors of the corporation and of its stockholders.

§ 232. Receiver's title to property. Such receivers shall, from the time of their having filed the security required by law, be vested with all the property, real or personal, vested or contingent, of the corporation.

§ 233. Transfer of assets of corporation to receiver. In all cases where receivers have been or shall be appointed for any corporation of this state other than an insurance company on application by the attorney-general, all property, real and personal, and all securities of any kind and nature belonging to such corporation, no matter where located or by whom held, shall be transferred to, vested in and held by such receiver; provided, however, that such transfer shall only be made when directed by an order of the supreme court, due notice of the application for such order having been made on the attorney-general and the custodian of the funds, securities or property.

§ 234. Security of receiver. Before entering upon the duties of their appointment, such receivers shall give such security to the people of the state, and in such penalty, as the court shall direct, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of their appointment, and for the due accounting for all moneys received by them.

§ 235. Authority of single receiver. When one receiver only, shall be appointed, all the provisions herein contained, in reference to several receivers shall apply to him.

§ 236. Authority where there is more than one receiver. When there are more receivers than one appointed, the debts and property of the corporation may be collected and received by any one of them; and when there are more than two receivers appointed every power and authority conferred on the receivers may be exercised by any two of them.

§ 237. Surviving receivers. The survivor or survivors of any receivers shall have all the powers and rights given to receivers. All property in the hands of any receiver at the time of his death, removal or incapacity, shall be delivered to the remaining receiver or receivers, if there be any; or to the successor of the one so dying, removed or incapacitated; who may demand and sue for the same.

§ 238. Oath of receiver. Before proceeding to the discharge of any of their duties, all such receivers shall take and subscribe an oath, that they will well and truly execute the trust by their appointment reposed in them, according to the best of their skill and understanding; which oath shall be filed with the officer or court, that appointed them.

§ 239. General powers of receivers. The said receivers shall have power:

1. To sue in their own names or otherwise, and recover all the property, debts and things in action belonging or due or to become due to such corporation, whether accruing or maturing before or after the dissolution thereof and whether vested or contingent at the time of such dissolution in the same manner and with the like effect as such corporation might or could have done if no receivers had been appointed; and no set-off shall be allowed in any such suit, for any debt, unless it was owing to such creditor by such corporation before the appointment of the receiver of such corporation, or unless it shall have been duly contracted by such receiver subsequent to his appointment; notwithstanding the notice to creditors the receivers may sue for and recover any property or effects of the corporation and any debts due to it, at any time, before the day appointed for the delivery or payment thereof;

2. To take into their hands, all the property of such corporation, whether attached, or delivered to them, or afterwards discovered; and all books, vouchers and securities relating to the same;

3. In the case of a non-resident, absconding or concealed debtor, to demand and receive of every sheriff who shall have attached any of the property of such debtor, or who shall have in his hands, any moneys arising from the sale of such property, all such property and moneys, on paying him his reasonable costs and charges, for attaching and keeping the same, to be allowed by the court having jurisdiction;

4. From time to time, to sell at public auction, all the property, real and personal, vested in them, which shall come to their hands, after giving at least fourteen days' public notice of the time and place of sale, and also publishing the same for two weeks in a newspaper printed in the county, where the sale shall be made, if there be one;

5. To allow such credit on the sale of real property by them, as they shall deem reasonable, subject to the provisions of this article for not more than three-fourths of the purchase money; which credit shall be secured by a bond of the purchaser, and a mortgage on the property sold;

6. On such sales, to execute the necessary conveyances and bills of sale;

7. To redeem all mortgages and conditional contracts and all pledges of personal property, and to satisfy any judgments, which may be an incumbrance on any property so sold by them; or to sell such property subject to such mortgages, contracts, pledges or judgments;

8. To settle all matters and accounts between such corporation and its debtors, or creditors, and to examine any person touching such matters and accounts, on oath, to be administered by either of them;

9. Under the order of the court appointing them, to compound with any person indebted to such corporation and thereupon to discharge all demands against such person.

§ 240. Power of receiver to institute proceedings to recover assets. Whenever any receiver of a domestic corporation, or of the property within this state of any foreign corporation, shall have been appointed and qualified, as provided in articles five, six, seven, nine, eleven or twelve of this chapter either before, upon, or after final judgment or order in the action or special proceeding in which such appointment was made, and shall, by his own verified petition, affidavit or other competent proof, show to the supreme court, at a special term thereof, held within the judicial district wherein such appointment was made, that he has good reason to believe that any officer, stockholder, agent or employee of such corporation, or any other person whomsoever, has embezzled or concealed, or withholds or has in his possession or under his control, or has wrongfully disposed of, any property of such corporation which of right ought to be surrendered to the receiver thereof; or that any person can testify concerning the embezzlement, concealment, withholding, possession, control or wrongful disposition of any such property, the court shall make an order, with or without notice, commanding such person or persons to appear at a time and place to be designated in the order, before the court or before a referee named by the court for that purpose, and to submit to an examination concerning such embezzlement, concealment, withholding, possession, control or wrongful disposition of such property; and at the time of making such order or at any time thereafter, the court may, in its discretion, enjoin and restrain the person or persons so ordered to appear and be examined from in any manner disposing of any property of such corporation which may be in the possession or under the control of the person so ordered to be examined, until the further order of the court in relation thereto. No person so ordered to appear and be examined shall be excused from answering any question on the ground that his answer might tend to convict him of a criminal offense; but his testimony taken upon such examination shall not be used against him in any criminal action or proceeding. Any person so ordered to appear and be examined shall be entitled to the same fees and mileage, to be paid at the time of serving the order, as are allowed by law to witnesses subpoenaed to attend and testify in an action in the supreme court, and shall be subject to the same penalties upon failure to appear and testify in obedience to such an order as are provided by law in the case of witnesses who fail to obey a subpoena to appear and testify in an action.

Any person appearing for examination in obedience to such order shall be sworn by the court or referee to tell the truth, and shall be entitled to be represented on such examination by counsel, and may be cross-examined, or may make any voluntary statement in his own behalf concerning the subject of his examination which may seem to him desirable or pertinent thereto.

The court before which such examination is taken, as well as the referee, if one be appointed for that purpose, shall have power to adjourn such examination from time to time, and may rule upon any question or objection arising in the course of such examination, to the same extent that might be done if the person so examined were testifying as a witness in the trial of an action.

When the examination of any person under such order shall be concluded, the testimony shall be signed and sworn to by the person so examined, and shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county where the action is pending, or was tried, in which the receiver was appointed; and if from such testimony it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that any person so examined is wrongfully concealing or withholding, or has in his possession or under his control, any property which of right belongs to such receiver, the court may make an order commanding the person so examined forthwith to deliver the same to such receiver, who shall hold the same subject to the further order of the court in relation thereto; and otherwise, the court may, at the conclusion of any such examination, make such final order in the premises as the interests of justice require.

§ 241. Power of receiver in the settlement of controversies. If any controversy shall arise between the receivers and any other person, in the settlement of any demands against such corporation, or of debts due to such corporation the same may be referred to one or more indifferent persons, who may be agreed upon by the receivers and the party with whom such controversy shall exist, by a writing to that effect signed by them.

If such referee or referees be not selected by agreement, then the receivers or the other party to the controversy, provided no action at law is pending arising out of any such debts or demands, may serve a notice of their intention to apply to any judge of the supreme court at chambers, residing in the same district with said receivers, for the appointment of one or more referees, specifying the time and place when such application will be made, which notice shall be served at least ten days before the time so therein specified.

On the day so specified, upon due proof of the service of such notice, the judge before whom the application is made may, in his discretion, proceed to select one or more referees, the same in all respects as they are now selected according to the rules and practice of the supreme court.

When any witness to such controversy shall reside out of the county where the said receivers resided at the time of their appointment, the referee or referees appointed to hear said controversy shall have power to issue a commission or commissions in like manner as justices of the peace are now authorized to issue the same, and the testimony so taken shall be returned to said referee or referees in the same manner, and be read before them on a hearing, in like manner as testimony taken on commission before justices of the peace.

The officer before whom they shall be selected, shall certify such selection in writing. Such certificate, or the written agreement of the parties, shall be filed by the receivers in the office of a clerk of the supreme court, and an order shall thereupon be entered by such clerk in vacation or in term, appointing the persons so selected to determine the controversy.

Such referees shall have the same powers, and be subject to the like duties and obligations, and shall receive the same compensation, as referees appointed by the supreme court, in personal actions pending therein.

The report of the referees shall be filed in the same office where the order for their appointment was entered, and shall be conclusive on the rights of the parties, if not set aside by the court.

§ 242. Power of receiver to employ counsel. If the receiver of a corporation employs counsel he shall within three months after he has qualified as receiver enter into a written contract fixing the compensation of such counsel at not exceeding a certain amount or a certain percentage of the sums received and disbursed by him, which contract must be approved by the supreme court, on at least eight days' notice to the attorney-general. A payment by such receiver to his counsel on account of services shall only be made, pursuant to an order of the court, on notice to the attorney-general and subject to review on the final accounting. A contract with counsel shall not be made for a longer period than eighteen months, but may be renewed from time to time for periods of not more than one year, if approved by the supreme court on at least eight days' notice to the attorney-general. In case of the intervention of any policy-holder or depositor, by permission of the court, such policy-holder or depositor shall defray the legal expenses thereof, and no allowance shall be made for costs or fees to any attorney of such policy-holder or depositor. It shall be unlawful for receivers of an insurance, banking or railroad corporation, or trust company to pay to any attorney or counsel any costs, fees or allowances until the amounts thereof shall have been stated to the special term as provided in section two hundred and forty-nine of this chapter, as expenses incurred, and shall have been approved by that court, by an order of the court duly entered; and any such order shall be the subject of review by the appellate division and the court of appeals on an appeal taken therefrom by any party aggrieved thereby.

§ 243. Power of receiver to hold real property. A receiver, appointed by or pursuant to an order or a judgment, in an action in the supreme court or a county court, or in a special proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation, may take and hold real property, upon such trusts and for such purposes as the court directs, subject to the direction of the court, from time to time, respecting the disposition thereof.

§ 244. Power of receiver to recover stock subscriptions. If there shall be any sum remaining due upon any share of stock subscribed in such corporation, the receiver shall immediately proceed to recover the same, unless the person so indebted shall be wholly insolvent; and for that purpose may commence and prosecute any action or proceeding for the recovery of such sum, without the consent of any creditors of such corporation.

§ 245. Duty of receiver to convert assets into money. The receivers shall, as speedily as possible, convert the property, real and personal, of the corporation into money.

§ 246. Duty of receiver as to private sales. A receiver duly appointed in this state by and pursuant to a judgment in an action, or by and pursuant to an order in a special proceeding, may, upon application to the court by which such judgment was rendered, or such order was made, and upon notice to such parties as may be entitled to notice of applications made in such action or special proceeding, be authorized by the said court to sell or convey the property, whether real or personal, of the corporation of which he is the receiver, at private sale, upon such terms and conditions as the court may direct.

§ 247. Duty of receiver to keep accounts. They shall keep a regular account of all moneys received by them as receivers; to which, every creditor, or other person interested therein, shall be at liberty, at all reasonable times, to have recourse.

§ 248. Duty of receiver to serve copy of report upon attorney-general and superintendent of banks. All receivers of insolvent corporations who are required by law to make and file reports of their proceedings shall at the time of making and filing such reports, serve a copy thereof upon the attorney-general of this state, and receivers of such corporations as report to, and are under the supervision of, the banking department shall on the first day of January and July of each year, during the continuance of their respective trusts, file with the superintendent of banks a report, verified by oath, in such form as the superintendent may prescribe, showing the condition of their respective trusts. In case any receiver of an insolvent corporation shall neglect to make and file a report of his proceedings for thirty days after the time he is required by law to make and file such report, or shall neglect for the same length of time to serve a copy thereof on the attorney-general, as required by this section the attorney-general may make a motion in the supreme court for an order to compel the making and filing and serving a copy on him of such report, or for the removal of such receiver from his office.

§ 249. Duty of certain receivers to make reports. It shall be the duty of every receiver of an insurance, banking or railroad corporation, or trust company, to present every six months to the special term of the supreme court, held in the judicial district wherein the place of trial or venue of the action or special proceeding in which he was appointed may then be, on the first day of its first sitting, after the expiration of such six months, and to file a copy of the same, if a receiver of a bank or trust company, with the superintendent of banks; if a receiver of an insurance company, with the superintendent of insurance; and in each case with the attorney-general, an account exhibiting in detail the receipts of his trust, and the expenses paid and incurred therein during the preceding six months. Of the intention to present such account, as aforesaid, the attorney-general, and also the surety or sureties on the official bond of such receiver, shall be given eight days' notice in writing; and the attorney-general shall examine the books and accounts of such receiver at least once every twelve months.

§ 250. Duty of receivers to give notice to creditors. The receivers immediately upon their appointment, shall give notice thereof which shall be published for three weeks in a newspaper printed in the county where the principal place of conducting the business of such corporation shall have been situated; and therein shall require.

1. All persons indebted to such corporation, by a day and at a place therein to be specified, to render an account of all debts and sums of money owing by them respectively, to such receivers and to pay the same.

2. All persons having in their possession any property or effects of such corporation to deliver the same to the said receivers by the day so appointed.

3. All the creditors of such corporation to deliver their respective accounts and demands to the receivers or one of them, by a day to be therein specified, not less than forty days from the first publication of such notice.

4. All persons holding any open or subsisting contract of such corporation, to present the same in writing and in detail to such receivers, at the time and place in such notice specified.

§ 251. Delivery of property and payment of debts to receiver after notice. After the first publication of the notice of the appointment of receivers, every person having possession of any property belonging to such corporation, and every person indebted to such corporation, shall account and answer for the amount of such debt and for the value of such property to the said receivers.

§ 252. Penalty for concealing property from receiver. Every person indebted to such corporation, or having the possession or custody of any property or thing in action, belonging to it, who shall conceal the same, and not deliver a just and true account of such indebtedness, or not deliver such property or thing in action, to the receivers, or one of them, by the day for that purpose appointed, shall forfeit double the amount of such debt, or double the value of such property so concealed; which penalties may be recovered by the receivers.

§ 253. Duty of receiver to call creditors' meeting. They shall call a general meeting of the creditors of such corporation, within four months from the time of their appointment by a notice to be published in the same manner, as hereinbefore directed respecting the publication of the notice of their appointment; in which notice, they shall specify the place and time of such meeting, which time shall not be more than three months, nor less than two months after the first publication of such notice. Every such notice shall be published at least once in each week, until the time of such meeting.

§ 254. Proceedings at creditors' meeting. At such meeting, or other adjourned meeting thereafter, all accounts and demands for and against such corporation, and all its open and subsisting contracts, shall be ascertained and adjusted as far as may be, and the amount of moneys in the hands of the receivers declared.

§ 255. Deduction of disbursements and commissions by receiver. Out of the moneys in their hands the receivers may first deduct all the necessary disbursements made by them in the discharge of their duty and such commissions as may be allowed by law.

§ 256. Refunding consideration of subsisting contracts. If there shall be any open and subsisting engagements or contracts of such corporation, which are in the nature of insurances or contingent engagements of any kind, the receivers may, with the consent of the party holding such engagement, cancel and discharge the same, by refunding to such party the premium or consideration paid thereon by such corporation, or so much thereof as shall be in the same proportion to the time which shall remain of any risk assumed by such engagement, as the whole premium bore to the whole term of such risk; and upon such amount being paid by such receivers to the person holding or being the legal owner of such engagement, it shall be deemed canceled and discharged as against such receivers.

§ 257. Retention of funds for subsisting contracts and pending suits. The receivers shall retain out of the moneys in their hands, a sufficient amount to pay the sums, which they are hereinbefore authorized to pay, for the purpose of cancelling and discharging any open or subsisting engagements. If any suit be pending against the corporation or against the receivers, for any demand, the receivers may retain the proportion which would belong to such demand if established, and the necessary costs and proceedings, in their hands, to be applied according to the event of such suit, or to be distributed in a second or other dividend.

§ 258. Payment of debts not due. Every person to whom a corporation shall be indebted on a valuable consideration, for any sum of money not due at the time of such distribution, but payable afterwards, shall receive his proportion with other creditors, after deducting a rebate of legal interest upon the sum distributed, for the time unexpired of such credit.

§ 259. Allowance of set-offs. Where mutual credit has been given by any corporation, and any other person, or mutual debts have subsisted between such corporation and any other person, the receivers may set off such credits or debts, and pay the proportion or receive the balance due. But no set-off shall be allowed of any claim or debt, which would not have been entitled to a dividend, as hereinbefore directed.

No set-off shall be allowed by such receivers, of any claim or debt, which shall have been purchased by, or transferred to, the person claiming its allowance, which could not have been set off by him, in a suit brought by such receivers.

§ 260. Penalties recovered by receiver. All penalties which shall be recovered by any receivers, pursuant to the provisions of this article, shall be deemed a part of the property of the corporation, and shall be distributed as such among its creditors.

§ 261. Order of payment by receiver. The receivers shall distribute the residue of the moneys in their hands, among all those who shall have exhibited their claims as creditors, and whose debts shall have been ascertained, as follows:

1. All debts due by such corporation to the United States, and all debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States.

2. All debts that may be owing by the corporation as guardian, executor, administrator or trustee; and if there be not sufficient to pay all debts of the character above specified, then a distribution shall be made among them, in proportion to their amounts respectively.

3. Judgments actually obtained against such corporation, to the extent of the value of the real estate on which they shall respectively be liens.

4. All other creditors of such corporation, in proportion to their respective demands, without giving any preference to debts due on specialties.

§ 262. Failure to file claim before first dividend. Every creditor who shall have neglected to exhibit his demand before the first dividend, and who shall deliver his account to the receivers before the second dividend, shall receive the sum he would have been entitled to on the first dividend, before any distribution be made to the other creditors.

§ 263. Second dividend by receiver. If the whole of the property of such corporation be not distributed on the first dividend, the receiver shall, within one year thereafter, make a second dividend of all the moneys in their hands, among the creditors entitled thereto; of which, and that the same will be a final dividend, three weeks' notice shall be inserted once in each week in a newspaper printed in the county where the principal place of business of such corporation was situated.

Such second dividend shall be made in all respects in the same manner as herein prescribed in relation to the first dividend, and no other shall be made thereafter among the creditors of such corporation, except to the creditors having suits against it, or against the receivers, pending at the time of such second dividend, and except of the moneys which may be retained to pay such creditors, as herein provided.

§ 264. Surplus to stockholders. If after the second dividend is made, there shall remain any surplus in the hands of the receivers, they shall distribute the same among the stockholders of such corporation, in proportion to the respective amounts paid in by them, severally, on their shares of stock.

§ 265. Disposition of moneys retained by receiver for suits. When any suit pending at the time of the second dividend shall be terminated, they shall apply the moneys retained in their hands for that purpose, to the payment of the amount recovered, and their necessary charges and expenses; and if nothing shall have been recovered, they shall distribute such moneys, after deducting their expenses and costs, among the creditors and stockholders of the corporation, in the same manner as herein directed in respect to a second dividend.

§ 266. Duty of receiver as to unclaimed dividend. If any dividend that shall have been declared, shall remain unclaimed by the person entitled thereto for one year after the same was declared, the receivers shall consider it as relinquished, and shall distribute it, on any subsequent dividend, among the other creditors.

§ 267. Effect of failure to file claim before second dividend. After such second dividend shall have been made, the receivers shall not be answerable to any creditor of such corporation, or to any person having claims against such corporation, by virtue of any open or subsisting engagement, unless the demands of such creditor shall have been exhibited, and the engagements upon which such claims are founded, shall have been presented to the said receivers, in detail and in writing, before or at the time specified by them in their notice of a second dividend.

§ 268. Final accounting by receiver. A receiver shall apply within one year after qualifying as such for a final settlement of his accounts and an order for distribution, or shall apply to the court upon notice to the attorney-general for an extension of time, setting forth the reasons why he is unable to close his accounts, which order may be granted in the discretion of the court. The attorney-general or any creditor, or any party interested, may apply for an order that the receiver show cause why an accounting and distribution shall not be had at any time after the expiration of one year after the receiver qualifies; and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general after the expiration of eighteen months from the time the receiver enters upon his duties, in case he has not applied for a final settlement of his accounts, to apply for such an order on notice to such receiver. In case of such application by a party other than the receiver the court shall direct the receiver to take steps to account with all convenient speed. The receiver is not required or authorized to file any account, except as herein provided, except by special order of the court.

§ 269. Notice of final accounting. Previous to rendering such account the receivers shall insert a notice of their intention to present the same, once in each week, for three weeks, in a newspaper, of the county in which notices of dividends are herein required to be inserted, specifying the time and place at which such account will be rendered. Said receivers shall also give notice to the sureties on their official bonds, as provided in section two hundred and twenty-five of this chapter.

§ 270. Hearing on final accounting. Upon the coming in of such report, the court shall hear the allegations of all concerned therein, and shall allow or disallow such account, and decree the same to be final and conclusive upon all the creditors of such corporation, upon all persons who have claims against it, upon any open or subsisting engagement, and upon all the stockholders of such corporation.

§ 271. Reference of final account. The referee to whom such account shall be referred, shall hear and examine the proofs, vouchers and documents offered for or against such account, and shall report thereon fully to the court.

§ 272. Further accounting. Such receivers shall also account from time to time in the same manner, and with the like effect, for all moneys which shall come to their hands after the rendering of such account, and for all moneys which shall have been retained by them for any of the purposes hereinbefore specified, and shall pay into court all unclaimed dividends.

§ 273. Removal of receiver. Such receivers may be removed by the court.

§ 274. Vacancy. Any vacancy created by removal, death or otherwise, may be supplied by the court.

§ 275. Renunciation by receiver. Any receiver who shall be desirous of renouncing the trust vested in him may apply to the court from whom his appointment was received, for an order to all persons interested, to show cause why such renunciation should not be accepted.

Such application shall be accompanied by a full, true and just account of all the transactions of such receiver, and particularly of the property, moneys and effects received by him; of all payments made, whether to creditors or otherwise; and of the remaining effects and property of the corporation, in respect to which he was appointed receiver, within his knowledge, and the situation of the same.

To such account shall be annexed the affidavit of the receiver, that the said account is in all respects just and true, according to the best of his knowledge and belief; which affidavit shall be subscribed and sworn to, before the court, to whom application is made, and shall be certified by the clerk of the court.

Such court shall thereupon grant an order, directing notice to be given to all persons interested in the property of the corporation, in respect to which such receiver was appointed, to show cause on a day or at a term and at a place therein to be specified, why he should not be permitted to renounce his appointment.

Such notice shall be published, once in each week, for six weeks successively in such newspapers, as such court shall direct.

On the day appointed for such hearing, and on such other days as shall from time to time be appointed; if it shall appear that notice was duly published, the court shall proceed to hear the proofs and allegations of the parties.

If it shall appear that the proceedings of such receiver, in relation to his trust, have been fair and honest, and particularly in the collection of the property and debts vested in him; and if such court be satisfied that for any reason it is inexpedient for such receiver to continue in the execution of the duties of his appointment, and that such duties can be executed by another receiver, without injury to the property of the corporation, or to the creditors; and if no good cause to the contrary appear, such court shall grant an order, allowing such receiver to renounce his appointment.

Upon such order being granted, such receiver shall be discharged from the trust reposed in him, and his power and authority shall thereupon cease; but he shall, notwithstanding, remain subject to any liability he may have incurred, at any time previous to the granting of such order, in the management of his trust.

The expense of all proceedings in effecting such renunciation shall be paid by the receiver making the application.

§ 276. Control of receiver by court. The receivers shall be subject to the control of the court and may be compelled to account at any time.

§ 277. Commissions and expenses of receiver in voluntary dissolution. A receiver appointed pursuant to article nine is entitled, in addition to his necessary expenses, to commissions upon the sums received and disbursed by him as the court by which or the judge by whom he is appointed allows, as follows: On the first twenty thousand dollars not exceeding five per centum; on the next eighty thousand dollars, not exceeding two and one-half per centum; and on the remainder, not exceeding one per centum; but in case the commissions of a receiver so computed shall not amount to one hundred dollars, said court or judge may in his or its discretion allow said receiver such a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for his commissions as shall be commensurate with the services rendered by said receiver.

§ 278. Commissions and expenses of receiver except in voluntary dissolution. A receiver of a corporation, except a receiver appointed in proceedings for its voluntary dissolution, is entitled, in addition to his necessary expenses, to such commissions, not exceeding two and one-half per centum upon the sums received and disbursed by him, as the court by which or the judge by whom he is appointed allows, but except upon a final accounting such a receiver shall not receive on account of his services for any one year a greater amount than twelve thousand dollars, nor for any period less than a year more than at that rate. Upon final accounting, the court may make an additional allowance to such receiver, not exceeding two and one-half per centum upon the sums received and disbursed by him, if the court is satisfied that he has performed services that fairly entitle him to such additional allowance. Where more than one receiver shall be appointed, the compensation herein provided shall be divided between said receivers.

§ 300. Application of preceding articles to certain corporations. Articles fifth, sixth or seventh of this chapter do not apply to a religious corporation; or to a municipal or other political corporation, created by the constitution, or by or under the laws of this state; or to any corporation which the regents of the university have power to dissolve, except upon the application of the regents, or of the trustees of such a corporation; and in aid of its liquidation under such dissolution.

§ 301. Officers and agents may be compelled to testify in certain actions. In an action, brought as prescribed in article fifth, sixth or seventh, a stockholder, officer, alienee, or agent of a corporation, is not excused from answering a question, relating to the management of the corporation, or the transfer or disposition of its property, on the ground that his answer may expose the corporation to a forfeiture of any of its corporate rights, or will tend to convict him of a criminal offense, or to subject him to a penalty or forfeiture. But his testimony shall not be used, as evidence against him, in a criminal action or special proceeding.

§ 302. Injunction staying actions by creditors in certain actions. In such an action, the court may, in its discretion, on the application of either party, at any stage of the action, before or after final judgment, and with or without security, grant an injunction order, restraining the creditors of the corporation from bringing actions against the defendants, or any of them, for the recovery of a sum of money, or from taking any further proceedings in such actions, theretofore commenced. Such an injunction has the same effect, and, except as otherwise expressly prescribed in this section, is subject to the same provisions of law, as if each creditor, upon whom it is served, was named therein, and was a party to the action in which it is granted.

§ 303. Creditors of corporation may be brought in to prove their claims in certain actions. In such an action, the court may, at any stage of the action, before or after final judgment, make an order requiring all the creditors of the corporation to exhibit and prove their claims, and thereby make themselves parties to the action, in such a manner, and in such a reasonable time, not less than six months from the first publication of notice of the order as the court directs; and that the creditors, who make default in so doing, shall be precluded from all benefit of the judgment, and from any distribution which may be made thereunder, except as hereinafter provided. Notice of the order must be given by publication, in such newspapers, and for such a length of time, as the court directs. Notwithstanding such order any such creditor who shall exhibit and prove his claim in the manner directed thereby, with proof, by affidavit or otherwise, that he has had no notice or knowledge thereof in time to comply therewith, any time before an order is made directing a final distribution of the assets of such corporation, shall be entitled to have his claim received, and shall have the same rights and benefits thereon, so far as the assets of such corporation then remaining undistributed may render possible, as if his claim had been exhibited and proved within the time limited by such order.

§ 304. When attorney-general must bring certain actions. Where the attorney-general has good reason to believe, that an action can be maintained in behalf of the people of the state, as prescribed in articles fifth, sixth or seventh of the chapter, except section one hundred and thirty of this chapter, he must bring an action accordingly, or apply to a competent court for leave to bring an action, as the case requires; if, in his opinion, the public interests require that an action should be brought. In a case where the action can be brought only by the attorney-general in behalf of the people, if a creditor, stockholder, director, or trustee of the corporation, applies to the attorney-general for that purpose, and furnishes the security required by law, the attorney-general must bring the action, or apply for leave to bring it, if he has good reason to believe, that it can be maintained. Where such an application is made section nineteen hundred and eighty-six of the code of civil procedure applies thereto, and to the action brought in pursuance thereof.

§ 305. Requisites of injunction against corporations in certain cases. An injunction order, suspending the general and ordinary business of a corporation, or suspending from office, or restraining from the performance of his duties, a trustee, director, or other officer thereof, can be granted only by the court, upon notice of the application therefor, to the proper officer of the corporation, or to the trustee, director, or other officer enjoined. If such an injunction order is made, otherwise than as prescribed in this section, it is void.

§ 306. Appointment of receivers of property of corporations. A receiver of the property of a corporation can be appointed only by the court, and in one of the following cases:

1. An action, brought as prescribed in articles fifth, sixth or seventh of this chapter.

2. An action brought for the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the property, of which the receiver is appointed, where the mortgage debt, or the interest thereupon, has remained unpaid, at least thirty days after it was payable, and after payment thereof was duly demanded of the proper officer of the corporation and where either the income of the property is specifically mortgaged, or the property itself is probably insufficient to pay the mortgage debt.

3. An action brought by the attorney-general, or by a stockholder, to preserve the assets of a corporation, having no officer empowered to hold the same.

4. A special proceeding for the voluntary dissolution of a corporation.

5. Upon the application of the regents of the university, in aid of the liquidation of a corporation whose dissolution they contemplate or have decreed; or upon the application of the trustees of such a corporation, with notice to the regents.

Where the receiver is appointed in an action, otherwise than by or pursuant to a final judgment, notice of the application for his appointment must be given to the proper officer of the corporation.

§ 307. Judicial suspension or removal of officer of corporation. A trustee, director, or other officer of a corporation shall not be suspended or removed from office, by a court or judge, otherwise than by the final judgment of a competent court, in an action brought by the attorney-general, as prescribed in section ninety of this chapter.

§ 308. Application of the last three sections. The last three sections apply to an action or special proceeding, against a corporation created by or under the laws of the state, or a trustee, director, or other officer thereof; or against a corporation created by or under the laws of another state, government, or country, or a trustee, director, or other officer thereof, where the corporation does business within the state, or has, within the state, a business agency or a fiscal agency, or an agency for the transfer of its stock.

§ 309. Misnomer not available in action against stockholder. Where an action, authorized by a law of the state, is brought against one or more persons, as stockholders of a corporation, an objection to any of the proceedings cannot be taken, by a person properly made a defendant in the action on the ground that the plaintiff has joined with him, as a defendant in the action, a person, whose name appears on the stock-books of the corporation, as a stockholder thereof, by the name so appearing; but who is misnamed, or dead, or is not liable for any cause. In such a case, the court may, at any time before final judgment, upon motion of either party, amend the pleadings and other papers, without prejudice to the previous proceedings, by substituting the true name of the person intended, or by striking out the name of the person who is dead, or not liable, and, in a proper case, inserting the name of his representative or successor.

§ 310. Appraisal of property of insolvent corporation. Whenever by reason of the provisions of any law of this state it shall become necessary to appraise in whole or in part the property of any corporation in the hands of a receiver or otherwise, the persons whose duty it shall be to make such appraisal shall value the real estate at its full and true value, taking into consideration actual sales of neighboring real estate similarly situated during the year immediately preceding the date of such appraisal, if any; and they shall value all such property, stocks, bonds or securities as are customarily bought or sold in open markets in the city of New York or elsewhere, for the day on which such appraisal or report may be required, by ascertaining the range of the market and the average of prices as thus found, running through a reasonable period of time.

§ 311. Application by attorney-general for removal of receiver and to facilitate closing affairs of receivership. The attorney-general may, at any time he deems that the interests of the stockholders, creditors, policy-holders, depositors or other beneficiaries interested in the proper and speedy distribution of the assets of any insolvent corporation will be subserved thereby, make a motion in the supreme court at a special term thereof, in any judicial district:

1. For an order removing the receiver of any insolvent corporation and appointing a receiver thereof in his stead, or,

2. To compel him to account, or,

3. For such other and additional order or orders as to him may seem proper to facilitate the closing up of the affairs of such receivership, and

Any appeal from any order made upon any motion under this section shall be to the appellate division of the department in which such motion is made.

§ 312. Service of papers upon attorney-general. A copy of all motions and all motion papers, and a copy of any other application to the court, together with a copy of the order or judgment to be proposed thereon to the court, in every action or proceeding for the dissolution of a corporation or a distribution of its assets, shall, in all cases, be served on the attorney-general, in the same manner as provided by law for the service of papers on attorneys who have appeared in actions, whether the applications but for this section would be ex parte or upon notice, and no order or judgment granted shall vary in any material respect from the relief specified in such copy, order or judgment, unless the attorney-general shall appear on the return day and shall have been heard in relation thereto; and any order or judgment granted in any action or proceeding aforesaid, without such service of such papers upon the attorney-general, shall be void, and no receiver of any such corporation shall pay to any person any money directed to be paid by any order or judgment made in any such action or proceeding, until the expiration of eight days after a certified copy of such order or judgment shall have been served as aforesaid upon the attorney-general.

§ 313. Designation of depositories of funds in order appointing receiver. All orders appointing receivers of corporations shall designate therein one or more places of deposit, wherein all funds of the corporation not needed for immediate disbursement shall be deposited and no deposits or investments of such trust funds shall be made elsewhere, except upon the order of the court upon due notice given to the attorney-general.

§ 314. Application to the court in certain actions and proceedings. All applications to the court shall be made in the judicial district where the principal office of the corporation against which proceedings are taken is located, excepting such applications as are made in actions brought by the attorney-general on behalf of the people of the state, and all such applications shall be made in the judicial district in which the action is triable.

§ 315. County wherein action may be brought by attorney-general on behalf of the people. An action or proceeding brought by the attorney-general on behalf of the people of the state against any corporation for the purpose of procuring its dissolution, the appointment of a receiver, or the sequestration of its property, may be brought in any county of the state, to be designated by the attorney-general.

§ 316. Preferences in actions or proceedings by or against receivers. All actions or other legal proceedings and appeals therefrom or therein brought by or against a receiver of any of the insolvent corporations referred to in this chapter, shall have a preference upon the calendars of all courts next in order to actions or proceedings brought by the people of the state of New York.

§ 320. Alteration and repeal of charter. The charter of every corporation shall be subject to alteration, suspension and repeal, in the discretion of the legislature.

§ 321. Conflicting corporate laws. If in any corporate law there is or shall be any provision in conflict with any provisions of this chapter or of the stock corporation law, the provisions so conflicting shall prevail, and the provision of this chapter or of the stock corporation law with which it conflicts shall not apply in such a case. If in any such law there is or shall be a provision relating to a matter embraced in this chapter or in the stock corporation law, but not in conflict with it, such provision in such other law shall be deemed to be in addition to the provision in this chapter or in the stock corporation law relating to the same subject-matter, and both provisions shall in such case, be applicable.

§ 331. Construction. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to impair any right or liability which any existing corporation, its officers, directors, stockholders or creditors may have or be subject to or which any such corporation, other than a railroad corporation, had or was subject to on the date when this chapter takes effect, by virtue of any special act of the legislature creating such corporation or creating or defining any such right or liability, unless such special act is repealed by this chapter or the other general laws hereinbefore mentioned.

2. Prohibited employment. Whenever the provisions of this chapter prohibit the employment of a person in certain work or under certain conditions, the employer shall not permit, suffer or allow such person to so work, either with or without compensation, and in a prosecution or action therefor lack of consent on the part of the employer shall be no defense.

§ 9. Payment of wages by receivers. Upon the appointment of a receiver of a partnership or of a corporation organized under the laws of this state and doing business therein, other than a moneyed corporation, the wages of the employees of such partnership or corporation shall be preferred to every other debt or claim.

PENAL LAW.

§ 280. Corporations and voluntary associations not to practice law. It shall be unlawful for any corporation or voluntary association to practice or appear as an attorney-at-law for any person other than itself in any court in this state or before any judicial body, or to make it a business to practice as an attorney-at-law, for any person other than itself, in any of said courts or to hold itself out to the public as being entitled to practice law, or render or furnish legal services or advice, or to furnish attorneys or counsel or to render legal services of any kind in actions or proceedings of any nature or in any other way or manner, or in any other manner to assume to be entitled to practice law or to assume, use or advertise the title of lawyer or attorney, attorney-at-law, or equivalent terms in any language in such manner as to convey the impression that it is entitled to practice law, or to furnish legal advice, services or counsel, or to advertise that either alone or together with or by or through any person whether a duly and regularly admitted attorney-at-law, or not, it has, owns, conducts or maintains a law office or an office for the practice of law, or for furnishing legal advice, services or counsel. It shall be unlawful further for any corporation or voluntary association to solicit itself or by or through its officers, agents or employees any claim or demand for the purpose of bringing an action thereon or of representing as attorney-at-law, or for furnishing legal advice, services or counsel to a person sued or about to be sued in any action or proceeding or against whom an action or proceeding has been or is about to be brought, or who may be affected by any action or proceeding which has been or may be instituted in any court or before any judicial body, or for the purpose of so representing any person in the pursuit of any civil remedy. Any corporation or voluntary association violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine of not more than five thousand dollars and every officer, trustee, director, agent or employee of such corporation or voluntary association who directly or indirectly engages in any of the acts herein prohibited or assists such corporation or voluntary association to do such prohibited acts is guilty of a misdemeanor. The fact that such officer, trustee, director, agent or employee shall be a duly and regularly admitted attorney-at-law, shall not be held to permit or allow any such corporation or voluntary association to do the acts prohibited herein nor shall such fact be a defense upon the trial of any of the persons mentioned herein for a violation of the provisions of this section. This section shall not apply to any corporation or voluntary association lawfully engaged in a business authorized by the provisions of any existing statute, nor to a corporation or voluntary association lawfully engaged in the examination and insuring of titles to real property, nor shall it prohibit a corporation or voluntary association from employing an attorney or attorneys in and about its own immediate affairs or in any litigation to which it is or may be a party, nor shall it apply to organizations organized for benevolent or charitable purposes, or for the purpose of assisting persons without means in the pursuit of any civil remedy, which existence, organization or incorporation may be approved by the appellate division of the supreme court of the department in which the principal office of said corporation or voluntary association may be located.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent a corporation from furnishing to any person, lawfully engaged in the practice of the law, such information or such clerical services in and about his professional work as, except for the provisions of this section, may be lawful, provided that at all times the lawyer receiving such information or such services shall maintain full professional and direct responsibility to his clients for the information and services so received. But no corporation shall be permitted to render any services which cannot lawfully be rendered by a person not admitted to practice law in this state nor to solicit directly or indirectly professional employment for a lawyer.

§ 660. Frauds in the organization of corporations. A person who:

1. Without authority subscribes the name of another to or inserts the name of another in any prospectus, circular or other advertisement or announcement of any corporation or joint-stock association existing or intended to be formed, with intent to permit the same to be published, and thereby to lead persons to believe that the person whose name is so subscribed is an officer, agent, member or promoter of such corporation or association; or,
2. Signs the name of a fictitious person to any subscription for or agreement to take stock in any corporation, existing or proposed; or,

Is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for not less than six months, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both.

§ 665. Misconduct of directors, officers, agents and employees of corporations. A director, officer, agent or employee of any corporation or joint-stock association who:

6. Refuses or neglects to make any report or statement lawfully required by a public officer,

Is guilty of a misdemeanor.

§ 667. Presumption of knowledge of corporate condition and business and of assent thereto by directors; definitions. It is no defense to a prosecution for a violation of the provisions of this article and article twenty-six, that the corporation is a foreign corporation, if it carries on business or keeps an office therefor in this state.

The term "director" as used in this article and article twenty-six includes any of the persons having, by law, the direction or management of the affairs of a corporation, by whatever name described.

A director of a corporation or joint-stock association is deemed to have such a knowledge of the affairs of the corporation or association as to enable him to determine whether any act, proceeding or omission of its directors is a violation of this article and article twenty-six. If present at a meeting of the directors at which any act, proceeding or omission of such directors in violation of this article and article twenty-six occurs, he must be deemed to have concurred therein, unless he at the time causes or in writing requires his dissent therefrom to be entered on the minutes of the directors. If absent from such meeting, he must be deemed to have concurred in any such violation, if the facts constituting such violation appear on the record or minutes of the proceedings of the board of directors, and he remains a director of the corporation for six months thereafter without causing or in writing requiring his dissent from such violation to be entered on such record of minutes.

§ 668. Misconduct at corporate elections. Any person who:

2. Acts as an inspector of election of any such meeting and violates an oath taken by him in pursuance of law as such inspector, or violates the provisions of an oath required by law to be taken by him as such inspector, or is guilty of any dishonest or corrupt conduct as such inspector, § 890. Officer of corporation selling fraudulent shares. An officer, agent or other person employed by any company or corporation existing under the laws of this state, or of any other state or territory of the United States, or of any foreign government, who wilfully and with a design to defraud, sells, pledges or issues, or causes to be sold, pledged or issued, or signs or procures to be signed with intent to sell, pledge or issue, or to be sold, pledged or issued, a false, forged or fraudulent paper, writing or instrument, being or purporting to be a script, certificate or other evidence of the ownership or transfer of any share or share of the capital stock of such company or corporation, or a bond or other evidence of debt of such company or corporation, or a certificate or other evidence of the ownership or of the transfer of any such bond or other evidence of debt, is guilty of forgery in the third degree, and upon conviction, in addition to the punishment prescribed in section eight hundred and ninety-three of this chapter for that offense, may also be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding three thousand dollars.

STOCK CORPORATION LAW.

§ 1. Short title. This chapter shall be known as the "Stock Corporation law."

§ 5. Application of article. This article except sections eight, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen and eighteen thereof, shall not apply to moneyed corporations.

§ 6. Power to borrow money and mortgage property. In addition to the powers conferred by the general corporation law, every stock corporation shall have the power to borrow money and contract debts, when necessary for the transaction of its business, or for the exercise of its corporate rights, privileges or franchises or for any other lawful purpose of its incorporation; and it may issue and dispose of its obligations for any amount so borrowed, and may mortgage its property and franchises to secure the payment of such obligations, or of any debt contracted for said purposes. Every such mortgage, except purchase-money mortgages and mortgages authorized by contracts made prior to May first eighteen hundred and ninety-one, shall be consented to by the holders of not less than two-thirds of the capital stock of the corporation, which consent shall be given either in writing or by vote at a special meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, upon the same notice as that required for the annual meetings of the corporation; and a certificate under the seal of the corporation that such consent was given by the stockholders in writing, or that it was given by vote at a meeting as aforesaid, shall be subscribed and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and by the secretary or an assistant secretary, of the corporation, and shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk or register of the county wherein the corporation has its principal place of business. When authorized by like consent, the directors under such regulations as they may adopt, may confer on the holder of any debt or obligation, whether secured or unsecured, evidenced by bonds of the corporation, the right to convert the principal thereof, after two and not more than twelve years from the date of such bonds, into stock of the corporation; and if the capital stock shall not be sufficient to meet the conversion when made, the directors shall from time to time, authorize an increase of capital stock sufficient for that purpose by causing to be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and a duplicate thereof in the office of the clerk of the county where the principal place of business of the corporation shall be located, a certificate under the seal of the corporation, subscribed and acknowledged by the president and secretary of the corporation setting forth,

1. A copy of such mortgage; or resolution of directors authorizing the issue of such bonds;

2. That the holders of not less than two-thirds of the capital stock of the corporation duly consented to the execution of such mortgage or resolution of directors authorizing the issue of such bonds by such corporation;

3. A copy of the resolution of the directors of the corporation authorizing the increase of the capital stock of the corporation necessary for the purpose of such conversion;

4. The amount of capital theretofore authorized, the proportion thereof actually issued and the amount of the increased capital stock.

If the corporation be a railroad corporation the certificate shall have indorsed thereon the approval of the public service commission having jurisdiction thereof. When the certificate herein provided for has been filed, the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased to the amount specified in such certificate.

§ 7. Validating corporate mortgages. Whenever any mortgage affecting property or franchises within this state heretofore or hereafter executed by authority of the board of directors in behalf of any stock corporation, domestic or foreign, of any description, recites or represents in substance or effect that the execution of such mortgage has been duly consented to, or authorized by stockholders, such recital or representation in any such mortgage, after public record thereof within this state, shall be presumptive evidence that the execution of such mortgage has been duly and sufficiently consented to, and authorized by stockholders as required by any provision of law. After any such mortgage heretofore or hereafter shall have been publicly recorded for more than one year in one or more of the counties of this state containing the mortgaged premises or any part thereof, and the corporation shall have received value for bonds actually issued under and secured by such mortgage, and interest shall have been paid on any of such bonds according to the terms thereof, such recital or representation of such mortgage so recorded shall be conclusive evidence that the execution of such mortgage has been duly and sufficiently consented to, and authorized by stockholders as required by any provision of law, and its validity shall not be impaired by reason of any defect or insufficiency of consent or authority of stockholders or in filing or recording such consent or authority, and such mortgage shall be valid and binding upon the corporation, and those claiming under it, as security for all valid bonds issued or to be issued thereunder, unless such mortgage shall be adjudged invalid in an action begun as hereinafter, in this section, provided. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, the invalidity of any such mortgage heretofore recorded because of insufficiency of consent by stockholders may be adjudged in any action for such purpose begun before the first day of April, nineteen hundred and two, and the invalidity of any such mortgage hereafter recorded, because of insufficiency of consent by stockholders, may be adjudged in any action for such purpose begun, within one year after the earliest record of such mortgage in any county in this state, provided in either case that such action shall have been so begun by or in behalf of the corporation by direction of the board of directors acting in their own discretion, or upon the written request of the holders of not less than one-third of the capital stock of the corporation; and in any such action so begun by or in behalf of the corporation, the recitals or representations of the mortgage shall be presumptive evidence only as first above provided. Whenever hereafter, in compliance with any law of this state, the officers of any corporation shall have made and filed and recorded a certificate that the execution of a mortgage hereafter made by the corporation has been duly consented to by stockholders, such certificate shall be conclusive evidence as to the truth thereof, in favor of any and all persons who in good faith shall receive or purchase, for value, any bond or obligation purporting to be secured by such mortgage, at any time when said certificate shall remain of record and uncanceled. Nothing in this section contained shall affect any right or any remedy in respect of any such right of any creditor accrued before this enactment nor shall it dispense with the necessity of obtaining the consent of the public service commission having jurisdiction thereof to any mortgage by a railroad corporation.

§ 8. Power to guarantee bonds of other corporations. Any stock corporation may, in pursuance of a unanimous vote of its stockholders voting at a special meeting called for that purpose by notice in writing signed by a majority of the directors of such corporation stating the time and place and object of the meeting and served upon each stockholder appearing as such upon the books of the corporation, personally or by mail at his last-known post-office address at least sixty days prior to such meeting, guarantee the bonds of any other domestic corporation engaged in the same general line of business; and any stock corporation owning the entire capital stock of any other domestic stock corporation engaged in the same general line of business may in pursuance of a two-thirds vote of its stockholders voting at a special meeting called for that purpose by notice in writing signed by a majority of the directors of such corporation, stating the time and place and object of the meeting and served upon each stockholder appearing as such upon the books of the corporation personally, or by mail, at his last-known post-office address, at least sixty days prior to such meeting, guarantee the bonds of such other corporation.

§ 9. Reorganization upon sale of corporate property and franchises. When the property and franchises of any domestic stock corporation shall be sold by virtue of a mortgage or deed of trust, duly executed by it, or pursuant to the judgment or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction, or by virtue of any execution issued thereon, and the purchaser, his assignee or grantee shall have acquired title to the same in the manner prescribed by law, he may associate with him any number of persons, not less than the number required by law for an incorporation for similar purposes at least two-thirds of whom shall be citizens of the United States and one shall be a resident of this state, and they may become a corporation and take and possess the property and franchises thus sold, and which were at the time of the sale possessed by the corporation whose property shall have been so sold, upon making and acknowledging and filing in the offices where certificates of incorporation are required by law to be filed, a certificate in which they shall describe by name and reference to the law under which it was organized, the corporation whose property and franchises they have acquired, and the court by whose authority the sale had been made, with the date of the judgment or decree authorizing or directing the same, and a brief description of the property sold, and also the following particulars:

1. The name of the new corporation intended to be formed by the filing of such certificate; and the place where its principal office is to be located.

2. The maximum amount of its capital stock and the number of shares into which it is to be divided, specifying the classes thereof, whether common or preferred, and the amount of and rights pertaining to each class.

3. The number of directors, not less nor more than the number required by law for the old corporation, who shall manage the affairs of the new corporation, and the names and post-office addresses of the directors for the first year. They may insert in such certificate any provisions relating to the new corporation, or its management, contained in any plan or agreement which may have been entered into as provided in section ten of this chapter. Such corporation shall be vested with, and be entitled to exercise and enjoy, all the rights, privileges and franchises, which at the time of such sale belonged to, or were vested in the corporation last owning the property sold, or its receiver, and shall be subject to all the provisions, duties and liabilities imposed by law on that corporation. Any proceedings heretofore taken in substantial compliance with this section as hereby amended, and any and all incorporations based thereon are hereby ratified and confirmed.

§ 10. Contents of plan or agreement. At or previous to the sale the purchasers thereat, or the persons for whom the purchase is to be made, may enter into a plan or agreement, for or in anticipation of the readjustment of the respective interests therein of any creditors, mortgagees, stockholders, or any of them, of the corporation owning such property and franchises at the time of the sale, and of holders of claims for materials, supplies and equipment furnished, and for injuries and damages sustained, in and about the operation, maintenance or construction of any or all the property formerly owned or leased to said corporation, and for the representation of such interests in the bonds or stock of the new corporation to be formed, and may therein regulate, voting by the holders of the preferred and common stock at any meeting of the stockholders, and may provide for, and regulate voting by the holders, and owners of any or all the bonds of the corporation, foreclosed, or of the bonds issued or to be issued by the new corporation; and such right of voting by bondholders shall be exercised in such manner, for such period, and upon such conditions, as shall be therein described. Such plan or agreement must not be inconsistent with the laws of the state and shall be binding upon the corporation, until changed as herein provided, or as otherwise provided by law. The new corporation when duly organized, pursuant to such plan or agreement and to the provisions of law, may issue its bonds and stock in conformity with the provisions of such plan or agreement, and may at any time within six months after its organization, compromise, settle or assume the payment of any debt, claim or liability of the former corporation or any claims for materials, supplies and equipment furnished, or any claims for injuries and damages sustained, in and about the operation, maintenance or construction of any or all the property formerly owned or leased to said corporation, upon such terms as may be lawfully approved by a majority of the agents or trustees intrusted with the carrying out of the plan or agreement or reorganization, and may establish preferences in favor of any portion of its capital stock and may divide its stock into classes; but the capital stock of the new corporation shall not exceed in the aggregate the maximum amount of stock mentioned in the certificate of incorporation.

§ 11. Sale of property; possession of receiver and suits against him. The supreme court may direct a sale of the whole of the property, rights and franchises covered by the mortgage or mortgages, or deeds of trust foreclosed at any one time and place to be named in the judgment or order, either in case of the non-payment of interest only, or of both the principal and interest due and unpaid and secured by any such mortgage or mortgages or deeds of trust. Neither the sale nor the formation of the new corporation shall interfere with the authority or possession of any receiver of such property and franchises, but he shall remain liable to be removed or discharged at such time as the court may deem proper. No suit or proceeding shall be commenced against such receiver unless founded on wilful misconduct or fraud in his trust after the expiration of sixty days from the time of his discharge; but after the expiration of sixty days the new corporation shall be liable in any action that may be commenced against it, and founded on any act or omission of such receiver for which he may not be sued, and to the same extent as the receiver, but for this section would be or remain liable, or to the same extent that the new corporation would be had it done or omitted the acts complained of.

§ 12. Municipalities may assent to plan of readjustment. The commissioners, corporate authorities or proper officers of any city, town or village, who may hold stock in any corporation, the property and franchises whereof shall be liable to be sold, may assent to any plan or agreement of reorganization which lawfully provides for the formation of a new corporation, and the issue of stock therein to the proper authorities or officers of such cities, towns or villages in exchange for the stock of the old or former corporation by them respectively held. And such commissioners, corporate authorities or other proper officers may assign, transfer or surrender the stock so held by them in the manner required by such plan, and accept in lieu thereof the stock issued by such new corporation in conformity therewith.

§ 13. Change of place of business. Any stock corporation now existing or hereafter organized under the laws of this state, except moneyed corporations, may at any time change its principal office and place of business from the city, town or county named in its certificate of incorporation, or to which it may have been changed under the provisions of this section, to any other city, town or county in this state, in which it may desire to actually transact and carry on its regular business from day to day, provided that such change has been authorized, either by unanimous consent of the stockholders expressed in writing and duly acknowledged and filed in the office of the secretary of state, by a vote of the stockholders of said corporation at a special meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose, or such change has been effected by an act of legislature creating a separate and distinct county wholly within the limits and boundaries of a then existing county or counties. When such change shall be authorized by the stockholders or effected by the creation of a new county wholly within the limits and boundaries of the then existing county or counties as herein provided, the president and secretary and a majority of the directors of such corporation shall sign a certificate stating the name of said corporation, the city, town and county where its principal office and place of business was originally located, and to which it may have been subsequently changed, and the city, town and county to which it is desired to change its said principal office and place of business, and that it is the purpose of said corporation to actually transact and carry on its regular business from day to day at such place, and that such change has been authorized as herein provided, and the names of the directors of said corporation and their respective places of residence, which certificate shall be verified by the oaths of all the persons signing the same, and when so signed and verified, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state and a duplicate thereof in the office of the clerk of the county from which said principal office and place of business is about to be removed or changed, and another in the office of the clerk of the county to which said removal or change is to be made, and thereupon the principal office and place of business of such corporation shall be changed as stated in said certificate.

§ 14. Combinations prohibited. No domestic stock corporation and no foreign corporation doing business in this state shall combine with any other corporation or person for the creation of a monopoly or the unlawful restraint of trade or for the prevention of competition in any necessary of life.

§ 15. Merger. Any domestic stock corporation and any foreign stock corporation authorized to do business in this state lawfully owning all the stock of any other stock corporation organized for, or engaged in business similar or incidental to that of the possessor corporation may file in the office of the secretary of state, under its common seal, a certificate of such ownership, and of the resolution of its board of directors to merge such other corporation, and thereupon it shall acquire and become, and be possessed of all the estate, property, rights, privileges and franchises of such other corporation, and they shall vest in and be held and enjoyed by it as fully and entirely and without change or diminution as the same were before held and enjoyed by such other corporation, and be managed and controlled by the board of directors of such possessor corporation, and in its name, but without prejudice to any liabilities of such other corporation or the rights of any creditors thereof. Any bridge corporation may be merged under this section with any railroad corporation which shall have acquired the right by contract to run its cars over the bridge of such bridge corporation.

§ 16. Voluntary sale of franchise and property. A stock corporation, except a railroad corporation and except as otherwise provided by law, with the consent of two-thirds of its stock, may sell and convey its property, rights, privileges and franchises, or any interest therein or any part thereof to a domestic corporation, engaged in a business of the same general character, or which might be included in the certificate of incorporation of a corporation organizing under any general law of this state for a business of the same general character, and a domestic corporation the principal business of which is carried on in, and the principal tangible property of which is located within a state adjoining the state of New York, may with the consent of the holders of ninety-five per centum of its capital stock, sell and convey its property situate without the state of New York, not including its franchises, to a corporation organized under the laws of such adjoining state, and such sale and conveyance shall, in case of a sale to a domestic corporation, vest the rights, property and franchises thereby transferred, and in case of a sale to a foreign corporation the property sold, in the corporation to which they are conveyed for the term of its corporate existence, subject to the provisions and restrictions applicable to the corporation conveying them. Before such sale or conveyance shall be made such consent shall be obtained at a meeting of the stockholders called upon like notice as that required for an annual meeting.

§ 17. Rights of non-consenting stockholders on voluntary sale of franchise and property. If any stockholder not voting in favor of such proposed sale or conveyance shall at such meeting, or within twenty days thereafter, object to such sale, and demand payment for his stock, he may, within sixty days after such meeting, apply to the supreme court at any special term thereof held in the district in which the principal place of business of such corporation is situated, upon eight days' notice to the corporation, for the appointment of three persons to appraise the value of such stock, and the court shall appoint three such appraisers, and designate the time and place of their proceedings as shall be deemed proper, and also direct the manner in which payment for such stock shall be made to such stockholders. The court may fill any vacancy in the board of appraisers occurring by refusal or neglect to serve or otherwise. The appraisers shall meet at the time and place designated, and they or any two of them, after being duly sworn honestly and faithfully to discharge their duties, shall estimate and certify the value of such stock at the time of such dissent, and deliver one copy to such corporation, and another to such stockholder, if demanded; the charges and expenses of the appraisers shall be paid by the corporation. When the corporation shall have paid the amount of such appraisal, as directed by the court, such stockholders shall cease to have any interest in such stock and in the corporate property of such corporation and such stock may be held or disposed of by such corporation.

§ 18. Alterations or extension of business. Any stock corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under any general or special law of this state may alter its certificate of incorporation so as to include therein any purposes, powers or provisions which at the time of such alteration may apply to corporations engaged in a business of the same general character, or which might be included in the certificate of incorporation of a corporation organized under any general law of this state for a business of the same general character, by filing in the manner provided for the original certificate of incorporation an amended certificate, executed by the president and secretary, stating the alteration proposed, and that the same has been duly authorized by a vote of a majority of the directors and also by vote of stockholders representing at least three-fifths of the capital stock, at a meeting of the stockholders called for the purpose in the manner provided in section sixty-three of this chapter, and a copy of the proceedings of such meeting, verified by the affidavit of one of the directors present thereat, shall be filed with such amended certificate.

§ 19. Issuance of shares of stock without nominal or par value. Upon the formation or the reorganization of any stock corporation, other than a moneyed corporation, and other than a corporation under the jurisdiction of any public service commission, the certificate of incorporation may provide for the issuance of the shares of stock of such corporation, other than preferred stock having a preference as to principal, without any nominal or par value, by stating in such certificate:

(1) The number of shares that may be issued by the corporation, and if any of such shares be preferred stock, the preferences thereof. If such preferred stock or any part thereof shall have a preference as to principal, the certificate shall state the amount of such preferred stock having such preference, the particular character of such preferences, and the amount of each share thereof, which shall be five dollars or some multiple of five dollars, but not more than one hundred dollars.

(2) The amount of capital with which the corporation will carry on business, which amount shall be not less than the amount of preferred stock (if any) authorized to be issued with a preference as to principal, and in addition thereto a sum equivalent to five dollars or to some multiple of five dollars for every share authorized to be issued other than such preferred stock; but in no event shall the amount of such capital be less than five hundred dollars.

Such statements in the certificates shall be in lieu of any statements prescribed by the law under which the corporation shall have been formed or reorganized as to the amount or the maximum amount of its capital stock or the number of shares into which the same shall be divided, or of the amount or the par value of such shares.

Each share of such stock without nominal or par value shall be equal to every other share of such stock, subject to the preferences given to the preferred stock if any authorized to be issued. Every certificate for such shares without nominal or par value shall have plainly written or printed upon its face the number of such shares which it represents and the number of such shares which the corporation is authorized to issue, and no such certificate shall express any nominal or par value of such shares. The certificates for preferred shares having a preference as to principal shall state briefly the amount which the holders of each of such preferred shares shall be entitled to receive on account of principal from the surplus assets of the corporation in preference to the holders of other shares, and shall state briefly any other rights or preferences given to the holders of such shares.

Such corporation may issue and may sell its authorized shares, from time to time, for such consideration as may be prescribed in the certificate of incorporation, or for such consideration as shall be the fair market value of such shares, and, in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the board of directors as to such value shall be conclusive; or for such consideration as shall be consented to by the holders of two-thirds of each class of shares then outstanding at a meeting called for that purpose in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-law. Any and all shares issued as permitted by the section shall be deemed fully paid and non-assessable and the holder of such shares shall not be liable to the corporation or to its creditors in respect thereof.

§ 20. Commencement of business; authorized debts. No corporation formed pursuant to section nineteen hereof shall begin to carry on business or shall incur any debts until the amount of capital stated in its certificate of incorporation shall have been fully paid in money, or in property taken at its actual value. In case the amount of capital stated in its certificate of incorporation shall be increased as herein provided, such corporation shall not increase the amount of its indebtedness then existing until it shall have received in money or property the amount of such increase of its stated capital. The directors of the corporation assenting to the creation of any debt in violation of this section shall be liable jointly and severally for such debt; but no action shall be brought under the foregoing provision of this section unless within one year after the debt shall have been incurred the creditor shall have served upon the director written notice of intention to hold him personally liable for such debt. Any director who, because of any such liability under this section, shall pay any debt of the corporation, shall be subrogated to all rights of the creditor in respect thereof against the corporation and its property and also shall be entitled to contribution from all other directors of the corporation similarly liable for the same debt and the personal representative of any such director who shall have died before making such contribution.

No such corporation shall declare any dividend which shall reduce the amount of its capital below the amount stated in the certificate as the amount of capital with which the corporation will carry on business. In case any such dividend shall be declared, the directors in whose administration the same shall have been declared, except those who may have caused their dissent therefrom to be entered upon the minutes of such directors at the time or who were not present when such action was taken, shall be liable jointly and severally to such corporation and to the creditors thereof to the full amount of any loss sustained by such corporation or by its creditors respectively by reason of such dividend.

§ 21. Taxation. The organization tax payable under section one hundred and eighty of the tax law by any corporation issuing such shares without designated monetary value shall be at the rate of five cents on each such share which the corporation is authorized to issue, and a like tax upon any subsequent increase thereof. The tax payable under section two hundred and seventy of the tax law in respect of any sale or agreement of sale or any memorandum of sale or delivery or transfers of shares or certificates of any share without designated monetary value hereafter issued by any such corporation issuing such shares shall be at the rate of two cents for each and every share of such stock so transferred. The franchise tax upon any corporation issuing such shares of stock payable under section one hundred and eighty-two of the tax law shall be determined by taking as a base such portion of the net assets of the corporation as its gross assets employed in any business within this state bear to its entire gross assets wherever employed in business, and the rate of such franchise tax shall be fixed in the manner provided in said section one hundred and eighty-two of the tax law. For this purpose the rate of dividends shall be computed by dividing the total amount of dividends which has been paid during the year by the amount of the net assets of the corporation upon the first day of such year.

§ 22. Increase or reduction of shares or capital. Any corporation formed or reorganized pursuant to section nineteen may amend its certificate of incorporation so as to increase or to reduce the number of shares which it may issue, or so as to increase or to reduce the amount of its stated capital, by filing, in the manner provided for the original certificate of incorporation, a certificate of amendment under seal executed by its president or a vice-president and by its secretary or its treasurer, stating the amendment proposed and that the same has been duly authorized by a vote of a majority of the directors and also by the vote of the holders of at least three-fifths of the outstanding shares of each class issued by the corporation, at a meeting of the stockholders called for the purpose in the manner provided in section sixty-three hereof, and by filing with such certificate of amendment a copy of the proceedings of such meeting, made, signed, verified and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and by the secretary or the treasurer of the corporation; but an amendment cannot be made under this section unless as so amended the certificate of incorporation could lawfully have been filed under section nineteen of this chapter. In case of a reduction of the amount of capital of a corporation, a certificate setting forth the whole amount of the ascertained debts and liabilities of the corporation shall be made, signed, verified and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and by the secretary or the treasurer of the corporation and shall be filed with the certificate of amendment; and such certificate of amendment shall have endorsed thereon the approval of the comptroller to the effect that as so stated the reduced amount of capital is sufficient for the proper purposes of the corporation and is in excess of its ascertained debts and liabilities.

§ 23. Amount of capital stock and of shares within meaning of other laws. For the purpose of any rule of law or of any statutory provision (other than the foregoing sections nineteen, twenty, twenty-one and twenty-two) relating to the amount of the capital stock of a corporation or the amount or par value of its shares, the aggregate amount of the capital stock of any such corporation formed pursuant to section nineteen hereof shall be deemed to be the aggregate amount specified in the certificate or amended certificate of incorporation or of reorganization as the amount of capital with which the corporation will carry on business; the amount or the par value of each share of preferred stock having a preference as to principal shall be deemed to be the amount thereof so specified in such certificate or such amended certificate; and the amount or the par value of each other share shall be deemed to be an aliquot part of the aggregate capital so specified in such certificate or in such amended certificate in excess of the specified amount (if any) of the preferred stock therein authorized to be issued with a preference as to principal.

§ 24. Certificate of reorganization. Any stock corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under any general law, other than a corporation belonging to one of the classes specifically excepted by section nineteen of this chapter, may be reorganized so that such corporation, its officers, directors and stockholders, shall acquire and enjoy all the rights, privileges, powers and exemptions, and become subject to all of the liabilities and obligations imposed by sections nineteen to twenty-three, inclusive, of this chapter, upon the filing and recording, pursuant to section five of the general corporation law, of a certificate, which shall be entitled and endorsed "Certificate of reorganization of . . . . . pursuant to section twenty-four of the stock corporation law," (the blank space being filled in with the name of the corporation) and which certificate shall state:

1. The name under which the corporation was originally organized, and if it has been changed, the present corporate title.

2. The law under which the corporation was organized, by year of passage, chapter number, and article if any.

3. The date on which, and the public office or offices in which its certificate of incorporation was filed.

4. The amount of capital stock authorized by its certificate of incorporation, and if that amount has been changed, the date of filing of each certificate or consent authorizing a change, and the amount to which the capital stock was increased or reduced by each such certificate or consent.

5. The amount of each payment of taxes for the privilege of organizing or of increasing the capital stock of the corporation.

6. The number of shares into which the capital stock has been divided, and, if classified, the number and par value of the shares included in each class together with the preferences or distinctive features of the shares of each class.

7. The number of shares of each class issued and outstanding.

8. The number of shares that may henceforth be issued by the corporation, which may be either less than, or equal to or in excess of the number of shares into which the capital stock was previously divided, and all of the matters and things required to be stated in an original certificate of incorporation by subdivision one of section nineteen of this chapter.

9. If any of the new shares are to be preferred, the number of shares to be included in each class and the preferences thereof, which preferences must be such as are authorized by law at the time of reorganization.

10. The amount of capital with which the corporation will carry on business, which shall be in all respects as required by subdivision two of section nineteen of this chapter.

11. The terms upon which the new shares of the reorganized corporation shall be issued in place of the outstanding shares of stock.

12. It may also prescribe the consideration for which the reorganized corporation may issue and sell its authorized shares, or it may authorize the board of directors to issue and sell its authorized shares from time to time, for such consideration, as shall be the fair market value of said shares, and, in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the board of directors as to such value shall be conclusive.

Nothing shall be included in such certificate other than as authorized by this section, and it shall be either:

(a) Signed and acknowledged by every stockholder of record of the corporation, or his duly authorized proxy, and shall have annexed an affidavit of the custodian of the stock book to the effect that the persons who have executed the certificate, in person or by proxy, constitute the holders of record of all of the shares of stock of the corporation, irrespective of class, issued and outstanding, or;

(b) Signed and acknowledged by the president or a vice-president and the secretary or treasurer of the corporation, who shall make and annex an affidavit stating that they have been authorized and directed to execute and file the certificate by the votes, cast in person or by proxy, of the holders of record of two-thirds or more of each class of the outstanding shares of stock, irrespective of any provision of the certificate of incorporation purporting to deny voting powers to the holders of any class of stock, at a meeting called and held upon written notice mailed to each stockholder at least two weeks before the date set for the meeting and published once a week for at least two successive weeks in a newspaper published and circulating in the county wherein the principal office of the corporation is located; and that such notice did expressly state the purpose of the meeting to be that of reorganizing the corporation pursuant to section twenty-four of the stock corporation law, so as to permit the issuance of shares without par value, and did state the terms upon which the outstanding shares of stock were to be exchanged for the new shares.

§ 24-a. Comptroller's approval of reduction of capital. If the amount of capital stated in the certificate of reorganization as that with which the corporation will carry on business, be less than the total amount of the par value of the previously issued and outstanding capital stock, there shall be annexed to such certificate an affidavit of the president or a vice-president and the secretary or treasurer of the corporation, setting forth the whole amount of the ascertained debts and liabilities of the corporation; and, in such case, the certificate of reorganization shall have endorsed thereon the approval of the comptroller to the effect that the amount of capital stated in the certificate as that with which the corporation will carry on business is sufficient for the proper purposes of the corporation and is in excess of its debts and liabilities.

§ 24-b. Restriction upon incurring of debts. No corporation reorganized under section twenty-four of this chapter shall incur any debts subsequent to the filing of the certificate of reorganization until it shall have assets of an actual value at least equal to the amount of capital stated in its certificate of reorganization as that with which it will carry on business. The directors of a corporation assenting to the creation of a debt in violation of this section shall be jointly and severally liable for such debt in like manner as provided, and subject to the conditions and limitations imposed by section twenty of this chapter.

§ 24-c. Liability upon existing obligations. The liability of the corporation, its officers, directors and stockholders for corporate debts contracted or obligations incurred prior to the filing of the certificate of reorganization pursuant to section twenty-four of this chapter shall be unaffected thereby, but for the purpose of enforcing and recovering upon such claims creditors shall have the same right of recourse against the corporation, or against its officers, directors and stockholders individually that they would have had if the corporation had not been reorganized, and there shall be especially reserved and saved to such creditors all of the rights and benefits conferred by sections fifty-six to fifty-nine, inclusive, of this chapter, subject to the conditions, limitations and restrictions imposed by those sections.

Except as provided by this section the new shares issued by the reorganized corporation shall be deemed fully paid and nonassessable and the holder of such shares shall not be liable to the corporation or to its creditors in respect thereof.

§ 24-d. Not to be construed as dissolution or re-incorporation. No proceedings taken under section twenty-four of this chapter shall be deemed to work a dissolution, or to create a new corporation or to interrupt in any way the continuity of existence of the corporation affected.

§ 24-e. Reorganization tax. Every corporation reorganized pursuant to section twenty-four of this chapter shall pay to the state treasurer for the privilege of such reorganization a tax of the same amount, and computed in like manner as upon the organization of a new corporation, authorized to issue shares of the same number and kinds as the reorganized corporation, less one-half of the aggregate amount of all sums previously paid for the privilege of organizing or of increasing the capital stock; provided however, that every corporation so reorganized shall pay a tax for the privilege of such reorganization, which in no case shall be less than twenty-five dollars. Neither the secretary of state nor the county clerk shall file any certificate of reorganization under section twenty-four of this chapter until he is furnished with a receipt for such tax from the state treasurer.

§ 25. Directors. The directors of every stock corporation shall be chosen at the time and place fixed by the by-laws of the corporation by a plurality of the votes at such election. Each director shall be a stockholder unless otherwise provided in the certificate, or in a by-law adopted by a stockholders' meeting. Vacancies in the board of directors shall be filled in the manner prescribed in the by-laws. Notice of the time and place of holding any election of directors shall be either published at least once in each week for two successive weeks immediately preceding such election, in a newspaper published in the county where such election is to be held, or delivered personally or mailed, not less than ten nor more than twenty days before the election, to each person who appears on the books of the corporation as a stockholder; if mailed, it shall be directed to a stockholder at his address as it appears on such books. The by-laws may require such notice to be published and also mailed or delivered as above provided. In the case of a domestic stock life insurance corporation no such election shall be valid unless a copy of such notice shall have been filed in the office of the superintendent of insurance at least ten days before the day of such election in addition to the publication or service thereof, or both, required above. Whenever any of the directors of a domestic stock life insurance corporation shall have resigned and successors shall have been chosen pursuant to the provisions of the by-laws of the corporation, such successors shall not take office nor exercise the duties thereof until ten days after written notice of their election shall have been filed in the office of the superintendent of insurance. Policyholders of an insurance corporation shall be eligible to election as directors, whether or not they be stockholders. At least one-fourth in number of the directors of every stock corporation shall be elected annually. [L. 1918, c. 267.]

§ 26. Change of number of directors. The number of directors of any stock corporation may be increased or reduced, but not below the minimum number prescribed by law, when the stockholders owning a majority of the stock of the corporation shall so determine, at a meeting to be held on two weeks' notice in writing to each stockholder of record. Such notice shall be served personally or by mail, directed to each stockholder at his last known post-office address. Proof of the service of such notice shall be filed in the office of the corporation at or before the time of such meeting. The proceedings of such meeting shall be entered in the minutes of the corporation and a transcript thereof verified by the president and secretary of the meeting shall be filed in the offices where the original certificates of incorporation were filed. Such increase or reduction may also be effected by unanimous consent without a meeting, in which case there shall be filed in the offices herein specified the unanimous consent of the stockholders in writing, signed by them, or their duly authorized proxies, but no such consent shall be valid unless there is annexed thereto an affidavit of the custodian of the stock book of such corporation stating that the persons who have signed such consent, either in person or by proxy, are the holders of record of the entire capital stock of said corporation issued and outstanding. If a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, the consent of the superintendent of banks, and if an insurance corporation, the consent of the superintendent of insurance, shall be first obtained to such increase or reduction of the number of directors. This section shall apply to any stock corporation whether organized under a general or special law, and the number of directors may be increased as hereby provided notwithstanding the maximum number of directors now prescribed by law. If the number of directors be increased, the additional directors authorized by such increase shall be elected by the votes of a majority of the directors in office at the time of the increase. If the original or an amended certificate of incorporation of the corporation shall provide that the directors shall be divided into two or more classes, whose terms of office shall respectively expire at different times, the additional directors shall be divided among such classes as nearly as practicable in proportion to the respective numbers of directors constituting each class prior to such increase.

§ 27. When acts of directors void. When the directors of any corporation for the first year of its corporate existence shall hold over and continue to be directors after the first year, because of their neglect or refusal to adopt the by-laws required to enable the stockholders to hold the annual election for directors, all their acts and proceedings while so holding over, done for and in the name of the corporation, designed to charge upon it any liability or obligation for the services of any such director, or any officer, or attorney or counsel appointed by them, and every such liability or obligation shall be held to be fraudulent and void.

§ 28. Liability of directors for making unauthorized dividends. The directors of a stock corporation shall not make dividends, except from the surplus profits arising from the business of such corporation, nor divide, withdraw or in any way pay to the stockholders or any of them, any part of the capital of such corporation, or reduce its capital stock, except as authorized by law. In case of any violation of the provisions of this section, the directors under whose administration the same may have happened, except those who may have caused their dissent therefrom to be entered at large upon the minutes of such directors at the time, or were not present when the same happened, shall jointly and severally be liable to such corporation and to the creditors thereof to the full amount of any loss sustained by such corporation or its creditors respectively by reason of such withdrawal, division or reduction. But this section shall not prevent a division and distribution of the assets of any such corporation remaining after the payment of all its debts and liabilities upon the dissolution of such corporation or the expiration of its charter; nor shall it prevent a corporation from accepting shares of its capital stock in complete or partial settlement of a debt owing to the corporation, which by the board of directors shall be deemed to be bad or doubtful.

§ 29. Liability of directors for loans to stockholders. No loan of moneys shall be made by any stock corporation, except a moneyed corporation, or by any officer thereof out of its funds to any stockholder therein, nor shall any such corporation or officer discount any note or other evidence of debt, or receive the same in payment of any instalment or any part thereof due or to become due on any stock in such corporation, or receive or discount any note, or other evidence of debt, to enable any stockholder to withdraw any part of the money paid in by him on his stock. In case of the violation of any provision of this section, the officers or directors making such loan, or assenting thereto, or receiving or discounting such notes or other evidences of debt, shall, jointly and severally, be personally liable to the extent of such loan and interest, for all the debts of the corporation contracted before the repayment of the sum loaned, and to the full amount of the notes or other evidences of debt so received or discounted, with interest from the time such liability accrued.

§ 30. Officers. The directors of a stock corporation may appoint from their number a president, and may appoint a secretary, treasurer, and other officers, agents and employees, who shall respectively have such powers and perform such duties in the management of the property and affairs of the corporation, subject to the control of the directors, as may be prescribed by them or in the by-laws. The directors may require any such officer, agent or employee to give security for the faithful performance of his duties, and may remove him at pleasure. The policyholders of an insurance corporation shall be eligible to election or appointment as its officers.

§ 31. Inspectors and their oath. The inspectors of election of every stock corporation shall be appointed in the manner prescribed in the by-laws, but the inspectors of the first election of directors and of all previous meetings of the stockholders shall be appointed by the board of directors named in the certificate of incorporation. No director or officer of a moneyed corporation shall be eligible to election or appointment as inspector. Each inspector shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for his services, to be paid by the corporation, and if any inspector shall refuse to serve, or neglect to attend at the election, or his office become vacant, the meeting may appoint an inspector in his place unless the by-laws otherwise provide. The inspectors appointed to act at any meeting of the stockholders shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, be sworn to faithfully execute the duties of inspector at such meeting with strict impartiality, and according to the best of their ability, and the oath so taken shall be subscribed by them, and immediately filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which such election or meeting shall be held, with a certificate of the result of the vote taken thereat.

§ 32. Books to be kept. Every stock corporation shall keep at its office correct books of account of all its business and transactions, and a book to be known as the stock book, containing the names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are stockholders of the corporation, showing their places of residence, the number of shares of stock held by them respectively, the time when they respectively became the owners thereof, and the amount paid thereon. On or before May first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, every domestic stock life insurance corporation shall cause to be filed in the office of the superintendent of insurance a list of the stockholders of such corporation showing their places of residence and the number of shares held by them respectively. The stock book of every such corporation shall be open daily, during at least three business hours, for inspection by any judgment creditor of the corporation; or by any person who shall have been stockholder of record in such corporation for at least six months immediately preceding his demand; or by any person holding stock of such corporation to an amount equal to five per centum of all its outstanding shares; or by any person thereunto in writing authorized by the holders of stock of such corporation to an amount equal to five per centum of all of its outstanding shares. Persons so entitled to inspect stock books may make extracts therefrom. No transfer of stock shall be valid as against the corporation, its stockholders and creditors for any purpose except to render the transferee liable for the debts of the corporation to the extent provided for in this chapter, until it shall have been entered in such book as required by this section, by an entry showing from and to whom transferred, nor, in the case of a domestic stock life insurance corporation until ten days after written notice of such transfer shall have been filed in the office of the superintendent of insurance. The stock book of every such corporation and the books of account of every bank shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein so stated in favor of the plaintiff, in any action or proceeding against such corporation or any of its officers, directors or stockholders. Every corporation that shall neglect or refuse to keep or cause to be kept such books, or to keep any book open for inspection as herein required, shall forfeit to the people the sum of fifty dollars for every day it shall so neglect or refuse. If any officer or agent of any such corporation shall wilfully neglect or refuse to make any proper entry in such book or books, or shall neglect or refuse to exhibit the same, or to allow them to be inspected and extracts taken therefrom as provided in this section, the corporation and such officer or agent shall each forfeit and pay to the party injured a penalty of fifty dollars for every such neglect or refusal, and all damages resulting to him therefrom. It shall be a defense to any action for penalties under this section that the person suing therefor has within two years sold or offered for sale any list of stockholders of such corporation or of any other corporation, or has aided or abetted any person in procuring any stock list for any such purpose. Nothing herein impairs the power of the courts to compel by mandamus or judgment the production for examination by any stockholder of the stock books of a corporation.

§ 33. Stock books of foreign corporations. Every foreign stock corporation having an office for the transaction of business in this state, except moneyed and railroad corporations, shall keep therein a book to be known as a stock book, containing the names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are stockholders of the corporation, showing their places of residence, the number of shares of stock held by them respectively, the time when they respectively became the owners thereof, and the amount paid thereon. Such stock book shall be open daily, during business hours, for inspection by any judgment creditor of such corporation; by any officer of this state authorized by law to investigate the affairs of any such corporation; by any person who shall have been stockholder of record in such corporation for at least six months immediately preceding his demand; by any person holding stock of such corporation to an amount equal to five per centum of all of its outstanding shares; or by any person thereunto in writing authorized by the holders of stock of such corporation to an amount equal to five per centum of all of its outstanding shares. Persons so entitled to inspect stock books may make extracts therefrom. If any such foreign stock corporation has in this state a transfer agent, whether such agent shall be a corporation or a natural person, such stock book may be deposited in the office of such agent and shall be open to inspection at all times during the usual hours of transacting business, to any stockholder, judgment creditor or officer of the state authorized by law to investigate the affairs of such corporation. For any refusal to allow such book to be inspected, such corporation and the officer or agent so refusing shall each forfeit the sum of fifty dollars to be recovered by the person to whom such refusal was made. It shall be a defense to any person for penalties under this section that the person suing therefor has within two years sold or offered for sale any list of stockholders of such corporation or of any other corporation or has aided or abetted any person in procuring any stock list for any such purpose. Nothing herein impairs the power of the courts to compel by mandamus or judgment the production for examination by any stockholder of the stock books of a corporation.

§ 34. Annual report to secretary of state. Every domestic stock corporation and every foreign stock corporation doing business within this state, except moneyed and railroad corporations, shall annually, during the month of January, or if doing business without the United States, before the first day of May, make a report as of the first day of January, which will state:

1. The amount of its capital stock, and the proportion actually issued.
2. The amount of its debts or an amount which they do not exceed.
3. The amount of its assets or an amount which its assets at least equal.
4. The names and addresses of all the directors and officers of the company, and in the case of a foreign corporation, the name also of the person designated in the manner prescribed by the code of civil procedure, as a person upon whom process against the corporation may be served within this state.

Such report shall be made by the president or a vice-president or the treasurer or a secretary of the corporation and shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. If such report be not so made and filed, any such officer who shall thereafter neglect or refuse to make and to file such report, within ten days after written request so to do shall have been made by a creditor or by a stockholder of the corporation, shall forfeit to the people the sum of fifty dollars for every day he shall so neglect or refuse.

§ 35. Liability of officers for false certificates, reports or public notices. If any certificate or report made or public notice given by the officers or directors of a stock corporation shall be false in any material representation, the officers and directors signing the same shall jointly and severally be personally liable to any person who has become a creditor or stockholder of the corporation upon the faith of any such certificate, report, notice or any material representation therein to the amount of the debt contracted upon the faith thereof if not paid when due, or the damage sustained by any purchaser of or subscriber to its stock upon the faith thereof. The liability imposed by this section shall exist in all cases where the contents of any such certificate, report or notice or of any material representation therein shall have been communicated either directly or indirectly to the person so becoming a creditor or stockholder and he became such creditor or stockholder upon the faith thereof. No action can be maintained for a cause of action created by this section unless brought within two years from the time the certificate, report or public notice shall have been made or given by the officers or directors of such corporation.

§ 50. Issue and transfers of stock. The stock of every stock corporation shall be represented by certificates prepared by the directors and signed by the president or vice-president and secretary or treasurer and sealed with the seal of the corporation, and shall be transferable in the manner prescribed in this chapter and in the by-laws. No share shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon shall have been fully paid in.

§ 51. Transfers of stock by stockholder indebted to corporation. If a stockholder shall be indebted to the corporation, the directors may refuse to consent to a transfer of his stock until such indebtedness is paid, provided a copy of this section is written or printed upon the certificate of stock.

§ 52. Purchase of stock of other corporations. Any stock corporation, domestic or foreign, now existing or hereafter organized, except moneyed corporations, may purchase, acquire, hold and dispose of the stocks, bonds and other evidences of indebtedness of any corporation, domestic or foreign, and issue in exchange therefore its stock, bonds or other obligations if authorized so to do by a provision in the certificate of incorporation of such stock corporation, or in any certificate amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, filed in pursuance of law, or if the corporation whose stock is so purchased, acquired, held or disposed of, is engaged in a business similar to that of such stock corporation, or engaged in the manufacture, use or sale of the property, or in the construction or operation of works necessary or useful in the business of such stock corporation, or in which or in connection with which the manufactured articles, product or property of such stock corporation are or may be used, or is a corporation with which such stock corporation is or may be authorized to consolidate. When any such corporation shall be a stockholder in any other corporation, as herein provided, its president or other officers shall be eligible to the office of director of such corporation, the same as if they were individually stockholders therein and the corporation holding such stock shall possess and exercise in respect thereof, all the rights, powers and privileges of individual owners or holders of such stock.

§ 53. Subscriptions to stock. If the whole capital stock shall not have been subscribed at the time of filing the certificate of incorporation, the directors named in the certificate may open books of subscription to fill up the capital stock in such places and after giving such notices as they may deem expedient, and may continue to receive subscriptions until the whole capital stock is subscribed. At the time of subscribing, every subscriber, whose subscription is payable in money, shall pay to the directors ten per centum upon the amount subscribed by him in cash, and no such subscription shall be received or taken without such payment.

§ 54. Time of payment of subscriptions to stock. Subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation shall be paid at such times and in such instalments as the board of directors may by resolution require. If default shall be made in the payment of any instalment as required by such resolution, the board may declare the stock and all previous payments thereon forfeited for the use of the corporation, after the expiration of sixty days from the service on the defaulting stockholder, personally, or by mail directed to him at his last-known post-office address, of a written notice requiring him to make payment within sixty days from the service of the notice at a place specified therein, and stating that, in case of failure to do so, his stock and all previous payments thereon will be forfeited for the use of the corporation.

Such stock, if forfeited, may be reissued or subscriptions therefor may be received as in the case of stock not issued or subscribed for. If not sold for its par value or subscribed for within six months after such forfeiture, it shall be canceled and deducted from the amount of the capital stock. If by such cancellation, the amount of the capital stock is reduced below the minimum required by law, the capital stock shall be increased to the required amount within three months thereafter or an action may be brought or proceedings instituted to close up the business of the corporation as in the case of an insolvent corporation. If a receiver of the assets of the corporation has been appointed, all unpaid subscriptions to the stock shall be paid at such times and in such instalments as the receiver or the court may direct.

§ 55. Consideration for issue of stock and bonds. No corporation shall issue either stock or bonds except for money, labor done or property actually received for the use and lawful purposes of such corporation. Any corporation may purchase any property authorized by its certificate of incorporation, or necessary for the use and lawful purposes of such corporation, and may issue stock to the amount of the value thereof in payment therefor, and the stock so issued shall be full paid stock and not liable to any further call, neither shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payment under any of the provisions of this chapter; and in the absence of fraud in the transaction the judgment of the directors as to the value of the property purchased shall be conclusive; and in all statements and reports of the corporation, by law required to be published or filed, this stock shall not be stated or reported as being issued for cash paid to the corporation, but shall be reported as issued for property purchased.

§ 56. Liabilities of stockholders. Every holder of capital stock not fully paid, in any stock corporation, shall be personally liable to its creditors, to an amount equal to the amount unpaid on the stock held by him for debts of the corporation contracted while such stock was held by him. As to existing corporations the liability imposed by this section shall be in lieu of the liability imposed upon stockholders of any existing corporation, under any general or special law, excepting laws relating to moneyed corporations, and corporations and associations for banking purposes, on account of any indebtedness hereafter contracted or any stock hereafter issued; but nothing in this section contained shall create or increase any liability of stockholders of any existing corporation under any general or special law.

§ 57. Liabilities of stockholders to laborers, servants or employees. The stockholders of every stock corporation shall jointly and severally be personally liable for all debts due and owing to any of its laborers, servants or employees other than contractors, for services performed by them for such corporation. Before such laborer, servant or employee shall charge such stockholder for such services, he shall give him notice in writing, within thirty days after the termination of such services, that he intends to hold him liable, and shall commence an action therefor within thirty days after the return of an execution unsatisfied against the corporation upon a judgment recovered against it for services.

§ 58. Non-liability in certain cases. No person holding stock in any corporation as collateral security, or as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, unless he shall have voluntarily invested the trust funds in such stock, shall be personally subject to liability as a stockholder; but the person pledging such stock shall be considered the holder thereof and shall be liable as stockholder, and the estates and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee shall be liable in the like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate, or the ward or person interested in such trust fund would have been, if he had been living and competent to act and held the same stock in his own name, unless it appears that such executor, administrator, guardian or trustee voluntarily invested the trust funds in such stocks, in which case he shall be personally liable as a stockholder.

§ 59. Limitation of stockholder's liability. No action shall be brought against a stockholder for any debt of the corporation until judgment therefor has been recovered against the corporation, and an execution thereon has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, and the amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable, with costs against the stockholder. No stockholder shall be personally liable for any debt of the corporation not payable within two years from the time it is contracted, nor unless an action for its collection shall be brought against the corporation within two years after the debt becomes due; and no action shall be brought against a stockholder after he shall have ceased to be a stockholder, for any debt of the corporation, unless brought within two years from the time he shall have ceased to be a stockholder.

§ 60. Partly paid stock. The original or the amended certificate of incorporation of any stock corporation may contain a provision expressly authorizing the issue of the whole or of any part of the capital stock as partly paid stock, subject to calls thereon until the whole thereof shall have been paid in. In such case, if in or upon the certificate issued to represent such stock, the amount paid thereon shall be specified, the holder thereof shall not be subject to any liability except for the payment to the corporation of the amount remaining unpaid upon such stock, and for the payment of indebtedness to employees pursuant to sections fifty-seven, fifty-eight and fifty-nine of this chapter; and in any such case, the corporation may declare and may pay dividends upon the basis of the amount actually paid upon the respective shares of stock instead of upon the par value thereof.

§ 61. Preferred and common stock. Every domestic stock corporation may issue preferred stock and common stock and different classes of preferred stock, if the certificate of incorporation so provides, or

1. By the unanimous consent of the stockholders expressed in writing and filed in the office of the secretary of state and in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal business office of the corporation is located, or

2. By the consent of the holders of record of two-thirds of the capital stock, given at a meeting called for that purpose upon notice such as is required for the annual meeting of the corporation. A certificate of the proceedings of such meeting, signed and sworn to by the president or a vice-president, and by the secretary or assistant secretary, of the corporation, shall be filed and recorded in the offices where the original certificate of incorporation of such corporation was filed and recorded; and the corporation may, upon the written request of the holders of any preferred stock, by a two-thirds vote of its directors, exchange the same for common stock, and issue certificates for common stock therefor, upon such valuation as may have been agreed upon in the certificate of organization of such corporation, or the issue of such preferred stock, or share for share, but the total amount of such capital stock shall not be increased thereby.

§ 62. Increase or reduction of capital stock. Any domestic corporation may increase or reduce its capital stock in the manner herein provided, but not above the maximum or below the minimum, if any, prescribed by general law governing corporations formed for similar purposes. If increased, the holders of the additional stock issued shall be subject to the same liabilities with respect thereto as are provided by law in relation to the original capital; if reduced the amount of its debts and liabilities shall not exceed the amount of its reduced capital, unless an insurance corporation, in which case the amount of its debts and liabilities shall not exceed the amount of its reduced capital and other assets. The owner of any stock shall not be relieved from any liability existing prior to the reduction of the capital stock of any stock corporation. If a banking corporation, whether the capital be increased or reduced, its assets shall at least be equal to its debts and liabilities and the capital stock, as increased or reduced. A domestic railroad corporation may increase or reduce its capital stock in the manner herein provided, notwithstanding any provision contained herein, or in any general or special law fixing or limiting the amount of capital stock which may be issued by it.

§ 63. Notice of meeting to increase or reduce capital stock. Every such increase or reduction must be authorized either by the unanimous consent of the stockholders, expressed in writing and filed in the office of the secretary of state and in the office of the clerk of the county in which the principal business office of the corporation is located, or by a vote of the stockholders owning at least a majority of the stock of the corporation, taken at a meeting of the stockholders specially called for that purpose in the manner provided by law or by the by-laws. Notice of the meeting, stating the time, place and object, and the amount of the increase or reduction proposed, signed by the president or a vice-president and the secretary, shall be published once a week, for at least two successive weeks, in a newspaper in the county where its principal business office is located, if any is published therein, and a copy of such notice shall be duly mailed to each stockholder or member at his last-known post-office address at least two weeks before the meeting or shall be personally served on him at least five days before the meeting.

§ 64. Conduct of such meeting; certificate of increase or reduction. If, at the time and place specified in the notice, the stockholders shall appear in person or by proxy in numbers representing at least a majority of all the shares of stock, they shall organize by choosing from their number a chairman and secretary, and take a vote of those present in person or by proxy, and if a sufficient number of votes shall be given in favor of such increase or reduction, or if the same shall have been authorized by the unanimous consent of stockholders expressed in writing signed by them or their duly authorized proxies, a certificate of the proceedings showing a compliance with the provisions of this chapter, the amount of capital theretofore authorized, and the proportion thereof actually issued, and the amount of the increased or reduced capital stock, and in case of the reduction of capital stock the whole amount of the ascertained debts and liabilities of the corporation, shall be made, signed, verified and acknowledged by the chairman and secretary of the meeting, and filed in the office of the clerk of the county where its principal place of business shall be located, a duplicate thereof in the office of the secretary of state, and, if a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, a triplicate thereof in the office of the superintendent of banks, and if an insurance corporation, a triplicate thereof in the office of the superintendent of insurance. In case of a reduction of the capital stock, except of a railroad corporation or a moneyed corporation, such certificate or consent hereinafter provided for shall have indorsed thereon the approval of the comptroller, to the effect that the reduced capital is sufficient for the proper purpose of the corporation, and is in excess of its ascertained debts and liabilities; and in case of the increase or reduction of the capital stock of a railroad corporation or a moneyed corporation, the certificate or the unanimous consent of stockholders, as the case may be, shall have indorsed thereon the approval of the public service commission having jurisdiction thereof, if a railroad corporation; of the superintendent of banks, if a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, and of the superintendent of insurance, if an insurance corporation. When the certificate herein provided for, or the unanimous consent of stockholders in writing, signed by them or their duly authorized proxies, approved as aforesaid, has been filed, the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased or reduced, as the case may be, to the amount specified in such certificate or consent. The proceedings of the meeting at which such increase or reduction is voted, or, if such increase or reduction shall have been authorized by unanimous consent without a meeting, then a copy of such consent shall be entered upon the minutes of the corporation. If the capital stock is reduced, the amount of capital over and above the amount of the reduced capital shall, if the meeting or consents so determine or provide, be returned to the stockholders pro rata, at such times and in such manner as the directors shall determine, except in the case of the reduction of the capital stock of an insurance corporation, as an alternative to make good an existing impairment.

§ 65. Change in par value of shares. The number of shares into which the capital stock of any stock corporation is divided may be increased or reduced by a two-thirds vote of all stock duly represented at a meeting held and conducted in like manner, and upon filing a like certificate, as required for the increase or reduction of its capital stock. If such increase or reduction of the number of shares be so authorized, the corporation shall issue to each stockholder certificates for as many shares of the new stock as equal in par value the shares of the old stock held by him, upon surrender and cancellation of such old stock. This section does not authorize the increase or reduction of the capital stock of such corporation.

§ 66. Prohibited transfers to officers or stockholders. No corporation which shall have refused to pay any of its notes or other obligations, when due, in lawful money of the United States, nor any of its officers or directors, shall transfer any of its property to any of its officers, directors or stockholders, directly or indirectly, for the payment of any debt, or upon any other consideration than the full value of the property paid in cash. No conveyance, assignment or transfer of any property of any such corporation by it or by any officer, director or stockholder thereof, nor any payment made, judgment suffered, lien created or security given by it or by any officer, director or stockholder when the corporation is insolvent or its insolvency is imminent, with the intent of giving a preference to any particular creditor over other creditors of the corporation, shall be valid, except that laborers' wages for services shall be preferred claims and be entitled to payment before any other creditors out of the corporation assets in excess of valid prior liens or incumbrances. No corporation formed under or subject to the banking, insurance or railroad law shall make any assignment in contemplation of insolvency. Every person receiving by means of any such prohibited act or deed any property of the corporation shall be bound to account therefor to its creditors or stockholders or other trustees. No stockholder of any such corporation shall make any transfer or assignment of his stock therein to any person in contemplation of its insolvency. Every transfer or assignment or other act done in violation of the foregoing provisions of this section shall be void. No conveyance, assignment or transfer of any property of a corporation formed under or subject to the banking law, exceeding in value one thousand dollars, shall be made by such corporation, or by any officer or director thereof, unless authorized by previous resolution of its board of directors, except promissory notes or other evidences of debt issued or received by the officers of the corporation in the transaction of its ordinary business, and except payments in specie or other current money or in bank bills made by such officers. No such conveyance, assignment or transfer shall be void in the hands of a purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice. Every director or officer of a corporation who shall violate or be concerned in violating any provisions of this section, shall be personally liable to the creditors and stockholders of the corporation of which he shall be director or an officer to the full extent of any loss they may respectively sustain by such violation.

§ 67. Application to court to order issue of new in place of lost certificate of stock. The owner of a lost or destroyed certificate of stock, if the corporation shall refuse to issue a new certificate in place thereof, may apply to the supreme court, at any special term held in the district where he resides, or in which the principal business office of the corporation is located, for an order requiring the corporation to show cause why it should not be required to issue a new certificate in place of the one lost or destroyed. The application shall be by petition, duly verified by the owner, stating the name of the corporation, the number and date of the certificate, if known, or if it can be ascertained by the petitioner; the number of shares named therein, to whom issued, and as particular a statement of the circumstances attending such loss or destruction as the petitioner can give. Upon the presentation of the petition the court shall make an order requiring the corporation to show cause, at a time and place therein mentioned, why it should not issue a new certificate of stock in place of the one described in the petition. A copy of the petition and order shall be served on the president or other head of the corporation, or on the secretary or treasurer thereof, personally, at least ten days before the time for showing cause.

§ 68. Order of court upon such application. Upon the return of the order, with proof of due service thereof, the court shall, in a summary manner, and in such mode as it may deem advisable, inquire into the truth of the facts stated in the petition, and hear the proofs and allegations of the parties in regard thereto, and if satisfied that the petitioner is the lawful owner of the number of shares, or any part thereof, described in the petition, and that the certificate therefor has been lost or destroyed, and can not after due diligence be found, and that no sufficient cause has been shown why a new certificate should not be issued, it shall make an order requiring the corporation, within such time as shall be therein designated, to issue and deliver to the petitioner a new certificate for the number of shares specified in the order, upon depositing such security, or filing a bond in such form and with such sureties as to the court shall appear sufficient to indemnify any person other than the petitioner who shall thereafter be found to be the lawful owner of the certificate lost or destroyed; but such provision requiring security to be deposited or bond filed is to be construed as excluding an application made by a domestic municipal corporation or by a public officer in behalf of such corporation; and the court may direct the publication of such notice, either before or after making such order as it shall deem proper. Any person claiming any rights under the certificates alleged to have been lost or destroyed shall have recourse to such indemnity, but in any application under the provisions of this chapter, in which a domestic municipal corporation or a public officer in behalf of such corporation, shall be by the foregoing provisions of this section excused from depositing security or filing a bond, such municipal corporation shall be liable for all damages that may be sustained by any person, in the same case and to the same extent as sureties to a bond or undertaking would have been, if such a bond or undertaking had been filed; and the corporation issuing such certificate shall be discharged from all liability to such person upon compliance with such order; and obedience to the order may be enforced by attachment against the officer or officers of the corporation on proof of his or their refusal to comply with it.

§ 69. Financial statement to stockholders. Stockholders owning five per centum of the capital stock of any corporation other than a moneyed corporation, not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, or three per centum where it exceeds one hundred thousand dollars, may make a written request to the treasurer or chief fiscal officer thereof, for a statement of its affairs, under oath, embracing a particular account of all its assets and liabilities, and the treasurer shall make such statement and deliver it to the person presenting the request within thirty days thereafter, and keep on file for twelve months thereafter a copy of such statement, which shall at all times during business hours be exhibited to any stockholder demanding an examination thereof; but the treasurer of such chief fiscal officer shall not be required to deliver more than one such statement in any one year. The supreme court, or any justice thereof, may upon application, for good cause shown, extend the time for making and delivering such certificate. For every neglect or refusal of the treasurer or other chief fiscal officer thereof to comply with the provisions of this section he shall forfeit and pay to the person making such request the sum of fifty dollars, and the further sum of ten dollars for every twenty-four hours thereafter until such statement shall be furnished.

§ 70. Liabilities of officers, directors and stockholders of foreign corporations. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter the officers, directors and stockholders of a foreign stock corporation transacting business in this state, except moneyed and railroad corporations, shall be liable under the provisions of this chapter, in the same manner and to the same extent as the officers, directors and stockholders of a domestic corporation, for:

1. The making of unauthorized dividends;
2. Unlawful loans to stockholders;
3. Making false certificates, reports or public notices;
4. An illegal transfer of the stock and property of such corporation, when it is insolvent or its insolvency is threatened;
5. The failure to file an annual report.

Such liabilities may be enforced in the courts of this state, in the same manner as similar liabilities imposed by law upon the officers, directors and stockholders of domestic corporations.

§ 80. Laws repealed. Of the laws enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed, that portion specified in the last column is hereby repealed.

§ 81. When to take effect. This chapter shall take effect immediately.

TAX LAW.

§ 1. Short title. This chapter shall be known as the "Tax Law."

§ 2. Definitions. 1. "Tax district" as used in this chapter, means a political subdivision of the state having a board of assessors authorized to assess property therein for state and county taxes.

2. "County treasurer" includes any officer performing the duties devolving upon such office under whatever name.

3. The terms "land," "real estate," and "real property," as used in this chapter, include the land itself above and under water, all buildings and other articles and structures, substructures and superstructures, erected upon, under or above, or affixed to the same; all wharves and piers, including the value of the right to collect wharfage, crantage or dockage thereon; all bridges, all telegraph lines, wires, poles and appurtenances; all supports and inclosures for electrical conductors and other appurtenances upon, above and under ground; all surface, underground or elevated railroads, including the value of all franchises, rights or permission to construct, maintain or operate the same in, under, above, on or through, streets, highways or public places; all railroad structures, substructures and superstructures, tracks and the iron thereon; branches, switches and other fixtures permitted or authorized to be made, laid or placed in, upon, above or under any public or private road, street or ground; all mains, pipes and tanks laid or placed in, upon, above or under any public or private street or place for conducting steam, heat, water, oil, electricity or any property, substance or product capable of transportation or conveyance therein or that is protected thereby, including the value of all franchises, rights, authority or permission to construct, maintain or operate, in, under, above, upon, or through, any streets, highways or public places, any mains, pipes, tanks, conduits or wires, with their appurtenances, for conducting water, steam, heat, light, power, gas, oil or other substance, or electricity for telegraphic, telephonic or other purposes; all trees and underwood growing upon land, and all mines, minerals, quarries and fossils in and under the same, except mines belonging to the state. A franchise, right, authority or permission specified in this subdivision shall for the purpose of taxation be known as a "special franchise." A special franchise for taxation shall be deemed to include the value of the tangible property of a person, copartnership, association or corporation situated in, upon, under or above any street, highway, public place or public waters in connection with the special franchise. The tangible property so included shall be taxed as a part of the special franchise. No property of a municipal corporation shall be subject to a special franchise tax.

4. The term "special franchise" shall not be deemed to include the crossing of a street, highway or public place outside the limits of a city or incorporated village where such crossing is less than two hundred and fifty feet in length, unless such crossing be the continuation of an occupancy of another street, highway or public place. This subdivision shall not apply to any elevated railroad.

5. The terms "personal estate," and "personal property," as used in this chapter, include chattels, money, things in action, debts due from solvent debtors, whether on account, contract, note, bond or mortgage; debts and obligations for the payment of money due or owing to persons residing within this state, however secured or wherever such securities shall be held; debts due by inhabitants of this state to persons not residing within the United States for the purchase of any real estate; public stocks, stocks in moneyed corporations, and such portion of the capital of incorporated companies, liable to taxation on their capital, as shall not be invested in real estate.

§ 3. Property liable to taxation. All real property within this state, and all personal property situated or owned within this state, is taxable unless exempt from taxation by law.

§ 4. Exemption from taxation. The following property shall be exempt from taxation:

1. Property of the United States.
2. Property of this state other than its wild or forest lands in the forest preserve.
3. Property of a municipal corporation of the state held for a public use, including real property held or used for cemetery purposes, and all lots and plots therein conveyed by the municipal corporation as places for the burial of the dead, except the portion of municipal property not within the corporation.
4. The lands in any Indian reservation owned by the Indian nation, tribe or band occupying them.
5. All property exempt by law from execution, other than an exempt homestead. But real property purchased with the proceeds of a pension granted by the United States for military or naval services, and owned by the pensioner, or by his wife or widow, is subject to taxation as herein provided. Such property shall be assessed in the same manner as other real property in the tax districts. At the meeting of the assessors to hear the complaints concerning assessments, a verified application for the exemption of such real property from taxation may be presented to them by or on behalf of the owner thereof, which application must show the facts on which the exemption is claimed, including the amount of pension money used in or toward the purchase of such property. No such exemption on account of pension money shall be allowed in excess of five thousand dollars. If the assessors are satisfied that the applicant is entitled to the exemption, and that the amount of pension money exempt to the extent authorized by the subdivision used in the purchase of such property equals or exceeds the assessed valuation thereof, they shall enter the word "exempt" upon the assessment roll opposite the description of such property. If the amount of such pension money exempt to the extent authorized by this subdivision used in the purchase of the property is less than the assessed valuation, they shall enter upon the assessment-roll the words "exempt to the extent of ..... dollars" (naming the amount), and thereupon such real property, to the extent of the exemption entered by the assessors, shall be exempt from state, county and general municipal taxation, but shall be taxable for local school purposes, and for the construction and maintenance of streets and highways. If no application for exemption be granted, the property shall be subject to taxation for all purposes. The entries above required shall be made and continued in each assessment of the property so long as it is exempt from taxation for any purpose. The provisions herein, relating to the assessment and exemption of property purchased with a pension, apply and shall be enforced in each municipal corporation authorized to levy taxes.

6. Bonds of this state or any civil division thereof.

7. The real property of a corporation or association organized exclusively for the moral or mental improvement of men or women, or for the religious, bible, tract, charitable, benevolent, missionary, hospital, infirmary, educational, scientific, literary, library, patriotic, historical or cemetery purposes, or for the enforcement of laws relating to children or animals, or for two or more such purposes, and used exclusively for carrying out thereupon one or more of such purposes, and the personal property of any such corporation shall be exempt from taxation. But no such corporation or association shall be entitled to any such exemption if any officer, member or employee thereof shall receive or may be lawfully entitled to receive any pecuniary profit from the operations thereof, except reasonable compensation for services in effecting one or more of such purposes, or as proper beneficiaries of its strictly charitable purposes; or if the organization thereof for any such avowed purpose be a guise or pretense for directly or indirectly making any other pecuniary profit for such corporation or association, or for any of its members or employees, or if it be not in good faith organized or conducted exclusively for one or more such purposes. The real property of any such corporation or association entitled to such exemption held by it exclusively for one or more of such purposes and from which no rents, profits or income are derived, shall be so exempt, though not in actual use therefor by reason of the absence of suitable buildings or improvements thereon, if the construction of such buildings or improvements is in progress, or is in good faith contemplated by such corporation or association; or if such real property is held by such corporation or association upon condition that the title thereto shall revert in case any building not intended and suitable for one or more of such purposes shall be erected upon said premises or some part thereof. The real property of any such corporation not so used exclusively for carrying out thereupon one or more of such purposes but leased or otherwise used for other purposes, shall not be exempt, but if a portion only of any lot or building of any such corporation or association is used exclusively for carrying out thereupon one or more such purposes of any such corporation or association, then such lot or building shall be so exempt only to the extent of the value of the portion so used, and the remaining or other portion, to the extent of the value of such remaining or other portion, shall be subject to taxation; provided, however, that a lot or building owned and actually used for hospital purposes, by a free public hospital, depending for maintenance and support upon voluntary charity, shall not be taxed as to a portion thereof leased or otherwise used for the purposes of income; when such income is necessary for, and is actually applied to the maintenance and support of such hospital, and further provided that the real property of any fraternal corporation, association or body created to build and maintain a building or buildings for its meeting or meetings of the general assembly of its members, or subordinate bodies of such fraternity and for the accommodation of other fraternal bodies or associations, the entire net income of which real property is exclusively applied or to be used to build, furnish and maintain an asylum or asylums, a home or homes, a school or schools, for the free education or relief of the members of such fraternity, or for the relief, support and care of worthy and indigent members of the fraternity, their wives, widows or orphans, shall be exempt from taxation, and provided also that the real estate owned by a free public library, situate outside of a city, shall not be taxed as to that portion thereof leased or otherwise used for purposes of income, when such income is necessary for and actually applied to the maintenance and support of such library. Property held by any officer of a religious denomination shall be entitled to the same exemptions, subject to the same conditions and exceptions, as property held by a religious corporation.

8. Real property of an incorporated association of present or former volunteer fireman actually and exclusively used and occupied by such corporation and not exceeding in value fifteen thousand dollars.

9. All dwelling-houses and lots of religious corporations while actually used by the officiating clergymen thereof, but the total amount of such exemption to any one religious corporation shall not exceed two thousand dollars. Such exemption shall be in addition to that provided by subdivision seven of this section.

10. The real property of an agricultural society permanently used by it for exhibition grounds.

11. The real and personal property of a minister of the gospel or priest of any denomination being an actual resident and inhabitant of this state, who is engaged in the work assigned to him by the church or denomination to which he belongs, or who is disabled by impaired health from the performance of such duties, or over seventy years of age, and the property of the widow of such minister while she remains such and is an actual resident and inhabitant of this state, but the total amount of such exemption on account of both real and personal property, shall not exceed fifteen hundred dollars.

12. All vessels registered at any port in this state and owned by an American citizen, or association, or by any corporation, incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, engaged in ocean commerce between any port in the United States and any foreign port, are exempted from all taxation in this state, for state and local purposes; and all such corporations, all of whose vessels are employed between foreign ports and ports in the United States, are exempted from all taxation in this state, for state and local purposes, upon their capital stock, franchises and earnings, until and including December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twenty-two.

13. A bond, mortgage, note, contract, account or other demand, belonging to any person not a resident of this state, sent to or deposited in this state for collection; the products of another state, owned by a nonresident of this state and consigned to his agent in this state for sale on commission for the benefit of the owner; moneys of a nonresident of this state, under the control or in the possession of his agent in this state, when transmitted to such agent for the purpose of investment or otherwise.

17. The personal property in excess of one hundred thousand dollars of a mutual life insurance corporation incorporated in this state before April tenth, eighteen hundred and forty-nine.

18. Property real, from which no income is derived, and personal property, situated within any city of the first class and belonging to the medical society of any county, which county is either wholly or partly within such city and which society was heretofore incorporated under the provisions of chapter ninety-four, laws of eighteen hundred and thirteen, entitled "An act to incorporate medical societies for the purpose of regulating the practice of physic and surgery in this state," provided that such property is used for the purposes of such a society and not otherwise, and provided that such exemption of property for any society in the counties of Kings or New York shall not exceed one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and in any other county affected hereby shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars.

19. Property real from which no rent is derived and personal property, situated within any city of the first class and belonging to any incorporated pharmaceutical society of any county which is either wholly or partly within such city, which society has heretofore been or may hereafter be authorized and empowered by act of the legislature to establish and which has established or may hereafter establish, a college of pharmacy in such city; provided that such property is used for the purposes of such college and not otherwise, and provided also that the exemption of such property for any society in the counties of Kings and New York shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars, and in any other county affected hereby shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars.

20. The commissioners of the sinking fund of other chief financial board of any city of the first class, may, in their discretion, by resolution, exempt from taxation for local purposes the real and personal property, or any part of it, of a corporation or association organized to maintain an academy of music, if, in the opinion of such board, the interests of such city require the maintenance of such academy of music, and it shall appear that the property so exempted represents or was purchased with the proceeds of popular or general subscription for the erection of such academy of music. No property of such corporation or association shall be exempt, except the real property consisting of such academy of music and the furniture thereof, or personal property so subscribed and held for the purpose of constructing such academy of music. No such exemption shall be made for any year unless it shall appear that, during the preceding year, the corporation or association has not earned a net annual income upon the net cost of such academy and the furniture thereof.

21. Household furniture and personal effects to the value of one thousand dollars.

§ 6. The assessment of real and personal property. All real and personal property subject to taxation shall be assessed at the full value thereof, provided, however, that the owner of personal property shall be allowed a deduction from the full value of all his taxable personal property to the extent of the just debts owing by him but no such deduction shall be allowed by reason of the indebtedness of the owner contracted or incurred in the purchase of non-taxable property or securities owned by him or held for his benefit, nor for or on account of any indirect liability as surety, guarantor, indorser or otherwise, nor for or on account of any debt or liability contracted or incurred for the purpose of evading taxation.

§ 7. When property of nonresidents is taxable. 1. Nonresidents of the state doing business in the state, either as principals or partners, shall be taxed on the capital invested in such business, as personal property, at the place where such business is carried on, to the same extent as if they were residents of the state.

2. The personal property of non-residents of the state having an actual situs in the state, and not forming a part of capital invested in business in the state, shall be assessed in the name of the owner thereof for the purpose of identification and taxed in the tax district where such property is situated, unless exempt by law. This subdivision shall not apply to money, or negotiable collateral securities, deposited, or debts owing to, such nonresidents nor shall it be construed as in any manner modifying or changing the law imposing a tax on real estate mortgage securities.

§ 11. Place of taxation of property of corporations. The real estate of all incorporated companies liable to taxation shall be assessed in the tax district in which the same shall lie, in the same manner as the real estate of individuals. All the personal estate of every incorporated company liable to taxation on its capital shall be assessed in the tax district where the principal office or place for transacting the financial concerns of the company shall be, or if such company have no principal office, or place for transacting its financial concerns, then in the tax district where the operations of such company shall be carried on. In the case of a toll bridge, the company owning such bridge shall be assessed in the tax district in which the tolls are collected; and where the tolls of any bridge, turnpike, or canal company are collected in several tax districts, the company shall be assessed in the tax district in which the treasurer or other officer authorized to pay the last preceding dividend resides.

§ 12. Taxation of corporate stock. The capital stock of every company liable to taxation, except such part of it as shall have been excepted in the assessment-roll or shall be exempt by law, together with its surplus profits or reserve funds exceeding ten per centum of its capital, after deducting the assessed value of its real estate, and all shares of stock in other corporations actually owned by such company which are taxable upon their capital stock under the laws of this state, shall be assessed at its actual value.

§ 15. Report of exempt property. It shall be the duty of the board of assessors of the several towns of this state, and the boards or officials charged with the duty of assessing property for the purposes of taxation in the several cities of the state, to furnish to the clerks of the boards of supervisors of their respective counties, or in the case of the city of New York, to the city clerk of that city, on or before the first day of September in each year, a full and complete list and statement of all property situated within their respective districts exempt or partially exempt from taxation under the laws of this state. Such list and statement shall be made on blanks furnished by the tax commission, and in such form and to contain and set forth all the information relative to such property and the situation and value thereof, as may be required by the tax commission, and to be verified in the same manner as assessments of property for the purposes of taxation, and in the city of New York by the chief deputy of the department of taxes and assessments. The tax commission shall prepare and transmit to the clerk of the board of supervisors in each county and to the city clerk of the city of New York, a sufficient number of such blanks, on or before the first day of June in each year, and the clerks of the boards of supervisors and the city clerk of the city of New York shall forthwith, upon the receipt thereof, distribute the same among the boards of assessors for use in preparing the statement herein required. And it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of supervisors of each county and of the city clerk of the city of New York, to transmit such completed lists or statements to the tax commission, on or before the first day of October in each year, and the tax commission shall tabulate such statements, and cause to be published in their annual report to the legislature, a complete tabulated statement, based upon the statements so transmitted to the tax commission, of all real estate in the several counties of the state which is exempt or partially exempt from taxation. Immediately upon the receipt of the completed reports by the various clerks of the boards of supervisors, and the city clerk of the city of New York, those officials shall prepare a tabulated statement of the returns received and shall post a copy thereof in a conspicuous place, and in all cities of the state cause a copy thereof to be published in the official paper or papers of said city twice, with an interval between publications of three weeks, except such cities which publish a complete assessment-roll. The expense of such publication shall be a city charge and shall be audited and paid in the same manner as charges for other city notices are audited and paid.

§ 20. Ascertaining facts for assessment. The assessors in each tax district shall annually between January first and July first, ascertain by diligent inquiry all the property and the names of all the persons taxable therein. The comptroller shall on or about April fifteenth in each year transmit to the assessors of each tax district a statement of all lands owned by the state in such district, and such statement shall be used by the assessors in making up their assessment-rolls and shall be considered by them as their authority to assess to the state such of the lands described thereon as are legally subject to taxation.

§ 21. Preparation of assessment-roll. 1. The assessors shall prepare an assessment-roll or rolls, the form of which shall be prescribed or approved by the tax commission, so classified and arranged with respect to number of parts and number of columns in each part and with such entries and descriptions as shall be sufficient to identify each separately assessed parcel or portion of real estate with the approximate quantity of the square feet, square rods or acres contained in such parcel or portion or a statement of the linear dimensions thereof; each special franchise and the names of all persons and corporations taxable on personal property, capital stock or capital invested in business and bank stock. Assessments of real property, other than special franchises, shall be carried in a separate part of the roll from the assessments of personal property.

2. The form of assessment-roll prescribed or approved by the tax commission shall provide for the indication thereon, in appropriate columns, of the name of the village, if in a village, the number of the school districts and the name or number of any special district in which a special tax is levied for district purposes, in which each parcel or portion of real property and each special franchise described on such roll is situated or in which each person or corporation subject to taxation for personal property in the tax district pursuant to this chapter, resides, carries on business, has its principal place of business or in which its operations are carried on or where the personal property is located, as the case may be, and shall also provide for the entry of the assessments of real property, special franchises and personal property respectively, made pursuant to the chapter, and of the apportionments made pursuant to section forty of this chapter.

3. In all cities there shall be an additional column in the assessment-roll before the column in which is set down the value of real property, and in such additional column there shall be set down the value of the land exclusive of the buildings thereon. The total assessment only can be reviewed.

4. When a tax map has been approved by the tax commission, reference to the lot, block and section number or other identification numbers of any parcel on said map shall be deemed a sufficient description of said parcel on the assessment-roll.

5. A separate part shall be provided for the listing of property that is entirely exempt from taxation. If the property is partially exempt it shall be listed with the taxable property.

6. Provision shall also be made thereon for the entry of the amount of tax levied for state, county, city, town, highway or special district purposes, against each parcel or portion of real property, each special franchise and each person or corporation for personal property, together with the date of payment thereof and such other items and details as may be required.

7. The tax commission shall adopt regulations and rules for the preparation and use of the assessment-roll and shall advise with and instruct boards of assessors and other officers as to their duties in respect thereto.

§ 27. Reports of corporations. The president or other proper officer of every moneyed or stock corporation deriving an income or profit from its capital or otherwise shall, on or before June first, deliver to one of the assessors of the tax district in which the company is liable to be taxed a written statement in the form prescribed by the tax commission specifying:

1. The real property, if any, owned by such company, the tax district in which the same is situated and, unless a railroad corporation, the sums actually paid therefor.

2. The capital stock actually paid in and secured to be paid in, excepting therefrom the sums paid for real property and the amount of such capital stock held by the state and by any incorporated literary or charitable institution, and

3. The tax district in which the principal office of the company is situated or in case it has no principal office, the tax district in which its operations are carried on.

Such statement shall be verified by an officer of the corporation making the report to the effect that it is in all respects just and true. If such statement is not made within twenty days after the first day of June, or is insufficient, evasive or defective, the assessors may compel the corporation to make a proper statement by mandamus.

§ 28. Penalty for omission to make statement. In case of neglect to furnish such statements within thirty days after the time above provided, the company so neglecting shall forfeit to the people of this state for each statement so omitted to be furnished, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute for such penalty upon information which shall be furnished him by the tax commission. Upon such statement being furnished and the costs of the suit being paid, the tax commission, if it shall be satisfied that such omission was not wilful, may, in its discretion, discontinue such suit.

§ 29. County clerks to furnish data respecting corporations. Between the first and fifteenth days of June in each year the county clerk in each county of the state, excepting counties wholly situate within the corporate limits of a city, shall prepare from the records in his office and mail to each of the city and town clerks in his said county, a certified statement containing the names of every stock corporation, whose certificate of incorporation has been filed with him since his last preceding annual statements to said several city and town clerks, whose principal business office or chief place of business is designated in its certificate of incorporation as being in such city or town or in any village or hamlet therein, together with the fact of such designation and the names and addresses of the directors of each such corporation so far as said county clerk can discover the same from the certificate of incorporation or from the latest certificate of election of directors of such corporation filed in his office. Each city or town clerk receiving such statement shall forthwith file the same in his office and mail a notice of such filing to each of the assessors of his city or town.

§ 32. Corporations, how assessed. The assessors shall assess corporations liable to taxation in their respective tax districts upon their assessment-rolls in the following manner:

1. In the first column the name of each corporation, and under its name the amount of its capital stock paid in and secured to be paid in; the amount paid by it for real property then owned by it wherever situated; the amount of all surplus profits or reserve funds exceeding ten per centum of its capital, after deducting therefrom the amount of said real property and the amount of its stock, if any, belonging to the state and to incorporated literary and charitable institutions.

2. In the second column the quantity of real property except special franchises owned by such corporation and situated within their tax district.

3. In the third column the actual value of such real property, except special franchises.

4. In the fourth column the amount of the capital stock paid in and secured to be paid in, and of all of such surplus profits or reserve funds as aforesaid, after deducting the sums paid out for all the real estate of the company, wherever the same may be situated, and then belonging to it, and the amount of stock, if any belonging to the people of the state and to incorporated literary and charitable institutions.

5. In the fifth column the value of any special franchise owned by it as fixed by the state board of tax commissioners.

§ 34. Assessment of omitted property. The assessors of any tax district shall, upon their own motion, or upon the application of any taxpayer therein, enter in the assessment-roll of the current year any property shown to have been omitted from the assessment-roll of the preceding year, at the valuation of that year, or if not then valued, at such valuation as the assessors shall determine for the preceding year. Assessments of special franchises that were omitted shall be entered at the valuation fixed and equalized by the tax commission.

§ 36. Notice of completion of assessment-roll. The assessors shall complete the assessment-roll on or before the first day of August, and make out a copy thereof, to be left with one of their number, and forthwith cause a notice to be conspicuously posted in three or more public places in the tax district, stating that they have completed the assessment-roll, and that a copy thereof has been left with one of their number at a specified place, where it may be seen and examined by any person until the third Tuesday of August next following, and that on that day they will meet at a time and place specified in the notice to review their assessments. In any city the notice shall conform to the requirements of the law regulating the time, place and manner of revising assessments in such city. During the time specified in the notice the assessor with whom the roll is left shall submit it to the inspection of every person applying for that purpose.

§ 36-a. Completion of assessment-roll; notice to non-residents. The assessors shall between the first and fifth day of August mail a notice to each person and corporation non-resident of their tax district, who has filed with the city or town clerk, on or before the fifteenth day of June preceding, a written demand therefor. Such notice shall specify each parcel or portion of real property separately assessed to said non-resident person or corporation and the assessed valuation thereof. Upon application made on or before the third Tuesday of August by any non-resident owner of real estate, or by a corporation, having real property in more than one tax district in the county, the assessors shall fix a time subsequent to the third Tuesday in August, but not later than the thirty-first day of August, for a hearing and to review their assessment.

§ 37. Hearing of complaints. The assessors shall meet at the time and place specified in such notice, and hear and determine all complaints in relation to such assessments brought before them, and for that purpose they may adjourn from time to time. Such complainants shall file with the assessors a statement, under oath, specifying the respect in which the assessment complained of is incorrect, which statement must be made by the person assessed or whose property is assessed, or by some person authorized to make such statement, and who has knowledge of the facts stated therein. The assessors may administer oaths, take testimony and hear proofs in regard to any such complaint and the assessment to which it relates. If not satisfied that such assessment is erroneous, they may require the person assessed, or his agent or representative, or any other person, to appear before them and be examined concerning such complaint, and to produce any papers relating to such assessment with respect to his property or his residence for the purpose of taxation. The assessors shall, after said examination, fix the value of the property of the complainant and for that purpose may increase or diminish the assessment thereof. If any such person, or his agent or representative, shall wilfully neglect or refuse to attend and be so examined, or to answer any material question put to him, such person shall not be entitled to any reduction of his assessments. Minutes of the examination of every person examined by the assessors upon the hearing of any such complaint shall be taken and filed in the office of the town or city clerk.

§ 38. Correction and verification of tax-roll. When the assessors or a majority of them shall have completed their roll, they shall severally appear before any officer of their county authorized by law to administer oaths and shall severally make and subscribe before such officer an oath in the following form: "We, the undersigned, do severally depose and swear that we have set down in the foregoing assessment-roll all the real estate situated in the tax district in which we are assessors, according to our best information; and that, with the exception of those cases in which the value of the said real estate has been changed by reason of proof produced before us, and with the exception of those cases in which the value of any special franchise has been fixed by the state tax commission, we have estimated the value of the said real estate at the sums which a majority of the assessors have decided to be the full value thereof; and, also, that the said assessment-roll contains a true statement of the aggregate amount of the taxable personal estate of each and every person named in such roll over and above the amount of debts due from such persons, respectively, and excluding such stocks as are otherwise taxable, and such other property as is exempt by law from taxation, at the full value thereof, according to our best judgment and belief," which oath shall be written or printed on said roll, signed by the assessors and certified by the officer.

§ 39. Filing of roll and notice thereof. In cities the assessment-roll when thus finally completed and verified shall be filed on or before September first, in the office of the city clerk, there to remain for fifteen days for public inspection. The assessors shall forthwith cause a notice to be posted conspicuously in at least three public places in the tax district and to be published in one or more newspapers, if any, published in the city, that such assessment-roll has been finally completed and stating that it has been so filed and will be open to public inspection. At the expiration of such fifteen days, the city clerk shall deliver such roll to a supervisor of the tax district embraced therein. In towns assessors shall prepare and verify the assessment-roll, and make and certify one copy thereof. When the assessment-roll shall have been thus finally completed and verified, and the copy thereof certified the assessors shall, on or before the fifteenth day of September, file the said certified copy in the office of the town clerk, to remain for public inspection until delivered by the town clerk to the supervisor of the town as hereinafter provided. The assessors shall forthwith cause a notice to be posted conspicuously in at least three public places in the tax district and to be published in one or more newspapers, if any, published in the town, that such assessment-roll has been finally completed and stating that such certified copy has been so filed. The original assessment-roll shall on or before the first day of October be delivered by the assessors to a supervisor of the tax district embraced therein. The certified copy of the assessment-roll on file in the town clerk's office, as heretofore provided, shall on the first day of November be delivered by the town clerk to a supervisor of the tax district embraced therein who shall make such corrections as may be made in the original roll by the board of supervisors and shall extend the tax thereon so that such roll shall be in all respects a copy of the original roll delivered to the collector and said certified copy shall thereafter be returned by the supervisor to the office of the town clerk there to remain as a public record. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, the board of supervisors of any county may require additional copies of the assessment-rolls of the towns of such county to be made, and specify by whom such additional copies shall be made, the date when the certified copy of the town assessment-roll shall be filed in the office of the town clerk, and the date when the original assessment-roll shall be delivered to the supervisor of the town. [L. 1918, c. 279.]

§ 40. Assessors to apportion valuation of railroad, telegraph, telephone, pipe line, water or gas companies and of special franchises among school and special districts. The assessors of each town or city in which a railroad, telegraph, telephone, water pipe line, or gas company, including a company engaged in the business of supplying natural gas, is assessed by them or by the tax commission upon property lying in more than one school district or in one or more special districts in which a tax is levied for district purposes shall after the time fixed for hearing complaints and action thereon and prior to the final completion of the roll, pursuant to section thirty-nine of this chapter, apportion the assessed valuation of the property of each of such corporations so made by them or by the tax commission among such school and special districts. Such apportionments shall be entered by the assessors in the appropriate column of the assessment-roll and a certificate thereof signed by the assessors or a majority of them shall be filed with the town or city clerk within five days thereafter, and thereupon the valuations so apportioned shall become the valuations of such property in such districts for the purpose of taxation for the ensuing year. The town clerk shall furnish the trustees of school districts a certified statement of the valuations apportioned to their respective districts.

In case of the failure of the assessors to act, a supervisor of the town or city shall make such apportionment on request of either the trustee of any school district or the officers of any special district or the corporation assessed. In case of any alteration in any school district affecting the valuation of such property, the officer making the same shall fix and determine the valuations in the districts affected for the current year.

§ 41. Neglect or omission of duty by assessors. The assessors, in the execution of their duties, shall use the forms and follow the instructions and orders transmitted to them, from time to time, by the tax commission. If any assessor shall neglect or omit to perform any duty, the other assessors shall perform such duty and shall certify upon the assessment-roll the name of the delinquent assessor, stating therein the cause of such omission, and the assessment-roll, when otherwise made and completed in accordance with the requirements of or under this chapter shall be deemed to be the assessment-roll of the tax district. If the assessors shall neglect to meet for the purpose of hearing grievances any person aggrieved by the assessment may appeal to the board of supervisors at its next meeting, which shall have the same power to review and correct such assessment as the assessors have under this article. If any assessor shall refuse or neglect to perform any duty or do any act required of him by this chapter, he shall forfeit to the tax district the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by the tax commission.

§ 44. Special franchise report to tax commission. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation subject to taxation on a special franchise, shall, within thirty days after such special franchise is acquired, make a written report to the tax commission containing a full description of every special franchise possessed or enjoyed by such person, copartnership, association or corporation, a copy of the special law, grant, ordinance or contract under which the same is held, or if possessed or enjoyed under a general law, a reference to such law, a statement of any condition, obligation or burden imposed upon such special franchise, or under which the same is enjoyed, together with any other information relating to the value of such special franchise, required by the tax commission. The tax commission may require an annual report and from time to time a further or supplemental report from any such person, copartnership, association or corporation containing information and data upon such matters as it may specify. Every report required by this section shall have annexed thereto the affidavit of the president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer of the association or corporation, or one of the persons or one of the members of the copartnership making the same, to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. Such commission may prepare blanks to be used in making the reports required by this section. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation failing to make the report required by this section, or failing to make any special report required by the tax commission within a reasonable time specified by it, shall forfeit to the people of the state the sum of one hundred dollars for every such failure and the additional sum of ten dollars for each day that such failure continues, and shall not be entitled to review the assessment by certiorari, as provided by section forty-six of this chapter. Acknowledgment of receipt of blank reports which contain the penalty provisions of this section shall be deemed sufficient notice of such penalties.

§ 45. Special franchise; full valuation and equalization by tax commission. The tax commission shall annually fix and determine the full and actual valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment in each city, town or village; shall inquire into and ascertain as near as may be the percentage of the full and actual value at which other real property in the city, town or village for which such full valuation has been made, is being assessed, and by the rate of equalization so established fix and determine the equalized valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment.

§ 45-a. Hearing on special franchise valuations; notice. On determining the full and actual valuation of a special franchise and the rate of equalization thereof the tax commission shall immediately give notice in writing to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected, and to each city, town or village in which such special franchise is subject to assessment, stating in substance that such determinations have been made and the total full and actual valuation and the rate of equalization thereof in each city, town and village, and that the commission will meet at its office in the city of Albany on a day specified in such notice, to hear and determine any complaint concerning such full valuation and the rate of equalization. Such notice must be served at least ten days before the day fixed for the hearing; and it may be served on a copartnership, association or corporation by mailing a copy thereof to it at its principal office or place of business and on a person, either personally or by mailing it to him at his place of business or last known place of residence. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of such special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. Section thirty-seven of this chapter applies so far as practicable to a hearing by the tax commission under this section.

§ 45-b. Special franchises; determination of final full and equalized valuation. After hearing complaints as to such valuation and rate of equalization of the special franchise the commission shall fix and determine the final full value of each special franchise and ascertain the final rate of equalization and equalize the final full value of each special franchise to such an amount as in its judgment will place the special franchise on the same basis as the assessment of other real property in the city, town or village in which the special franchise is located. In ascertaining the basis of assessment of other real property or determining the final full and actual valuation of a special franchise, the tax commission may, in its discretion, take testimony and hear proof, under oath or otherwise, and may avail itself of all information on the subject appearing of record in its office and all information which it may acquire in the discharge of its duties, and may employ its experts, agents or other persons in procuring any information it may require for such purpose.

§ 45-c. Certificate of special franchise valuations filed with localities. After determining the final full and equalized valuation of a special franchise the tax commission shall file with the clerk of the city, town or village in which such special franchise is subject to assessment, a written statement duly certified by the secretary of the commission of the valuation of each special franchise assessed therein as finally fixed and equalized. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of each special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. In the city of New York said statement shall be filed with the department of taxes and assessments. Such statement shall be filed with the clerk of the village not later than the first day of October and with the clerk of the city, or the department of taxes and assessments in the city of New York, not later than thirty days before the final completion, verification and filing of the assessment-roll. The statement of special franchise valuations in towns shall be made in duplicate, one copy to be filed with the town clerk not later than August first, and the other copy with the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county not later than September first.

It shall be the duty of city, town and village clerks within five days after the final completion and filing of the assessment-roll, and the first posting or publication of the notice thereof as required by law in their respective municipal corporations and of the clerks of the boards of supervisors in each county within five days after the final revision of the assessment-roll and the annexation of the warrant thereto to furnish the tax commission with said date or dates.

Each city clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of the equalized valuations of a special franchise as fixed by the tax commission, deliver a copy of such statement certified by him to the assessors or other officers charged with the duty of making local assessments in said city. Each town clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of equalized valuations, deliver copies of such statement certified by him to the supervisor of the town, and to the assessors of the town for which the assessments have been made. Each village clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of equalized valuations, deliver copies of such statement certified by him to the assessors, if any, and if not to the trustees of the village for which the assessments have been made.

The final equalized valuation of every special franchise in a city, town or village as so fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be entered by the assessors or other officers thereof in the proper part of the assessment-roll before the final revision and certification of such roll by them and become a part thereof with the same force and effect as if such assessment had been originally made by such assessors.

§ 45-d. Special franchise; certification of final valuations to owners. The tax commission, on filing said statement of the final equalized valuation of a special franchise, shall give to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected written notice thereof, which notice shall contain a statement of the full and actual value of such special franchise as finally fixed and determined and the amount to which it has been equalized. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of each special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. Such notice may be served on a copartnership, association or corporation affected by mailing a copy thereof to it at its principal office or place of business, and on a person either personally or by mailing it to him at his place of business or last known place of residence.

§ 45-e. Special franchise assessments subject to all taxes. The final equalized valuation of every special franchise as fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be the assessed valuation on which all taxes, based on such special franchise for state, county, city, town, village, school, highway or other district purposes shall be levied for the ensuing year.

§ 45-f. Information by local officers. The assessors or other taxing officers, or other local officers in any city, town or village or district, or any state or county officer, shall on demand furnish to the tax commission any information required by them for the purpose of determining the full and equalized value of a special franchise.

It shall be the duty of city, town, and village clerks within twenty days after the taking effect of any law changing the boundaries of their respective municipal corporations to furnish the tax commission with a statement giving the details of and clearly showing said changes. Upon the granting of any franchise to use the streets, highways, public places or public waters by the proper officers of any city, town or village, it shall be the duty of the respective clerks of said municipalities to furnish a copy of the same to the tax commission.

§ 46. Certiorari to review assessment. An assessment of a special franchise by the tax commission may be reviewed in the manner prescribed by article thirteen of this chapter, and that article applies so far as practicable to such an assessment, in the same manner and with the same force and effect as if the assessment had been made by local assessors; a petition for a writ of certiorari to review the assessment must be presented within fifteen days after the final completion and filing of the assessment-roll, and the first posting or publication of the notice thereof as required by law. Such writ must run to and be answered by said tax commission and no writ of certiorari to review any assessment of a special franchise shall run to any other board or officer unless otherwise directed by the court or judge granting the writ. In cities a copy of said writ and the petition for same shall be furnished to the corporation counsel or other law officer. An adjudication made in the proceeding instituted by such writ of certiorari shall be binding upon the local assessors and any ministerial officer who performs any duty in the collection of the taxes levied upon said assessment in the same manner as though said local assessors or officers had been parties to the proceeding. [L. 1918, c. 278.]

§ 47. Tax commissioner to appear by counsel; employment of experts. In any proceeding for the review of an assessment of a special franchise made by the state board of tax commissioners or the tax commission, said tax commission is authorized to appear by counsel to be designated by the attorney-general. The attorney-general or such counsel may employ experts and the compensation of such counsel and experts and their necessary and proper expenses and disbursements, incurred or made in such proceeding, and upon any appeal therein, shall when audited and allowed as are other charges against such tax district, be a charge upon the tax district upon whose rolls appears the assessment sought to be reviewed. Where, in one proceeding, there is reviewed the assessment of a special franchise in more than one tax district, separate accounts shall be rendered for said costs, expenses and disbursements to the proper officer of each of said tax districts and audited and allowed by him as aforesaid. For the purposes of this section, the city of New York shall be deemed one tax district. If provision shall not have been made for the payment of such expense in any year, then the officers who are empowered by law to make such provisions in any county, city, town or other political subdivision of the state, are hereby authorized and directed to raise money to such an amount as may be necessary, in any manner provided by law for meeting expenses in anticipation of the collection of taxes and to pay such expense therefrom. The amount so raised shall be included in the amount to be raised by tax in the ensuing year.

§ 48. Deduction from special franchise tax for local purposes. If, when the tax assessed on any special franchise is due and payable under the provisions of law applicable to the city, town or village in which the tangible property is located, it shall appear that the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected has paid to such city, town or village for its exclusive use within the next preceding year, under any agreement therefor, or under any statute requiring the same, any sum based upon a percentage of gross earnings, or any other income, or any license fee, or any sum of money on account of such special franchise, granted to or possessed by such person, copartnership, association or corporation, which payment was in the nature of a tax, all amounts so paid for the exclusive use of such city, town or village except money paid or expended for paving or repairing of pavement of any street, highway or public place, and except in a city of the first class car license fees or tolls paid for the privilege of crossing a bridge owned by the city, shall be deducted from any tax based on the assessment made by the state tax commission for city, town or village purposes, but not otherwise; and the remainder shall be the tax on such special franchise payable for city, town or village purposes. The chamberlain or treasurer of a city, the treasurer of a village, the supervisor of a town, or other officer to whom any sum is paid for which a person, copartnership, association or corporation is entitled to credit as provided in this section, shall not less than five nor more than twenty days before a tax on a special franchise is payable, make and deliver to the collector or receiver of taxes or other officer authorized to receive taxes for such city, town or village, his certificate showing the several amounts which have been paid during the year ending on the day of the date of the certificate. On the receipt of such certificate the collector, receiver or other officer shall immediately credit on the tax-roll to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected the amount stated in such certificate, on any tax levied against such person, copartnership, association or corporation on an assessment of a special franchise for city, town or village purposes only, but no credit shall be given on account of such payment or certificate in any other year, nor for a greater sum than the amount of the special franchise tax for city, town or village purposes, for the current year; and he shall collect and receive the balance, if any, of such tax as required by law.

§ 49. Tax on special franchise not to affect other taxes. The imposition or payment of a tax on a special franchise as provided in this chapter shall not relieve any association, copartnership or corporation from the payment of any organization tax or franchise tax or any other tax otherwise imposed by article nine of this chapter, or by any other provision of law; but tangible property situated in, upon, under or above any street, highway, public place, or public waters, subject to tax as special franchise as described in subdivision six of section two, shall not be taxable except upon the assessment made as herein provided by the tax commission.

§ 180. Organization tax. Every stock corporation incorporated under any law of this state shall pay to the state treasurer a tax of one-twentieth of one per centum upon the amount of capital stock which the corporation is authorized to have, and a like tax upon any subsequent increase. Provided, that in no case shall such tax be less than ten dollars. Such tax shall be due and payable upon the incorporation of such corporation or upon the increase of its capital stock. Except in the case of a railroad corporation neither the secretary of state nor the county clerk shall file any certificate of incorporation or article of association, or give any certificate to any such corporation or association until he is furnished a receipt for such tax from the state treasurer, and no stock corporation shall have or exercise any corporate franchise or powers, or carry on business in this state until such tax shall have been paid. And in case of a decrease of capital stock, upon which the tax required by law has been paid, and a subsequent increase thereof, a tax shall be paid only upon so much of such increase as exceeds the amount of capital stock upon which a tax has been before paid. In case of the consolidation of existing corporations into a corporation, such new corporation shall be required to pay the tax hereinbefore provided for only upon the amount of its capital stock in excess of the aggregate amount of capital stock of said corporations. This section shall not apply to state and national banks or to building, mutual loan, accumulating fund and co-operative associations. A railroad corporation need not pay such tax at the time of filing its certificate of incorporation, but shall pay the same before the public service commission shall grant a certificate, as required by the railroad law, authorizing the construction of the road as proposed in its articles of association, and such certificate shall not be granted by the public service commission until it is furnished with a receipt for such tax from the state treasurer. If the board of railroad commissioners or public service commission shall have heretofore granted or the public service commission shall hereafter grant, such certificate and upon an appeal from the determination of such board of railroad commissioners or public service commission, such certificate has been or may hereafter be denied the state treasurer shall refund the amount of tax so paid to the railroad corporation or corporations by which such tax was paid, upon proof of payment being presented and appropriation being made therefor.

§ 181. License tax on foreign corporations. Every foreign corporation, except banking corporations, fire, marine, casualty and life insurance companies, co-operative fraternal insurance companies, and building and loan associations, doing business in this state, shall pay to the state treasurer, for the use of the state, a license fee of one-eighth of one per centum for the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises or carrying on its business in such corporate or organized capacity in this state, to be computed upon the basis of the capital stock employed by it within this state, during the first year of carrying on its business in this state; which first payment shall not be less than ten dollars; and if any year thereafter any such corporation shall employ more than eight thousand dollars of its capital stock within this state on which a license fee has not been paid then a license fee at the rate of one-eighth of one per centum shall be due and payable upon any such increase. The measure of the amount of capital stock employed in this state shall be such a portion of the issued capital stock as the gross assets employed in any business within this state bear to the gross assets wherever employed in business. For purposes of taxation, the capital of the corporation invested in the stock of another corporation shall be deemed to be assets located where the physical property represented by such stock is located. The amount of capital upon which such license fees shall be paid shall be fixed by the state tax commission, which shall have the same authority to examine the books and records in this state of such foreign corporations, and the employees thereof as it has in the case of domestic corporations and the comptroller shall have the same power to issue his warrant for the collection of such license fees, as he now has with regard to domestic corporations. No action shall be maintained or recovery had in any of the courts in this state by such foreign corporation after thirteen months from the time of beginning such business within the state, without obtaining a receipt from the comptroller for the payment of the license fee upon the capital stock employed by it within this state during the first year of carrying on its business in this state.

§ 182. Franchise tax on corporations. For the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises in this state every domestic corporation, joint stock company or association, and for the privilege of doing business in this state, every foreign corporation, joint stock company or association, shall pay to the state treasurer annually, in advance, an annual tax to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock, employed during the preceding year within this state, and upon each dollar of such amount. The measure of the amount of capital stock employed in this state shall be such a portion of the issued capital stock as the gross assets employed in any business within this state bear to the gross assets wherever employed in business. For purposes of taxation, the capital of a corporation invested in the stock of another corporation shall be deemed to be assets located where the physical property represented by such stock is located. If the dividends upon the capital stock amount to six, or more than six per centum upon the par value of the capital stock, during any year ending with the thirty-first day of October, the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of dividends made or declared upon the par value of the capital stock during said year. If such dividend or dividends amount to less than six per centum on the par value of the capital stock, and

- (1) The assets do not exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, or
- (2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year did not equal or exceed its par value, or
- (3) If no dividend was declared,

Then each dollar of the amount of capital stock employed in this state, determined as hereinbefore provided, shall be taxed at the rate of three-fourths of one mill. If such dividend or dividends amount to less than six per centum on the par value of the capital stock, and

(1) The assets exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, by an amount equal to or greater than the par value of the capital stock, or

(2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year is equal to or greater than the par value.

Then the amount of capital stock, determined as hereinbefore provided to be employed in this state, shall be taxed at the rate of one and one-half mills on each dollar of the valuation of the capital stock employed in this state, but such valuation shall not be less than

(1) The par value of such stock,

(2) The difference between the assets and liabilities, exclusive of capital stock,

(3) The average price at which such stock sold during said year.

If such corporation, joint stock company or association shall have more than one kind of capital stock, and upon one of such kinds of stock a dividend or dividends amounting to six or more than six per centum upon the par value thereon, has been made or declared, and upon the other no dividend has been made or declared, or the dividend or dividends made or declared thereon amount to less than six per centum upon the par value thereof, then the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of dividends made or declared upon the capital stock upon the par value of which the dividend or dividends made or declared amount to six or more than six per centum, and in addition thereto a tax shall be charged upon the capital stock

(1) Upon which no dividend was made or declared, or

(2) Upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum upon the par value

At the rate as hereinbefore provided for the taxation of capital stock upon which no dividend was made or declared, or upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum on the par value.

All corporations not taxable under the preceding paragraphs of this section shall be taxed in an amount not less than would be produced by an assessment of one and one-half mills on each one dollar of the actual value of its capital stock, determined to be employed in this state as hereinbefore provided, or one and one-half mills upon each dollar of such capital stock at the average price at which said stock sold during the said year.

§ 195. Powers of tax commission to examine into affairs of corporations. In case any report required by any of the preceding sections of this article shall be unsatisfactory to the commission, or if any such report is not made as herein required, the commission is authorized to make an estimate of the dividends paid by such corporation and the value of the capital stock employed by it, from any such report or from any other data, and to order and state an account according to the estimate and value so made by it for the taxes, percentage and interest due the state from such corporation, association, joint-stock company, person or partnership. Such expenses shall be fixed and adjusted by the commission.

§ 196. Notice of statement of tax; interest. Upon auditing and stating every account for taxes under this article, the commission shall forthwith send notice thereof in writing to the person, partnership, company, association or corporation against whom the same is made, which notice may be mailed to the post-office address of such person, partnership, association, company or corporation. All accounts so audited and stated shall bear interest upon the total amount found due thereon to the state, for taxes, percentage, interest and other charges, from the expiration of thirty days after sending such notice until payment thereof shall be made and shall be added thereto and collected therewith by the comptroller.

§ 197. Payment of tax and penalty for failure. A tax imposed by section one hundred and eighty-two or one hundred and eighty-six of this chapter shall be due and payable into the state treasury on or before the fifteenth day of January in each year. If such tax in any case is not paid within thirty days after the same becomes due, or if the report of any such corporation is not made within the time required by this article, the corporation, association, joint-stock company, person or partnership, liable to pay the tax, shall pay into the state treasury, in addition to the amount of such tax, a sum equal to five per centum thereof, and one per centum additional for each month the tax remains unpaid, which sum shall be added to the tax and paid or collected therewith. Every corporation, association, joint-stock company, person or partnership failing to make the annual report required by this article, or failing to make any special report required by the commission, within any reasonable time to be specified by the commission, shall forfeit to the people of the state the sum of one hundred dollars for every such failure, and the additional sum of ten dollars for each day that such failure continues. Such tax shall be a lien upon and bind all the real and personal property of the corporation, joint-stock company or association liable to pay the same from the time when it is payable until the same is paid in full.

§ 198. Revision and readjustment of accounts by tax commission. If an application be filed with the commission by the party against whom the account is stated or by the attorney-general within one year from the time any such account shall have been audited and stated, the commission may at any time, upon notice thereof sent to the person, partnership, company, association or corporation against whom it is stated, revise and readjust such account and if it shall be made to appear upon any such application, by evidence submitted to it or otherwise, that any such account included taxes or other charges which could not have been lawfully demanded, or that payment has been illegally made or exacted of any such account, the commission shall resettle the same according to law and the facts, and charge or credit, as the case may require, the difference, if any, resulting from such revision or resettlement upon the accounts for taxes of or against any such person, partnership, company, association or corporation. Such credit, whether allowed before or after the passage of this chapter may be, by the person, partnership, company, association or corporation in whose favor it is allowed, assigned to a person, partnership, company, association or corporation liable to pay taxes under article nine of this chapter, and the assignee of the whole or any part of such credit on filing with the commission such assignment shall thereupon be entitled to credit on the books of the commission for the amount thereof on the current account for taxes of such assignee in the same way and with the same effect as though the credit had originally been allowed in favor of such assignee. The commission shall forthwith send written notice of its determination upon such application to the applicant, and to the attorney-general, which notice may be sent by mail to its post-office address.

§ 199. Review of determination of tax commission by certiorari. The determination of the commission upon any application made to it by any person, partnership, company, association or corporation for a revision and resettlement of any account, as prescribed in this article, may be reviewed both upon the law and the facts upon certiorari by the supreme court at the instance of any person, partnership, company, association or corporation affected thereby, and in the name and on behalf of the people of the state. For the purpose of such review the commission shall return, on such certiorari, the accounts and all the evidence before it on such application, and all the papers and proofs upon the original statement of such account and all proceedings thereon. If the original or resettled accounts shall be found erroneous or illegal, either in point of law or of fact, by the supreme court, upon any such review, the accounts reviewed shall then be corrected and restated, and from any determination of the supreme court upon any such review an appeal to the court of appeals may be taken by either party.

§ 200. Regulations as to such writ of certiorari. No certiorari to review any audit and statement of an account or any determination by the commission under this article shall be granted unless notice of application therefor is made within thirty days after the service of the notice of such determination. Eight days' notice shall be given to the commission of the application for such writ. The full amount of the taxes, percentage, interest and other charges audited and stated in such account must be deposited with the state treasurer before making the application and an undertaking filed with the commission, in such amount and with such sureties as a justice of the supreme court shall approve, to the effect that if such writ is dismissed or the determination of the commission affirmed, the applicant for the writ will pay all costs and charges which may accrue against him or it in the prosecution of the writ, including costs of all appeals.

§ 201. Warrant for the collection of taxes. After the expiration of thirty days from the sending by the commission of a notice of a statement of an account as provided in this article, unless the amount of such account shall have been paid or deposited with the state treasurer, if an appeal or other proceedings have been taken to review the same, and the undertaking given as provided in this article, the comptroller may issue a warrant under his hand and official seal, directed to the sheriff of any county of the state, commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the person, partnership, company, association or corporation against which such account is stated, found within his county for the payment of the amount thereof with interest thereon and costs of executing the warrant, and to return such warrant to the comptroller and pay to the state treasurer the money collected by virtue thereof, by a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from date of the warrant. Such warrant shall be a lien upon and shall bind the real and personal property of the person, partnership, company, association or corporation against which it is issued, from the time an actual levy shall be made by virtue thereof. The sheriff to whom any such warrant shall be directed shall proceed upon the same in all respects, with like effect, and in the same manner as prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgments of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the warrant, to be collected in the same manner.

§ 202. Information of delinquents. It shall be the duty of any person having knowledge of the evasion of taxation under this article by any corporation, association, joint-stock company, partnership or person liable to taxation thereunder, or any omission on their part to make the reports required by this article, to make a written report thereof to the comptroller of the state, with such information as may be in his possession as may lead to the recovery of any taxes due the state therefrom. If, in his opinion, the interests of the state require it, the comptroller may employ such person to assist in the collection and preparation of evidence and in the prosecution and trial of actions for such taxes, and so much of the same, not exceeding ten per centum thereof, as may be collected from any such delinquent corporation, association, company, partnership or person, by reason of such report and such services, as shall have been agreed upon between such person and the comptroller or attorney-general as a compensation therefor, shall be paid to such person, and nothing shall be paid to such person for such report or services unless there shall be a recovery of taxes by reason thereof.

§ 203. Action for recovery of taxes; forfeiture of charter of delinquent corporations. An action may be brought by the attorney-general, at the instance of the comptroller, in the name of the state, to recover the amount of any account audited and stated by the commission under the provisions of this article. If any such account shall remain unpaid at the expiration of one year after notice of the statement thereof has been sent as required by this article, and the comptroller is satisfied that the failure to pay the same is intentional, he shall so report to the attorney-general, who shall immediately bring an action, in the name of the people of the state, for the forfeiture of the franchise of any corporation, joint-stock company or association failing to make such payment, and if it is found that such failure was intentional, judgment shall be rendered in such action for the forfeiture of its franchise and for its dissolution, and thereafter such franchise shall be annulled.

§ 205. Exemptions from other state taxation. The personal property of every corporation, company, association or partnership, taxable under this article, other than for an organization tax, shall be exempt from assessment and taxation upon its personal property for state purposes, if all taxes due and payable under this article have been paid thereby. The personal property of a private or individual banker, actually employed in his business as such banker, shall be exempt from taxation for state purposes, if such private or individual banker shall have paid all taxes due and payable under this article. Such corporation and private or individual banker shall in no other respect be relieved from assessment and taxation by reason of the provisions of this article. The owner and holder of stock in an incorporated trust company liable to taxation under the provisions of this chapter shall not be taxed as an individual for such stock. Personal property exempted from taxation by this section shall not include shares of stock of banks and banking associations taxable under the provisions of sections twenty-four to twenty-four-g, both inclusive, of this chapter.

§ 207. Limitation of time. The provisions of the code of civil procedure relative to the limitation of time of enforcing a civil remedy shall not apply to any proceeding or action taken to levy, appraise, assess, determine or enforce the collection of any tax or penalty prescribed by this article, and this section shall be construed as having been in effect as of date of the original enactment of the corporation tax law, provided, however, that as to real estate in the hands of persons who are owners thereof who would be purchasers in good faith but for such tax or penalty, and as to the lien on real estate of mortgages held by persons who would be holders thereof in good faith but for such tax or penalty, all taxes and penalties which have prior to April first, nineteen hundred and seventeen become due and payable pursuant to this article, and which have not been referred to the attorney-general pursuant to section two hundred and three of this chapter, shall cease to be a lien on such real estate as against such purchasers or holders, after the expiration of ten years from the time when such tax became due and payable.

Real property and tangible personal property shall be taken at its actual value where located. The value of share stock of another corporation owned by a corporation liable hereunder shall for purposes of allocation of assets be apportioned in and out of the state in accordance with the value of the physical property in and out of the state representing such share stock.

It is further provided that every domestic corporation exercising its franchise in this state and every foreign corporation doing business in this state, other than those exempted by section two hundred and ten of this chapter, shall be subject to a minimum tax of not less than ten dollars and not less than one mill upon each dollar of the apportionment of the face value of its issued capital stock apportioned to this state, which shall be determined by dividing the amount of the real and tangible personal property in this state by the entire amount of the real and tangible personal property as shown in the report, and multiplying the quotient by the face value of the issued capital stock. If such a corporation has stock without par value, then the base of the tax shall be on such a portion of its paid in capital as its real and tangible personal property in this state bears to its entire real and tangible personal property. [L. 1918, c. 417.]

§ 214-a. Taxation of merged or consolidated corporations. If any corporation shall take over by merger or consolidation the assets or franchise of another corporation doing business in this state during the year ending with the thirty-first day of October, such corporation shall make a consolidated report for all the corporations so merged or consolidated as though the merged or consolidated corporation had existed and done business as an entity throughout the year for which the report is made and shall be taxed for the year to ensue upon the basis of such report, and as hereinbefore provided in this article. [L. 1918, c. 292, which says section "shall be construed as having been in effect as of the date of the original enactment of article nine-a of the tax law, as added by chapter 726, L. 1917."]

§ 215. Rate of tax. The tax imposed by this article shall be at the rate of three per centum of the net income of the corporation or portion thereof taxable within the state, determined as provided by this article.

§ 216. Penalty for failure to report. Any corporation which fails to make any report required by this article shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five thousand dollars to be paid to the state, to be collected in a civil action, at the instance of the tax commission; and any officer of any such corporation who makes a fraudulent return or statement with intent to defeat or evade the payment of the taxes prescribed by this article shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars, to be collected in like manner. All moneys recovered as penalties, for a failure to report or for making fraudulent reports shall be paid to the state comptroller.

§ 217. Powers of tax commission. The tax commission may for good cause shown extend the time within which any corporation is required to report by this article. If any report required by this article be not made as herein required, the tax commission is authorized to make an estimate of the net income of such corporation and of the amount of tax due under this article, from any information in its possession, and to order and state an account according to such estimates for the taxes, penalties and interest due the state from such corporation. If the tax imposed upon any corporation under this article is based upon an estimate as provided in this section, the tax commission shall notify such corporation of a time and place at which opportunity will be given to the corporation to be heard in respect thereof. Such notice shall be mailed to the post-office address of the corporation. All the authority and powers conferred on the tax commission by the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-five of the tax law shall have full force and effect in respect of corporations which may be liable hereunder.

§ 218. Revision and readjustment of accounts by tax commission. If an application for revision be filed with the commission by a corporation against which an account is audited and stated within one year from the time any such account shall have been audited and stated, the commission shall grant a hearing thereon and if it shall be made to appear upon any such hearing by evidence submitted to it or otherwise, that any such account included taxes or other charges which could not have been lawfully demanded, or that payment has been illegally made or exacted of any such account, the commission shall resettle the same according to law and the facts, and adjust the account for taxes accordingly, and shall send notice of its determination thereon to the corporation and state comptroller forthwith.

§ 219. Review of determination of tax commission by certiorari and regulations as to writ. The determination of the commission upon any application made to it by any corporation for revision and resettlement of any account, as prescribed in this article, may be reviewed in the manner prescribed by and subject to the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-nine of this chapter. No certiorari to review any audit and statement of an account or any determination by the commission under this article shall be granted unless notice of application therefor is made within thirty days after the service of the notice of such determination. Eight days' notice shall be given to the commission of the application for such writ. The full amount of the taxes, percentage, interest and other charges audited and stated in such account must be deposited with the state comptroller before making the application and an undertaking filed with the commission, in such amount and with such sureties as a justice of the supreme court shall approve, to the effect that if such writ is dismissed or the determination of the commission affirmed, the applicant for the writ will pay all costs and charges which may accrue against it in the prosecution of the writ, including costs of all appeals. [L. 1918, c. 417.]

§ 219-a. Audit and statement of tax. On or before the first day of November in each year the tax commission shall audit and state the account of each corporation known to be liable to a tax under this article, for its preceding fiscal or the preceding calendar year, and shall compute the tax thereon and forthwith notice the same to the state comptroller for collection. The tax commission shall determine the portion of such tax to be distributed to the several counties and the amounts to be credited to the several cities or towns thereof, when the same is collected, and shall indicate such determination in noticing such tax to the state comptroller. If the corporation has real property or tangible personal property located in a village, or if it has no real or tangible personal property in the state but the office in which its principal financial concerns within the state are transacted is located in a village, the tax commission shall indicate such facts to the state comptroller, with the name of the village in which such office or property is located.

§ 219-b. Notice of tax. Every report required by section two hundred and eleven of this chapter shall contain the post-office address of the corporation and lines or spaces upon which the corporation shall enter the portion of its net income which it believes to be the basis upon which the tax shall be imposed under this article, and the amount of such tax. Notice of tax assessment shall be sent by mail to the post-office address given in the report, and the record that such notice has been sent shall be presumptive evidence of the giving of the notice and such record shall be preserved by the tax commission.

§ 219-c. When tax payable. The tax hereby imposed shall be paid to the state comptroller on or before the first day of January of each year or within thirty days after notice of the tax has been given as provided in section two hundred and nineteen-b of this chapter if such notice is given subsequent to the first day of December of the year for which such tax is imposed. If such tax be not so paid or in the case of additional taxes, if not paid within thirty days after notice of such additional tax has been given as provided in section two hundred and nineteen-d of this chapter and such notice of additional tax is given subsequent to the first day of December of the year for which such additional tax is imposed, the corporation liable to such tax shall pay to the state comptroller, in addition to the amount of such tax, or additional tax, the per centum of such amount, plus one per centum for each month the tax or additional tax remains unpaid. No such penalty or charge shall be added to the amount of such tax or additional tax imposed for the year beginning November first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, if such tax or additional tax is paid within thirty days after the passage of this act. Each such tax or additional tax shall be a lien upon and binding upon the real and personal property of the corporation liable to pay the same from the time when it is payable until the same is paid in full. [L. 1918, c. 271.]

§ 219-d. Corrections and changes. If the amount of the net income for any year of any corporation taxable under this article as returned to the United States treasury department is changed or corrected by the commissioner of internal revenue or other officer of the United States or other competent authority, such corporation, within ten days after receipt of notice of such change or correction, shall make return under oath or affirmation to the tax commission of such changed or corrected net income, and shall concede the accuracy of such determination or state wherein it is erroneous.

The tax commission shall ascertain, from such return and any other information in the possession of the commission, the net income of such corporation for the fiscal or calendar year for which such change or correction has been made by such commissioner of internal revenue or other officer or authority. All the authority conferred on the tax commission by the provisions of section one hundred and ninety-five of this chapter is hereby granted to it in respect to the ascertainment of such net income. The tax commission shall thereupon reaudit and restate the account of such corporation for taxes based upon the net income for such fiscal or calendar year, such reaudit to be according to the net income so ascertained by the tax commission. The proceedings and determination of the tax commission in the making of such reassessment may be revised and readjusted and reviewed in the manner provided by sections two hundred and eighteen and two hundred and nineteen of this chapter, as in the case of an original assessment of the tax. If from such reassessment it appears that such corporation shall have paid under this article an excess of tax for the year for which such reassessment is made, the tax commission shall return a statement of the amount of such excess to the comptroller, who shall credit such corporation with such amount. Such credit may be assigned by the corporation in whose favor it is allowed to a corporation liable to pay taxes under this article, and the assignee of the whole or any part of such credit on filing with the commission such assignment shall thereupon be entitled to credit upon the books of the comptroller for the amount thereof on the current account for taxes of such assignee in the same way and with the same effect as though the credit had originally been allowed in favor of such assignee. If from such reassessment it appears that an additional tax is due from such corporation for such year, such corporation shall, within thirty days after notice has been given as provided in section two hundred and nineteen-b of this chapter by the tax commission, pay such additional tax. [L. 1918, c. 276, which adds that this and the other sections amended by it "shall be construed as having been in effect, as so amended, as of the date of the original enactment of article nine-a of the tax law," as added by ch. 726, L. 1917].

§ 219-e. Warrant for the collection of taxes. If the tax imposed by this article be not paid within thirty days after the same becomes due, unless an appeal or other proceeding shall have been taken to review the same, the comptroller may issue a warrant under his hand and official seal directed to the sheriff of any county of the state commanding him to levy upon and sell the real and personal property of the corporation owning the same, found within his county, for the payment of the amount thereof, with the added penalties, interest and the cost of executing the warrant, and to return such warrant to the comptroller and pay to him the money collected by virtue thereof by a time to be therein specified, not less than sixty days from the date of the warrant. Such warrant shall be a lien upon and shall bind the real and personal property of the corporation against whom it is issued from the time an actual levy shall be made by virtue thereof. The sheriff to whom any such warrant shall be directed shall proceed upon the same in all respects, with like effect, and in the same manner as prescribed by law in respect to executions issued against property upon judgments of a court of record, and shall be entitled to the same fees for his services in executing the warrant, to be collected in the same manner.

§ 219-f. Action for recovery of taxes; forfeiture of charter by delinquent corporations. Action may be brought at any time by the attorney-general at the instance of the comptroller, in the name of the state, to recover the amount of any taxes, penalties and interest due under this article. If such taxes be not paid within one year after the same be due, and the comptroller is satisfied that the failure to pay the same is intentional he shall so report to the attorney-general, who shall immediately bring an action in the name of the people of the state, for the forfeiture of the charter or franchise of any corporation failing to make such payment, and if it be found that such failure was intentional, judgment shall be rendered in each action for the forfeiture of such charter and for its dissolution if a domestic corporation and if a foreign corporation for the annulment of its franchise to do business in this state.

§ 219-g. Deposit of revenues collected. The state comptroller shall deposit all taxes, interest and penalties collected under this article in responsible banks, banking houses or trust companies in the state which shall pay the highest rate of interest to the state for such deposit, to the credit of the state comptroller on account of the franchise tax. And every such bank, banking house or trust company shall execute and file in his office an undertaking to the state, in the sum, and with such sureties, as are required and approved by the comptroller, for the safe keeping and prompt payment on legal demand therefor of all such moneys held by or on deposit in such bank, banking house or trust company, with interest thereon on daily balances at such rate as the comptroller may fix. Every such undertaking shall have indorsed thereon, or annexed thereto, the approval of the attorney-general as to its form. The state comptroller shall on the first day of each month make a verified return to the state treasurer of all revenues received by him under this article during the preceding month, stating by whom and when paid, and shall credit himself with all payments made to county treasurers since his last previous return pursuant to section two hundred and nineteen-h of this chapter.

§ 219-h. Disposition of revenues collected. The state comptroller shall on or before the twenty-fifth day of each month pay into the state treasury to the credit of the general fund all interest and penalties and two-thirds of all taxes received by him under this article during the preceding calendar month, as appears from the return made by him to the state treasurer. The balance of all taxes collected and received by him under this article from any corporation, as appears from the return made by him to the state treasurer, shall, on or before the twenty-fifth day of April, July, October and January, for the quarter ending with the last day of the preceding month, be distributed and paid by him to the treasurers of the several counties of the state and disposed of by such treasurers, in accordance with the following rules:

1. If the corporation has no tangible personal property within the state, such payment shall be made to the county treasurer of the county in which is located the office at which its principal financial concerns within the state are transacted;

2. If the corporation has tangible personal property, as shown by its report pursuant to section two hundred and eleven, in but one city or town of the state, such payment shall be made to the county treasurer of the county in which such city or town is located;

3. If the corporation has tangible personal property in more than one city or town of the state, as shown by its report pursuant to section two hundred and eleven, such payment shall be made to the county treasurers of the counties in which such cities or towns are located in the proportion that the average monthly value of the tangible personal property of such corporation in the cities and towns of such county bears to the average monthly value of all its real property and tangible personal property within the state;

4. In making such payment to a county treasurer, the state comptroller shall indicate the portion thereof to be credited to any city or town within the county on account of the location therein of its principal financial office or property as determined by the preceding subdivisions, and if such principal financial office or property is located in a village shall indicate the village in which it is located; if such principal financial office or property is located in a city or town outside of a village, the whole of such portion shall be paid to such city or town as hereinafter provided; if such principal financial office or property is located in a village, there shall be paid to such village as hereinafter provided such a part of the entire amount credited to the town as the entire amount of taxes raised by said village, or portion thereof in said town, during the preceding calendar year for village and town purposes bears to the aggregate amount so raised by the town and village during the preceding calendar year for town and village purposes.

5. As to any county wholly included within a city such payment shall be made to the chamberlain or other chief fiscal officer of such city and be paid into the general fund for city purposes;

6. As to any county not wholly included within a city the county treasurer shall within ten days after the receipt thereof pay to the fiscal officer of a city or to the chief fiscal officer of a village or to the supervisor of a town the portion of a money received by him from the state comptroller to which such city, village or town is entitled, which shall be credited by such officer to general city, village or town purposes. [L. 1918, c. 417.]

§ 219-i. Secrecy required of officials; penalty for violation. 1. Except in accordance with proper judicial order or as otherwise provided by law, it shall be unlawful for any tax commissioner, agent, clerk or other officer or employee to divulge or make known in any manner the amount of income or any particulars set forth or disclosed in any report under this article. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the publication of statistics so classified as to prevent the identification of particular reports and the items thereof, or the publication of delinquent lists showing the names of taxpayers who have failed to pay their taxes at the time and in the manner provided by section two hundred and nineteen-c together with any relevant information which in the opinion of the comptroller may assist in the collection of such delinquent taxes; or the inspection by the attorney-general or other legal representatives of the state of the report of any corporation which shall bring action to set aside or review the tax based thereon, or against whom an action or proceeding has been instituted in accordance with the provisions of section two hundred and sixteen or two hundred and nineteen-f of this article.

Reports shall be preserved for three years, and thereafter until the state tax commission orders them to be destroyed.

2. Any offense against the foregoing provisions shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court and if the offender be an officer or employee of the state he shall be dismissed from office and be incapable of holding any public office in this state for a period of five years thereafter.

§ 219-j. Exemptions from certain other taxation. After this article takes effect, corporations taxable thereunder shall not be assessed on any personal property or capital stock, as provided for in section twelve of this chapter, except for taxes levied for the fiscal year ending December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, in taxing districts in which the fiscal year is coterminous with the calendar year; and where taxes are required by law to be levied for local purposes for a fiscal year beginning in nineteen hundred and seventeen and ending in nineteen hundred and eighteen, such corporations shall not be assessed on any personal property or capital stock, as provided for in section twelve of this chapter, except for taxes levied for such fiscal year.

If, in any taxing district, by reason of the provisions of this section as originally enacted by chapter seven hundred and twenty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and seventeen, the assessment of the personal property or capital stock of any such corporation has been omitted from the assessment-roll for the fiscal year specifically referred to in the first paragraph of this section, the assessors of such district shall enter the same in the assessment-roll first prepared after this act goes into effect, at the valuation of such fiscal year, or if not then valued, at such valuation as the assessors shall determine for such year. Before finally fixing such valuation the assessors shall give to such corporation a notice of at least five days and an opportunity to be heard with reference thereto. Such property shall be taxed at the rate per centum of the fiscal year in which it was omitted from the assessment-roll. The whole amount of tax so imposed on the personal property or capital stock of such corporations shall be deducted from the aggregate of taxation otherwise to be levied on such taxing district for the current year, before such tax is levied.

After this article taxes effect corporations taxable thereunder shall not be required to pay the franchise tax imposed by section one hundred and eighty-two of this chapter, or to make the reports called for in sections twenty-seven and one hundred and ninety-two of this chapter, except that, for the purpose of assessing the personal property or capital stock of such corporations as specifically provided in this section, such corporations may be required to make the report called for in such section twenty-seven. Nothing herein shall be construed to impair the obligation to pay franchise taxes due on or before the fifteenth day of January, nineteen hundred and seventeen, or taxes on personal property or capital stock assessed as specifically provided in this section, whether such taxes have been or may hereafter be assessed. But if any corporation taxed under this article shall have paid or shall hereafter pay taxes on personal property or capital stock assessed as specifically provided in this section, for any part of the calendar year nineteen hundred and eighteen, such corporation shall be entitled to credit, with interest, as hereinafter provided, for the amount of such part of the taxes so paid locally as the portion of the year nineteen hundred and eighteen for which such taxes shall have been paid bears to the entire calendar year. And if, in any taxing district, by reason of the provisions of this section as originally enacted by chapter seven hundred and twenty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and seventeen, any such corporation shall have paid or shall hereafter pay taxes on personal property or capital stock for the year ending December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, such corporation shall be entitled to credit, with interest, as hereinafter provided, for the amount of taxes so paid locally.

Such credits shall be granted by the tax commission on the submission of satisfactory proofs that the corporation is entitled thereto. The tax commission shall forthwith notify the corporation and the comptroller of any credit so granted. Such credit may be used by the corporation entitled thereto in the payment of taxes charged against it under this article, or such credit or any part thereof may be assigned by the corporation in whose favor it is allowed to a corporation liable to pay taxes under this article, and the assignee of the whole or any part of such credit on filing with the comptroller such assignment shall thereupon be entitled to credit upon the books of the comptroller for the amount thereof on the account for taxes of such assignee in the same way and with the same effect as though the credit had originally been allowed in favor of such assignee.

The comptroller is authorized and directed to charge such credits against the several taxing districts in which the taxes credited were originally paid, and to deduct such amount or amounts from any taxes thereafter found due to such taxing districts under the provisions of this article. If the amount so charged against a taxing district is in excess of the amount in the possession of the comptroller to be returned to such taxing district under this article, the comptroller shall enter such excess of credits upon his books against the state's share of the taxes collected under this article and not previously accounted for to the state treasurer. The comptroller shall advise the state treasurer of all such proceedings and shall retain from any funds subsequently found due to any such taxing district under this article a like amount which shall be deposited with the state treasurer with an accounting therefor. [L. 1918, c. 271.]

[§ 2. Section two hundred and nineteen-j of such chapter as amended by this act shall be construed as having been in effect, as so amended, as of the date of original enactment of article nine-a of the tax law, as added by chapter seven hundred and twenty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and seventeen. [L. 1918, c. 271].]

§ 219-k. Limitation of time. The provisions of the code of civil procedure relative to the limitation of time of enforcing a civil remedy shall not apply to any proceeding or action taken to levy, appraise, assess, determine or enforce the collection of any tax or penalty prescribed by this article.

§ 219-l. Personal property defined. The term "personal property," for the purposes of the exemption from assessment and taxation thereon locally as granted by section two hundred and nineteen-j of this chapter, shall include such machinery and equipment affixed to the building as would not pass between grantor and grantee as a part of the premises if not specifically mentioned or referred to in the deed, or as would, if the building were vacated or sold, or the nature of the work carried on therein changed, be moved, except boilers, ventilating apparatus, elevators, gas, electric and water power generating apparatus and shafting. An owner of a building is entitled to the same exemption under this section as a lessee and every assessment of real property made subsequent to June fourth, nineteen hundred and seventeen, shall be subject to the provisions of this section as amended hereby. [L. 1918, c. 271.]

§ 250. Definitions. The term "real property" as used in this article, in addition to the definition thereof contained in section two of this chapter, includes everything a conveyance or mortgage of which can be recorded as a conveyance or mortgage of real property under the laws of the state. The term "mortgage" as used in this article includes every mortgage or deed of trust which imposes a lien on or affects the title to real property, notwithstanding that such property may form a part of the security for the debt or debts secured thereby. Executory contracts for the sale of real property under which the vendee has or is entitled to possession shall be deemed to be mortgages for the purposes of this article and shall be taxable at the amount unpaid on such contracts. A contract or agreement by which the indebtedness secured by any mortgage is increased or added to, shall be deemed a mortgage of real property for the purpose of this article, and shall be taxable as such upon the amount of such increase or addition.

§ 251. Exemption from local taxation. All mortgages of real property situated within the state which are taxed by this article and the debts and the obligations which they secure, together with the paper writings evidencing the same, shall be exempt from other taxation by the state, counties, cities, towns, villages, school districts and other local subdivisions of the state, except that such mortgages shall not be exempt from the taxes imposed by sections twenty-four to twenty-four-g, both inclusive, one hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and eighty-eight, one hundred and eighty-nine and article ten of this chapter.

§ 252. Exemptions. No mortgage of real property situated within this state shall be exempt, and no person or corporation owning any debt or obligation secured by mortgage of real property situated within this state shall be exempt, from the taxes imposed by this article by reason of anything contained in any other statute, or by reason of any provision in any private act or charter which is subject to amendment or repeal by the legislature, or by reason of nonresidence within this state or for any other cause.

§ 253. Recording tax. A tax of fifty cents for each one hundred dollars and each remaining major fraction thereof of principal debt or obligation which is, or under any contingency may be secured at the date of the execution thereof or at any time thereafter by a mortgage on real property situated within the state recorded on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six, is hereby imposed on each such mortgage, and shall be collected and paid as provided in this article. If the principal debt or obligation which is or by any contingency may be secured by such mortgage recorded on or after the first day of July, nineteen hundred and seven, is less than one hundred dollars, a tax of fifty cents is hereby imposed on such mortgage, and shall be collected and paid as provided in this article.

§ 254. Optional tax on prior mortgages. Whenever any mortgage other than a mortgage specified in section two hundred and sixty-four has been recorded prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, the record owner thereof may file with the recording officer of the county in which the real property, or any part thereof, on which said mortgage is a lien, is situated, a written statement under oath verified by the record owner or the agent or officer of such record owner describing such mortgage by giving the date of the same and the liber and page of the record thereof together with the names of the parties thereto, specifying the amount then remaining unpaid on the debt or obligation secured thereby, and electing that it shall become subject to the tax prescribed by section two hundred and fifty-three of this chapter. Whenever any unrecorded mortgage has been executed and delivered prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, the owner thereof may record the same upon filing with the recording officer a similar statement and paying the tax as herein prescribed. A tax shall thereupon be computed, levied and collected upon the amount of the principal debt or obligation unpaid at the time of the filing of such statement, or of the recording of such mortgage and filing of such statement. On the payment of such tax as herein provided, the recording officer shall note on the margin of the record of such mortgage the fact of such statement and of the amount of the tax paid, attested by his signature, whereupon such mortgage and the debt or obligation secured thereby shall be entitled to the exemptions and immunities conferred by this article, and all of the provisions of this article shall thereafter be applicable to said mortgage. Whenever the original mortgage is presented to the clerk together with the statement he shall also note on said original mortgage the fact of the filing of the said statement and also the amount of the tax paid duly attested by his signature, which indorsement shall be conclusive evidence of the payment of such tax.

§ 255. Supplemental mortgages. If subsequent to the recording of a mortgage on which all taxes, if any, accrued under this article have been paid, a supplemental instrument or mortgage is recorded for the purpose of correcting or perfecting any recorded mortgage, or pursuant to some provision or covenant therein, or an additional mortgage is recorded imposing the lien thereof upon property not originally covered by or not described in such recorded primary mortgage for the purpose of securing the principal indebtedness which is or under any contingency may be secured by such recorded primary mortgage, such additional instrument or mortgage shall not be subject to taxation under this article, unless it creates or secures a new or further indebtedness or obligation other than the principal indebtedness or obligation secured by or which under any contingency may be secured by the recorded primary mortgage, in which case, a tax is imposed as provided by section two hundred and fifty-three of this chapter on such new or further indebtedness or obligation, and shall be paid to the proper recording officer at the time such instrument or additional mortgage is recorded. If at the time of recording such instrument, or additional mortgage any exemption is claimed under this section, there shall be filed with the recording officer and preserved in his office a statement under oath of the facts on which such claim for exemption is based. The determination of the recording officer upon the question of exemption shall be reviewable by the tax commission.

§ 256. Mortgages for indefinite amounts or for contract obligations. If the principal indebtedness secured or which by any contingency may be secured by a mortgage is not determinable from the terms of the mortgage, or if a mortgage is given to secure the performance by the mortgagor or any other person of a contract obligation other than the payment of a specific sum of money and the maximum amount secured or which by any contingency may be secured by the mortgage is not expressed therein, such mortgage shall be taxable under section two hundred and fifty-three of this chapter upon the value of the property covered by the mortgage, which shall be determined by the recording officer to whom such mortgage is presented for record, unless at the time of presenting such mortgage for record the owner thereof shall file with the recording officer a sworn statement of the maximum amount secured or which under any contingency may be secured by the mortgage. If such maximum amount is expressed in the mortgage or in a sworn statement filed as required by this section, such amount shall be the basis for assessing the tax imposed by this article. A statement filed by the owner of a mortgage pursuant to this section shall thereafter at all times be binding upon and conclusive against such owner, the holders of any bonds or obligations secured by such mortgage and all persons claiming through the mortgagee any interest in the mortgage or the mortgaged premises. If the maximum amount secured or which by any contingency may be secured by the mortgage is not expressed in the mortgage or in a sworn statement as authorized by this section, the recording officer at the time such mortgage is offered for record may require the mortgagor or mortgagee to furnish him with proofs as to such facts as he deems necessary for the purpose of computing the value of the property covered by the mortgage and such proofs shall include an affidavit of appraisal of the value of the property made by at least two competent, disinterested persons and shall be preserved in his office. His determination and copies of the proofs as to the basis for computing the tax on such mortgage shall be forwarded to and subject to review by the state tax commission. Such mortgage shall not be recorded until the statement is filed or the proofs are furnished as required by this article.

§ 257. Payment of taxes. The taxes imposed by this article shall be payable on the recording of each mortgage of real property subject to taxes thereunder. Such taxes shall be paid to the recording officer of any county in which the real property or any part thereof is situated. It shall be the duty of such recording officer to indorse upon each mortgage a receipt for the amount of the tax so paid. Any mortgage so indorsed may thereupon or thereafter be recorded by any recording officer and the receipt for such tax indorsed upon each mortgage shall be recorded therewith. The record of such receipt shall be conclusive proof that the amount of tax stated therein has been paid upon such mortgage.

§ 258. Effect of nonpayment of taxes. No mortgage of real property shall be recorded by any county clerk or register, unless there shall be paid the tax imposed by and as in this article provided. No mortgage of real property which is subject to the taxes imposed by this article shall be released, discharged or record or received in evidence in any action or proceeding, nor shall any assignment of or agreement extending any such mortgage be recorded unless the taxes imposed thereon by this article shall have been paid as provided in this article. No judgment or final order in any action or proceeding shall be made for the foreclosure or the enforcement of any mortgage which is subject to the tax imposed by this article or of any debt or obligation secured by any such mortgage, unless the taxes imposed by this article shall have been paid as provided in this article; and whenever it shall appear that any mortgage has been recorded or that any advance has been made on a prior advance mortgage or on a corporate trust mortgage without payment of the tax imposed by this article there shall be paid in addition to the amount of the tax a sum equal to one per centum thereof for each month the tax remains unpaid, which sum shall be added to the tax and paid or collected therewith.

§ 259. Trust mortgages. In the case of mortgages made by corporations in trust to secure payment of bonds or obligations issued or to be issued thereafter, if the total amount of principal indebtedness which under any contingency may be advanced or accrue or which may become secured by any such mortgage which is subject to this article has not been advanced or accrued thereon or become secured thereby before such mortgage is recorded, it may contain at the end thereof a statement of the amount which at the time of the execution and delivery thereof has been advanced or accrued thereon, or which is then secured by such mortgage; thereupon the tax payable on the recording of the mortgage shall be computed on the basis of the amount so stated to have been so advanced or accrued thereon or which is stated to be secured thereby. Such statement shall thereafter at all times be binding upon and conclusive against the mortgagee, the holders of any bonds or obligations secured by such mortgage and all persons claiming through the mortgagee any interest in the mortgage or in the mortgaged premises. Whenever a further amount is to be advanced under the original mortgage, or shall accrue thereon or become secured thereby, the corporation making such mortgage shall pay the tax on such amount at or before the time when such amount is to be advanced, accrues or becomes secured and shall, at the time of paying such tax, file in the office of the recording officer where such mortgage has been or is first recorded and with the tax commission a statement, verified by the secretary, treasurer or other proper officer, of said corporation of the amount of principal indebtedness to be so advanced, accruing or becoming secured, and the certification of any bond or bonds by the trust mortgagee shall be deemed an advance under this article. Such additional tax shall be paid to the recording officer where such mortgage has been or is first recorded and a receipt therefor shall be endorsed upon the mortgage and payment therefor shall be noted in the margin of the record of such mortgage and if requested a duplicate receipt for such payment shall also be given to the party paying such tax and the note of such payment or additional payment or such receipt shall have the same force and effect as the record of receipt of the tax which under this article is payable at or before the recording of the mortgage. If such additional tax is not paid as required by this section, the trust mortgagee shall not certify any bond or other obligation issued on account thereof. The corporation making such mortgage or the owner of the property which secures the mortgage debt shall annually within thirty days after July first, and until it shall appear by such statement that the maximum amount of principal indebtedness secured by such mortgage has been advanced, has accrued or become secured and the tax thereon paid, file in the office of the tax commission and the recording officer where such mortgage has been or is first recorded a statement, verified by the secretary, treasurer or other proper officer of said corporation, showing:

1. The name of the mortgagor and the mortgagee;
2. The date of the mortgage and the county where first recorded;
3. The maximum amount of principal debt or obligation which under any contingency may be secured by such mortgage;
4. The amount advanced on such mortgage during the year, ending June thirtieth preceding, with the date and amount of each advancement;
5. In the case of a mortgage recorded prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, the first annual statement filed under this section as hereby amended, shall state the total amount advanced prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, and the date and the amount of each subsequent advancement to the end of the period covered by the statement.

A failure to file any statement required by this section within the specified time shall subject the corporation or other person required to file such statement to a penalty of not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars for each one thousand dollars of the maximum amount of principal indebtedness which is or under any contingency may become secured by the mortgage, which penalty in the aggregate shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars recoverable by the attorney-general in an action brought in the name of the people of the state of New York.

§ 264. Tax on prior advance mortgages. Whenever any part of the amount of the principal indebtedness which is or under any contingency may be secured by a mortgage recorded prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, is advanced after July first, nineteen hundred and six, the tax prescribed by section two hundred and fifty-three of this article is hereby imposed on the amount of principal indebtedness so advanced, which tax shall be payable at the same time and in the same manner as taxes imposed by section two hundred and fifty-nine of this article, and all the provisions of section two hundred and fifty-nine in relation to the time and manner of paying such tax, the filing of statements in relation to the time and amount of such advances, and penalties for failure to file the same shall apply to advances made under this section and the payment of a tax thereon, except that if the mortgagor is not a corporation, such statements shall be filed by the owner of the mortgage, who, for failure to do so, shall be subject to the penalties prescribed by such section. In case said mortgage was given to secure the payment of a series of bonds, the mortgagor may, at the time of paying such tax, present to the recording officer, the bonds representing the portion of the principal indebtedness secured by said mortgage upon which the tax is to be paid, and also file with said recording officer a statement verified by the mortgagor or an officer or duly authorized agent or attorney of the mortgagor specifying that said bonds, so presented, are the bonds representing that portion of the principal indebtedness secured by said mortgage upon which the tax is to be paid and that said bonds are secured by a mortgage recorded in said office stating the date of said mortgage and the liber and page of the record of the same. It shall be the duty of such recording officer to indorse upon each of said bonds, so presented to him, a statement signed by him to the effect that the tax imposed by this article on that portion of the principal indebtedness secured by said mortgage represented by said bonds has been paid, and said statement shall be conclusive proof of such payment. Notwithstanding the exception contained in section two hundred and fifty-four, the record owner of any mortgage recorded prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, other than a corporate trust mortgage, may file in the office of the recording officer where such mortgage is first recorded a statement in form and substance as required by section two hundred and fifty-four of this article, except that it shall specify and state the amount of all advancements made thereon prior to said date, giving the date and amount of each advancement and the amount of such prior advancements remaining unpaid, and thereby elect that the same be taxed under this article; and any mortgagor or mortgagee under a corporate trust mortgage given to secure a series of bonds or the owner of any such bond or bonds secured thereby may file in the office of the recording officer where such mortgage is first recorded a statement in form and substance as required by section two hundred and fifty-four of this article, except that it shall specify the serial number, the date and amount of each bond and otherwise sufficiently describe the same to identify it as being secured by such mortgage, and thereby elect that such bond or bonds be taxed under this article, and such bond or bonds shall be taxed upon the whole amount thereof notwithstanding the provisions of section two hundred and sixty of this article.

A tax shall thereupon, in the case of mortgages other than corporate trust mortgages, be computed, levied and collected upon the amount of the principal debt or obligation represented by said unpaid prior advancements at the time of filing such statement, or, in the case of a corporate trust mortgage, upon the amount of the bond or bonds specified in the statement filed, at the rate prescribed by section two hundred and fifty-three of this article. Said bonds representing prior advancements under corporate trust mortgages and taxed as herein provided may be presented to the recording officer, whose duty it is to collect said tax, for indorsement and he shall thereupon indorse upon each of said bonds a statement, attested by his signature, of the payment of the tax as provided in this section in respect to bonds representing subsequent advancements, and the record owner of any other mortgage taxed upon prior advancements as herein provided may present said mortgage to the recording officer and thereupon such officer shall note upon the same the filing of the statement and the amount of the tax paid, attested by his signature. In all such cases the recording officer shall note on the margin of the record of such mortgage the filing of such statement and the amount of the tax paid, and, in case of bonds secured by corporate trust mortgages, the serial number of each such bond. The word "bond" and "bonds" as used in this section shall be deemed to embrace all notes or other evidences of indebtedness secured by mortgages taxable under this section. In case of any mortgage taxable under this section, the portion of the indebtedness secured thereby upon which the tax imposed by this section is paid, and such portion only, shall be exempt from taxation under the provisions of section two hundred and fifty-one of this article. Whenever the tax imposed by section two hundred and sixty-four of this article as said section existed prior to May thirteenth, nineteenth hundred and seven, has been paid with respect to any mortgage, no additional tax shall accrue on such mortgage under this section as hereby enacted and such mortgage and the debt or obligation secured thereby, shall continue to be entitled to the exemptions and immunities conferred by this article and all of the provisions of this article shall remain applicable to such mortgage. All taxes imposed by or which became due, payable or collectible on or before the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and six, pursuant to chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and five, and all taxes which under section two hundred and fifty-eight of this chapter became due and payable on the thirtieth day of July, nineteen hundred and six, and all other taxes, if any, which were imposed by chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and five on any mortgage recorded prior to the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six, in respect to any period ending on or before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and six, shall be imposed, become due, be payable and collectible and shall be paid over and distributed in the same manner, and with the same force and effect as if this article had not been enacted; and for the purpose of collecting, paying over, distributing and enforcing any such taxes, chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and five shall be deemed to be in force, and the lien for such taxes shall attach and such taxes shall be levied and collected as provided in chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine of the laws of nineteen hundred and five, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

§ 265. Tax a lien; exceptions. The tax in this article imposed shall be deemed and is hereby declared to be a lien upon the mortgage upon which such tax is imposed and upon the debt or obligation secured thereby, except that upon mortgages recorded prior to July first, nineteen hundred and six, such lien shall extend only to that portion thereof represented by the amount advanced subsequently to such date and to the debt or obligation secured by such advancement, and for the purpose of enforcing the payment of the tax in this article imposed, such mortgage and the debt thereby secured shall be deemed to be property within this state notwithstanding that such mortgage may be owned by or be in the possession of a person or corporation outside the state, and a copy thereof duly certified by the recording officer of any county in which such mortgage is recorded shall, for the purpose of enforcing the payment of such tax, be deemed to be, and shall have the same force and effect as the original mortgage and may be sold to satisfy such tax and upon a sale of the whole or any part thereof, shall carry with it and transfer to the purchaser all the rights, interests and obligations of the mortgagee therein named or his assignee or successor in interest in and to such mortgage and the debt secured thereby, or the part thereof to which such lien attaches, together with interest and costs.

§ 266. Enforcement; procedure. In case the tax imposed by this article is not paid as in this article provided, the tax commission may notify the attorney-general of such failure or refusal to pay and it shall then be the duty of the attorney-general to enforce the payment of such tax, and for that purpose he may maintain an action in the name of the people of the state of New York, in any court of competent jurisdiction, either to sell such mortgage; or, he may maintain an action against the mortgagee or his assignee or successor in interest personally; or, where by stipulations contained in such mortgage it is made the duty of the mortgagor to pay such tax, then against the mortgagor or his successor in interest personally; or, in the case of a trust mortgage against the trust mortgagee, personally; or, he may pursue either, any or all such remedies. All actions instituted by the attorney-general, as herein provided, shall, if the amount involved is fifty dollars or more, be brought in the county of Albany. Where, in any action, a recovery is had there shall be added to the amount of such tax and included in the judgment, interest at the rate of one per centum per month on the amount of such tax, to be computed from the date on which such tax became due and payable, except that in the case of taxable mortgages heretofore recorded and upon which the tax imposed by this article has not been paid, and where, in such case, no penalty is prescribed by law for the nonpayment of such tax, interest shall be added at the rate of six per centum per annum. In any action brought as herein provided, where the judgment provides for the sale of the mortgage, such judgment shall also prescribe the time, place and manner of such sale and of the notice thereof to be given, and, in the discretion of the court, may direct that such sale be made by or under the direction of the comptroller or the recording officer of the county in which such mortgage was first recorded, and all money recovered in such action shall be paid by the attorney-general to the proper recording officer in satisfaction of such tax, and all costs recovered therein shall be paid into the state treasury.

§ 267. Idem.; where recovery is had against trust mortgagee. In every case where recovery is had personally against a trust mortgagee as herein provided, and payment of the amount recovered has been made by such trust mortgagee, or where such trust mortgagee has voluntarily paid such tax, he shall be deemed to have and possess and to have become subrogated to all the rights and interests in and to the tax lien imposed by section two hundred and sixty-five hereof, and may enforce the repayment of any such sum so paid by him with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum and for that purpose may maintain an action in his own name in any court in the state having jurisdiction, against any person, association or corporation liable to pay such tax, or for the sale of such mortgage and the debt secured thereby to which such lien attaches.

§ 270. Amount of tax. There is hereby imposed and shall immediately accrue and be collected a tax, as herein provided, on all sales, or agreements to sell, or memoranda of sales of stock, and upon any and all deliveries or transfers of shares or certificates of stock, in any domestic or foreign association, company or corporation, made after the first day of June, nineteen hundred and five, whether made upon or shown by the books of the association, company or corporation, or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of sale or transfer, whether intermediate or final, and whether investing the holder with the beneficial interest in or legal title to said stock, or merely with the possession or use thereof for any purpose, or to secure the future payment of money, or the future transfer of any stock, on each hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof, two cents, except in cases where the shares or certificates of stock are issued without designated monetary value, in which cases the tax shall be at the rate of two cents for each and every share of such stock. It shall be the duty of the person or persons making or effectuating the sale or transfer to procure, affix and cancel the stamps and pay the tax provided by this article. It is not intended by this act to impose a tax upon an agreement evidencing the deposit of stock certificates as collateral security for money loaned thereon, which stock certificates are not actually sold, nor upon such stock certificates so deposited, nor upon mere loans of stock or the return thereof. The payment of such tax shall be denoted by an adhesive stamp or stamps affixed as follows: In the case of a sale or transfer, where the evidence of the transaction is shown only by the books of the association, company or corporation, the stamp shall be placed upon such books, and it shall be the duty of the person making or effectuating such sale or transfer to procure and furnish to the association, company or corporation the requisite stamps, and of such association, company or corporation to affix and cancel the same. Where the transaction is effected by the delivery or transfer of a certificate, the stamp shall be placed upon the surrendered certificate and canceled; and in cases of an agreement to sell, or where the sale is effected by delivery of the certificate assigned in blank, there shall be made and delivered by the seller to the buyer, a bill or memorandum of such sale to which the stamp provided for by this article shall be affixed and canceled. Every such bill or memorandum of sale or agreement to sell shall show the date of the transaction which it evidences, the name of the seller, the stock to which it relates, and the number of shares thereof. All such bills or memoranda of sale shall bear a number upon the face thereof and no more than one such bill or memorandum of sale made by the seller on any given day shall bear the same number. The aforesaid identification number of the bill or memorandum of sale shall in all cases be entered and recorded in the book of account required to be kept by section two hundred and seventy-six of this chapter; and no further tax is hereby imposed upon the delivery of the certificate of stock, or upon the actual issue of a new certificate when the original certificate of stock is accompanied by the duly stamped memorandum of sale as herein provided.

§ 271. Stamps, how prepared and sold. Adhesive stamps for the purpose of paying the state tax provided for by this article shall be prepared by the state comptroller, in such form, and of such denominations and in such quantities as he may from time to time prescribe, and shall be sold by him to the person or persons desiring to purchase the same; he shall make provision for the sale of such stamps by such persons, in such places and at such times as in his judgment he may deem necessary.

He may from time to time and as often as he deems advisable provide for the issuance and exclusive use of stamps of a new design and forbid the use of stamps of any other design. In order to effect such a change and to discontinue the use of stamps of a former design he shall publish or cause to be published once in each week for each of three months immediately preceding the time for taking effect of such change, in one or more daily newspapers published in each of the first and second class cities of the state, a notice to the effect that after a certain day, which shall be at least three months after the first publication of said notice, none other than the new issue or design of stamps shall be accepted or made use of in payment of the tax provided for by this article. After such date it shall be unlawful for any person to make use of any other than the new issue or design of stamps in payment of such tax. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Any person lawfully in possession of unused stamps of an old or superseded issue or design may, within ninety days from the time when such change becomes effective as aforesaid, surrender the same to the comptroller together with a sworn statement setting forth the name and address of the owner and party surrendering said stamps, how, when and from whom the same were acquired and such other pertinent information as the comptroller may require; whereupon the comptroller shall redeem such unused and surrendered stamps by exchanging therefor stamps of a like denomination of the new issue or design. Failure or refusal of the comptroller to redeem the same by such an exchange may be enforced by mandamus.

§ 271-a. Sale of stamps. No person, firm, company, association or corporation other than a corporation organized under the banking law of this state or under the national bank act of the United States, or a duly authorized agent of the comptroller, shall sell or expose for sale, traffic in, trade, barter or exchange any stamp issued pursuant to this article, and purchased or acquired by him after the time when this section as hereby amended takes effect, without first obtaining from the comptroller his written consent to sell, traffic in, trade, barter or exchange such stamps, except that in connection with a sale of or agreement to sell stock a broker or agent of the principal making such sale or agreement to sell may supply and affix the stamp or stamps required by this article. No person shall sell or expose for sale any stamp so purchased or acquired for a sum less than the face value thereof without the written consent of the comptroller. Any person lawfully in possession of unused stamps may request the comptroller for his consent to sell or dispose of the same. He shall present to the comptroller, if so required, a sworn statement setting forth the name and address of the owner and the party desiring to sell or dispose of said stamps, how, when and from whom the same were acquired and the name and address of the person or persons to whom it is proposed to sell or dispose of the same, and such other pertinent and relevant information as the comptroller may require. Thereupon the comptroller may give his written consent to sell the same. Upon the failure or refusal of the comptroller to give such consent the same may be enforced by mandamus. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punishable by a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

§ 272. Penalty for failure to pay tax. Any person or persons liable to pay the tax by this article imposed, and any one who acts in the matter as agent or broker for such person or persons, who shall make any sale, transfer or delivery of shares or certificates of stock, without paying the tax by this article imposed, and any person who shall in pursuance of any sale, transfer or agreement, deliver any stock or evidence of the sale or transfer of or agreement to sell any stock, or bill or memorandum thereof, or who shall transfer or cause the same to be transferred upon the books or records of the association, company or corporation, and any association, company or corporation whose stock is sold or transferred, which shall transfer or cause the same to be transferred upon its books, without having the stamps provided for in this article affixed thereto, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned for not more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

§ 273. Canceling stamps; penalty for failure. In every case where an adhesive stamp shall be used to denote the payment of the tax provided by this article, the person using or affixing the same shall write or stamp thereupon the initials of his name and the date upon which the same shall be attached or used, and shall cut or perforate the stamp in a substantial manner, so that such stamp cannot be again used; and if any person makes use of an adhesive stamp to denote the payment of the tax imposed by this article, without so effectually canceling the same, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not less than two hundred nor more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned for not less than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

§ 274. Contracts for dies; expenses how paid. The state comptroller is hereby directed to make, enter into and execute for and in behalf of the state such contract or contracts for dies, plates and printing necessary for the manufacture of the stamps provided for by this article, and provide such stationery and clerk hire together with such books and blanks as in his discretion may be necessary for putting into operation the provisions of this article; he shall be the custodian of all stamps, dies, plates or other material or thing furnished by him and used in the manufacture of such state tax stamps, and all expenses incurred by him and under his direction in carrying out the provisions of this article shall be paid to him by the state treasurer from any moneys appropriated for such purpose.

§ 275. Illegal use of stamps; penalty. Any person who shall willfully remove or alter or knowingly permit to be removed or altered the canceling or defacing marks of any stamp provided for by this article with intent to use such stamp, or who shall knowingly or willfully buy, prepare for use, use, have in his possession or suffer to be used any washed, restored or counterfeit stamp, and any person who shall intentionally remove or cause to be removed or knowingly permit to be removed any stamp, affixed pursuant to the requirements of this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be liable to a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

§ 275-a. Registration; penalty for failure. Every person, firm, company, association or corporation engaged in whole or in part in the making or negotiating of sales, agreements to sell, deliveries or transfers of shares or certificates of stock, or conducting or transacting a stock brokerage business, and every stock association, company or corporation which shall maintain a principal office or place of business within the state or which shall keep or cause to be kept within the state of New York a place for the sale, transfer or delivery of its stock, shall within ten days after the amendment to this section shall take effect if such a certificate shall not have been theretofore filed, or if at the time this act shall take effect, not engaged in such business or maintaining such principal office or place of business or such a place for the sale or transfer of its stock, within ten days after engaging in such business or after establishing such principal office or place of business or such a place for the sale or transfer of its stock, as the case may be, file in the office of the comptroller a certificate setting forth the name under which such business is, or is to be conducted or transacted, and the true or real full name or names of the person or persons conducting or transacting the same, with the postoffice address or addresses of said person or persons, unless the party so certifying be a corporation, in which event it shall set forth its said principal office or place of business and when and where incorporated. Said certificate shall be executed and duly acknowledged by the person or persons so conducting or intending to conduct said business or by the president or secretary of the corporation as the case may be.

In the event of a change in the persons composing such firm, company or association or of the address of any such person, firm, company, association or corporation, or termination of such business or relationship, a like certificate setting forth the facts with respect to such change or termination shall within ten days thereafter be filed in the office of the comptroller.

Any such person, firm, company, association or corporation who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned for not more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

§ 276. Power of state comptroller. Every person, firm, company, association or corporation, engaged in whole or in part in the making or negotiating of sales, agreements to sell, deliveries or transfers of shares or certificates of stock, or conducting or transacting a brokerage business, shall keep or cause to be kept at some accessible place within the state of New York, a just and true book of account, in such form as may be prescribed by the comptroller, wherein shall be plainly and legibly recorded in separate columns, the date of making every sale, agreement to sell, delivery or transfer of shares or certificates of stock, the name of the stock and the number of shares thereof, the face value of the stock, the name of the seller or transferer, the name of the purchaser or transferee and the number and face value of the adhesive stamps affixed and the identifying number of the bill or memorandum of sale used as provided for by section two hundred and seventy of this chapter.

Every association, company or corporation shall keep or cause to be kept at some accessible place within the state of New York, a stock certificate book and a just and true book of account, transfer ledger or register, in such form as may be prescribed by the comptroller, wherein shall be plainly and legibly recorded in separate columns the date of making every transfer of stock, the name of the stock and the number of shares thereof, the serial number of each surrendered certificate, the name of the party surrendering such certificate, the serial number of the certificate issued in exchange therefor, the number of shares covered by said certificate, the name of the party to whom said certificate was issued and evidence of the payment of the tax provided for by section two hundred and seventy of this chapter, which evidence, however, shall be provided in one of the following manners and not otherwise, to wit:

(a) By attaching to the stock certificate surrendered for transfer, the stamps required for such transfer, or

(b) If the stamps are not attached to the certificate, but are attached to the bill or memorandum of sale effecting or evidencing the transfer of such certificate, by attaching to said certificate the said bill or memorandum of sale with stamps attached, or

(c) If the stamps covering the transfer are attached to a bill or memorandum effecting a transfer of one or more certificates or to one or more certificates included in said transfer, a notation must be made upon such certificates, bill or memorandum, as the case may be, clearly specifying and identifying the certificate or certificates of stock to the sale or transfer of which the said stamps apply, or

(d) If the bill or memorandum bearing such stamps is not attached to the surrendered certificate or certificates to which it applies, a notation must be made upon such bill or memorandum stating the serial number or numbers of the certificates to which said bill or memorandum applies, as provided by section two hundred and seventy of this chapter. It shall also retain and keep all surrendered or canceled shares or certificates of its stock and all memoranda relating to the sale or transfer of any thereof. All such books of account, transfer, ledgers, registers and stock certificate books, shall be retained and kept as aforesaid for a period of at least two years subsequent to the date of the last entry made therein as herein required; and all such surrendered or canceled shares or certificates of stock and memoranda relating to the sale or transfer of stock, shall be retained and kept for a period of at least two years from the date of the delivery thereof. For the purpose of ascertaining whether the tax imposed by this article has been paid, all such books of account, transfer ledgers, registers, stock certificate books, surrendered or canceled shares or certificates of stock and memoranda relating to the sale or transfer thereof, shall at all times between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon, except Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays, be open to examination by the comptroller or his duly authorized representative.

The comptroller may enforce his right to examine such books of account and bills or memoranda of sale or transfer; and such transfer ledger, register and stock certificate books and surrendered or canceled shares or certificates of stock by mandamus. If the comptroller ascertains that the tax provided for in this article has not been paid, he shall bring an action in his name as such comptroller, in any court of competent jurisdiction for the recovery of such tax and for any penalty incurred by any person under the provisions of this article.

Every person, firm, company, association or corporation who shall fail to keep such book of account or bills or memoranda of sale or transfer, or transfer ledger, register or stock certificate book or surrendered or canceled shares or certificates of stock as herein required, or who alters, cancels, obliterates or destroys any part of said records, or makes any false entry therein, or who shall refuse to permit the comptroller or any of his authorized representatives freely to examine any of said books, records or papers at any of the times herein provided, or who shall in any other respect violate any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall for each and every such offense pay a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, or be imprisoned not less than three months nor more than two years, or both in the discretion of the court.

§ 277. Civil penalties; how recovered. Any person, firm, company, association or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of section two hundred and seventy or section two hundred and seventy-two of this chapter shall in addition to the penalty herein provided forfeit to the people of the state a civil penalty of ten dollars for each and every share of stock so sold or transferred, or transferred or entered upon the books of the corporation, as the case may be, without the payment of the tax by this article imposed thereon. Any person who shall violate any of the other provisions of this article shall in addition to the penalties hereinbefore provided forfeit to the people of the state a civil penalty of five hundred dollars for each and every such violation.

The state comptroller shall bring an action in his name as such comptroller in any court of competent jurisdiction for the recovery of any civil penalty; and all moneys collected by him shall be paid into the state treasury. In an action against a corporation or its transfer agent to recover a penalty because of its transfer of stock upon the books or records of the corporation without requiring the payment of the tax by this article imposed, the failure of the corporation or its transfer agent, on the demand of the comptroller or his duly authorized representative, to produce the surrendered certificate or memoranda of sale with the required stamps attached, shall constitute prima facie proof of the nonpayment of the tax imposed by section two hundred and seventy of this chapter.

§ 278. Effect of failure to pay tax. No transfer of stock made after June first, nineteen hundred and five, on which a tax is imposed by this article, and which tax is not paid at the time of such transfer, shall be made the basis of any action or legal proceedings, nor shall proof thereof be offered or received in evidence in any court in this state.

§ 279. Application of taxes. The taxes imposed under this article and the revenues thereof shall be paid by the state comptroller into the state treasury and be applicable to the general fund, and to the payment of all claims and demands which are a lawful charge thereon.

§ 280. Refund of tax erroneously paid. If any stamp or stamps shall have been erroneously affixed to any book, certificate of stock, or bill or memorandum of sale, the comptroller may, upon presentation of a claim for the amount of such stamp or stamps and upon the production of evidence satisfactory to him that such stamp or stamps was or were so erroneously affixed so as to cause loss to the person or persons making such claim, pay such amount, or such part thereof as he may allow, to such claimant out of any moneys appropriated for that purpose. Such claims shall be presented to the comptroller in writing, duly verified, and shall state the full name and address of the claimant, the date of such erroneous affixing, the face value of such stamp or stamps and shall describe the instrument to which the stamp or stamps were affixed and contain such evidence as may be available upon which the demand for such refund is based. Such claims shall be presented within ninety days after such erroneous affixing unless such affixing shall have taken place prior to the date on which this act shall take effect, in which case such claim shall be presented within ninety days after the date on which this act shall take effect. If the comptroller rejects a claim or any part thereof, the claimant may file a claim for the recovery of such sum as the comptroller shall have refused to allow, with the court of claims, which shall constitute a private claim against the state and shall be subject to all the provisions of law governing such claims, except that all claims so presented shall be filed with the court of claims within ninety days from the date on which such claim shall be rejected by the comptroller. For the purposes of this section, the comptroller's decision shall be deemed to have been made at the time of the depositing of a copy of such decision in the post-office inclosed in a duly post-paid wrapper and directed to the person making such claim at the address contained in the verified claim presented to the comptroller as hereinbefore provided.

§ 290. Contents of petition. Any person assessed upon any assessment-roll, claiming to be aggrieved by any assessment for property therein, may present to the supreme court a petition duly verified setting forth that the assessment is illegal, specifying the grounds of the alleged illegality, or if erroneous by reason of overvaluation, stating the extent of such overvaluation, or if unequal in that the assessment has been made at a higher proportionate valuation than the assessment of other property on the same roll by the same officers, specifying the instances in which such inequality exists, and the extent thereof, and stating that he is or will be injured thereby. Such petition must show that the application has been made in due time to the proper officers to correct such assessment. Two or more persons assessed upon the same roll who are affected in the same manner by the alleged illegality, error or inequality, may unite in the same petition.

§ 291. Allowance of writ of certiorari. Such petition must be presented to a justice of the supreme court or at a special term of the supreme court in the judicial district in which the assessment complained of was made, within fifteen days after the completion and filing of the assessment-roll and the first posting or publication of the notice thereof as required by this chapter. Upon the presentation of such petition, the justice or court may allow a writ of certiorari to the officers making the assessment, to review such assessment, and shall prescribe therein the time within which a return thereto must be made and served upon the relator's attorney, which shall not be less than ten days, and may be extended by the court or a justice thereof. Such writ shall be returnable to a special term of the supreme court of the judicial district in which the assessment complained of was made. The allowance of the writ shall not stay the proceedings of the assessors or other persons to whom it is directed or to whom the assessment is delivered, to be acted upon according to law.

§ 292. Return to writ. The officers making a return to such writ shall not be required to return the original assessment-roll or other original papers acted upon by them, but it shall be sufficient to return certified or sworn copies of such roll or papers, or of such portions thereof as may be called for by such writ. The return must concisely set forth such other facts as may be pertinent and material to show the value of the property assessed on the roll and the grounds for the valuation made by the assessing officers and the return must be verified.

§ 293. Proceedings upon return. If it shall appear upon the return to any such writ that the assessment complained of is illegal or erroneous or unequal for any of the reasons alleged in the petition, the court may order such assessment, if illegal, to be stricken from the roll, or if erroneous or unequal, it may order a reassessment of the property of the petitioner, or the correction of his assessment upon the roll, in whole or in part, in such manner as shall be in accordance with law, or as shall make it conform to the valuations and assessments of other property upon the same roll and secure equality of assessment. If upon the hearing it shall appear to the court that testimony is necessary for the proper disposition of the matter, it may take evidence or may appoint a referee to take such evidence as it may direct, and report the same to the court, with his findings of fact and conclusions of law, which shall constitute a part of the proceedings upon which the determination of the court shall be made. Upon such hearing the parties to the proceeding may mutually agree upon the number of pieces of property to be valued and the number of witnesses to be sworn on the subject of the value of such properties. But in case the parties fail to so agree, then upon application of either party the court shall determine the number of witnesses to be sworn and the number of pieces of property to be valued and shall limit the same to such number as the court shall deem reasonable.

§ 293-a. Special proceedings concerning special franchise tax assessments. When the writ is obtained to review a special franchise assessment made pursuant to the provisions of article two of this chapter, upon the filing of the return to the writ the court may take such evidence as it may deem necessary, or may appoint a referee to take evidence and to hear, try and determine all questions raised by the petition and the return thereto and to make his findings and determination therein, or, on motion of either party, the court may direct the place of trial changed to the county in which the special franchise under review is situated, and on an order duly entered granting such motion, the place of trial shall be deemed changed to the county designated and the papers and proceedings shall be certified to that county in the manner now provided by law in the case of a change in the place of trial of an action and all subsequent proceedings shall be had in the county so designated, as if the special proceedings had been originally instituted in that county, and the court may, upon the application of the attorney-general, upon cause shown, vacate any reference heretofore made in any proceeding instituted to review a special franchise assessment, made pursuant to the provisions of article two of this chapter. The governor may, upon the application of the attorney-general, upon cause shown, appoint extraordinary terms of the supreme court to be held in any judicial district and designate a justice to preside thereat, to try such special franchise cases. Such extraordinary term shall have jurisdiction over all special franchise cases arising in any tax district within the judicial district for which the term is appointed, without regard to the county in which the term is being held, and either party to a proceeding to review a special franchise assessment may at any time bring the proceeding on for a hearing or trial before said extraordinary term by serving upon the other party sixteen days' notice thereof by mail or fourteen days' notice personally. A new assessment or correction of an assessment made by order of the court shall have the same force and effect as if it had been so made by the proper officers within the time prescribed by law for making such assessment.

§ 294. Costs. Costs shall not be allowed against the officers whose proceedings may be reviewed under any such writ unless it shall appear to the court that they acted with gross negligence or in bad faith or with malice in making the assessment complained of. If the writ shall be quashed or the assessment confirmed, or if the assessment complained of shall be reduced by an amount less than half the reduction claimed before the assessing officers, costs and disbursements shall be awarded against the petitioner. If the assessment shall be reduced by an amount greater than half the reduction claimed before the assessing officers, costs and disbursements shall be awarded against the tax district represented by the officers whose proceedings may be reviewed. The costs and disbursements shall not exceed those taxable in an action upon the trial of an issue of fact in the supreme court, except that if evidence shall be taken there shall be included in the taxable costs and disbursements the expense of furnishing to the court or to the referee a copy of the stenographer's minutes of the evidence taken.

§ 295. Appeals. An appeal may be taken by either party from an order, judgment or determination under this article as from an order, and it shall be heard and determined in like manner as appeals in the supreme court from orders. All issues and appeals in any proceeding under this article shall have preference over all other civil actions and proceedings in all courts.

§ 296. Refund of tax paid upon illegal, erroneous or unequal assessment. If in a final order in any such proceeding it has been or shall be ordered or adjudged or determined that the assessment complained of was illegal, erroneous or unequal, and correcting or directing correction thereof, and such order shall not be made in time to enable the assessors or other officers to make a new or corrected assessment for the use of the board of supervisors or for the use of the town, village, city, school or special district officers levying any tax upon such property, the assessment of which has been or shall be so ordered or adjudged or determined to be illegal, erroneous or unequal, then any tax collected or to be collected upon such illegal, erroneous or unequal assessment shall be refunded as follows:

1. When such tax upon such illegal, erroneous or unequal assessment shall have been levied by the board of supervisors, then at an annual session of the board of supervisors held after the order for such correction has been granted and entered there shall be audited and allowed to the petitioner or other person who shall have paid such tax, and included in the tax levy of the town, village, city or special district in which the property is situated, made next after the entry of such order, and paid to the petitioner, or other person paying the tax, the amount paid by him, in excess of what the tax would have been if the assessment had been made as ordered, adjudged or determined by such order of the court, together with the interest thereon from the date of payment. In case the amount deducted from such assessment by such order exceeds ten thousand dollars, so much of the tax as shall be refunded by reason of such corrected assessment, other than the proportion or percentage thereof collected for such town, village, city or special district purposes, shall be levied upon the county at large and paid with interest, to the petitioner or other person paying the tax without further audit; and the board of supervisors shall audit and levy upon such town, village, city or special district, the proportion or percentage of such excess of tax collected for such town, village, city or special district purposes, which shall be collected and paid with interest to the petitioner, or other person paying the tax, without other or further audit.

2. When a tax, or any part thereof upon such illegal, erroneous or unequal assessment shall have been levied by the proper officers of any city or village, solely for the benefit and purposes of such city or village, then the common council or other auditing officer or officers of such city or village shall immediately after such correction audit and allow, to the petitioner or other person who shall have paid such tax, or the part thereof levied solely for the benefit and purposes of such city or village, and include in the tax levy of such city or village in which the property is situated made next after the entry of such order and cause to be paid to such petitioner or other person paying such tax, or the part thereof levied solely for the benefit and purposes of such city or village, the amount paid by him in excess of what the tax or the part thereof levied solely for the benefit and purposes of such city or village, would have been if the assessment had been as ordered, adjudged or determined by such order of the court, together with interest thereon from the date of the payment.

3. When a tax shall have been levied and collected in any school district of this state upon any property within such district on any assessment value thereof which shall have been ascertained from a town assessment-roll and which assessment upon such town roll shall have been ordered, adjudged or determined by order of the court as aforesaid to have been illegal, erroneous or unequal and which assessment though made by town assessors was adopted and was used in such district for the purpose of taxation for school purposes, then and in such case the trustees of such school district shall audit and allow and cause to be paid to the petitioner, or other person who shall have paid such tax, the amount paid by him in excess of what the school tax would have been in such case if the assessment had been made as ordered, adjudged or determined by such order of the court together with interest thereon from the date of the payment.

Application to the proper officer for the audit and allowance of such moneys must be made by the petitioner or other person paying such tax within three years after the entry of the final order ordering or adjudging or determining such assessment to have been illegal, erroneous or unequal; provided that the time of the pendency of any appeal in any such proceeding or from any such order shall not be deemed any part of such three years.

§ 297. When county court may apportion tax. When the premises of one person shall have been wrongfully assessed and taxed in with the premises of another, the person aggrieved thereby may, upon application to the county court of the county in which the property is situated, on petition duly verified, and on eight days' notice to the assessors of the town in which the premises are situated, and to the party whose premises are included in such wrongful assessment, have such assessment and tax apportioned by such county court. The county court shall take such evidence as may be necessary to determine the facts, and shall fix and specify the amount of the assessment and tax properly chargeable to the petitioner's property, and to the other party chargeable therewith. The collector of the town, upon receiving a copy of the order of the county court, shall forthwith change the assessment-roll and tax to conform to such order, and shall receive the amount apportioned upon the premises of the petitioner in full for the tax upon such property.

§ 298. Application to county court where taxpayer has removed from the county. If it shall satisfactorily appear by affidavit to the county court of any county that a tax legally levied therein can not be collected because of the removal of the person taxed to any other county of the state, such court shall, upon application of the collector of any tax district or of the county treasurer of the county, grant an order, directed to the sheriff of the county where such person may be, to collect the same out of his personal property, with interest at the rate of eight per centum per annum from the date of said order. Such order shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county in which it is granted, and a certified copy thereof delivered to the constable or sheriff of the county where the person liable for the tax may be, and such constable or sheriff, on receiving the same shall execute it, and make a like return, and be entitled to the same fees and subject to the same liabilities and penalties for neglect as upon execution from any court of record. The sheriff receiving such moneys shall pay the same to the county treasurer of the county where it was levied, to the credit of the town in which it was assessed.

§ 299. Supplementary proceedings to collect tax. If a tax exceeding ten dollars in amount levied against a person or corporation is returned by the proper collector uncollected for want of personal property out of which to collect the same, the supervisor of the town or ward, or the county treasurer or the president of the village, if it is a village tax, may, within one year thereafter, apply to the court for the institution of proceedings supplementary to execution, as upon a judgment docketed in such county, for the purpose of collecting such tax and fees, with interest thereon from the fifteenth day of February after the levy thereof. Such proceedings may be taken against a corporation, and the same proceedings may thereupon be had in all respects for the collection of such tax as for the collection of a judgment by proceedings supplementary to execution thereon against a natural person, and the same costs and disbursements may be allowed against the person or corporation examined as in such supplementary proceedings but none shall be allowed in his or its favor. The tax, if collected in such proceeding, shall be paid to the county treasurer or to the supervisor of the town, and if a village tax, to the treasurer of the village. The costs and disbursements collected shall belong to the party instituting the proceedings, and shall be applied to the payment of the expense of such proceeding. The president of a village and a county treasurer shall have no compensation for any such proceeding. A supervisor shall have no other compensation except his per diem pay for time necessarily spent in the proceeding.

§ 300. No fine or imprisonment for nonpayment of tax. Neglect or refusal to pay any tax shall not be punishable as a contempt or as misconduct; and no fine shall be imposed for such nonpayment, nor shall any person be imprisoned or otherwise punishable on account of nonpayment of any tax, or of any fine imposed for refusal or neglect to pay such tax. This section shall not apply to proceedings supplementary to execution upon judgments recovered for taxes.

§ 301. Dismissal of suits or proceedings. Where the person or corporation against whom a proceeding or suit is brought to collect a personal tax in arrears is unable for want of property to pay the tax in whole or in part, or where for other reasons upon the facts as they existed either before or after the assessment was made it appears to the court just that said tax should not be paid, the court may dismiss such suit or proceeding absolutely, without costs, or on payment of such part of the tax as may be just or on payment of costs, and may direct the cancellation or reduction of the tax.

§ 302. Cancellation of personal tax where it is void for want of jurisdiction. If a personal tax, levied against a person or corporation, or the property of a person or corporation, is void for want of jurisdiction of such person or corporation and has been returned by the proper collector uncollectible for want of personal property out of which to collect the same, the person or corporation against whom or against whose property the said tax was levied may then apply to the supreme or county court in the county in which is located the tax district where said tax was levied, for an order cancelling the said tax, and upon notice to the president of the village, county treasurer, supervisor of the town or, in the case of a city, upon notice to its attorney or to the corporation counsel, and upon satisfactory proof by affidavit, the court shall make an order directing the cancellation of said tax from the assessment roll by the county treasurer, comptroller, or other officer in whose custody and control the said roll may be. [L. 1918, c. 530.]

§ 303. Power of county court when collector fails to pay over. If any collector shall neglect or refuse to pay over the moneys collected by him, to any of the persons to whom he is required to pay the same by his warrant, or to account for the same as unpaid, the county court, on proof of such fact by affidavit, on application of the county treasurer, shall make an order directed to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to levy such sum as shall remain unpaid by such collector out of his property, personal and real, and pay the same to the county treasurer, within sixty days from the date of such order. The sheriff shall cause the same to be executed, and pay to the county treasurer the money levied by virtue thereof, deducting for his fees the same compensation that the collector would have been entitled to retain. If the whole sum due from the collector, or if a part only, or if no part thereof, shall be collected, the sheriff shall state the fact in his return, which shall be made as in the case of an execution, and the county treasurer shall give notice to the supervisor of the town, city or division thereof, of any amount which may remain due from such collector. If the sheriff shall neglect to execute the order, or to pay over the money collected thereon, within the time limited thereby, he shall be liable therefor as in case of an execution, and the county treasurer shall immediately prosecute such sheriff and his sureties for the sum due from him, which sum when collected shall be paid into the county treasury.

§ 304. Payment of moneys collected. The county treasurer shall pay over the moneys received from the sheriff upon such order in the manner directed by the warrant to the collector. If the whole amount of moneys due from the collector shall not be collected on such warrant, or otherwise, the county treasurer shall first retain the amount which ought to have been paid to him before making any payment to the town officers.

§ 305. Collection of deficiency from collector's bondsmen. If it appears that the whole or any part of the moneys due from the collector has not been thus collected, the county treasurer shall forthwith give notice to the supervisor of the town or ward of the amount still due from such collector. The supervisor shall forthwith cause the undertaking of the collector to be prosecuted, and shall be entitled to recover thereon the sum due from the collector with costs of the action. The moneys received shall be applied and paid by the supervisor in the same manner as they should have been by the collector.

§ 306. Attorney-general to bring action for sequestration. It shall be the duty of the attorney-general, on being informed by the comptroller, tax commission or by the county treasurer of any county that any incorporated company refuses or neglects to pay the taxes imposed upon it, pursuant to articles one.

and two of this chapter, to bring an action in the supreme court for the sequestration of the property of such corporation and the court may so sequester the property of such corporation for the purpose of satisfying taxes in arrears, with the cost of prosecution, and may, also, in its discretion, enjoin such corporation and further proceedings under its charter until such tax and the costs incurred in the action shall be paid. The attorney-general may recover such tax with costs from such delinquent corporation by action in any court of record.

§ 307. Settlement of conflicting claims to surplus of tax sale. Whenever a surplus from the sale of any property for unpaid taxes in the hands of the supervisor of a town shall be claimed by any person other than the person for whose tax such property was sold, and such claim shall not be settled by a stipulation filed with the supervisor, as provided by this chapter, such claimant may maintain an action against such person, or such person may maintain an action against such claimant, to recover such money and, for the purposes of such action, the defendant shall be deemed to be in possession of the surplus in the hands of the supervisor. Upon the production of a certified copy of a final judgment, rendered in favor of either party, the supervisor shall pay such surplus to the party recovering the same. No other cause of action shall be joined, nor any set-off or counterclaim be allowed in an action brought pursuant to this section, and if an execution issue on a judgment rendered in such action, it shall direct that the costs only of such judgment be levied thereon.

§ 330. Definitions. The word "investments," as used in this article, shall include:

Any bond, note, debt, debenture, equipment bond or note, or written or printed obligation, forming part of a series of similar bonds, notes, debts, debentures, written or printed obligations, which by their terms are payable one year or more from their date of issue and which are either secured by a mortgage, pledge, deposit, or deed of trust, of real or personal property, or both, or which are not secured at all; excepting bonds of this state or any civil division thereof and such bonds, notes, debts, debentures, written or printed obligations, which are secured by a deed of trust or mortgage recorded in the state of New York on real property situated wholly within the state of New York; excepting also such bonds, notes, debts, debentures, written or printed obligations held as collateral to secure the payment of investments taxable under this article or of bonds taxable under article eleven of this chapter; and excepting also such proportion of a bond, note, debt, debenture or written or printed obligation, secured by deed of trust or mortgage recorded in the state of New York of property or properties situated partly within and partly without the state of New York as the value of that part of the mortgaged property or properties situated within the state of New York shall bear to the value of the entire mortgaged property or properties.

§ 331. Payment of tax on investments. After this article takes effect, any person may take or send to the office of the comptroller of this state any investment, and may pay to the state a tax at the rate of twenty cents per year on each one hundred dollars or fraction thereof of the face value of such investment for one or more years not exceeding five, under such regulations as the comptroller may prescribe, and the comptroller shall thereupon affix stamps hereinafter provided for, to such investment, which stamps shall be duly signed by the comptroller or his duly authorized representative and dated as of the date of the payment of such tax. The comptroller shall keep a record of such investment together with the name and address of the person presenting the same and the date of payment of the tax.

All such investments shall thereafter be exempt from all taxation in the state or any of the municipalities or local divisions of the state except as provided in sections twenty-four to twenty-four-g, both inclusive, one hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and eighty-eight and one hundred and eighty-nine of this chapter, and in articles ten and twelve of this chapter, for the period of years from the payment of such tax for which such tax shall have been paid and such stamps affixed.

§ 332. Stamps; how prepared and used. Adhesive stamps for the purpose of indicating the payment of the tax provided for by this article shall be prepared by the comptroller, in such form, and of such denominations and in such quantities as he may from time to time prescribe. Upon the payment of the tax provided by this article upon any investment the comptroller shall affix stamps of the proper denominations, equal in face value to the amount of tax paid, to the investment, and shall cancel the same by the seal of his office or by such other canceling device as he may prescribe.

§ 333. No exemption unless stamps are affixed and canceled. The payment of the tax upon any investment, as provided in this article, shall not exempt such investment from taxation, as provided in section three hundred and thirty-one, unless stamps to the proper amount are affixed and canceled, as provided in the preceding section.

§ 334. Contract for dies; New York city office; expenses, how paid. The state comptroller is hereby directed to make, enter into and execute for and in behalf of the state such contract or contracts for dies, plates and printing necessary for the manufacture of the stamps provided for by this article, and provide such stationery and clerk hire, together with such books and blanks as in his discretion may be necessary for putting into operation the provisions of this article; he shall be the custodian of all stamps, dies, plates or other material or thing furnished by him and used in the manufacture of such state tax stamps. In addition to the receipt of taxes payable as provided in this article at his office in the city of Albany, the comptroller shall maintain an office for the receipt of such taxes in the city of New York. He shall appoint, and may at pleasure remove, such assistants, clerks and other persons as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this article and shall fix and determine their salaries. All expenses incurred by him and under his direction in carrying out the provisions of this article shall be paid to him by the state treasurer from any moneys appropriated for such purpose.

§ 335. Illegal use of stamps; penalty. Any person who shall wilfully remove or cause to be removed, alter or cause to be altered the canceling or defacing marks of any adhesive stamp provided for by this article with intent to use the same, or to cause the use of the same after it shall have been used, or shall knowingly or wilfully sell or buy any washed or restored stamp, or offer the same for sale, or give or expose the same to any person for use, or knowingly use the same or prepare the same with intent for the further use thereof, or shall wilfully use any counterfeit stamp or any forged stamp with intent to defraud the state of New York, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be liable to a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court.

§ 336. No deduction of debts against taxable investment. The owner of any investment, on which the tax provided for in this article has not been paid, shall be assessed upon such investment in the taxing district in which he resides, upon the fair market value of such investment and no deduction for the just debts owing by him shall be allowed against the assessed value of such investment, as provided in section six of this chapter or elsewhere in this chapter or in any other law of this state except that the deduction from the taxable property permitted by section six of this chapter shall be allowed to any person.

in respect of any investment which for the purpose of his business, as herein-after described and not for or as an investment, shall be temporarily owned and held for sale by such person then actually engaged in the bona fide purchase and sale of such investments as a business, and who then shall have and maintain an office or place of business in this state for the carrying on of the actual bona fide business of purchasing and selling such investments as distinguished from the purchase thereof for investment, but such deduction shall not be allowed in respect of investments owned and held for a longer period than eight months.

§ 337. Application of taxes. The taxes imposed under this article and the revenues thereof shall be paid by the state comptroller into the state treasury and be applicable to the general fund, and to the payment of all claims and demands which are a lawful charge thereon.

§ 338. Exemption where tax has been paid on secured debts before May first, nineteen hundred and fifteen. If a tax shall have been paid upon a secured debt pursuant to former article fifteen of the tax law prior to May first, nineteen hundred and fifteen, or prior to April first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, under article eleven of this chapter, such debt shall be exempt from taxation hereunder and from all taxation in the state or any of the municipalities or local divisions of the state, except as provided in sections twenty-four to twenty-four-g, both inclusive, one hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and eighty-eight and one hundred and eighty-nine of this chapter and in articles ten and twelve of this chapter.

§ 339. Exemption where tax has been paid on secured debts between May first, nineteen hundred and fifteen and December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen. If a tax shall have been paid upon a secured debt pursuant to former article fifteen of the tax law, between May first, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, such secured debt shall be exempt from taxation hereunder, and from all taxation in the state or any of the municipalities or local divisions of the state, for the period of five years from the date of the payment of such tax, except as provided in sections twenty-four to twenty-four-g, both inclusive, one hundred and eighty-seven, one hundred and eighty-eight and one hundred and eighty-nine, of this chapter, and in articles ten and twelve of this chapter.

§ 340. Apportionment of value of investment secured by mortgage of property situated partly within and partly without the state. If a bond, note, debt, debenture, equipment bond or note, or written or printed obligation be secured by mortgage or deed of trust recorded in the state of New York of property or properties, situated partly within and partly without the state of New York, and a proportion of such bond, note, debt, debenture, equipment bond or note, written or printed obligation constitutes an investment as provided by section three hundred and thirty, the holder of such investment may apply to the comptroller for a determination of the proportion of such bond, note, debt, debenture, equipment bond or note, or written or printed obligation which is taxable as an investment under this article, and the comptroller shall, as soon as practicable thereafter, furnish to such applicant a determination upon which the tax imposed by this article on such investment shall be based, which determination shall be in the manner provided for in section two hundred and sixty of this chapter made in respect of the apportionment of the value of such mortgaged property in connection with the recording within the state of New York of the mortgage or other indenture by which such investment may be secured; or may waive such determination and pay the tax upon the full amount of such investment, and thereafter the whole amount of such investment shall be exempt from taxation under the provisions of section three hundred and thirty-one of this chapter.

Session Law, 1918, c. 240.

Section 1. That during the continuance of the war any corporation organized under the laws of this state may co-operate with other corporations and with natural persons in the creation and maintenance of instrumentalities conducive to the winning of the war, and its directors or trustees may appropriate and expend for such purposes such sum or sums as they may deem expedient and as, in their judgment, will contribute to the protection of the corporate interests, provided that whenever the expenditures for such purposes in any calendar year shall in the aggregate amount to one per centum on the capital stock outstanding, then, before any further expenditure is made during such year for such purposes by the corporation, ten days' notice shall be given to the stockholders in such manner as the directors or trustees may direct of the intention to make such further expenditure, specifying the amount thereof, and if written objection be made by stockholders holding twenty-five per centum or more of the stock of the corporation, such further expenditure shall not be made until it shall have been authorized at a stockholders' meeting.

The Legislature shall pass general laws providing for the cases enumerated in this section, and for all other cases which in its judgment, may be provided for by general laws. But no law shall authorize the construction or operation of a street railroad except upon the condition that the consent of the owners of one-half in value of the property bounded on, and the consent also of the local authorities having the control of, that portion of a street or highway upon which it is proposed to construct or operate such railroad be first obtained, or in case the consent of such property owners cannot be obtained, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in the department in which it is proposed to be constructed, may, upon application, appoint three commissioners who shall determine, after a hearing of all parties interested, whether such railroad ought to be constructed or operated, and their determination, confirmed by the court, may be taken in lieu of the consent of the property owners.

The holders of the preferred stock shall be entitled to receive or to have set apart, out of the surplus or net profits of the corporation, as and when declared by the board of directors, a dividend at the rate of, but never exceeding, seven per centum per annum, cumulative, on all such preferred stock outstanding at the time, which dividend shall be payable yearly, half-yearly or quarterly as the board of directors may, from time to time fix and determine, and before any dividend shall be set apart for or paid on the common stock. Provided, however, that if the preferred stock shall hereafter be increased, the rate of dividend upon such increase shall be at such rate, not exceeding seven per centum per annum, as shall be fixed by the resolution of the stockholders of the corporation authorizing such increase. Whenever a dividend is declared or paid on the preferred stock and all prior dividends on the outstanding shares of such stock shall have been paid or set apart, the board of directors may, if in its judgment the surplus or net profits, after deducting the amount of dividends to accrue on the said outstanding preferred stock during the current year, shall be sufficient for such purposes, then or thereafter declare and pay dividends on the common stock payable yearly, half-yearly or quarterly, and payable then or thereafter out of any remaining surplus or net profits of the year then current or last past and of any previous year in which full dividends shall have been paid on the preferred stock.

In case of a liquidation or dissolution or winding up (whether voluntary or involuntarily) of the corporation, the holders of the preferred stock shall receive cash to the amount of the par value of such preferred stock, together with all accrued and unpaid dividends thereon (but no more) before any payment is made to the holders of the common stock, and the holders of the common stock shall be solely entitled to the entire assets of the Company, or the proceeds thereof, remaining after the payment in full, at its par value, of the preferred stock then outstanding, together with all dividends thereon accrued and unpaid.

(2) To acquire and pay for property purchased or caused to be purchased, or for any shares of stock, bonds, debentures or other obligations of any other corporation, which the ..... Company is or may be, by its certificate of incorporation or any amendment thereof or by law, authorized to acquire or to be interested in; and

(3) To make loans to The ..... Company, or any other corporation a majority in amount of whose then outstanding capital stock may be held or controlled by the ..... Company at the time; and

(4) To make payment for any enlargements, extensions or betterments of or additions to any of the properties of the ..... Company; and

(5) To otherwise promote and accomplish the several and respective corporate powers, purposes and objects set forth in the certificate of incorporation of the ..... Company or any amendment thereof.

From time to time, when authorized by a resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the said bonds shall, by the Trustee, be authenticated and delivered as follows, to wit:

Authentication of Bonds for Securities or Property Purchased or for Loans to Other Corporations.

(a) Whenever the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company shall pass a resolution finding and declaring (1) that the ..... Company has purchased or arranged to purchase or acquire any additional shares of the preferred stock of The ..... Company, or any or all of the property or assets of The ..... Company, or of any other person, firm or corporation, or any real estate or plants, or any shares of stock, bonds, or other obligations of any other corporation, or any other property whatsoever, provided always that the said property, assets, shares of stock, bonds, and other obligations are such as the ..... Company is or may be lawfully authorized to purchase, or acquire, or finding and declaring (2) that it has loaned the sum stated in said resolution to The ..... Company, or to any other corporation a majority in amount of whose then outstanding capital stock may be held or controlled by the ..... Company at the time, and shall deliver to the Trustee a copy of such resolution, certified as such by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries of the ..... Company, accompanied by a certificate, signed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company, stating the amount, in par value, of the said bonds agreed or necessary to be issued on account of such purchase or to provide the funds to enable the same to be made, or so loaned or agreed to be loaned, and, in each case, that the amount paid for or the value of the real estate, plants, shares, bonds or other property or securities so purchased or acquired, or arranged to be, was or is not less than the par value of the bonds so to be issued on account thereof, the Trustee shall authenticate an amount of the bonds which are then subject to the provisions of this section, not to exceed, in par value, the amount thereof stated in such copy of such resolution and in said certificate to have been agreed or to be necessary to be issued by the ..... Company, for said property, or for such shares of stock, bonds, or other obligations, or so loaned or agreed to be loaned, and shall deliver such an amount of the bonds, so authenticated, as may be directed in writing by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company, upon there being (1) deposited with the Trustee an amount in cash equal to the par value of the bonds so authenticated and delivered; or (2) mortgaged or pledged to the Trustee hereunder, the property so acquired, or arranged to be acquired, in each case subject to all the terms and conditions of this indenture; or (3) delivered to the Trustee, certificates for the shares of stock, or the bonds, notes or other obligations of the other corporation or corporations thus purchased or acquired or given to evidence the loan thus made, and which may be mentioned in the copy of such resolution of said Board of Directors or Executive Committee, and in the certificate in this section last above referred to, properly indorsed or assigned for transfer in blank (if the same be not in terms payable to bearer). The Trustee shall pay and disburse any cash deposits so made with it upon the order of the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and of the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company that the amount the said Trustee of a mortgage or pledge of the property, or of certificates for said shares of stock, or of the bonds, notes or other obligations mentioned in the copy of such resolution above referred to, properly assigned or indorsed in blank (if the same be not in terms payable to bearer), and also of a certificate signed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company that the amount paid for or the value of such property, or shares of stock, bonds, notes or obligations so mortgaged or so pledged or delivered was or is not less than the sum in cash so directed to be paid and disbursed. And the Trustee shall thereupon stamp or cause to be stamped on each such stock certificate, bond, note, or other obligation, the aforesaid Indenture Stamp. All such property so mortgaged or pledged to the Trustee, and any and all such shares of stock, bonds, notes, or other obligations, so delivered to the Trustee, shall be held subject to and for the purposes of the mortgage, pledge, security, trusts and conditions in and by this indenture made, created and declared, with the same force and effect as if the said property, shares of stock, bonds, notes, and other obligations had been and were specifically included and described in the granting and pledging clauses of this indenture. The Trustee may rely upon the certificate of the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and of the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company, and the same shall be conclusive evidence in favor of the Trustee, as to the amount of hereby secured bonds agreed or necessary to be issued for or on account of the said property, or said shares of stock, bonds, or other obligations, and as to the amount loaned to any such other corporation, and as to any other matter in this section referred to, all as mentioned in said certificate delivered to the said Trustee, and in respect of the right and power of the ..... Company to acquire and hold the same, but may, in its discretion and at the expense of the ..... Company, require further proof as to such amount and as to such right and power, and shall be entitled to rely upon the report of any expert or counsel it may select in the premises. Said Trustee shall not, however, be under a duty to require such additional proof, or liable for not requiring the same.

(b) Whenever the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company shall pass a resolution finding and declaring that, to its satisfaction and approval, the properties, plants, and appliances of the ..... Company, or of The ..... Company, or of any corporation a majority in amount of whose then outstanding capital stock shall be held or controlled by the ..... Company at the time, have been constructed, acquired, enlarged, extended, bettered, or added to, and also finding and declaring the amount in cash which has been expended, applied or loaned by the ..... Company for or on account of such construction, acquisition, enlargements, extensions, betterments, or additions, in addition to the proceeds of any other bonds theretofore issued for that purpose under this indenture, and if such enlargements, extensions, betterments, or additions shall, in the judgment of said Board of Directors or Executive Committee, consist of fixed property, then further finding and declaring that the same have been constructed, erected or made upon premises the title to which is then subject to this indenture, or if such new property, enlargements, extensions, betterments, or additions shall have been constructed, acquired, erected or made by The ..... Company, or any such other corporation, then so finding and declaring, and further finding and declaring that The ..... Company or such other corporation has executed bonds or other obligations for the amount loaned or agreed to be loaned for the purpose of constructing, acquiring, erecting, or making such new property, enlargements, extensions, betterments, or additions, and that the said bonds or other obligations have been delivered to the Trustee to further secure the bonds issued and to be issued hereunder, then, in any such case, upon delivery to it of a copy of such resolution, certified as such by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall authenticate and deliver to the ..... Company, or upon its order, an amount of the bonds then subject to the provisions of this section, not to exceed in par value, as the case may be, either the sum in cash which is so stated to have been expended, applied or loaned by the ..... Company in and about the making and acquisition of the new property, enlargements, betterments or additions mentioned in said copy of said resolution, or the sum paid or disbursed for or on account of the bonds or other obligations of The ..... Company, or of such other corporation, so delivered to the Trustee; and the Trustee may thereupon place on the bonds or other obligations so received by it, the said Indenture Stamp. The said Trustee may rely upon the findings, declarations, statements and requests contained in such copy of such resolution, and shall be under no liability for so relying and acting on the faith thereof. The Trustee may, however, at the expense of the ..... Company, require further proof of such expenditure or cost, or of the amount thereof, and may cause the statements in said resolution contained to be verified in such manner as it may determine, and shall be entitled to rely upon the report of any expert or counsel it may select for the purpose of making such verification; but it shall not be bound to verify such statements, or liable for not doing so

Provisions Concerning The ..... Company Debentures.

SECTION 4. Not to exceed an aggregate of ..... Dollars ($.....), par value, of the said remaining $....., par value, of the bonds authorized under and secured by this indenture, may at the discretion of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, be issued, authenticated and delivered in exchange for or to provide funds necessary to pay, redeem, discharge or otherwise acquire any of the then outstanding Sinking Fund Gold Debentures of The ..... Company, dated May first, 1893.

For any and all of said debentures that shall be acquired by the ..... Company by purchase, exchange or otherwise, and deposited with the Trustee hereunder, together with all coupons not matured at the time of such deposit, the Trustee shall, upon request of the ..... Company, evidenced by a resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, authenticate, and deliver to the ..... Company, or upon its order, bonds secured hereby and mentioned in this section, at such rate as said Board of Directors may from time to time designate. Whenever any of the said debentures are acquired by the ..... Company, by purchase, exchange or otherwise, the same, shall be canceled and satisfied, unless the ..... Company, by resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, shall request that the said debentures shall be kept in full force and effect. The Trustee may rely upon the recitals, requests and statements contained in a copy of any such resolution, certified as hereinafter provided, and shall be fully protected in acting upon the faith thereof.

When all of the said debentures have been exchanged, purchased, redeemed, paid, or otherwise acquired by the ..... Company and deposited with the said Trustee, or shall be so declared and certified to be, in or by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, or whenever the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company shall pass a resolution declaring that it is not the purpose or intention of said ..... Company to use the amount of bonds subject to this section which is mentioned in said resolution, for or on account of the said debentures, then, and in any such event, such amount of the bonds secured by this indenture and which have by this section been authorized to be used or applied in respect of such debentures and which shall then remain unissued, all as may be stated in such resolution, shall thereupon be, in all respects, a part of the issue of bonds secured hereby, which is mentioned in section 3 of this Article, and shall be held and subject to be authenticated, delivered and disposed of as is in said section provided.

Trustee May Rely on Certificates, Etc., of Officers.

SECTION 5. Except as and when in this indenture otherwise expressly provided, the Trustee shall be entitled to act and rely upon any copy of resolution, certificate, order, request, direction or other instrument, by any provision of this indenture required or provided to be delivered by the ..... Company to the Trustee, when the same is certified or executed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries, or by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers, of the ..... Company, and shall be fully protected in respect of any and all acts done or action taken or suffered by it, or on its behalf, in reliance thereon; and every such copy of resolution, certificate, order, request, direction or other instrument, thus certified or executed, shall be, at all times, and in all places, conclusively taken and held to be the act and deed of and binding upon the ..... Company.

Conversion and Reconversion of Coupon Bonds and Registered Bonds Without Coupons.

SECTION 6. Whenever any coupon bond or bonds, issued under this indenture, together with all unmatured coupons thereto belonging, shall be surrendered to the Trustee for exchange for a registered bond or for registered bonds without coupons, the ..... Company shall execute, and the Trustee shall authenticate, and, in exchange for such coupon bond or bonds, shall deliver, registered bonds or one registered bond without coupons, of the same series as the surrendered bond or bonds and for the like aggregate principal sum, but in no event of a less denomination than $1,000. Every registered bond without coupons so delivered in exchange for a coupon bond or for coupon bonds, shall bear interest from the date for payment of the last matured coupon of the surrendered bond or bonds.

Whenever any registered bond without coupons shall be surrendered to the Trustee, duly indorsed or transferred, the ..... Company, upon request therefor, shall issue to the transferee, and the said Trustee shall authenticate and deliver, registered bonds or one registered bond without coupons, of the same series and for a like aggregate principal sum; provided, always, that no registered bond without coupons shall be issued under this section of a smaller denomination than $1,000, except that a registered bond or bonds without coupons of the denomination of $100 shall, upon request therefor, be issued in exchange for a bond or bonds of the same denomination.

Whenever any registered bond or bonds without coupons of the denomination of or aggregating $1,000, or some multiple thereof, shall be surrendered to the Trustee, duly indorsed or transferred, for exchange for a coupon bond or for coupon bonds, the ..... Company shall issue, and the Trustee shall authenticate and deliver, in exchange therefor, coupon bonds or one coupon bond of the same series, and bearing interest at the same rate as the surrendered registered bond or bonds without coupons, and for the like aggregate principal sum, which bond or bonds shall have attached thereto the coupons maturing on and after the date when the next semi-annual instalment of interest would have matured on such surrendered bond or bonds without coupons.

Whenever any of the registered bonds without coupons of the denomination of $100, provided to be issued hereunder, to the number of ten or some multiple of ten, shall be surrendered to the Trustee, the ..... Company shall execute, and the Trustee shall authenticate, and, in exchange for said surrendered bonds, shall deliver coupon bond or bonds, or, at the election of the transferee, a registered bond or bonds without coupons, in either case, of the same series and of the denomination of $1,000 each, at the rate of one of said $1,000 bonds for each ten of said $100 bonds.

In every case of such exchange or transfer, the Trustee forthwith shall cancel the surrendered bond or bonds and coupons, and shall, upon written request therefor, deliver the same to the ..... Company.

For any such exchange of bonds, and for any transfer of registered bonds without coupons, the ..... Company, at its option, may require the payment of a sum sufficient to reimburse it for any stamp tax or other governmental charge or other expense connected therewith, and also of a further sum not exceeding one dollar for each new bond issued upon such exchange or transfer.

Surrender of Bonds and Issue of Other Bonds in Lieu Thereof.

SECTION 7. In case the ..... Company shall at any time surrender or cause to be surrendered to the Trustee any of the bonds which shall have been authenticated and delivered hereunder, and, if a coupon bond or coupon bonds, then also the unmatured coupons for interest thereon which shall then remain uncanceled, accompanied by a copy of a resolution of the Board of Directors of the ..... Company, certified as such by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries of the ..... Company, requesting the Trustee to authenticate and deliver new bonds in exchange for the bonds so surrendered to the Trustee, the Trustee shall authenticate and deliver, in lieu of the bonds so surrendered, bonds of a new or other series for the aggregate principal sum thereof, which new bonds shall be payable at such time or times, not before ..... 1, ....., and shall bear interest at such rate or rates, not exceeding five per cent. per annum, and which new bonds and the coupons to be attached thereto, shall, so far as may be appropriate, be otherwise substantially in the form or forms herein-before set forth, all as the Board of Directors of the ..... Company shall determine and designate in such resolution; and a copy of any form of new bond so determined upon or designated which may differ from the forms herein-before set out, shall be delivered to the Trustee. All bonds and coupons so surrendered to the Trustee shall forthwith be canceled by the Trustee, and, upon written request therefor, delivered to the ..... Company.

Bonds Bearing Lower Rate and With Different Maturity May Be Issued.

SECTION 8. The ..... Company, instead of issuing the whole of the $45,000,000 in bonds authorized hereby in the form of Twenty-Year Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds, may at any time issue another series or other series of bonds secured hereby, payable at such time or times on or subsequent to .....

...., ....., and bearing interest at such rate or rates not exceeding five per cent. per annum, as its Board of Directors may from time to time determine by resolution; and the Trustee shall authenticate such other bonds upon due authority therefor as herein prescribed; provided, always, that the aggregate principal sum of all bonds of all series hereby secured, shall never exceed the sum of $45,000,000 at any one time outstanding.

Mutilation and Destruction of Bonds.

SECTION 9. In case any coupon bond issued hereunder, with the coupons thereto appertaining, or any registered bond without coupons, shall become mutilated or be destroyed, the ..... Company, in its discretion, may execute, and thereupon the Trustee shall authenticate and deliver, a new bond of like tenor and date (including coupons in case of a coupon bond), in exchange and substitution for and upon cancellation of the mutilated coupon bond and its coupons or the mutilated registered bond without coupons, or in lieu of and in substitution for the coupon bond and its coupons or the registered bond without coupons, so destroyed. In case of destruction, the applicant for a substituted bond shall furnish to the ..... Company and to the Trustee evidence of the destruction of such bond or coupons so destroyed; which evidence shall be satisfactory to the ..... Company and the Trustee; and said applicant shall also furnish indemnity satisfactory to both of them. The Trustee shall not be liable for any act done by it, in good faith, under this section.

Temporary Bonds.

SECTION 10. Until the bonds to be issued under and secured by this indenture can be engraved and prepared, the ..... Company may execute, and, upon its request, the Trustee shall authenticate and deliver, in lieu of such engraved bonds and subject to the same provisions, limitations and conditions, temporary printed or lithographed registered bonds without coupons, of any denomination, substantially of the purport of the bonds to be issued as hereinbefore provided. Upon surrender to the Trustee of such temporary bonds for exchange, the ..... Company shall issue, and, upon cancellation of such surrendered bonds, the Trustee shall authenticate and, in exchange therefor, deliver engraved coupon bonds or registered bonds without coupons, of the denominations hereinbefore provided, for the amount of the temporary bonds surrendered; and, until so exchanged, each of such temporary bonds shall be entitled to the same security and rights as an engraved bond issued hereunder.

Benefits Thereof Limited to Parties.

SECTION 11. Nothing in this Article expressed or mentioned, or in any other Article of this indenture, or in the bonds issued hereunder, or to be implied therefrom, is intended or shall be construed to give to any person or corporation other than the parties hereto, and the holders of bonds issued under and secured by this indenture, any legal or equitable right, remedy or claim under or in respect of this indenture, or any covenant, condition or provision therein contained; all its covenants, provisions and conditions being intended to be, and being, for the sole and exclusive benefit of the parties hereto, and of the holders of the bonds hereby secured

ARTICLE TWO.

THE ..... COMPANY COVENANTS AS FOLLOWS:

Will Pay Principal and Interest Without Deduction for Taxes.

SECTION 1. Duly and punctually it will pay or cause to be paid to every holder of any bond issued hereunder and secured hereby, the principal thereof and the interest accruing thereon, at the dates and the place and in the manner mentioned in such bonds, or in the coupons thereto belonging, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, without deduction from either principal or interest for any tax or taxes imposed by the United States, or by any State, county, or municipality therein, which the ..... Company may be required to pay thereon, or to retain therefrom, under or by reason of any present or future laws.

Will Keep Place for Payment of Principal and Interest and for Serving Notices.

The interest on the coupon bonds shall be payable only upon presentation and surrender of the several coupons for such interest, as they respectively mature, and, when paid, such coupons shall forthwith be canceled. The interest on the registered bonds without coupons shall be payable only to the registered holders thereof, or upon their order duly authenticated.

At all times until the payment of the principal of the bonds secured by this indenture, the ..... Company will keep an office or agency in the city of New York where bonds and interest coupons may be presented for payment, and where notices or demands in respect of such bonds or interest coupons may be served, and, from time to time, the ..... Company will give notice to the Trustee of the place of such office or agency. In case the ..... Company shall fail to keep such office or agency or to give to the Trustee notice of the place thereof, such presentation and demand may be made and such notices may be served at the office of the Trustee in the city of New York.

No Extension for Payment of Interest.

The ..... Company agrees and covenants that it will not, directly or indirectly, extend or assent to the extension of the time for the payment of any of the interest upon any of said bonds; and that it will not, directly or indirectly, be a party to or approve any arrangement for any such extension, by a purchase or keeping alive of any of said interest or (in case of a bond with coupons) of the coupons therefor, or in any other manner. In case the time for payment of any such interest shall be so extended, otherwise than as provided in section 2 of Article 4 hereof, and whether or not such extension be by or with the consent of the ..... Company, such interest shall not be entitled, in case of default hereunder, to the benefit or security of this indenture, except subject to the prior payment in full of the principal of all bonds issued hereunder then outstanding and of all matured interest on such bonds the payment of which has not been so extended

Registration of Bonds.

SECTION 2. The ..... Company, at an office or agency in the city of New York, will keep a register or registers for the registration and transfer of bonds issued hereunder, in and at which it will register, or cause to be registered, subject to such reasonable regulations as it may, from time to time, prescribe, all such bonds without coupons, and upon presentation thereof for such purpose, any such coupon bond; and such register or registers shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of the Trustee.

Every registered bond without coupons shall be dated on the day of the actual authentication thereof, and the Trustee is hereby authorized, upon authentication, to fill in such date.

Transfer of Registered Bonds.

Upon presentation to the bond registrar of the ..... Company, at the place where such register shall be kept, of any such registered coupon bond, accompanied by the delivery of a written instrument of transfer, in a form approved by the ..... Company, executed by the registered holder, such bond may be transferred upon the register by the registered holder in person or by attorney, and such transfer shall be noted by such bond registrar upon the bond. The registered holder of any such registered coupon bond shall also have the right to cause the same to be registered as payable to bearer, in which case transferability by delivery shall be restored, and thereafter the principal of such bond when due shall be payable to the person presenting the bond; but any such coupon bond registered as payable to bearer may be registered again in the name of the holder with the same effect as a first registration thereof. Successive registrations and transfers, as aforesaid, may be made from time to time as desired; and each registration of a coupon bond shall be noted by the bond registrar on the bond.

Registration of any coupon bond, however, shall not affect the transferability, by delivery merely, of any coupons thereto belonging, and payment to the bearer of any such coupon shall discharge the ..... Company in respect of the interest therein mentioned, whether or not the bond shall have been registered.

Any registered bond or bonds without coupons may be transferred upon such register at such office or agency by the registered holder in person or by attorney, upon (1) surrender of such bond to such bond registrar for cancellation; (2) delivery of a written instrument of transfer, in form approved by the ..... Company, duly executed by the registered holder of the bond; and (3) payment of any charges imposed under section 6 of Article One hereof. But no registered bond without coupons of the denomination of $1,000 or $10,000 shall be exchangeable for bonds of a less denomination than $1,000 each, nor shall any coupon bond be issued under any provision of this indenture of a less denomination than $1,000.

Will Pay Taxes, Assessments; etc.

SECTION 3. The ..... Company, from time to time, will pay and discharge all taxes, assessments, imposts and governmental charges lawfully imposed upon the shares of stock, bonds and other securities, and all other property, at any time subject to this indenture, or upon any part thereof, or upon the income or profits thereof, or upon the lien or interest of the Trustee in respect of any part of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged; provided, however, that the ..... Company shall have the right to contest by legal proceedings any such tax, assessment, impost or governmental charge, and, pending such contest, may delay or defer the payment thereof, unless thereby, in the opinion of the Trustee, any such shares of stock, bonds or other property shall be lost or forfeited or materially endangered.

Covenants of Title and for Further Assurance.

SECTION 4. The ..... Company is lawfully seized and possessed of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged and will warrant and defend the title thereto, to the Trustee, its successors and assigns, for the benefit of the holders for the time being of the bonds issued and to be issued hereunder, against the lawful claims and demands of all persons whomsoever.

The ..... Company, its successors and assigns, and each and every person having or holding any estate, right, title or interest in and to the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, from time to time, on written demand of the Trustee, or its successor or successors, will make, do, execute, acknowledge and deliver all such further acts, deeds, conveyances, and assurances in the law as may be reasonably advised, devised and required for effectuating the intention of these presents and for the better assuring or confirming unto the Trustee, and its successor or successors in the trust hereby created, upon the trusts and for the purposes herein expressed, all and singular the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, or intended or agreed so to be.

To Pledge After-acquired Securities.

SECTION 5. The ..... Company, from time to time, will pledge and assign or transfer and deliver to the Trustee, to be held subject to the trusts of this indenture as fully and completely as though expressly and specifically pledged, assigned and transferred thereunder at the time of the execution thereof:

(a) Any and all additional shares of the capital stock of The ..... Company which may be acquired by the ..... Company;

(b) Any and all bonds, debentures, and other obligations and securities which may hereafter be acquired by or accrue in favor of the ..... Company, and which, in whole or in part, shall have been purchased with, or otherwise result from, any of the bonds issued or to be issued hereunder, or the proceeds thereof; and

(c) Any and all shares of the capital stock of any other corporation, now or hereafter created, which may be acquired by the ..... Company and which shall have been paid for or acquired, in whole or in part, with or out of any of the bonds issued or to be issued hereunder, or the proceeds thereof, or with or out of any of the property, stocks, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness or securities which are at the time subject to this indenture, or the proceeds thereof.

All such bonds, debentures, obligations and securities and the certificates for such shares shall be assigned, transferred and pledged hereunder, subject to the terms and conditions of the acquisition thereof by the ..... Company; and as and when the same shall be received by the ..... Company, it shall deliver them to the Trustee, duly indorsed for transfer in blank (if not already in bearer form), and the Trustee shall thereupon stamp or cause to be stamped thereon the Indenture Stamp hereinbefore set out

To Mortgage After-acquired Property.

SECTION 6. When and as, from time to time, the ..... Company shall acquire by purchase or otherwise, any real or other fixed property which may be paid for, in whole or in part, with or out of any of the bonds issued or to be issued hereunder, or the proceeds thereof, or with or out of any of the property, stocks, bonds or other evidences of indebtedness or securities which are at the time subject to this indenture, or the proceeds thereof, the ..... Company either (1) will convey or transfer the same, subject to the lien hereof, to some other corporation all the shares of whose capital stock, except so many of said shares as may be necessary to qualify persons to act as directors or officers of such corporation, shall then be held by the Trustee hereunder, or (2) will mortgage the same to the Trustee, or cause the same to be so mortgaged, as additional security for the bonds issued and to be issued hereunder. Every such conveyance or transfer or mortgage may be subject to any liens, rentals, or other charges affecting the property conveyed or transferred or mortgaged, at the time of the acquisition thereof by the ..... Company.

The Trustee may, at any time, accept any conveyance, assignment or transfer of any property, real or personal, which any person or corporation may make and deliver to said Trustee; and the property so conveyed, assigned or transferred, if and when the conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof shall be accepted by the Trustee, shall thereupon become a part of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged.

Indebtedness and Dividends of Controlled Companies Regulated.

SECTION 7. The ..... Company will not, so long as any of the bonds secured hereby are outstanding, cause, permit, or suffer the ..... Company, or any other corporation a majority in amount of whose then outstanding capital stock may hereafter be acquired by it, in whole or in part, with or out of any bonds issued hereunder, or the proceeds thereof, and the majority of whose directors may have been elected by or under the direction of the ..... Company (a) to become indebted, except in the ordinary course of business, or for the acquisition of additional property, shares of stock or other securities, or to the ..... Company as and to the extent authorized and contemplated by this indenture, or (b) to declare or pay a dividend upon any of the stock of such corporation, or to the holders thereof, or otherwise to distribute or pay any of its assets or funds to its stockholders, except only, in either case (1) out of the undivided and undistributed net profits of such corporation then on hand, and to the extent that the funds so divided or distributed and paid over, shall represent and consist of such net profits then on hand, or (2) as authorized or permitted by the terms and provisions of this indenture.

Cash Items and Quick Assets Equal to Par of Outstanding Bonds to be Kept on Hand.

SECTION 8. The ..... Company will at all times, so long as any of the bonds secured hereby are outstanding, keep on hand, or cause The ..... Company or other corporations a majority in amount of whose capital stock is at the time held or controlled by the ..... Company or The ..... Company, to keep on hand, (a) bills and accounts receivable and cash and cash items, and (b) merchantable and movable assets consisting of and including merchandise, manufactured, produced or prepared, and in process of manufacture, production or preparation, raw material, including hides and bark, supplies and other articles generally constituting and known as "quick assets," to an amount so that the aggregate net value and amount, scheduled, verified, fixed or ascertained as hereinafter provided,

(1) of such items and assets of the ..... Company, and

(2) of a proportion of such items and assets of The ..... Company and of any corporation any of whose shares of stock may be held by The ..... Company, equal to the proportion which the number of shares of the capital stock of The ..... Company then held by the ..... Company and at the time pledged and deposited hereunder, shall bear to the total number of the then outstanding shares of the capital stock of The ..... Company, and

(3) of a proportion of such items and assets of any other corporation any of the shares of whose capital stock shall be at the time subject to this indenture, equal to the proportion which the number of such shares then subject hereto shall bear to the total number of the then outstanding shares of the capital stock of such corporation, shall, on the thirty-first day of December of each year, be equal to at least the par value of the principal of the bonds authorized and secured hereby then outstanding. On or before the first day of April of each year, the ..... Company shall deliver to the Trustee a schedule, sworn to by its President or one of its Vice-Presidents and by its Treasurer or one of its Assistant Treasurers, showing, in general and summarized form, the nature, description, location and value of such items and "quick assets" on hand at the close of the last preceding calendar year by the said several corporations, and if such items and assets are not absolutely owned by the ..... Company, the value of its interest therein, computed as above provided. In case, in the opinion of the Trustee, any of such articles of merchandise mentioned in said schedule shall not at the time have or possess a market or reasonably known value, the Trustee may cause the value thereof to be verified or fixed by a competent appraiser or expert, to be selected by the Trustee; and the Trustee may, in its discretion, cause the books and records of any or all of said companies, so far as the ..... Company may have lawful power to grant or permit access to such books or records, to be examined in order to verify the correctness of any such schedule. The cost and expense of any such appraisal or examination shall be borne by the ..... Company. The Trustee shall be entitled to accept and rely on any schedule thus delivered to it, and upon the report of any appraiser or expert which it may select under the provisions hereof. The Trustee shall not be bound to cause such appraisal, verification or examination to be made, or liable for not doing so.

ARTICLE THREE.

Transfer of Pledged Stocks to Trustee.

SECTION 1. From time to time, the Trustee may, but shall not be obliged to, cause to be transferred into the name of the Trustee, or its nominee, any or all shares of stock which shall have been assigned to or pledged with the Trustee hereunder; but in each case the corporation which issued such shares shall be notified that such shares are held subject to this indenture; and the Trustee shall, in case any such shares are so transferred, indicate or cause such corporation to indicate upon the face of the certificate for such shares the fact that such shares are held subject to this indenture.

Any provision of this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding, the Trustee shall not be obliged, at any time, to accept a certificate for any shares of stock in any corporation, or to cause or permit a transfer thereof to be made to it, if, in the opinion of the Trustee, such acceptance will involve, or render it liable to be subjected to, the risk of any liability or expense.

Trustee May Transfer Shares to Qualify Directors.

The Trustee, at any time, may do whatever in its discretion and judgment may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining, preserving, renewing or extending the corporate existence of any company a majority in amount of whose shares shall then be held hereunder, and for such purpose, from time to time, the Trustee may sell, or assign, and transfer and deliver so many shares of the stock of the said several companies as may be necessary to qualify persons to act as directors of, or in any other official relation to, said companies, respectively. Whenever requested in writing by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall assign and transfer to the persons designated by such officer of the ..... Company, a sufficient number of such shares held hereunder, to qualify such persons to act as directors of, or in any official relation to, the several companies, respectively, which issued such shares; provided, however, that no transfer shall be made which shall reduce the amount of stock in any company held hereunder, so as to render it less than a majority in amount of such stock; and in every such case the Trustee may make such arrangement as it shall deem necessary for the protection of the trust hereunder.

The Trustee may, but shall not be obliged to, cause to be transferred into the name of the Trustee, any or all registered bonds or other obligations which shall be received by it hereunder. The Trustee shall be authorized, but shall not be obliged, (1) to cause any or all coupon bonds or debentures received by it hereunder to be exchanged for registered bonds or debentures without coupons of any denomination, or (2) to cause any or all such coupon bonds or debentures to be registered in the name of the Trustee, as Trustee hereunder; and (3) to cause any such coupon bonds or debentures, or any stock certificates or other securities which may be received by it pursuant hereto, to be stamped with the said Indenture Stamp.

Disposition of Dividends and Interest on Pledged Securities.

SECTION 2. Unless there shall be some continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four of this indenture, the ..... Company, from time to time, shall be entitled to receive and to collect all dividends that may be declared on any shares of the capital stock of other corporations that shall at the time be subject to this indenture, and, as well, all sums that shall become due and payable for interest upon any bonds, debentures, or other obligations or claims that may at the time be held hereunder; and the Trustee, on request of the ..... Company, from time to time, shall deliver to it suitable assignments and orders for the payment to its Treasurer, or other officer or agent designated by its President or one of its Vice-Presidents, of all dividends that, from time to time, may be declared or may become payable on such shares of capital stock of other corporations, and, upon like request, shall deliver to it, or such officer or agent, the coupons for interest on any such coupon bonds or debentures and suitable assignments and orders for the payment of the interest on any such registered bonds or debentures, and on any other bonds, debentures, or other obligations that shall be held hereunder, and the Trustee, from time to time, upon request of the ..... Company, shall pay over to its Treasurer, or other officer or agent designated by its President or one of its Vice-Presidents, any and all sums which shall be received or collected by the Trustee for interest upon any such bonds, debentures or other obligations, or for dividends upon any such shares of stock.

In case there shall be a continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four hereof, then, during the continuance of such default, in addition to the other remedies herein provided, the Trustee may revoke any such assignments or orders, and collect or receive all such dividends on such stock, and all such sums payable for interest upon any such bonds, debentures, or other obligations held hereunder; and all sums so collected or received, prior to any such sale hereunder as is mentioned in section 7 of Article Four hereof, shall be applicable to the payment of interest that shall become due on bonds hereby secured; but after any such default shall have been made good, or shall have been waived, the right of the ..... Company to receive and collect such dividends on such stocks and such interest on such bonds, debentures, or other obligations, and the duty of the Trustee to execute such assignments and standing orders, shall revive and continue as though such default had not taken place.

Disposition of Payments of or on Account of Principal of Pledged Securities.

In case there shall at any time or times be paid to the Trustee any sum on account or in payment of the principal of any bond, debenture or other obligation held hereunder or on account of the principal of any shares of stock or other securities subject to the lien hereof, the Trustee shall, on receiving the said amount, subject to, and except as otherwise provided in, section 5 of this Article, dispose of and disburse the same as follows: If the ..... Company, by a resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, shall request Article, dispose of and disburse the same as follows: If the ..... Company, by a resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, shall request that said amount, or the portion thereof stated in said resolution, shall be used and applied for and to any of the purposes specified in sub-paragraphs (a) and (b) of section 3 of Article One of this indenture, the Trustee shall disburse said amount, or said portion thereof, upon the order of the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company upon compliance with the conditions and provisions in said sub-paragraphs, or one of them, set forth and specified, in the same manner and to the same extent in all substantial respects as if said ..... Company were requesting the authentication of an equal amount, par value, of the bonds provided to be subject to said section 3. If the ..... Company shall fail to deliver a copy of such resolution, certified as such by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries of the ..... Company, to the Trustee within sixty days after written notice from the Trustee to the ..... Company of the receipt of such sum or sums, or within such other period as may be allowed by the Trustee, the Trustee shall, without further action on the part of, or request from, the ..... Company, purchase so many of the bonds then outstanding hereunder as the amount so received will enable it to do at the lowest price practicable, either on the New York Stock Exchange or otherwise at private sale or by public advertisement, as the Trustee in its sole and absolute discretion may see fit; and its expenses in respect of any such purchases or advertising or publishing any notice in relation thereto shall be payable out of said fund. In case the Trustee shall not be able to expend the whole of said amount in the purchase of bonds at a less price than par and accrued interest and a premium of five per cent. (5%) on the principal thereof, the Trustee shall invest or dispose of such unexpended amount as may be directed by a resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company; provided, however, that such investment or other disposition be made in such manner that the same will, in the opinion of the Trustee, inure to and become a part of the security for the bonds issued or to be issued hereunder.

In case any such payment shall be made to the Trustee at a time when there is, to the knowledge of the Trustee, a continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four hereof, then, during the continuance of such default, the Trustee, instead of disposing of the same as above provided, may, if in its judgment it is advisable to do so, hold the said amount as part of the security for the bonds and coupons issued and to be issued hereunder; but after such default shall have been made good or shall have been waived, the said amount, or the unexpended portion thereof then in the hands of the Trustee, shall be subject to be disposed of, disbursed, applied or invested as above provided.

The Trustee shall not be liable for or because of any action taken or suffered on its part under or in pursuance to this section or by it believed to be authorized thereby, which is done, taken or suffered by it in good faith.

Voting Power of Pledged Stocks; Proxies, etc.

SECTION 3. Unless there shall be some continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four of this indenture, the ..... Company shall have the right, except only as hereinafter limited, to vote upon all shares of stock that shall have become subject to this indenture, with the same force and effect as though such shares were not subject to this indenture, including the right to vote any or all of said shares in favor of changing the name of any such corporation or of amending its certificate of incorporation or its by-laws; and the Trustee, on demand of the ..... Company, from time to time, shall execute and deliver to the ..... Company, or to such person or persons as shall be designated by resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, such proxies or powers of attorney, in general form, as may be necessary to enable the ..... Company, or the person or persons so designated, or its or their substitute or substitutes, to vote upon all shares of stock of other corporations that shall have been transferred to the Trustee hereunder, at all meetings, whether general or special, of the shareholders of any such corporation, to the same extent and with the same effect as though such shares were absolutely owned by the ..... Company and were not subject to this indenture.

In case there shall be a continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four hereof, then during the continuance of such default, in addition to the other remedies hereinafter provided, the Trustee may revoke any such proxies or powers of attorney, and vote upon any such shares of the capital stock of other corporations; but after any such default shall have been made good, or shall have been waived, the right of the ..... Company to vote upon any such shares, and the obligation of the Trustee to execute such proxies and powers of attorney, shall revive, and shall continue as though no such default had taken place.

Liens on Property of Controlled Companies Regulated.

Nevertheless, such voting power shall not, in any case or at any time, be used or exercised for the purpose of authorizing the creation of any lien or charge upon the properties or franchises of any such corporation, except to secure the unpaid purchase-money of additional property acquired by such corporation or advances or loans made by the ..... Company to or for any of such corporation as and to the extent authorized by this indenture; and all such proxies shall by proper limitations provide against such use or exercise of such voting power.

Any provision to the contrary notwithstanding, the Trustee shall not be under a duty to vote, or to execute its proxy or power of attorney to vote, in accordance or compliance with any request of the ..... Company, in case there shall be at the time a continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four hereof.

Consolidation or Dissolution of Controlled Companies.

Whenever requested by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall vote, or shall execute its proxy or power of attorney to vote upon, the shares of stock of other corporations held by the Trustee under this indenture, in favor of consolidating or merging such corporations, or any of them, with each other, or of dissolving, or of selling, transferring, or liquidating any or all the assets of any such corporation; provided, that upon such consolidation or merger, all of the stock of the consolidated company applicable to, and all other proceeds received in exchange for or on account of the shares of stock theretofore held hereunder, shall become subject hereto, and provided, further, that no such consolidation or merger shall take place unless the ..... Company shall own a majority in amount of the shares of stock of the corporation resulting from such consolidation or merger and that such majority of shares shall be made subject to this indenture; and provided, further, that every such dissolution, sale, transfer or liquidation, other than a sale or transfer made pursuant to Article 6 of this indenture, shall be subject to the provisions of section 5 of this Article in that behalf.

Increase or Reduction of Capital Stock of Controlled Companies.

Whenever requested by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall vote, or shall execute its proxy or power of attorney to vote upon, the shares of stock of other companies held under this indenture, in favor of the increase or reduction, from time to time, of the capital stock of any of such companies.

In case of an increase of the capital stock of any such company, the ..... Company covenants and agrees forthwith to assign, transfer and deliver to the Trustee, to be held upon the terms of this indenture, in the same manner and with the same effect as though assigned, transferred and delivered at the date of the execution hereof, certificates for the additional shares of the capital stock of such company, or such part thereof as shall be proportionate to the part of the entire capital stock of such company previously held hereunder.

In case of the decrease of the capital stock of any such company, the Trustee may surrender such part of the shares thereof held hereunder as shall be proportionate to the amount of such decrease.

Sale or Lease of Property of Controlled Companies.

Anything in this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding, any company any of whose shares of capital stock shall be held hereunder may sell or lease its property and franchises, or any part of its property and franchises, to any other company, whether or not the shares of such last-mentioned company be held hereunder, or may purchase or lease the property and franchises, or any part of the property and franchises, of any other company, whether or not the shares of such last-mentioned company be held hereunder, and, in either event, any company, any part of whose capital stock shall be held under this indenture, may execute any such conveyance or lease of or to such property and franchises, or any part thereof; and whenever requested by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee, unless such conveyance or lease shall appear to the Trustee to be detrimental to the interests of the bondholders hereunder, shall vote, or execute its proxy or power of attorney to vote upon, the shares of stock held hereunder, in favor of the execution of any such conveyance or lease.

Anything in this indenture to the contrary notwithstanding, any company any of whose shares of capital stock are subject to this indenture, may be merged or consolidated with, or all or any part of its property may be sold or conveyed to, the ..... Company; but all real property, and all leaseholds or other qualified interests in real property, and all shares of stock, bonds, and other obligations, belonging to the company or companies so consolidated or merged with the ..... Company, or whose property as an entirety may be purchased by the ..... Company, shall become and be subject to the lien and operation of this indenture, with the same effect as though mortgaged, assigned and transferred to the Trustee at the time of the execution hereof, but subject to any prior lien upon any of the property of any such corporation which may be so consolidated or merged with the ..... Company or upon any property so purchased by the ..... Company; and the ..... Company, and any such consolidated company, shall execute all such further instruments of mortgage, pledge, assignment or transfer, as the Trustee may reasonably require for that purpose.

The Trustee shall not be liable for any action taken or suffered by it in good faith and believed by it to be authorized under the provisions of this section. It may rely upon the statements contained in a certificate signed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents of the ..... Company in determining whether a proposed lease or conveyance of all or any part of the property or franchises of any company, any of whose shares of capital stock shall be held hereunder, will or will not be detrimental to the interests of the holders of bonds issued hereunder.

Renewal, Extension, and Cancellation of Pledged Bonds, Etc.

SECTION 4. At any time, if requested by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall consent to the extension or renewal of any bonds, debentures, or other obligations which may, from time to time, be held hereunder, and to the extension or renewal of any mortgage or lien or agreement securing or concerning such bonds, debentures, or other obligations; provided, that the ..... Company shall not at the time be in default hereunder, and that the maker of such bonds, debentures, or other obligations shall not at the time be in default thereunder; and at any time, if the Trustee shall not deem it inadvisable, the Trustee shall so consent notwithstanding there be such a default.

Whenever all the bonds, debentures, or other obligations of any other corporation deposited with the Trustee hereunder, or entitled to be, shall be paid or satisfied, then, if thereunto requested by resolution adopted by the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee, at the expense of the ..... Company, shall cause to be canceled all such bonds, debentures, or other obligations held hereunder, and shall take such steps as may be necessary to procure the release or the satisfaction of any deed of trust or other instrument securing the same.

The Trustee may receive the opinion of any counsel as conclusive evidence of the existence of any facts authorizing any such extension or renewal of bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or any such cancellation of said bonds, debentures, or other obligations, and the release or satisfaction of such deed of trust or other instrument, in pursuance of the provisions of this section.

Liquidation or Judicial Sale of Property of Controlled Companies.

SECTION 5. In case (1) at any time The ..... Company or any other company a majority in amount of whose capital stock shall be held hereunder, shall be dissolved, or its property or assets, or any part thereof, shall be liquidated, sold or transferred; or in case (2) all or any of the property of any company any of the shares of the stock of which shall then be held hereunder, shall be sold upon the insolvency of such company, or under proceedings for the collection or enforcement of any notes or other obligations held hereunder, or otherwise at any judicial or other sale; or in case (3) any property covered by a mortgage or pledge securing any bonds or notes held hereunder, or subject to any charge or trust for the payment of any obligations held hereunder, shall be sold upon the foreclosure of such mortgage or by enforcement of such charge or trust, then, in any such event, the Trustee, at the request of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, evidenced by resolution of said board or of said committee, either shall purchase or cause to be purchased, or shall permit the ..... Company to purchase, such property, either in the name or in behalf of the ..... Company, or by purchasing agents or trustees, and shall use, or permit the ..... Company or such purchasing agents or trustees to use, such shares of stock, bonds, debentures, or other obligations, and any interests therein, so far as may be, to make payment for such property. In case of any such purchase the Trustee shall take such steps as the Trustee may deem advisable, to cause such property to be vested either in the ..... Company, subject to the lien of this indenture, or in some other corporation, organized or to be organized, with power to acquire and to manage such property, or partly in the ..... Company and partly in such other corporation, as the Trustee may deem advisable, provided (1) that a mortgage or pledge securing a bond or bonds or a note or notes, equal to at least the amount of the securities subject hereto which are used to pay therefor, shall be made to the Trustee hereunder; or (2) that any bonds and other indebtedness and all the capital stock of such newly organized corporation (except the number of shares required to qualify directors), shall be assigned, transferred, and delivered to the Trustee; and the same shall thereupon be held subject to the lien of this indenture as if originally pledged hereunder.

Trustee May Join Reorganization Plan or Take Other Steps to Protect Bondholders.

SECTION 6. With the written consent of the ..... Company, evidenced by resolution of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee, upon being furnished with the funds deemed by the Trustee necessary in the premises or upon being indemnified to its satisfaction, shall, at any time, take such steps as the Trustee, in its discretion, may deem advisable, to protect its interests and the interests of the bondholders hereunder, in respect of any bonds, debentures, or other obligations or shares of stock, which may be subject to the lien hereof; and, with such consent of the ..... Company, so evidenced, the Trustee, if the Trustee shall deem it advisable, may join in any plan of reorganization in respect of any such bonds, debentures, or other obligations, or shares of stock, and may accept the new securities issued in exchange therefor under the provisions of such plan.

In case there shall be at the time a continuing default in respect of any of the matters mentioned in section 3 of Article Four hereof, the Trustee shall, if the Trustee deem it advisable, take such steps or join in such plan, without the consent of the ..... Company.

Advance of Funds to Protect Security Hereof.

The ..... Company covenants that, on demand of the Trustee, it, the ..... Company, forthwith will pay, or will satisfactorily provide for, all expenditures incurred by the Trustee under any provision of this Article, including all sums required to obtain and perfect the ownership and title to any property which the Trustee shall cause or permit to be purchased pursuant to the provisions of this Article; and in case the ..... Company shall fail to do so, then, without impairment of or prejudice to any of its rights hereunder by reason of the default of the ..... Company, the Trustee, in its discretion, may advance all such expenses and other moneys required, or may procure such advances to be made by others; and for such advances made by the Trustee, or by others at its request, with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum, or other agreed rate, the Trustee shall have a lien prior to these presents, upon all the property, shares of stock, bonds, debentures, notes, obligations, claims and indebtedness in respect of which such advances shall have been made, and the proceeds thereof, and upon any property acquired by means thereof.

Disposition of Cash Proceeds of Judicial Sales Apportioned to Pledged Securities.

In case the Trustee shall not cause or permit to be purchased the property sold at any such sale, or shall not join in a plan of reorganization, as aforesaid, in respect of such bonds, debentures, obligations, claims or shares of stock, then the Trustee shall receive any portion of the proceeds of the same accruing on and apportioned to the securities then held hereunder, and such proceeds so received, from time to time, shall be applied by the Trustee, as is provided in section 2 of this Article in respect of sums received by the Trustee for or on account of the principal of any bond, debenture, note or other obligation or claim held hereunder or of any shares of stock subject hereto.

ARTICLE FOUR.

Lien of Detached Coupons Subordinated.

SECTION 1. No coupon belonging to any bond hereby secured, which in any way at or after maturity shall have been transferred or pledged separate or apart from the bond to which it relates, shall, unless accompanied by such bond, be entitled, in case of a default hereunder, to any benefit of or from this indenture, except after the prior payment in full of the principal of the bonds issued hereunder, and of all coupons and interest obligations not so transferred or pledged.

Principal of Bonds May Be Declared Due on Default.

SECTION 2. In case default shall be made in the payment of any interest on any of the bonds hereby secured and outstanding, and such default shall have continued for the period of ninety days, then, and in every case of such continued default, upon the written request of the holders of twenty-five per cent. in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, the Trustee, by notice in writing delivered to the then acting President of the ..... Company, or to any officer or representative of the ..... Company at its office in the city of New York or in Jersey City, or if it shall have no such office, or officer or representative thereat, then mailed to the ..... Company at ....., shall declare the principal of all bonds hereby secured and then outstanding to be due and payable immediately; and upon any such declaration the same shall become and be due and payable immediately, anything in this indenture, or in said bonds, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Waiver of Default.

This provision, however, is subject to the condition that if, at any time after the principal of said bonds shall have been so declared to be due and payable, all arrears of interest upon such bonds, with interest at the rate of five per cent, per annum on such overdue instalments of interest from their respective due dates, together with all expenses and the reasonable charges of the Trustee, shall either be paid by the ..... Company, or be collected out of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, before any sale of the said property hereby mortgaged and pledged shall have been made, then, and in every such case, the holders of twenty-five per cent. in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, by written notice to the ..... Company and to the Trustee may waive such default and its consequences; but no such waiver shall extend to or affect any subsequent default or impair any right consequent thereupon.

Power of Sale and Foreclosure Proceedings.

SECTION 3. In case (1) default shall be made in the payment of any interest on any bond hereby secured, and if such default shall continue for the period of ninety days; or in case (2) default shall be made in the due and punctual payment of the principal of any bond hereby secured; or in case (3) default shall be made in the due observance or performance of any other covenant or condition herein required to be kept or performed by the ..... Company, and any such last-mentioned default shall continue for a period of ninety days after written notice thereof to the ..... Company from the Trustee or from the holders of twenty-five per cent. in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, then, and in every such case, the Trustee, personally or by attorney, if the Trustee shall deem it advisable, (1) shall sell to the highest bidder, all and singular, the property, shares of capital stock, bonds, debentures, and other obligations and claims and the evidences thereof held under this indenture, and all right, title, interest, claim and demand therein, and the right of redemption thereof, in one lot and as an entirety, unless prior to the said sale the owners or holders of at least fifty per cent. in amount of the bonds then outstanding hereunder shall in writing request the Trustee to sell said property in separate lots; and in that event the same shall be sold in the separate lots designated in such request and in the order therein specified; which said sale or sales shall be made at public auction, at such place in the city of New York, in the State of New York, or at such other place or places, and at such time or times, and upon such terms as the Trustee may fix and briefly specify in the notice of sale to be given as herein provided, or as may be required by law; or (2) shall proceed to protect and enforce its rights and the rights of the bondholders under this indenture, by suit or suits in equity or at law, whether for specific performance of any covenant or agreement contained herein, or in aid of the execution of any power herein granted, or for any foreclosure hereunder, or for the enforcement of any other appropriate legal or equitable remedy, as the Trustee, being advised by counsel learned in the law, shall deem most effectual to protect and enforce the rights aforesaid; or (3) shall, in its discretion, proceed both by sale and by such suit or suits.

In case the Trustee shall have proceeded to enforce any right under this indenture, by foreclosure or otherwise, and such proceedings shall have been discontinued or abandoned because of a waiver of the default, as hereinbefore provided, in respect or because of which such proceedings shall have been instituted, or for any other reason, or shall have been determined adversely to the Trustee, then, and in every such case, the ..... Company and the Trustee shall be restored to their respective former positions and rights hereunder in respect of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged or intended or agreed to be, and all rights, remedies and powers of the Trustee shall continue as though no such proceeding had been taken.

Notice of Sale by Trustee.

SECTION 4. Notice of any such sale pursuant to any provision of this indenture shall state the time and place when and where same is to be made, and shall contain a brief, general description of the property to be sold, and shall be sufficiently given if published twice in each week for six successive weeks prior to such sale in a daily newspaper of general circulation published in the city of New York, unless another and different notice or another and different publication thereof shall be required by law, in which event the notice or publication, or both, thus required shall be given and made.

Bondholders May Direct Trustee.

Anything in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding, the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, from time to time, shall have the right to direct and control the method and place of conducting any and all proceedings for any sale of the property hereby mortgaged or pledged, or for the foreclosure of this indenture, or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other purpose hereunder

Adjournments of Sale.

The Trustee, from time to time, may adjourn any sale to be made under the provisions of this indenture, by announcement at the time and place appointed for such sale, or for such adjourned sale or sales; and, without further notice or publication, such sale may be made at the time and place to which the same shall be so adjourned.

Consummation of Sale.

Section 5. Upon the completion of any such sale or sales under this indenture, the Trustee shall make and deliver to the accepted purchaser or purchasers of the property so sold, a good and sufficient deed or deeds for the same, and shall assign, transfer and deliver to the accepted purchaser or purchasers thereof, the certificates for the shares of stock and the bonds and other like property so sold.

The Trustee and its successor or successors hereunder hereby are made and appointed the true and lawful attorney or attorneys irrevocable of the ..... Company and of its successors or assigns, in its or their name and stead, to make all necessary deeds and other instruments of transfer aforesaid, including therein any and all recitals and stipulations deemed by the Trustee, or such successor or successors, respectively, to be proper; and for that purpose the Trustee, or its successor or successors, may execute all necessary or convenient deeds or acts of assignment and transfer, the ..... Company for itself, its successors and assigns, hereby ratifying and confirming all that said attorney or attorneys shall lawfully do by virtue hereof.

Nevertheless, the ..... Company shall, if so requested by the Trustee, ratify and confirm such sale or sales by executing and delivering to the Trustee, or to such purchaser or purchasers, all proper deeds, conveyances, transfers and releases which may be designated in such request.

Operation and Effect of Sale — Receipt of Trustee to Protect Purchaser.

Every such sale made under or by virtue of this indenture, whether under the power of sale hereby granted and conferred, or under and by virtue of judicial proceedings, shall operate to divest all right, title, interest, claim and demand whatsoever, either at law or in equity, of the ..... Company, or any person claiming or to claim by, through or under it, of, in and to the property so sold, and shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and in equity, against the ..... Company, its successors and assigns, and against all persons claiming or to claim the property sold, or any part thereof, either through or under the ..... Company, its successors or assigns; and the receipt of the Trustee for the purchase money paid on such sale shall be a sufficient discharge to the purchaser without any liability upon the part of the purchaser to see to the application of the purchase money or to be bound to inquire as to the authorization, necessity, expediency or regularity of any such sale.

Maturity of Principal as Result of Sale.

SECTION 6. In case of such sale, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, the principal sums of all the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, if not previously due, shall become due and payable immediately, anything in said bonds or in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Distribution of Proceeds of Sale.

SECTION 7. The purchase money, proceeds and avails of any such sale, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, together with any other sums which then may be held by the Trustee under any of the provisions of this indenture as part of the trust estate, or the proceeds thereof, shall be applied as follows:

First. To the payment of the costs and expenses of such sale, including a reasonable compensation to the Trustee, its agents, attorneys and counsel, and of all other expenses, liabilities and advancements made or incurred by the Trustee in the premises;

Second. To the payment of the whole amount then owing or unpaid upon the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding for principal and interest, with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum on the overdue instalments of interest from their respective due dates; and in case such proceeds shall be insufficient to pay in full the whole amount so due and unpaid, then to the payment of such principal and interest, without preference or priority of principal over interest, or of interest over principal, or of any instalment of interest over any other instalment of interest, ratably, to the aggregate of such principal and the accrued and unpaid interest, subject, however, to the provisions of section 1 of this Article; and

Third. The surplus, if any, shall be paid to the ..... Company, its successors or assigns, or to whomsoever may be lawfully entitled to receive the same.

Bonds and Coupons May Be Used to Make Payment.

SECTION 8. In case of any sale hereunder, whether under the power of sale hereby granted or pursuant to judicial proceedings, any purchaser, for the purpose of making settlement or payment for the property purchased, shall, subject to the provisions of section 1 of this Article, be entitled to use and apply any bonds and any matured and unpaid coupons hereby secured, by presenting such bonds and coupons, in order that there may be credited thereon the sum apportionable and applicable to the payment thereof out of the net proceeds of such sale to the owner of such bonds and coupons as his ratable share of such net proceeds, after making any deductions which made be made from the proceeds of such sale for costs, expenses, compensation and other charges; and thereupon such purchaser shall be credited on account of such purchase price payable by him, with the sum apportionable and applicable out of such net proceeds to the payment of or as a credit on the bonds and coupons so presented; and, at any such sale, any bondholder, or the Trustee, may bid for and may purchase such property, and may make payment therefor as aforesaid, and, upon compliance with the terms of sale, may hold, retain and possess and dispose of such property in his or its own absolute right, without further accountability.

Trustee May Sue and Recover Judgment on Default.

SECTION 9. The ..... Company covenants that in case (1) default shall be made in the payment of any interest on any bond hereby secured, and if such default shall have continued for a period of ninety days; or in case (2) default shall be made in the payment of the principal of any such bonds when the same shall become payable, whether by the maturity of said bonds, or by declaration as authorized by this indenture, or, by a sale, as provided in section 6 of this Article, then, upon demand of the Trustee, the ..... Company will pay to the Trustee for the benefit of the holders of the bonds and coupons hereby secured then outstanding, the whole amount due and payable on all such bonds and coupons then outstanding, for principal or interest, or both, as the case may be, with interest (so far as such interest shall not be represented by overdue coupons) at the rate of five per cent. per annum upon the overdue principal and instalments of interest from their respective due dates; and in case the ..... Company shall fail to pay the same forthwith upon such demand, the Trustee, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to sue for and to recover judgment for the whole amount so due and unpaid.

The Trustee shall be entitled to sue and recover judgment as aforesaid, either before or after or during the pendency of any proceedings for the enforcement of the lien of this indenture, upon the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, and the right of the Trustee to sue and to recover such judgment shall not be affected by any sale hereunder, or by the exercise of any other right, power or remedy for the enforcement of the provisions of this indenture, or for the foreclosure of the lien thereof; and, in case of a sale of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, the Trustee, in its own name and as trustee of an express trust, shall be entitled to enforce payment of and to receive all amounts then remaining due and unpaid upon any and all of the bonds and coupons issued hereunder and then outstanding, for the benefit of the holders thereof, and shall be entitled to sue for and to recover judgment for any portion of the said debt remaining unpaid, with interest. No recovery of any such judgment by the Trustee, and no lien of any execution upon property subject to the lien of this indenture, or upon any other property, shall in any manner, or to any extent, affect the lien of the Trustee upon the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, or any part thereof, or any rights, powers or remedies of the Trustee hereunder, or any rights, powers or remedies of the holders of the bonds hereby secured, but such liens, rights, powers and remedies shall continue unimpaired as before, and also as security for and for the enforcement of any and every such judgment as fully as for and for the enforcement of the payment of such bonds and the interest thereon.

Any moneys thus collected by the Trustee under this section, after paying the expenses incurred in the premises of the character described in the first subparagraph of section 7 of this Article, shall be applied by the Trustee receiving the same towards the payment of the amount then due and unpaid upon such bonds and coupons, in respect or for the benefit of which, such moneys shall have been collected, ratably, and without any preference or priority of any kind, except as provided in section 1 of this Article, according to the amounts due and payable upon such bonds and coupons, respectively, at the date fixed by such Trustee for the distribution of such moneys, upon presentation of the several bonds and coupons or of said several registered bonds without coupons, and stamping thereon such payment, if only partially paid, and upon surrender thereof, if fully paid.

Waiver of Stay Laws, Redemption, etc.

SECTION 10. The ..... Company will not at any time insist upon or plead, or in any manner whatever claim, or take the benefit or advantage of, any stay or extension law now or at any time hereafter in force, nor will it claim, take or insist upon any benefit or advantage from any law now or hereafter in force, providing for the valuation or appraisal of the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, or any part thereof, prior to any sale or sales thereof to be made pursuant to any provision herein contained, or to the decree, judgment or order of any court of competent jurisdiction; nor, after any such sale or sales, will it claim or exercise any right under any statute now or hereafter made or enacted by any State or otherwise, to redeem the property so sold, or any part thereof; and it hereby expressly waives all benefit and advantage of any such law or laws, and it covenants that it will not invoke or utilize any such law or laws in order to hinder, delay or impede the execution of any power herein granted and delegated to the Trustee, but that it will suffer and permit the execution of every such power as though no such law or laws had been made or enacted.

SECTION 11. No holder of any bond or coupon hereby secured shall have the right to institute any suit, action or proceeding, in equity or at law, for the foreclosure of this indenture or for the execution of any trust thereof, or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder, or by reason hereof, unless such holder previously shall have given to the Trustee written notice of such default and of the continuance thereof, as hereinbefore provided; nor unless, also, the holders of twenty-five per cent. in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, after the right of action upon the default complained of shall have accrued to the Trustee, shall have made written request upon the Trustee and shall have afforded to it a reasonable opportunity either to proceed to exercise the powers hereinbefore granted, or to institute such action, suit or proceeding in the name of the Trustee; nor unless, also, they shall have offered to the Trustee adequate security and indemnity against the costs, expenses and liabilities to be incurred therein or hereby; and such notification, request and offer of indemnity are hereby declared, in every such case, at the option of the Trustee, to be conditions precedent to the execution of the powers and trusts of this indenture, for the benefit of the bondholders, and to any action or cause of action for foreclosure or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder; it being understood, intended and hereby provided that no one or more holders of bonds or coupons secured hereby shall have the right in any manner whatever, by his or their action, to enforce, affect, disturb or prejudice the lien of this indenture, or to enforce any right under this indenture, except in the manner herein provided, and that all proceedings at law or in equity under this indenture shall be instituted, had and maintained only in the manner herein provided, and for the equal benefit of all holders of such outstanding bonds and coupons.

Remedies Cumulative.

SECTION 12. Except as herein expressly provided to the contrary, no remedy herein conferred upon or reserved to the Trustee, or to the holders of bonds hereby secured, is intended to be exclusive of any other remedy or remedies; but each and every such remedy shall be cumulative, and shall be in addition to every other remedy given hereunder, or now or hereafter existing at law or in equity or by statute.

No Waiver by Delay.

SECTION 13. No delay or omission of the Trustee, or of any holders of bonds hereby secured, to exercise any right or power accruing upon any default continuing, as aforesaid, shall impair any such right or power, or shall be construed to be a waiver of any such default, or acquiescence therein; and every power and remedy given by this Article to the Trustee, or to the bondholders, may be exercised, from time to time, and as often as may be deemed expedient, by the Trustee invested therewith, or by the bondholders, respectively.

ARTICLE FIVE.

Individual Liability Negatived and Released.

No recourse under or upon any obligation, covenant, or agreement contained in this indenture, or in any bond or coupon hereby secured, or because of the creation of any indebtedness herein mentioned, shall be had against any incorporator, or against any present or future stockholder, officer or director, of the ..... Company, or of any successor corporation, either directly or through the ..... Company, by the enforcement of any assessment, or through a receiver, assignee or trustee in bankruptcy, or by any other legal or equitable proceeding, or by virtue of any statute, or otherwise; it being expressly agreed and understood that this indenture and the obligations hereby secured, are solely corporate obligations, and that no personal liability whatever shall attach to, or be incurred by, the incorporators, or to or by any present or future stockholder, officer or director of the ..... Company, or of any successor corporation, or any of them, because of the incurring of the indebtedness hereby authorized, or under or by reason of any of the obligations, covenants, or agreements contained in this indenture or in any of the bonds or coupons hereby secured, or to be implied therefrom; and that any and all personal liability of every name and nature, and any and all rights and claims against every such incorporator, and against every such present and future stockholder, officer or director, whether arising at common law or equity, or created or to be created by statute or constitution, are hereby expressly released and waived as a condition of, and as a part of the consideration for, the execution of this indenture and the issue of the bonds and interest obligations secured hereby.

ARTICLE SIX.

Company, cannot, in the judgment of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, be advantageously used in the proper and judicious operation of the business of the ..... Company, or if the sale and disposition thereof has, in the opinion of such Board of Directors or Executive Committee, become necessary or expedient for any cause, the same, or any interest therein, may be sold or exchanged for other property, or for bonds, shares of stock or other securities; and, upon the request of the ..... (a) Before any such property, shares of stock, bonds or other securities, or any interest therein, shall be released, the same shall be appraised by an appraiser, or by more than one appraiser, who shall be selected by the Trustee;

(b) In case of any such sale of any such property, shares of stock, bonds, or other securities, or of any interest therein, the price or proceeds of such sale, not less than the value of such property, or of such interest, as appraised by such appraiser or appraisers, or a sum equivalent to such price or proceeds, shall be deposited with the Trustee, to be held for the further security of the bonds hereby secured until paid over or applied as hereinafter provided; and

(c) In case of an exchange, other property, shares of stock, bonds, or other securities, appraised by an appraiser or appraisers selected by the Trustee, to be of the value at least equal to the appraised value of the property given in exchange, shall be subjected to the lien and operation of this indenture.

The moneys received by the Trustee upon any such sale or exchange shall, upon the request of the ..... Company, evidenced by a resolution of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, be applied, as follows:

(1) The Trustee shall pay over to the ..... Company, out of any such proceeds, sums equal to any expenditures that shall have been made by the ..... Company, after such sale, for the acquisition of additional property, or for the acquisition of additional bonds or other obligations, or shares of the capital stock of other corporations, upon such property being subjected to the lien and operation of this indenture or upon the assignment and delivery of such bonds, other obligations, and certificates for such shares of stock to the Trustee; or

(2) At the option of the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the ..... Company, the Trustee shall apply such proceeds, or any part thereof, to purchasing, in the manner and under the conditions provided in respect of payments of or on account of principal in section 2 of Article Three of this indenture, bonds hereby secured; and all bonds so purchased shall be canceled; and anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding, no bonds shall be authenticated or delivered in place of the bonds so purchased and canceled.

The Trustee may receive and shall be entitled to act and rely upon a certificate signed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company, as conclusive evidence of any fact mentioned in this Article.

Company, and until such default shall have been continued beyond the period of grace, if any, hereinbefore provided in respect thereof, the ..... Company, its successors and assigns, shall be suffered and permitted to retain actual possession of all the property that may be conveyed and mortgaged or assigned and pledged to the Trustee (but not of bonds, evidences of indebtedness, certificates of stock, cash and other property hereby provided to be delivered or paid to the Trustee), and to manage, operate and use the same and every part thereof, with the rights and franchises appertaining thereto, and to collect, receive, take, use and enjoy the earnings, income, rents, issues, and profits thereof, and to manufacture, transform and otherwise utilize and to sell and dispose of any of the products thereof.

Satisfaction on Payment — Disposition of Pledged Securities on Satisfaction.

Company shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, the whole amount of the principal moneys and interest due upon all the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, or shall provide for such payment by depositing with the Trustee hereunder, for the payment of such bonds and the accrued interest thereon, the entire amount then due thereon for principal and interest, and also shall pay or cause to be paid, all other sums then accrued and to be paid to the Trustee hereunder by the ..... Company, and shall well and truly keep and perform all the things herein required to be kept and performed by it, according to the true intent and meaning of this indenture, then and in that case, all property, shares of stock, bonds, obligations and other rights and interests hereunder conveyed, assigned, mortgaged or pledged, or then subject hereto, shall revert to the ..... Company, its successors or assigns; and the estate, rights, title and interest of the Trustee, in respect thereof shall thereupon cease, determine and become void; and the Trustee, in such case, on demand of the ..... Company, its successors or assigns, and at its or their cost and expense, shall execute proper instruments acknowledging satisfaction of this indenture; but the Trustee, in such case, shall continue to hold, as depositary for the ..... Company, its successors or assigns, the certificates for all shares of stock and all bonds, or other obligations and claims and the evidences thereof, which are then on deposit with it hereunder, until the Board of Directors of the ..... Company, its successors or assigns, by resolution, shall have authorized some disposition thereof; whereupon, the Trustee shall dispose of such shares of stock, bonds or other securities, as authorized by such resolution.

Provisions in Case of Change of Name by the ..... Company.

SECTION 3. In case the ..... Company shall at any time change its corporate name, it may nevertheless adopt and use the name of ..... Company in issuing and causing to be authenticated and delivered, bonds secured hereby, or, at the election of the ..... Company, by whatever corporate name it may be known at the time, any bonds thereafter issued hereunder may, if so specified and provided in a resolution of the Board of Directors of said Company, be issued in the name to which said corporate name shall have been thus changed, and shall be authenticated and delivered by the Trustee in that form; and any and all bonds issued hereunder after such change of corporate name, whether in the name of the ..... Company shall have been so changed.

ARTICLE EIGHT.

SECTION 1. Any request, direction or other instrument required by this indenture to be signed and executed by bondholders, may be in any number of concurrent writings of similar tenor, and may be signed or executed by such bondholders in person or by attorney appointed in writing. Proof of the execution of such request, direction or other instrument, or of the writing appointing any such agent, and of the ownership of coupon bonds transferable by delivery, if made in the following manner, shall be sufficient for any purpose of this indenture, and shall be conclusive in favor of the Trustee with regard to action by it taken, or suffered under such request, to wit:

(a) The fact and date of the execution by any person of any such writing may be proved by the certificate of any officer in any jurisdiction who, by the laws thereof, has power to take acknowledgments within said jurisdiction, that the person signing such writing did acknowledge before him the execution thereof, or by an affidavit of a witness of such execution.

(b) The fact of the holding of coupon bonds hereunder by any bondholder, and the amount and numbers of any such bonds, and the date of his holding the same, may be proved by a certificate executed by any trust company, bank, bankers or other depository (wherever situated), if such certificate shall be deemed by the Trustee to be satisfactory, showing that at the date therein mentioned such person had on deposit with such trust company, bank, bankers or other depository the bonds described in such certificate. The ownership of registered coupon bonds or of registered bonds without coupons, shall be proved by the register of said bonds.

Right to Act on Apparent Ownership of Bonds.

SECTION 2. The ..... Company and the Trustee may deem and treat the bearer of any coupon bond hereby secured which shall not at the time be registered in the name of the owner thereof, as hereinbefore authorized, and the holder of any coupon for interest on any such bond, whether such bond shall be registered or not, as the absolute owner of such bond or coupon, as the case may be, for the purpose of receiving payment thereof, and for all other purposes, and neither the ..... Company nor the Trustee shall be affected by any notice to the contrary.

The ..... Company and the Trustee may deem and treat the person in whose name any registered bond without coupons, issued hereunder shall be registered upon the books of the ..... Company, as hereinbefore provided, as the absolute owner of such bond, for the purpose of receiving payment of, or on account of, the principal and interest of such bond, and for all other purposes, and may deem and treat the person in whose name any coupon bond shall be so registered as the absolute owner thereof for the purpose of receiving payment of, or on account of, the principal thereof, and for all other purposes, except to receive payment of interest represented by outstanding coupons; and all such payments so made to any such registered holder, or upon his order, shall be valid and effectual to satisfy and discharge the liability upon such bond to the extent of the sum or sums so paid.

ARTICLE NINE.

Conditions of Accepting Trusts Thereof.

The Trustee, for itself and its several successors, hereby accepts the trusts and assumes the duties herein created and imposed upon it, but only upon the following terms and conditions, to-wit:

(a) The Trustee shall be protected in acting upon any notice, request, consent, certificate, bond, promissory note, or other paper or document believed by it, or by the one acting thereon, to be genuine and to have been signed by the proper party or parties.

Immunities and Compensation of Trustee.

(b) The Trustee may select and employ in and about the execution of this trust, suitable agents and attorneys, whose reasonable compensation shall be paid to the Trustee by the ..... Company, or, in default of such payment, shall be a charge upon the property hereby mortgaged and pledged, and the proceeds thereof, paramount to said bonds. The Trustee shall not be responsible for the recording or filing or for the re-recording or re-filing of any instrument transferring or mortgaging to it upon the trusts herein contained, any property or securities other than or in addition to those specified in the granting clauses hereof. The Trustee shall not be under any responsibility or duty with respect to the disposition of the proceeds of the bonds hereby secured. The Trustee shall not be liable for failure to insure or renew insurance or for responsibilities of insurers. The Trustee shall not be personally liable for any loss or damage, save for its own wilful default.

(c) The Trustee shall have a first lien upon the property hereby mortgaged and pledged for reasonable expenses, counsel fees and compensation incurred in and about the execution of the trusts hereby created and the exercise and performance of its powers and duties hereunder, and also to indemnify and hold it harmless against any liability, charge, cost or expense based upon or resulting from the fact that said Trustee shall have taken or had transferred into its name, the certificate for any shares of stock or the title to any property, bond, or other obligation subject to this indenture, or entitled to be, and against the cost and expense of defending against any alleged liability in the premises of any character whatsoever.

(d) The Trustee shall be under no obligation or duty to perform any act hereunder, or to institute or defend any suit in respect hereof, unless reasonably indemnified. It shall not be required to take notice or be deemed to have notice of any default hereunder and may conclusively assume that there has been no default hereunder or on the part of the maker of or under any bonds, debentures or other obligations at any time held by the Trustee or to which it may be entitled under the terms hereof, unless it shall have been specifically notified in writing of such default. Except as herein expressly otherwise provided, the Trustee shall not be bound to recognize any person as a bondholder unless and until his bonds are submitted to the Trustee for inspection, if required, and his title satisfactorily established, if disputed.

(e) The recitals of fact herein and in said bonds contained shall be taken as statements by the ..... Company, and shall not be construed as made by the Trustee. The Trustee makes no representation as to the value or title of the property transferred hereunder.

Trustee May Resign.

(f) The Trustee, or any successor or successors hereafter appointed, may resign and be discharged of the trusts hereby created, by written notice thereof to the ..... Company and by publication at least once in each week for two consecutive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the city of New York.

(g) The Trustee may consult with counsel, and shall be protected in any action taken or suffered by it in good faith and in accordance with the opinion of its counsel.

ARTICLE TEN.

Removal of Trustee.

The Trustee, or any Trustee or Trustees hereafter appointed, may be removed at any time by an instrument or concurrent instruments in writing, signed by the holders of two-thirds in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding.

Appointment of Successor-Trustee.

In case at any time the Trustee, or any Trustee or Trustees hereafter appointed, shall resign, or shall be removed, or be dissolved, or otherwise shall become incapable of acting, a successor may be appointed by the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, by an instrument or concurrent instruments in writing signed by such bondholders or by their attorneys in fact duly authorized; provided, nevertheless, and it is hereby agreed and declared, that in case at any time there shall be a vacancy in the office of Trustee hereunder, the ..... Company, by instrument executed by order of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee, may appoint a Trustee to fill such vacancy until a new Trustee shall be appointed by the bondholders as herein authorized. The ..... Company shall publish notice of any such appointment by it made, once in each week for four consecutive weeks, in two daily newspapers of general circulation published in the city of New York; and any new Trustee appointed by the ..... Company shall, immediately and without further act, be superseded by a Trustee appointed by the bondholders in the manner above provided, provided that such appointment be made prior to the expiration of one year from the date of such publication of notice. Every such Trustee appointed by the bondholders, or by the ..... Company, shall always be a trust company in good standing in the city of New York, having a capital, surplus and undivided profits aggregating not less than ..... Dollars ($.....), if there be such a trust company willing and able to accept the trust upon reasonable or customary terms.

Proceedings in Case of Appointment of New Trustee.

Any new Trustee appointed hereunder shall execute, acknowledge and deliver to the Trustee last in office, and to its or his co-trustee, if any, and also to the ..... Company, an instrument accepting such appointment hereunder; and thereupon such new Trustee, without any further act, deed or conveyance, shall become fully vested with all the estates, properties, rights, powers, trusts, duties and obligations of its predecessor in trust hereunder, with like effect as if originally named as Trustee herein; but the Trustee ceasing to act, shall nevertheless, on the written request of the ..... Company, or of the new Trustee, and at the cost and expense of the ..... Company, execute and deliver any and every instrument necessary or convenient to transfer to such new Trustee, upon the trusts herein expressed, all the estates, properties, rights, powers and trusts of the Trustee so ceasing to act, and shall duly assign, transfer and deliver all property and moneys held by such Trustee to the new Trustee. Should any deed, conveyance or instrument in writing from the ..... Company be required by the new Trustee for more fully and certainly vesting in and confirming to such new Trustee such estates, rights, powers and duties, any and all such deeds, conveyances and instruments in writing shall, on request, be executed, acknowledged and delivered by the ..... Company.

Appointment of Co-Trustee or of Additional Trustee.

If, at any time or times, in order to conform to any legal requirement, the ..... Company shall so request, the ..... Company and the Trustee shall unite in the execution, delivery and performance of any and all instruments and agreements necessary or proper to appoint another trust company, or one or more persons approved by the Trustee, either to act as Co-trustee or Co-trustees of all or any of the property subject to the lien hereof, jointly with the Trustee originally named herein, or its successor or successors, or to act as separate Trustee or Trustees of any such property.

Every successor Trustee and every additional Trustee hereunder, other than any trust company which may be appointed as successor to the ..... Trust Company, shall, to the extent permitted by law, be appointed subject to the following provisions and conditions, namely:

(1) The bonds secured hereby shall be certified and delivered, and all powers, duties, obligations and rights conferred upon the said Trustee in respect of the custody of all stocks, bonds, securities, and cash, shall be exercised, solely by said ..... Trust Company, or a trust company appointed and acting as its successor in the trust hereunder;

(2) No power shall be exercised hereunder by such successor or additional Trustee or Trustees, except jointly with the consent in writing of said ..... Trust Company, or any trust company which may have been appointed and be acting as its successor in the trust; and

(3) the ..... Company and the ..... Trust Company, or its successor in the trust, at any time, by an instrument in writing, executed by them jointly, may remove any such other Trustee or Trustees, and by an instrument in writing, executed by them jointly, may appoint a successor or successors to such other Trustee or Trustees, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Any notice, request or other writing by or on behalf of the bondholders delivered solely to the ..... Trust Company, or its successor in the trust, shall be deemed to have been delivered to all such Trustees as effectually as if delivered to each of them.

Every instrument appointing a successor or additional Trustee or Trustees shall refer to this indenture and the conditions in this Article expressed, and upon the acceptance in writing by such successor or additional Trustee or Trustees, he, they or it shall be vested with the estates and property specified in such instrument, either jointly with the ..... Trust Company, or its successor, or separately, as may be provided, subject to all the trusts, conditions, covenants and provisions of this indenture. Every such instrument shall be filed with the ..... Trust Company, or its successor in the trust.

Any additional Trustee or Trustees may, at any time, by an instrument in writing, constitute said ..... Trust Company, and its successor in the trust hereunder, his, their or its agents and attorney in fact, with full power and authority, to the extent which may be permitted by law, to do all acts and things and exercise all discretions authorized or permitted by him, them or it, for and in behalf and in the name of the Trustee or Trustees executing such instrument.

In case any additional Trustee or Trustees, or a successor to either of them, shall die, become incapable of acting, resign, or be removed, all the estates, properties, rights, powers, trusts, duties and obligations of the said Trustee, so far as permitted by law, shall vest in and be exercised by said ..... Trust Company, or its successor in the trust, without the appointment of a new Trustee as successor to such additional Trustee.

No successor to any additional Trustee shall be appointed unless such appointment shall be necessary for the full protection of the bondholders hereunder, nor unless the ..... Trust Company, or its successor, or the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds hereby secured, shall deem such appointment expedient for any cause.

Trustee May Rely on Certificates of Mortgagor's Officers.

Whenever the existence or non-existence of any fact or other matter shall be material, the Trustee shall, unless herein elsewhere provided to the contrary, be protected in acting or refraining from acting under any provision of this instrument, in relying upon a certificate as to the existence or non-existence of any such fact, or matter signed by the President or one of the Vice-Presidents and the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries, or the Treasurer or one of the Assistant Treasurers of the ..... Company.

In case of the appointment of any new Trustee under the provisions of this article, a copy of the instrument making such appointment, duly authenticated by the President and Secretary of the ..... Company (they having inspected and compared said copy with the original) as a true copy, shall be filed with each of the corporations of whose capital stock shares shall then be subject to this indenture.

The deposit of any certificate of stock with the Depositary in such manner and within such time shall constitute the depositor a party to this agreement with the same effect as if he had subscribed this agreement and affixed his seal hereto. The depositor must in every case indorse in blank the certificate or certificates for his stock and deposit therewith, or thereafter on demand of the Committee, every transfer, assignment, power of attorney or proxy which the Committee shall deem necessary or proper.

The time for such deposits is hereby limited to the close of business hours of the Depositary on ....., the ..... day of ....., 191.., provided, however, that the Committee may by a notice of not less than five days published not less than twice in not less than two newspapers published at the City of New York, prescribe a limit of such time for deposit, earlier than said ..... day of ....., 191.., and provided, further, that the Stockholders' Committee may, from time to time, extend the time for such deposit to any date not later than the ..... day of ....., 191..

The Depositary shall, upon the receipt from any depositor of his certificate or certificates of stock, issue to him its certificate, substantially in the form following,—each certificate being either exclusively for preferred stock or exclusively for common stock, the certificates for preferred stock being printed in black ink and the certificates for common stock being printed in blue ink.

II.—The Plan.

Section 1. The Depositing Stockholders hereby severally assent to and accept all the provisions of the said Plan and of this Agreement and all of the parties hereto agree, with all other parties hereto, to promote the success of the Plan.

Section 2. The New Company shall not distribute to its common stock dividends representing, directly or indirectly, the surplus or property of the ..... Company actually accumulated on ....., 191., or its proceeds, or any part thereof; nor shall the new company declare any dividends to such common stock from income, business or property of the ..... Company or proceeds thereof except such as shall represent profits earned by the ..... Company or such new Company from and after ....., 191.: Provided, however, that the prohibitions of this section shall be absolute for the period of three years from and after the acquisition by the new Company of two-thirds of the capital stock of the ..... Company, but that after the expiration of such three years, such prohibitions shall be subject to modification or repeal upon the consent of the holders 66⅔ per cent. in par value of the outstanding preferred stock of the new Company. The by-laws of the new Company shall include a by-law, containing the provision hereinbefore in this section contained, and further providing that such by-law shall not be repealed or amended within such three years or thereafter without the consent of 66⅔ per cent. in value of the outstanding stock of the new Company.

III.—The Depositary.

The Depositary shall transfer into its own name upon the books of the ..... Company the shares of such preferred stock for which certificates are deposited thereunder. The Depositary shall, if and after any meeting of the stockholders of the ..... Company shall be called and upon the request of the record holder of any certificate of deposit, deliver to such record holder a proxy in his name in proper form to entitle him to vote at such meeting for the Depositary as the holder of the shares represented by such certificate of deposit; and the Depositary shall not vote as owner or holder of any of the said shares except through and by such proxies. If and when notice in advance shall be given by the ..... Company that its books are to be closed in contemplation either of the payment of a dividend upon shares of preferred stock or of a meeting of the stockholders, and the Depositary is in time advised of such notice, the Depositary shall close its registration books for the transfer of such certificates, for the same time. The Depositary shall require the payment to it by the ..... Company of all dividends declared and payable upon such preferred shares for which the Depositary shall have issued its certificates; and, upon the receipt of such dividends, the Depositary shall forthwith mail to the registered holder of any and every such Trust Company Certificate at the address registered with the Depositary and without charge or deduction for expense or otherwise, a cheque representing the amount of the dividend or dividends received upon the shares of preferred stock for which such Trust Company Certificate shall have been issued.

The Depositary shall, upon the requirement of the Committee, have transferred into its name upon the books of the ..... Company any of the shares of such common stock so deposited with it; but in such case the Depositary shall, if and after any meeting of the stockholders of the ..... Company shall be called and upon the request of the record holder of any certificate of deposit, deliver to such record holder a proxy in his name in proper form to entitle him to vote at such meeting for the Depositary as the holder of the shares represented by such certificate; and the Depositary shall not vote as owner or holder of any of the said shares except through and by such proxies.

The Depositary shall have the right with the approval of the Committee to adjust any claim of or dispute with any Depositing Stockholder; and, if such adjustment shall so provide, to surrender to such Depositing Stockholder or to the holder of the Trust Company Certificate issued to him, a certificate or certificates for the shares represented by such Trust Company Certificate upon his surrender thereof to the Depositary.

The Depositary shall have no power to in any way encumber the shares of stock represented by the Trust Company certificates; nor shall it have any power to transfer the same except as herein specifically provided.

The Depositary shall not be deemed to assume any liability under or by reason of this agreement or any proceeding hereunder, except for the exercise of good faith. Every Depositing Stockholder and every holder of any such Trust Company Certificate shall be conclusively deemed to have assented to every act and deed of the Depositary to which the Committee shall have assented.

All charges and expenses of the Depositary under or by reason of this agreement or the matters herein provided for, have been arranged for by the Committee; and in no event is any charge to be made against any Depositing Stockholder or holder of any Trust Company Certificate or enforced by way of lien or otherwise against any of the shares of stock for which such certificate shall have been so deposited. If in the execution of this agreement the Depositary shall incur any liability for any loss or damage or otherwise not caused by lack of good faith or by gross negligence, the amount of such liability shall be deemed a part of the Depositary's expense as herein provided.

Wherever, as in this instrument provided, the Depositary shall pay to the holder of any certificate any dividend, the Committee shall have power and it shall be its duty in behalf of all holders of such certificates, and of every holder of any such certificate, to adjust and, when adjusted, to approve the account or accounts of the Depositary with respect to any such payment; and any such approval of the Committee shall be conclusive in favor of the Depositary.

The opinion or judgment of the Committee expressed in writing, shall, anything in this agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, be full and complete protection and justification to the Depositary for any and every action taken or omitted to be taken according to such opinion or judgment. The Depositary shall not incur or be deemed to incur any liability by acting upon any certificate of stock or other certificate, signature, document or paper believed by it to be genuine.

The Depositary may treat any money received by it under the provisions of this agreement as a general deposit until it is required to pay out the same in conformity herewith.

IV.—The Stockholders Committee

The Committee undertakes in good faith to carry out the Plan and this agreement; but it is expressly understood that neither it nor any member of it assumes any responsibility for its success in such undertaking or any other responsibility except for the exercise of good faith. The Committee shall, in every case, act by a majority of its number; and any act of such majority shall be deemed the act of the entire Committee. No member of the Committee shall be held or in any way deemed responsible for the acts or omissions of any other member.

The Committee shall have power

- (a) To prescribe any rules or regulations for its government, and, among them, to provide that any member of the Committee may at any meeting of the Committee and with the assent of a majority of the members of the Committee, act and vote by proxy, PROVIDED, however, that no act of the Committee shall be valid without the personal approval of a majority of the persons who are members of the Committee at the time;
- (b) To fill any vacancies in the Committee which may result from death, resignation, disability or otherwise;
- (c) To form or promote the formation of the new Company mentioned in the Plan, to prepare its charter or certificate of incorporation, to prepare for it proper by-laws, and to arrange for the advance of the expense of the incorporation of such Company, and,—subject to the written directions of a majority in amount of the then outstanding Trust Company Certificates, issued hereunder, to designate its incorporators, and first directors and officers;
- (d) To require the assignment and transfer by the Depositary to the new Company of any shares of stock of the ..... Company for which Trust Company Certificates shall have been issued hereunder; and upon such requirement the Depositary shall make such transfer, PROVIDED, however, that the right to require such transfer shall be subject to the limitations prescribed by Article V of this agreement;
- (e) To prescribe the form and terms of the new securities to be issued upon the assignment to the new Company of such shares of stock and the manner and time of their issue, PROVIDED, however, that such securities shall in amount, character and otherwise, substantially conform to the provisions of the Plan and that the same shall be distributable to the holders of the Trust Company Certificates through the Depositary and that there shall be no preference of any one or more holders of Trust Company Certificates over other holders of such certificates of the same class, that is to say, certificates for preferred stock or for common stock as the case may be;
- (f) To provide for the issuance of scrip or other adjustment of the rights of holders of the Trust Company Certificates in cases where the proportion of new certificates to be received would include fractions of bonds or shares of the new Company;

- (g) To declare the Plan operative, PROVIDED that such declaration shall be subject to the provisions of Article V of this agreement;
- (h) To provide, if and when the Committee sees fit, and upon such terms as it shall prescribe, for admission to the Plan of stockholders of the ..... Company assenting to the Plan after it shall have been declared by the Committee to be operative, and for the issue to such stockholders when so admitted, of the securities of the new Company to which they shall be entitled without the deposit of the corresponding certificates of stock of the ..... Company with the Depositary or the issue by it of a certificate of deposit therefor, PROVIDED, however, that the Committee shall in no case prescribe for any such stockholder not so depositing any better or additional provision over that conceded to the Depositing Stockholders;
- (i) Within the general scope of the Plan to carry out and effectuate the same and this agreement in whatever manner the Committee shall at the time deem most expedient, and generally to make and determine all arrangements and things which in its judgment are necessary or expedient to carry out such Plan or with respect to the new Company or its securities;
- (j) To construe this agreement including the Plan. Any such construction by the Committee or any action under any such construction in good faith shall be final and conclusive. Further to supply any defect or omission of or in the Plan or to reconcile inconsistencies in it in such manner and to such extent as shall be necessary or expedient to carry out the same properly and effectively; and the Committee shall be the sole judge of such necessity or expediency;
- (k) To act for and represent the Depositing Stockholders in all respects with reference to their shares of stock while deposited hereunder, and to authorize legal and other proper appearances for them in suits at law or other proceedings;
- (l) From time to time to make such modification of the Plan of this agreement as it may consider necessary or expedient; PROVIDED, however, that such modification shall be within the general purview of the Plan; and PROVIDED, further, that a written copy of any such change or modification shall be filed with the Depositary and notice of such filing given by advertisement not less than once a week for three consecutive weeks, in a newspaper published in the City of New York. Every holder of any such Trust Company Certificate who shall not within ten days after the last publication of such notice, file with the Depositary a written objection to the change or modification, shall be conclusively deemed to have personally and directly assented thereto; and
- (m) To act by any committee or agents and to delegate any authority as well as discretion to any such committee or agent.

The Committee shall be entitled to compensation payable as in the Plan mentioned.

V.—Execution of the Plan.

The Plan shall become operative only by the written declaration to that effect subscribed by not less than a majority of the Committee, and the filing thereof with the Depositary. The Committee may make and file such declaration if and when there shall have been deposited hereunder with the Depositary, certificates representing a majority of the total capital stock of the ..... Company, PROVIDED, however, that in such majority is included at least twenty-five per cent. in amount of the preferred stock of the ..... Company. The Committee shall be bound to make and file such declaration if and when there shall have been so deposited with the Depositary on or prior to the date, therefor prescribed by the Committee pursuant to Article I hereof, certificates representing two-thirds in amount of the total capital stock of the ..... Company, without distinction between the preferred stock and common stock. In case there shall have been any error in the computation of the proportions or amounts of such capital stock deposited or deemed deposited hereunder, or any error or informality in deposit, the Committee shall, after any such declaration and prior to the actual transfer of shares of stock of the new company, have the power to withdraw such declaration.

If and when the Committee shall, as aforesaid, declare the Plan to be operative, it shall forthwith proceed as herein provided to the incorporation of the new Company and to procure the transfer to it of the shares of stock deposited hereunder.

The Committee shall, with respect to such transfer of such stock of the new Company and in all matters concerned with the execution of the Plan and within the purview of this agreement, have every right and power which any Depositing Stockholder would or could have or exercise if personally present and acting with respect to the stock represented by the Trust Company Certificates held by such Depositing Stockholder. And each and every Depositing Stockholder hereby constitutes and appoints the Committee or its nominee or nominees his true and lawful attorney or attorneys irrevocable with full power of substitution, for him and in his name, place and stead to do any and all acts of every nature within the general purview of the Plan or of this agreement which the Committee or any such nominee or substitute in its or his discretion may deem necessary or expedient in order fully to effectuate and accomplish the purposes of the Plan and of this agreement,—hereby ratifying and confirming all and any acts or things which such Committee or any nominee or substitute may do by virtue hereof.

If the Plan shall be declared operative, and the new Company formed thereunder, the Committee shall thereafter continue in existence until liquidation of the ..... Company, if such liquidation shall be had as in the Plan contemplated, and thereupon until the acquisition of its assets by the new Company so far as the new Company shall acquire such assets, and until the Committee shall be dissolved with the consent of the Board of Directors of the new Company, approved by a majority of the stock of the new Company, including not less than two-thirds of its outstanding preferred stock. The Committee shall be dissolved only by its own action. It shall promote such liquidation and the acquisition of such assets by the new Company, when, in its judgment, shall be consistent with the interests of the Depositing Stockholders and the new Company, and with respect to such liquidation or acquisition of assets the Committee shall, so far as it may, and subject to the provisions of this agreement, protect the interests of the Depositing Stockholders.

In computing the percentage of the shares of stock, either preferred or common, of the ..... Company which shall be deposited to make up the fractions required as aforesaid as a condition for declaring the Plan to be operative, there shall be reckoned and included the shares of such preferred stock as to which an obligation to deposit them hereunder shall be made in form satisfactory to the Committee by a person or persons whose responsibility shall be satisfactory to the Committee; and the deposit with the Trust Company of such an obligation approved by the Committee shall, for the purposes of this agreement,—but subject to any conditions or terms to be prescribed by the Committee,—be equivalent to the deposit hereunder of the certificates for shares of such preferred stock called for by the obligation; but shall not entitle the depositor of any such obligation to the issuance of a certificate of deposit for such stock.

Any determination by the Committee that certificates for any given amount of shares of the ..... Company have been deposited hereunder, shall be conclusive upon all parties.

The Committee may from time to time make or adopt contracts with syndicates, bankers or others, to carry out the provisions of the Plan and of this agreement, PROVIDED, however, and it is expressly agreed, that in no case shall there be any power on the part of the Committee or Depositary or of any party or parties to this agreement, to create any charge or lien upon the shares of stock of the ..... Company, certificates for which shall be deposited, or to affect the same except as in this agreement provided.

The members of the Committee and the Depositary or any of them shall have the right to form or procure the formation of any syndicate or syndicates which they shall deem necessary or convenient for carrying out the purposes of the Plan or this agreement and may act as members or managers of any such syndicate or syndicates and may themselves be pecuniarily interested in any such syndicate or syndicates.

In case of the resignation of the Depositary or if for any reason, the Committee shall deem that any change of Depositary is necessary, the Committee shall have the power to arrange therefor as it may deem expedient.

The Committee may, in behalf of the Depositing Stockholders, consent to, or provide for the issue of interim receipts or certificates representing and entitling holders to receive securities of the new Company when issued.

The acceptance by any Depositing Stockholder of the securities of the New Company shall estop such Depositing Stockholder from questioning the conformity of such securities in any particular with the Plan or this agreement or the propriety or expediency of any act done or arrangement made by or on behalf of the Committee or the new Company in carrying the Plan into effect. Nor shall any depositor or holder of any Trust Company certificate have any interest in the disposition of any of the bonds or shares of stock of the new Company to be by it issued and delivered under or in consummation of the Plan to any other person, or the proceeds thereof.

VI.—Termination of the Deposit.

If the Plan shall not be declared operative as aforesaid within the time hereinbefore prescribed, or the extension of such time as hereinbefore prescribed, then the Committee may declare the Plan abandoned and thereupon the Depositary shall, upon demand by the holder of any Trust Company certificate and upon surrender of the same, deliver to him a certificate or certificates for the shares of stock represented by such Trust Company certificate; and such delivery shall be without any charge whatever against such Depositing Stockholder or his shares of stock for the services of the Depositary or otherwise under or by reason of this agreement.

VII.—Miscellaneous.

1. The benefits of this agreement shall be confined strictly to the parties hereto. The same shall not be construed to create any trust or obligation to or in favor of any person or corporation other than the Committee, the New Company, the Depositary and the holders, from time to time, of the Trust Company certificates.

2. Every holder of a certificate of deposit shall, for all the purposes of this agreement, be deemed to be the sole Depositing Stockholder with respect to the shares of stock of the ..... Company represented by such Trust Company certificate and as such a party to this agreement entitled to all of its benefits and subject to all of its limitations and provisions.

3. Whenever the "Plan" is referred to in this agreement, it shall be deemed to include every modification of the same.

4. Any and every reference of this agreement to a Depositing Stockholder shall be deemed to refer to every Depositing Stockholder whether a natural person or a corporation.

5. Every notice in this agreement required to be published shall, unless herein otherwise prescribed, be published twice a week for two weeks in two daily newspapers reputed to be of good circulation among financial persons and corporations and published in the City of New York.

6. This agreement shall be deemed, according to its terms, to bind and benefit the several parties hereto, their and each of their survivors, executors, administrators and assigns.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties of the first part have hereto set their hands and seals, the party of the third part has hereto caused its corporate seal to be affixed and attested by its Secretary, and these presents to be signed by its President or Vice-president, and the parties of the second part have become parties hereto either by subscription of their names hereto or by deposit of certificates of stock as aforesaid,—all the day and year first above written.

EXHIBIT "B."

THE ..... COMPANY.

OFFICE OF STOCKHOLDERS COMMITTEE:

No. .... Street, New York City.

....., 191...

To the Stockholders of the ..... Company:

The undersigned, upon the request of large holders of the capital stock of the ..... Company, as well as upon their own initiative, have undertaken to act as a committee in presenting a Plan for a readjustment of the affairs of the Company, which, it is believed, will materially promote the interests of the holders of its stock, both preferred and common. The Committee includes the President of the Company and the other four members of its Executive Committee; and to a large extent the reasons for the Plan now proposed have been suggested to them by their experience in practical and responsible administration of the Company.

Messrs. .... and ....., the President and Vice-President, respectively, of ..... of ....., who have acquired a substantial holding of the shares of this Company, recently asked the members of the Executive Committee of the ..... Company to consider the question of their co-operation with the other stockholders to promote the interests of its business. This plan has been prepared in conference with Messrs. .... and ....., and has their approval and support.

The stockholders of the Company are well aware that practical experience under its present charter has demonstrated that some readjustment of the rights of its stock, and especially of its administrative regulations, is necessary to full realization of the earning power of its business and the successful consummation of its purposes. The provision of the charter according to the preferred stock an ..... per cent. cumulative dividend has, by reason of the limited although very substantial earnings of the Company, resulted in an accumulation of dividends to the holders of such stock which will, on ..... , 191..., aggregate ..... per cent. of its par value. Dividends have for a considerable time been paid and are now being paid on such stock at the rate of ..... per cent. per annum, thus involving an annual increase of ..... per cent. in the arrears. The charter contains no provision authorizing an increase of the preferred stock; and the statute applicable requires for its issue the assents of two-thirds of each class of stock, preferred and common. And the charter contains a provision forbidding the Company,—without the consent of ..... per cent. of its outstanding preferred stock,—to incur any bonded or funded indebtedness other than the $. .... of the present series of debentures of the Company; and they must be retired at the rate of $. .... a year. These features of the charter are serious obstacles to the wholesome and necessary extension of the Company's business and to the acquisition of additional property; and they thus obstruct the development of the Company's full earning capacity.

The officers and other large stockholders of the Company have, besides, been convinced that the establishment of closer relations with interests with which this Company necessarily has large dealings and the vesting in them of substantial amounts of the securities of the Company, and especially of its common stock, will be a material benefit to the Company and to both classes of its stockholders.

THE PLAN.

1. A company to be formed to acquire not less than a majority of the entire capital stock of this Company, such acquisition not to take place until there shall be ready for transfer to the new company such amount of the outstanding shares of the preferred stock of the present company as shall be approved by this Committee, provided that such approval shall not be given until at least a majority of the entire stock of the present Company shall be so ready for transfer, including not less than one-quarter of its preferred stock, and provided further that such approval shall be given when two-thirds of the entire stock of the present Company shall be so ready for transfer.

2. The new company, it is expected, will, as soon as the support of the Plan by stockholders of the ..... Company shall be sufficient, in such lawful and suitable manner as shall be determined upon, acquire the physical assets of the present Company and thereupon directly take over and conduct its business. Pending the realization of this expectation, the new company will exercise such control in the operation and administration of the present Company as will lawfully and properly belong to the holders of a majority of its stock.

3. The new Company to have the following

AUTHORIZED CAPITALIZATION.

Twenty Year, Five Per cent. First Lien Gold Bonds, to stand secured, if and when the lands and assets now belonging to the ..... Company shall have been acquired by the new company, by a first lien upon the said assets, including a first mortgage of all lands owned by the ..... Company and a pledge of all the stocks and securities of lesser companies owned by the ..... Company. Pending the acquisition of such assets and lands by the new company, the bonds will be secured by a pledge of all the shares and securities of the ..... Company, or of its subsidiary companies, which may be acquired by the new company.. ..

Seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock.....

Common stock .....

4. The net and final distribution of securities of the new Company is intended to be as follows. The figures here given are on the basis of the assent of all outstanding shares of the present Company. On the assent of less than all the total amount of actual distribution to holders of such shares will, of course, be correspondingly reduced.

To holders of the Preferred stock of ..... Company ($..... now outstanding) for each share thereof with all its accumulated dividends:

New Company bonds $.....

New Company Preferred stock ..... ..

New Company Common stock ..... ..

To holders of the Common stock of the ..... Company ($. .... now outstanding) for each ten shares of said stock three shares of the Common stock of the new Company.....	.....
To new interests for their co-operation and for all services and expenses, whether legal, of committees, bankers or otherwise in consummating this pro- posed plan .....	.....
Reserved (a) to provide for the retire- ment and redemption of the outstand- ing debentures of the ..... Com- pany; (b) to acquire additional prop- erties; (c) to provide additional working capital; and (d) for the gen- eral purposes of the new Company....	.....
Total.....	.....

5. Those desiring to accept the above plan may do so by depositing the certificates for the shares of stock of the ..... Company held by them respectively, duly endorsed for transfer in blank, in and with the ..... Company of New York, on or before the .... day of ....., 19... The Committee reserves the privilege of fixing a day prior to said ....., after which no further deposits will be received and also of extending the time for making such deposits for what may seem to them good cause. In exchange for such deposits the ..... Company will issue negotiable certificates. The terms of such deposit, the respective powers and functions of said Committee and of said ..... Company, and generally the details of said trust arrangements, are more fully set forth in a certain agreement between said Committee and ..... Company and the depositing stockholders thereunder, bearing even date with this circular, to which agreement reference is hereby made. Dividends received upon shares while on deposit will be forthwith paid to holders of the corresponding ..... Company certificates.

In submitting this Plan we are authorized by Messrs. .... and ..... to say that they intend to remain substantial holders of the securities of the Company, to give the Company the benefit of such representation in the direction of the affairs of the Company as may be mutually agreed on, and to actively promote its interests.

The members of this Committee unhesitatingly recommend to both classes of stockholders of the ..... Company that they promptly deposit their holdings with the ..... Company of New York and thus become parties to the Agreement. The Committee believe that the successful consummation of the Plan will greatly tend to the advantage of all assenting stockholders. Upon an informal presentation of the Plan to a number of holders of

The defendant, ..... #### FORM NO. 145.

Complaint for Appointment of Receiver.

[Title as in Form No. 143.]

Plaintiff, by ....., his attorneys, complaining of the defendant, alleges:

First: That the defendant is a domestic corporation conducting a general contracting business, with its principal office and place of business at No. ...., in .....

Second: That this action is brought by the plaintiff on his own behalf as one of the creditors of the defendant, and on behalf of any and all other creditors of the defendant who may elect to become parties to this action:

Third: That on the ..... day of ....., 191.., plaintiff loaned to the defendant at its request the sum of ..... ($.....), which said sum the defendant promised to repay to the plaintiff on demand; that on the ..... day of ....., 191.., plaintiff duly demanded the repayment of said loan from the defendant and said demand was refused, and no part of said loan has been paid by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the defendant is justly indebted to the plaintiff, by reason of the premises, in the sum of ..... dollars ($.....) with interest thereon from the ..... day of ....., 191...

Fourth: Upon information and belief, that the defendant is the owner of the entire capital stock of a domestic corporation known as ....., Incorporated, and the defendant has done and is doing part of its business under its own name and part under the name of ....., Incorporated.

Fifth: Upon information and belief, that the business affairs of the defendant have become greatly complicated and involved, and the defendant is indebted to sub-contractors in large sums of money; that the defendant's pay-rolls amount to about ..... dollars ($.....) per week; that the defendant has undertaken the performance of, and is now engaged in executing many important construction contracts in different parts of the United States which require the expenditure of large sums of money weekly in order to prevent default by the defendant thereunder; that the greater part of the assets of the defendant have been hypothecated or pledged in order to obtain working capital, and that the rights and interests therein of said pledgees are conflicting and uncertain; and that the working capital of the defendant has been so depleted that it is unable to meet its obligations at maturity and to pay its debts in the ordinary and usual course of business, due regard being had for the rights and interests of its creditors.

Sixth: Upon information and belief, that it is of the utmost importance to the creditors of the defendant, including the plaintiff, and to its stockholders, that the necessary pecuniary arrangements should be made to prevent a default by the defendant on its existing profitable construction contracts, and that such arrangements cannot be made unless a receiver of the assets and property of the defendant is appointed by this Court.

Seventh: Upon information and belief, that for many months past the defendant has been making unreasonable sacrifices and paying unreasonable commissions in order to obtain the money needed to meet its pay-rolls and other necessary expenses, and that the situation has now become so grave that unless this Court, through a receiver appointed by it, will take possession of the defendant's property and business, and control, manage and conduct the same for the general interest of its creditors, numerous litigations will be begun against the defendant in different States of the United States and in different courts of the State of New York; that the property of the defendant will be attached and a race of diligence will be begun by said creditors, each trying to collect his own debts in his own way; that the defendant will be forced to suspend work on its existing profitable construction contracts, and a large part of its assets and property will be lost or destroyed, and such part of said assets and property as is not so lost or destroyed will be appropriated for unjust priorities or preferences as between the defendant's creditors.

Eighth: Upon information and belief, that by reason of the aforesaid facts the defendant is insolvent.

Ninth: Upon information and belief, that the continuance of the business of the defendant under existing conditions would be a waste of its working capital and assets and of the fund to which the creditors must look for the payment of their respective claims against it.

Tenth: Upon information and belief, that in order to preserve and save the assets and property of the defendant from waste, and to preserve and protect the rights of its creditors and stockholders, it is necessary that its assets and property should be placed in the hands of a receiver in order that the same may be marshalled and that the several respective liens and priorities thereon may be ascertained, and the rights, liens and equities of the creditors of the defendant may be decreed and enforced.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff demands judgment, as follows:

1. That the rights of the plaintiff and of all other creditors of the defendant may be ascertained and decreed, and that this Court shall fully administer all the assets and property of the defendant, and for such purpose shall marshal all the assets of the defendant and ascertain the several respective liens and priorities existing thereon and decree and enforce the respective rights, liens and equities of the creditors of the defendant as the same may be finally ascertained and decreed upon the respective intervention or application of each and every creditor or lienor in and to each and every portion of the assets and property of the defendant.

2. That for the purpose of preserving the assets and property of the defendant, to prevent unjust priorities or preferences, and to prevent default by the defendant on its existing profitable construction contracts, a receiver may be appointed of all the property, real, personal and mixed, of the defendant, of whatsoever kind or description and wheresoever situated, with full power to sue for, collect and receive and take into his possession the goods, chattels, rights, credits, moneys, effects, lands, tenements, hereditaments, books, papers, property and assets of every description whatsoever of the defendant, and with all the incidental powers ordinarily vested in receivers of the property of corporations in like cases.

3. That temporarily and pending this suit, an injunction may issue against the defendant and all persons claiming and acting by, through or under it, and against all other persons enjoining and restraining them from interfering in any way with said receiver or with said property or with the property which shall at any time come and be in his hands.

4. That the plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to the Court may seem proper and equitable.

Answer to Complaint for Receiver.

The defendant, ..... Company, appearing by ....., its attorney, and answering the bill of complaint herein, alleges:

I. That at a meeting of the board of directors of the defendant corporation, held pursuant to call, on the ..... day of ....., 191..., there being present at said meeting a quorum of said board of directors, a resolution was duly adopted and passed by the unanimous vote of the members of said board of directors present at said meeting, as follows:

"Whereas, the working capital of this Company has been so depleted that it is unable to meet its obligations at maturity and to pay its debts in the ordinary and usual course of business, due regard being had to the rights and interests of its creditors; and

"Whereas, the business affairs of this Company have become so complicated and involved that it is for the interest of all its creditors and stockholders that its assets should be marshalled, that the respective liens and priorities thereon should be ascertained, and that the rights, liens and equities of the creditors of this Company should be decreed and enforced; and

"Whereas, it is of the utmost importance to said creditors and stockholders that the necessary pecuniary arrangements should be made to prevent a default by this Company on its existing profitable construction contracts;

"Now, Resolved, that the officers of this Company be and they hereby are authorized and directed to take all such proceedings as in their opinion may be necessary or proper for the following purposes; to wit: to preserve the property and assets of this corporation; to prevent unjust priorities and preferences; to complete all existing favorable construction contracts; and to secure the appointment of a receiver of all the property—real, personal and mixed—of this corporation, with all the powers ordinarily vested in receivers of the property of corporations in like cases, including the right to complete all existing construction contracts, the completion of which will be profitable to this corporation."

II. The defendant admits all the allegations of said complaint.

1. That the rights of the plaintiff and of all other creditors of the defendant may be ascertained and decreed, and that this Court shall fully administer all the assets and property of the defendant, and for such purpose shall marshal all the assets of the defendant and ascertain the several respective liens and priorities existing thereon and decree and enforce the respective rights, liens and equities of the creditors of the defendant as the same may be finally ascertained and decreed upon the respective intervention or application of each and every creditor or lienor in and to each and every portion of the assets and property of the defendant.

2. That for the purpose of preserving the assets and property of the defendant, to prevent unjust priorities or preferences, and to prevent default by the defendant on its existing profitable construction contracts, a receiver may be appointed of all the property, real, personal and mixed, of the defendant, of whatsoever kind or description and wheresoever situated, with full power to sue for, collect and receive and take into his possession the goods, chattels, rights, credits, moneys, effects, lands, tenements, hereditaments, books, papers, property and assets of every description whatsoever of the defendant, and with all the incidental powers ordinarily vested in receivers of the property of corporations in like cases.

3. That temporarily and pending this suit, an injunction may issue against the defendant and all persons claiming and acting by, through or under it, and against all other persons, enjoining and restraining them from interfering in any way with said receiver or with said property or with the property which shall at any time come and be in his hands.

4. That the plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to the Court may seem proper and equitable.

To the Supreme Court of the State of New York:

The petition of ....., as Receiver of the property of the defendant ..... herein respectfully shows to the Court as follows:

FIRST: That on the ..... day of ....., 191..., ..... and ....., as plaintiffs, creditors of the defendant corporation, filed their complaint, upon which and upon the consent of the defendant company your petitioner was appointed Receiver of all the property and assets of the company by order duly filed and entered on said date. That in said action the defendant duly file its answer on ....., 191... That said action is now at issue.

SECOND: That by said order of appointment your petitioner was directed to take possession of all the property of the defendant, and to run, manage and operate its business and property in such manner as would in his judgment produce the most satisfactory results, so that the operation of the said business should be continued in substantially the same manner as theretofore, and preserved and protected in proper condition. Your petitioner was also authorized, if needful in his judgment, to borrow money in order to comply with such direction, but in no event above the sum of $....., and also to pay for current necessities, and for labor, material and supplies.

THIRD: That pursuant to said order, your petitioner borrowed $..... from the ..... Company of New York, on the collateral of outstanding accounts of the defendant corporation.

FOURTH: Your petitioner found upon taking possession of the offices and factory of the defendant company that it owed substantially $..... for unpaid payrolls, $..... for salaries in arrears, $..... for three months' rent in arrears, and $..... for the purchase of electric power and light in arrears.

FIFTH: The above referred to creditors and wage-earners of the corporation threatened at that time to throw the company into bankruptcy unless they were paid, and in order to pay these obligations, and in order to operate the business of the company in accordance with the said order of appointment of this Court, the Receiver applied for an issuance of Receiver's Certificates in the sum of $..... to be used for these purposes, and to take up the original loan of $....., by a petition in said cause, verified the ..... day of ....., 191... At the time of filing that petition, the Receiver stated to the Court that there would probably be an actual loss from operation (not including depreciation and interest on the bonds and gold notes), and that there would be a tie-up of new money of approximately $..... a week. Instead of there being an actual loss from operation there has been a profit of about $..... to date. This, too, with the limited amount of capital at the Receiver's disposal, which permitted of the business to be run on only a minimum of capital and the organization maintained with a full overhead while in its nature it must be run to full normal capacity to show large profits. Furthermore, the Receiver, on the sale of said certificates, was supplied with $..... cash, and of this amount there was applied, pursuant to the orders of the Court, to the payment of previously incurred indebtedness in the form of past due wages, salaries, etc., the sum of $....., and for any such legal expenses incident to the patent litigation in which the Company is engaged $....., making a total of $....., and leaving the sum of only about $..... available for the purposes of running the business. At the time of the Receiver entering upon his duties there was a cash balance in the banks of $....., and practically no quick assets. At the present time there is a cash balance and assets available within thirty days of about $..... It thus appears that the tie-up of new money has been approximately $..... per week, the same being represented by accounts, bills receivable, etc., in greater sum. During this period the Company's obligations, on which it was paying excessive interest charges, running in some cases as high as 30%, have been reduced by at least $....., and the unencumbered cash, bills and accounts receivable have been increased by about $..... Including the above items, the Company has at this time free assets to a total of over $..... This tie-up of new money will be materially increased each week as the business is run at fuller capacity and profits augmented thereby.

SIXTH: Also, under his original petition in said cause, the Receiver stated that he was informed that a plan would probably be devised for the reorganization of the company and capital provided to continue its business, provided the company could meanwhile be kept as a going concern, and that your petitioner was convinced that to protect and preserve the value of the property of the company pending its ultimate sale or reorganization, it was essential that the company's business and organization should be carried on without interruption. That the value of the plant was dependent in a large measure upon the organization and the maintenance of the good will which had been built up during the period of its operation, and that your petitioner believed that this would be largely, if not entirely destroyed if the plant should cease to be operated as a going concern. Also that by stopping the operation of the plant the corporation would suffer greatly through the loss of its skilled employees and mechanics. For these reasons the application for the first issue of Receiver's Certificates was made, and this Court authorized the issuance of $..... of Receiver's Certificates, which have all been subscribed for and issued.

SEVENTH: The order authorizing said original issue of $. . . . . of Receiver's Certificates bears date . . . . ., 191.. and the Certificates of said original issue bear date the . . . . . day of . . . . ., 191.., and are made payable on the . . . . . day of . . . . ., 191.., but provide that all, but not a part, of the Certificates of this issue may be redeemed at any time before maturity at par and accrued interest on thirty days' notice, by publication.

EIGHTH: On the . . . . . day of . . . . ., 191.., the . . . . . Company of New York, as Trustee under a first mortgage dated . . . . ., 191.., filed its bill of complaint to foreclose the mortgage covering the property of the defendant, upon which and upon the answer of the defendant company your petitioner was, by an order duly filed and entered on said date, again appointed Receiver of all the property of the defendant company covered by and embraced in the aforesaid mortgage.

NINTH: That the two actions above referred to were duly consolidated under the title herein by order of this Court bearing even date herewith.

TENTH: In order to continue the business of the corporation in such a manner and with such results as it has been continued under the Receiver heretofore, until the close of the current year, it is necessary that the Receiver have additional capital with which to work.

The normal annual output of machines is . . . . . To manufacture, sell and erect each of these machines costs (including overhead charges) $. . . . . Each of the more popular models sells for $. . . . ., giving a net profit per machine of $. . . . .

These machines, however, are sold on approximately the following terms: 25% cash; 75% in equal monthly instalments, spread through a period of 36 months, beginning 90 days after date of installation of the machine.

This plan of deferred payments is the most favorable on which, in general, this machine can be sold to the trade. This method of carrying on the business, while it involves a very considerable lock-up of capital, is free from any undue business risk since by the terms of sale the title to the machine, either through a conditional bill of sale or a chattel mortgage, remains in the vendor until the completion of all deferred payments. Should the vendee under these conditions default in his deferred payments the prior payments become unconditionally the property of the vendor, and it has been conclusively demonstrated by past experience that the machine, if repossessed by the vendor under these conditions, can be readily resold to a new vendee for at least as much and generally more than is sufficient to cover the remaining deferred payments, together with the cost of removal, renovation and re-erection.

It follows, therefore, that during one year there has to be disbursed in cash for the manufacture and sale of these . . . . . machines

against which there is received as initial cash payments
about ( . . . x . . . )	$ . . . . .
and deferred payments, . . . . (machines) x . . (months)
x $. . . . (monthly payments)	. . . . .

or a total of about	. . . . .
---------------------	-----------

This amount may be increased by there being accepted as part payment for new machines old machines, which, before realized upon, must be rebuilt and resold on terms similar to the new machines. It may on the other hand be decreased by a certain number of the new machines being sold for spot cash.

In addition to the manufacture and sale of machines the company also manufactures each month supplies and matrices costing from $..... to $....., and which are sold at a handsome profit on 60 days' time. This part of the business necessarily absorbs a working capital of from $..... to $....., turning over about once in every two months.

Until the payments received on the deferred payment plan equal the amount of cash being absorbed by sales under that plan, the company necessarily locks up working capital on a gradually diminishing and easily calculated scale. As will have been seen from the above, the amount of such working capital required under present conditions for its first year's operation, were it to operate at normal volume, would be for machine manufacture and disposal $.....

It will, however, be manifestly impossible to jump the manufacture and sale of machines at once from the present volume to the normal volume.

It is the Receiver's opinion, therefore, that in order to operate the factory on a scale that will best preserve to those interested the value of the property and meanwhile develop, manage and put the company's assets into more readily realizable form, there should be supplied an average monthly working capital of about $....., or for the six months about $..... After very careful consideration, it is the opinion of the Receiver that, if the funds prayed for as above be furnished, the property will be, at the end of six months, by their use, so materially enhanced in value that no further application for the issuance of Receiver's certificates will be necessary.

It will be necessary, in order to raise such capital, that Receiver's Certificates be issued for this amount of additional capital. These Certificates must be placed upon an equal footing with the original Certificates issued pursuant to the order of this Court dated ....., 191., above referred to and as that issue was made to cover all the assets of the corporation, both mortgaged and unmortgaged, then or thereafter to come into the hands of the Receiver, it will be impossible, without the consent of all the original Certificate holders, to give the new issue a lien equal to that of the old issue. The new issue will be a second issue, subject to the lien of the first issue. It is, therefore, necessary that this first issue be paid off, in accordance with the provisions thereof, and that the Receiver be authorized to sell a sufficient amount of certificates, so that $..... of the proceeds for the sale thereof may be used to pay off the original issue. This issue must, therefore, be of the amount of $..... par value, all the Certificates under which shall be of equal standing and priority, which from the results of the operation while under his control, your petitioner believes will be amply secured by assets of the company in the form of cash, customers' notes and accounts receivable, in the aggregate of more than $....., at the expiration of the period during which your petitioner will run the business on this new capital. In order to fully protect the interests of the holders of the First Mortgage Bonds, to facilitate the sale of said certificates and to insure the purchasers thereof of the security of their investment, the Receiver believes it will be for the best interests of the company for him to be directed himself to set aside specifically in a separate account and/or authorized to pledge specifically, with a Trustee as security for the payment of these Certificates cash equal in amount to one hundred per cent. of all or any part of the principal amount with accrued interest of the said Receiver's Certificates from time to time outstanding and/or notes, bills and accounts receivable at least equal to one hundred and fifty per cent. of any balance not so secured by cash. This collateral so pledged shall be subject primarily to the lien of the certificates, and before resort should be had to the other assets of the company this collateral should be sold and used to pay the Receiver's Certificates. The Receiver should also be authorized to withdraw any collateral so pledged with the Trustee upon substitution therefor of other collateral of equal or greater value as fairly appraised.

ELEVENTH: That the original issue of Receiver's Certificates provided that they should be sold at par only to the bondholders of the corporation, after $..... thereof had been actually subscribed for by bondholders. That your petitioner believes that the bondholders will subscribe for some part of the new certificates, but he is also informed and believes that, owing to the improved condition of the property during the receivership, a large amount of a new issue of Receiver's Certificates can be sold to outside persons and corporations other than the holders of the first mortgage bonds, particularly if your petitioner is allowed to sell said certificates at ninety-eight. As soon as the old issue is paid off this new issue of certificates should be given a lien upon all the assets of the company, and the Receiver should be authorized to pledge, in his discretion, a certain amount of these assets, as set forth in paragraph Tenth, supra, as security for the payment of these Receiver's Certificates, which pledged security shall first be applicable to the payment of the Receiver's Certificates in case of default.

TWELFTH: Enough has been set forth above to show in a general way the uses which the Receiver has made of the original $..... of cash advanced. The new money will be used for purchasing necessary material and manufacturing supplies, payment of salaries, wages, labor and overhead charges—such as rent, insurance, light, heat, power, etc.—incident and necessary to the manufacture and sale of the company's output. In your petitioner's opinion, judging from the results of operation during the past six months on the proceeds of the original issue of $..... Receiver's Certificates, on which the Receiver could only operate the plant to about 35% of normal, by using these new funds as above indicated there should result, after providing for all charges except interest on the bonds and unsecured notes, readily salable merchandise and/or negotiable accounts and secured interest-bearing bills receivable to a minimum amount of 120% of the new funds so placed at his disposal.

Furthermore, in the event that the Receiver can obtain no additional funds, it is his belief that he cannot continue to operate the business after ....., 191., for the reason that all of his present available working capital will have been absorbed by that date.

WHEREFORE, your petitioner prays:

(1) That for the purpose of enabling him to borrow the funds required to carry on the business of the defendant company and otherwise to protect and preserve the value of its property and assets, he be authorized to issue and sell as Receiver his negotiable certificates of indebtedness, in the total principal amount of $....., or any part thereof, at a price not less than 98% of the par value thereof, the said certificates to be dated ....., 191., to be payable ....., 191., and to bear interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable on the ..... days of ..... and ..... or upon redemption, and all of such certificates to be redeemable at the option of your petitioner, at any time before maturity, at par and accrued interest upon thirty days' notice, duly published, and shall be secured by a lien in the first instance upon all free assets now or hereafter in the hands of the Receiver, and also upon all the net earnings and income derived from the conduct of the business in charge of said Receiver; and, secondly, upon any and all property of the defendant subject to the first mortgage of the defendant, which lien shall be prior to the said first mortgage. In case of default upon the said certificates, the free assets in the hands of the Receiver should first be applied to the payment of the said certificates, with interest, before any mortgaged assets should be sold or otherwise used to satisfy the same. The Receiver, however, should be directed to specifically set aside in a separate account or be authorized to pledge specifically with a Trustee, as security for the payment of the said $..... of certificates cash equal in amount to 100 per cent. of all or any part of the principal amount, with accrued interest, of the said Receiver's Certificates from time to time outstanding, and notes, bills and accounts receivable at least equal to 150 per cent. of any balance not so secured by cash, with power from time to time to withdraw any or all of such collateral upon substitution therefor of collateral of a value equal to or greater than the value of the collateral withdrawn. In case of default the cash, bills, notes and accounts receivable so set aside or pledged should first be applied to the payment of the Receiver's Certificates and interest before any other property is sold or disposed of to satisfy the same. Said certificates should be subject to the issue of $..... of certificates issued by the Receiver under order dated ....., 191., and issued in the action entitled ..... and ....., plaintiffs, against ....., defendant, until the same shall be paid or redeemed as provided therein and in any order issued pursuant to petition, and also to the right of the Receiver to utilize and dispose of the personal property and assets, including cash, bills, notes and accounts receivable (except in so far as the same may be specifically set aside or pledged) now in his hands or which may hereafter come into his hands in the conduct of the business in his charge, and to his right to apply the cash now in his hands or which may hereafter come into his hands, to the payment of the expenses, payrolls, salaries, merchandise debts and other indebtedness incurred by him in the conduct of said business and in the administration of the estate, provided, however, that the fair value of cash, notes, bills and accounts receivable specifically set aside by the Receiver or pledged with the Trustee as above provided as security for the payment of these certificates shall always be of the percentages above provided of the total par value of certificates issued and outstanding.

(2) That your petitioner be authorized to apply $..... of the proceeds of the sale of this issue of Receiver's Certificates to the redemption of the $..... Receiver's Certificates originally authorized and issued under and pursuant to the order dated ....., 191., hereinbefore referred to, in accordance with the provisions thereof.

(3) That the petitioner be authorized and in his discretion to pledge with a trustee appointed by this Court, as security for the payment of this issue of Receiver's Certificates, cash, notes, bills and accounts receivable in his hands as stated in (1) above, and that he be authorized to withdraw any collateral so pledged with the trustee upon substitution therefor of other collateral of equal or greater value, as fairly appraised, and that he be authorized to make such contract of pledge with said Trustee as may be necessary or desirable to carry out the foregoing provisions.

FORM NO. 152.

Petition for Writ of Certiorari.

SUPREME COURT, ..... COUNTY.

The People of the State of New York on the relation of the ..... Company, against

.....
 and ....., Constituting the State Board of Tax Commissioners of the State of New York.

} Petition.

To the Supreme Court of the State of New York:

The petition of the ..... Company respectfully shows to the Court:
 That petitioner is a corporation duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of New York and located and doing business and having its principal place of business in the City of New York.

That at all the times hereinafter mentioned petitioner was and still is the owner of certain cables and wires laid or placed in certain streets, highways or public places in the Boroughs of Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx in the City of New York, together with franchises, rights, permissions and consents to maintain and operate in the streets, highways and public places of said boroughs cables and wires for conducting and transmitting electricity; each of said franchises, rights, permissions and consents, with the said tangible property in connection therewith, being denominated in the Tax Law of the State a special franchise.

That at all times hereinafter mentioned the respondents, ....., ....., and ....., constituted and still constitute the State Board of Tax Commissioners.

That pursuant to section 43 of the Tax Law, and within the time limited thereby, petitioner duly made a written report to said State Board of Tax Commissioners, as to each of said special franchises owned by it as aforesaid, and as to all matters required by said section to be reported to said Board, and has in the manner required by law made all reports and supplemental reports required by law or by said State Board to be made to it.

That said State Board, claiming to act under and pursuant to the provisions of the Tax Law of this State relating to taxation of public franchises as real property, did on or about the ..... day of ....., 191., fix and determine the valuation of the special franchises owned and operated by your petitioner as aforesaid for purposes of taxation, in the Borough of Manhattan at the sum of ..... dollars, in the Borough of Brooklyn at the sum of ..... dollars, and in the Borough of the Bronx at the sum of ..... dollars, aggregating ..... dollars.

That immediately thereafter said board gave notice in writing to your petitioner that said valuation had been made at the aforesaid sum, and that the said State Board would meet at its office in the City of Albany on the ..... day of ....., 191., to hear and determine any complaint concerning said assessment. That pursuant to such notice your petitioner attended before said Board and complained of said assessment, specifying as the grounds of its complaint all of the grounds hereinafter set forth in this petition as the grounds for reducing said assessment as herein prayed for, and said Board at said hearing waived the filing of a written statement under oath specifying the grounds of petitioner's complaint.

That thereafter the said Board, claiming to act pursuant to the Tax Law, finally determined the valuation of said special franchise of petitioner in the Borough of Manhattan to be the sum of ..... dollars, in the Borough of Brooklyn to be the sum of ..... dollars, and in the Borough of the Bronx to be the sum of ..... dollars, aggregating ..... dollars, and on or about the ..... day of ....., 191., said Board filed with the Department of Taxes and Assessments in the City of New York a written statement of such valuation as finally fixed and determined by said State Board, and at or about the same time gave notice in writing to your petitioner that such written statement had been filed with the Department of Taxes and Assessments of the City of New York.

That by the provisions of the charter of the City of New York the Board of Taxes and Assessments of the City of New York is the head of the Department of Taxes and Assessments of said city and is required by law, beginning with the ..... day of ..... in each year, to prepare assessments rolls for the various boroughs of said city, containing valuations of real and personal property subject to taxation, and to certify and deliver said assessment rolls to the Board of Aldermen of said city on the ..... day of ....., in each year.

That said Board of Taxes and Assessments, since the . . . . day of . . . . , 191. . , prepared the assessment rolls of said real and personal property of the several boroughs of said city for the year 191. . , and entered thereon, before the final revision on certification of such rolls by them, the valuation of said special franchises of your petitioner at the amount fixed by the said State Board as aforesaid, and duly verified and delivered the said assessment rolls to the Board of Aldermen of said city on the . . . . . Monday of . . . . . , 191. . .

That said assessment of petitioner's special franchise is erroneous by reason of over-valuation. The aforesaid assessment and valuation made by the said State Board greatly exceeds the actual and true value of petitioner's special franchises and the amount for which the same would sell under ordinary circumstances. The actual and true valuation of petitioner's special franchises, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, and the amount for which the same would sell under ordinary circumstances, does not exceed the sum of . . . . . dollars. The actual and true value of petitioner's said special franchises in the Borough of Brooklyn, in the City of New York, and the amount for which the same would sell under ordinary circumstances, does not exceed the sum of . . . . . dollars. The actual and true value of petitioner's said special franchises in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City of New York, and the amount for which the same would sell under ordinary circumstances, does not exceed the sum of . . . . . dollars. And the actual and true value of petitioner's said special franchises in the three Boroughs heretofore mentioned of the City of New York and the amount for which the same would sell under ordinary circumstances does not exceed in the aggregate the sum of . . . . . dollars. The extent of the said over-valuation is . . . . . dollars.

That said assessment of petitioner's special franchise is unequal in that the same has been made at a higher proportionate valuation than the assessment of all other land, real estate and real property in the City of New York upon the same assessment rolls made by the same officers, to wit, by the said State Board of Tax Commissioners and by the said Board of Taxes and Assessments of the City of New York; and your petitioner specifies the assessment of all the land, real estate and real property in the City of New York and of each and every parcel thereof upon the assessment rolls of said city as instances in which the said inequality exists and of the extent thereof. That said State Board, in making the aforesaid assessment of petitioner's special franchises, fixed and determined said valuation at a sum in excess of the full and true value of said special franchises. Upon information and belief, that in the City of New York other real property is not assessed at its full and true value, but the assessment of all other land, real estate and real property in said city for the year 191. . has been made at an amount equal to only seventy-five per centum of the full and true value of the land, real estate and real property so assessed. That the said assessment of petitioner's special franchises, to the extent that the same exceeds seventy-five per centum of the full and true value of said special franchises, as hereinbefore set forth, is unequal, disproportionate and erroneous. That it is the official duty of the said State Board to investigate and examine the methods of assessment throughout the State and to furnish local assessors information to aid them in making assessments of real and personal property, and, upon information and belief, said State Board and each of its members well knew, in making the assessments of said special franchises as aforesaid, that other land, real estate and real property within the State, and especially within the City of New York, was assessed at less than its full value.

Your petitioner further shows that the said assessment is unequal in that it has been made at a higher proportionate valuation than the assessments placed on all similar real property in said State of New York by said Board, and petitioner cites as instances of said inequality and of the extent thereof, each and every assessment upon special franchises in said State of New York, as fixed and determined by said State Board.

That the said assessment of petitioner's special franchise is illegal and void in that the same is in conflict with and violates those provisions of the Constitution of the United States of America and of the Constitution of the State of New York which prohibit the taking of property without due process of law, for the reason that the said State Board, in fixing the amount of the aforesaid assessment as the basis upon which taxes will be levied and collected from petitioner upon its special franchises, did not follow or apply any rule, method or principal of valuation, and did not determine and ascertain the value of said special franchises, but fixed the aforesaid amount arbitrarily and without reference to the value of said special franchises, and that the said assessment is the result of mere guess work and conjecture on the part of the said State Board of Tax Commissioners.

That said assessment of petitioner's special franchise is illegal and void in that the same is in conflict with and violates the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, which prohibit the denial to any person of the equal protection of the laws, for the reason that the assessment for the taxation of real property generally throughout the State is made upon and in accordance with the value thereof, while the assessment fixed as the basis of taxation of petitioner's special franchises has been fixed at an arbitrary amount, without reference to the value thereof; and for the further reason that the said assessment of petitioner's special franchises has been fixed on the basis of an arbitrary rate or percentage of the earnings of said petitioner higher than the rate of percentage employed in fixing the assessment of other special franchises throughout the State.

That said assessment of petitioner's special franchises is illegal and void in that said State Board has included in said assessment not only the value of all petitioner's franchises, rights, authority and permissions to maintain or operate cables and wires in, under, above, upon or through the streets, highways and public places of the City of New York, and the value of the cables and wires of petitioner, with their appurtenances for conducting and transmitting electricity; but has included also therein the value of the franchise of petitioner for conducting and transmitting electricity, the value of the good will of the business of petitioner, and the value of petitioner's contracts with its patrons, over none of which the said State Board has jurisdiction.

That said assessment of petitioner's special franchises is illegal and void in that chapter ..... of the Laws of ....., as amended, under which said State Board assumed to and did make said assessment, is unconstitutional and void, for the reason that it violates Article X, section 2, of the Constitution of the State of New York; that it attempts to confer jurisdiction, powers and functions upon the State Board of Tax Commissioners which, under the Constitution of the State of New York, can be exercised only by local assessors selected by the locality in which the property assessed is situated.

That by reason of the aforesaid over-valuation, inequality and illegality in the said assessment, your petitioner is aggrieved and will be injured.

Your petitioner further alleges that fifteen days have not elapsed since the final completion and filing of said assessment rolls in said City of New York.

That no previous application has been made for a writ of certiorari to review the assessment aforesaid.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays that a writ of certiorari may be allowed and issue out of this Court, directed to the said ....., ....., and ....., constituting the State Board of Tax Commissioners, commanding them to specify to a Special Term of this Court in and for the County of Albany:

(1) All and singular the proceedings herein referred to and had by the said State Board of Tax Commissioners relating to said assessment, with the dates thereof respectively, together with that part of the record relating to the same.

(2) All and singular the papers submitted by your petitioner and filed with the said State Board of Tax Commissioners.

(3) All other evidence or information, if any, before said State Board of Tax Commissioners, or considered by it in arriving at the decision aforesaid, and if there was no such evidence or information, a statement to that effect.

(4) A concise statement of such other facts as may be pertinent and material to show the value of the property assessed and the grounds of the valuation made by said State Board.

(5) Any and all documents, records and papers, if any such there be, not embraced in the above specifications, relating to and concerning the assessment aforesaid, and a statement of any other matters material to the determination of the application of petitioner.

To the end that such determination and proceedings of the said State Board of Tax Commissioners may be reviewed and corrected as shall be in accordance with the law and facts in this matter; and further that your petitioner may have herein such other and further relief as to this Court may seem just.

Whereas, we have been informed by the petition of the ..... ##### Return to Writ of Certiorari.

[Caption and Title as in Form No. 152.]

To the Supreme Court of the State of New York:

....., ..... and ....., constituting the State Board of Tax Commissioners of the State of New York, respectfully return to writ of certiorari issued out of this Court on the ..... day of ....., 191.., as follows:

I.

This return, except insofar as it is otherwise stated, or where the matters herein returned are matters of record, on statements of fact as such, is made upon information and belief.

II.

All of the proceedings required by statute for the purpose of making and certifying the valuation aforesaid were had before said State Board of Tax Commissioners, and done and performed in compliance with the statute in such case made and provided, namely, the provisions of chapter ..... of the Laws of ....., and the amendments thereto.

III.

The State Board of Tax Commissioners was and is authorized by law to make the valuation and assessment complained of, and in the manner and form as made by it and the statute under which the said valuations were made is in accordance with the Constitution and valid and binding upon the relator, and all of the acts done and performed by said State Board of Tax Commissioners, as set forth in the petition herein, were in accordance with law and valid under the Constitution and Laws of the State of New York and of the United States.

IV.

That at the time the assessment complained of was made, your respondents had before them the report of the relator for the year . . . . ., filed with them by the relator at the request of your respondents; and all the papers and documents filed with them by the relator, and the statements made and all the papers and documents with them by the relator, and the statements made and evidence submitted to them on behalf of the relator, upon the hearing hereinafter referred to. All of which reports, papers, documents, etc., are on file in the office of your respondents and are hereby made a part of this return as if herein set out at length.

V.

A notice in writing was duly given to the relator that said State Board of Tax Commissioners would meet at its office in the City of Albany, on the . . . . . day of . . . . ., 191., to hear and determine any complaint concerning said assessment. At the time fixed in said or to which the matter was adjourned, the relator appeared and filed certain papers and was heard by counsel, said papers being made a part of this return as aforesaid.

VI.

That the petitioner is in nowise aggrieved by the action of the State Board of Tax Commissioners in the premises and that the sum fixed by it as the valuation of its special franchise in the City of New York is neither erroneous nor illegal, nor is the same an overvaluation of such special franchise in said city.

That the rights, permission and franchises set out in the petition of the relator constitute a special franchise as the same is defined by the Tax Law, upon which the relator is subject to a special franchise tax, and do not constitute separate and distinct special franchises so that the valuation is required to be fixed separate and apart from each other.

VII.

That your respondents have not knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the exact percentage of the assessment by the local authorities of the said city of other real property in said city for the year 1907, and that your respondents have decided the sum of $. . . . . to be the value of the special franchise of the relator in the said city and valued the same for assessment at that sum.

VIII.

Your respondents further allege and return that at and previous to the time of making such assessment they had before them certain facts and information other than those communicated to them on behalf of the relator. That at and previous to the time when the assessment and valuation of the special franchise of the relator was made by your respondents, they had made inquiry, examination and investigation as to the value of the special franchises of the relator in said city.

That such inquiry, examination and investigation was made by and on behalf of this Board and through its agents and employees, who had obtained knowledge and information and formed opinion as to the value of the special franchise of the relator assessed and in connection therewith of the value of the property of the relator, real and personal, in said city; and from such inquiry, examination and investigation, together with the papers and documents produced before it, it decided the value of the special franchise of the relator to be the sum of $....., and it fixed the value of such special franchise for the purpose of assessment at the said sum of $....., which your respondents believe to be a just and true valuation and which they decided to be the sum at which the said special franchise of the relator was properly assessed for the year ....., after hearing the relator and after consideration of the matter presented by it as grounds for reduction.

IX.

That your respondents allege and return that the petitioner was allowed in all respects the hearing provided for and contemplated by Section ..... of Article ..... of the Tax Law and allege that the said relator had a full and fair hearing by its counsel orally and submitted and presented to the Board all documents and papers desired to be submitted by it.

X.

That the facts pertinent and material to show the value of the property assessed on the roll which were considered by your respondents and the grounds for the valuation of such special franchise by them, included the value of the real estate of such corporation situated in the streets, highways and public places in said city, aside from and irrespective of the use and right to use such streets, highways and public places, together with the value of the use and the right to use said streets, highways and public places of said city by the relator, as such value has been fixed and determined upon the evidence, papers and documents before said Board; which papers and documents give among other things the cost of the property, the income therefrom and other facts going to show the value thereof; and from examination, investigation and inquiry made by and on behalf of the said Board as to the value of said property. That in so assessing such special franchise and in arriving at the valuation thereof, your respondents have not included in such assessment and valuation any property except such as is situate in, under, above, upon or running through the public streets and public places of said city including the franchises, rights, authority, or permission to construct, operate and maintain its foundations, roadbed, substructures and superstructures, wires, pipes, mains and conduits, with their appliances in, under, above, upon or through said streets and public places; nor have they included the value of the right to be or the franchise to be a corporation; nor have they included the value of the good will of the business carried on by it; nor have they included the value of any property other than that defined as a special franchise by subdivision ..... of section ..... of the Tax Law. That such assessment as made of such special franchies includes the value of the tangible and intangible property in said streets, and has been arrived at upon consideration of all the facts and circumstances affecting the value of said property, including the use or right to use said streets and public places, which your respondents have been able to ascertain.

Your respondents further return that they deny the allegations in the petition except so far as the same are shown to be true by this return and the papers thereto annexed and referred to and forming a part thereof, and deny each and every allegation to the effect that the relator is not properly and legally assessed at the fair value of its special franchise.

In witnesses whereof, the undersigned, Chairman of the State Board of Tax Commissioners, has hereunto set his hand this ..... day of ....., 191...
